Stories of Inhuman Treatment of Wives By King In China Told by Peterborough Resident There

RUNNERS TO COME

Irish Canadians Will Send Long-boat And Other Good Men To Peterborough

WAS ARRANGED FOR TO-DAY

Mr. H H H Kenner, who is an interested member of the Y. M. C. A. Harrier Club is in Toronto to-day and while there called upon Mr. Tom Flanagan, of the Irish-Canadian Athletic Club with a view to getting some of the runners to compete in the indoor athletic meet which is being arranged by the Harrier Club. If the meet is arranged, as it is probable it will be, there will be some of the best runners of the I.C.A.C. here to compete against Simpson, Wilson, Sheat, and other distance men.

Mr. Flanagan intimated that if the club wished they might have O'Rourke, the heavy weight putter; Tom Longboat, Hilton Green, Tom Coley, Eulan and others.

From the interest shown by Mr. Kenner and others prominent in athletic games, the public of Peterborough should be confident that during the autumn, winter and next summer, they will see some of the best indoor and outdoor sports in the province.

INSTRUCTIVE ADDRESS ON INDIA

Delivered by the Rev. H. J. Keith at A.Y.P.A. Meeting

A special interest was added to the A. Y. P. A. meeting at St. Luke's last night because of the presence of Rev. H. J. Keith of Knox church, who gave a most interesting and instructive address on "India," and the programme of Christian work there. The members of the A. Y. P. A. appreciated this by turning out in large numbers. The president, Mr. H. C. M. Potter was in the chair. Dr. Langfeldt opened the meeting with devotional exercises. In introducing Rev. Mr. Keith Dr. Langfeldt said that it gave him particular pleasure to do so, for two reasons. First, because it was his first visit to St. Luke's; and, secondly, because Mr. Keith while in India, had become an intimate friend of a college friend of his, Rev. Mr. Haslam, who with his wife, were giving great service to the church in missionary work.

Rev. Mr. Keith acknowledged and appreciated the hearty welcome extended to him and remarked that he came often in contact with Church of England missionaries, in fact upon his arrival in India he was entertained by a clergyman of the Church of England.

His address was most helpful and highly appreciated by the large audience. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered him.

The A. Y. P. A. decided to entertain the congregation on Friday evening, Nov. 29th.

CHARLES BEAVIS BACK FROM SUDBURY

To Get a Job in New Collegiate Building —Found Drunk and Remanded

The police court this morning had only one case to dispose of. The charge was that of drunk and disorderly against Chas. Beavis, who two weeks ago was fined $2 and costs to be paid in ten days. Beavis made his exit from Peterborough, but came back again last night. He told the Magistrate this morning that he had come from Sudbury to get a position on the new Collegiate Institute building, and believes that if the Magistrate would let him go he would become all right again. His Worship remanded Beavis for eight days.

WARDS OF CHILDREN'S SHELTER WANTED TO ACT AS SLAVES FOR THEIR MASTERS AND MISTRESSES

Startling Conditions Discovered By The Officials—Woman Subject To Epileptic Seizures an Example

A CAREFUL EXAMINATION

Environment Found To be The Chief Cause For Crime Among The Young—Majority of Persons Like Children

There are few persons in Peterborough who have any conception of the details attached to the work of the Children's Aid Society and the importance of it towards the edification and moral training of the homeless children of the city and county. The work that has been carried on for the past couple of months by the local society, although not apparent to the casual observer, has been of great importance.

In conversation with Mr. E. L. Goodwill, the secretary of the society, an Examiner representative has learned some interesting facts in connection with the work in Peterborough county. The past two months have been particularly strenuous so far as the society officials are concerned. Many applications have been made to the secretary for children, and these have been for various purposes—some of them with none too good an object in view—all of which have to be seriously considered before the consent of the society is given to allow the children to be adopted by strangers.

Many Motives

Mr. Goodwill has made a careful study of the motives of men and women in seeking to adopt children. He finds that in many cases they are merely wanted to act as labourers for their masters and mistresses, and not as boys and girls who would be treated similarly to sons and daughters. Often they are sought for the mere purpose of minding a baby. In one instance Mr. Goodwill discovered a case where a woman, subject to epileptic seizures, wanted a little girl to tell the neighbours when she was under the influence of her malady.

In cases such as these the society is very careful to see that their wards if allowed to go, are brought back and sent to a place where they are treated respectfully. Few mistakes, however, are made, and where doubtful the children are only allowed to go on probation.

Few in Shelter

The secretary states that there are few of the children who came under the notice of the society, placed in the Shelter, before a home is found for them. The applications from various points in the country are so many that whenever the homeless children are referred to the Society, homes are ready for them. Within the past few weeks there have been over fifteen children located in this manner.

Recently the father of a family of seven died, and already six of them have been found good homes throughout the city and country. There are three applications for every child the Society has to dispose of.

Causes of Immorality

Many of the children of course are taken in charge of the Children's Aid Society, on account of their tendency to follows the paths of immorality. The cause of their departure from moral ways is chiefly on account of their environments. Heredity is another reason assigned for their evil proclivities.

At the present time there are only a couple of children at the Shelter on Charlotte street, which, by the way, will be vacated by next week. The Society has been pushing forward the improvements to the house on the Hilliard Farm and these will be completed in a few days. The whole of the building will not be ready until the present tenents vacate the premises next April.

Salvation Navy Instead of Army

London, Nov. 15.—(Special.) — Officials of the Salvation Army immigration department confirm the announcement of The Shipping Gazette that a Salvation Army navy is projected. Mr. Lamb, chief of the department, says General Booth has long looked forward to the Army owning its whole emigration machinery. The steady flow of emigration under Salvation Army auspices would already make the maintenance of at least one steamer profitable, and there would be no hesitation in increasing th fleet as the traffic increased. One of the chief features of the scheme is that every ship will be manned throughout by members of the Army.

FINED FOR SHOOTING FAWN

Lindsay Hunters Punished for Breaking Game Laws

Mr. Thos. Wilson of Warsaw, who was in the city to-day on his way home from Lindsay, informed the Examiner that he saw Alf. Hunter, a game inspector, fine a number of hunters at the Lindsay station last evening for shooting fawn, which is contrary to the provisions of the game laws. The party, composed of Lindsay men, had, it is stated, eight fawn in their possession. They must be poor sportsmen indeed who will commit such destruction among the deer by killing such a large number of fawn. Mr. Hunter, it is reported, also caught a number of other hunters yesterday, and fined them heavily on the same charge. All true sportsmen will heartily support the action of the game inspector in this respect, and it is hoped that it will be a lesson to the men who were guilty of the offence.

PETERBORO' BOY'S HEROIC FEAT MADE HIM THE HERO OF THE HOUR

A gentleman who has just returned from a visit to Winnipeg tells of an heroic action on the part of a former Peterborough boy, who is now situated in the metropolis of the West. He states that he was walking on Main street about two weeks ago, when a farmer's team, becoming frightened at a street car, broke away from the control of the driver, and ran down the crowded thoroughfare at full speed, with the occupants of the vehicle, including several women, screaming for help. A terrible accident seemed imminent, and the results would have been serious had the wagon collided with another vehicle or a street car. Suddenly a man sprang out from the sidewalk in the path of the flying team, and stepping aside as it reached him, leaped for the cordile and caught it, hanging on with grim determination until the horses were finally brought to a halt amid the cheers of the crowd. The hero of the hour was found to be no other than Mr. Chas. Guy, formerly a well-known resident of this city, who was made the recipient of many congratulatory expression on the part of those who had witnessed the heroic action which undoubtedly saved the lives of the occupants of the wagon.

LINDSAY WALKER'S CHALLENGE WAS VERY RAPIDLY ACCEPTED

It didn't take Mr. George Stevens long to accept the challenge of Mr. John Everson, the Lindsay walker, which appeared in yesterday's Examiner, reproduced from the Lindsay Post. Mr. Stevens read it last evening and didn't sleep all night so anxious was he to call on the Lindsay man with all the money. He took the first opportunity and went to Lindsay on the early morning train to visit Mr. Robertson, where the following agreement was drawn up:

Lindsay, Nov. 16, 1907.

Mr. George Stevens,
Box, 925,
Peterborough, Ont.,

If John Everson accepts the challenge to walk David Hartley of Peterborough for $1000 per side, 40 per cent. of the gate receipts go to the winner and 10 per cent to the loser, from a 12 to 20 hour walk, to take place on Nov. 30th, on the Peterborough rink, he will notify Mr. Stevens before that date.

ANDREW ROBERTSON.

Mr. Stevens believes that the race will come off and if it does it will certainly be enveloped in interest. Mr. Stevens leaves next week for Toronto with Hartley, who will train a few days before the 12 hour walk next Saturday night.

CLOSING MEETING OF THE WEEK

Rev. A. H. Brace Preached Good Sermon At Mark Street Last Night

The services at Mark Street Methodist Church were conclused for this week last night, but will be continued again all next week. Rev. A. H. Brace of Park street church delivered the sermon which was a great influence to th epeople. The text was "Walk ye in the way," and "There is a way that seemeth to man, but th end thereof is death." He mentioned many passages from Scripture to prove that there is only one way of living for the great end. The attendance was very good and the meeting closed the first week of a splendid evangelistic effort.

MAN BREAKS HIS LEG AND WALKS INTO HOTEL WITH IT UNDER HIS ARM

About 10.30 o'clock this morning an apparently painful accident occurred in front of the Queen's Hotel, when a well-known gentleman of this city had one of his legs completely broken off below the knee, as the result of a fall. The unfortunate man explained to the Examiner that the leg was cracked before he left home, and he had been rather uneasy about it. He was assisted into the hotel by a few bystanders, and the leg was soon dressed so as to enable the gentleman to go home. The leg happened to be made of hardwood, and a little wire was all that was necessary to repair it. A Collegiate student standing by thought that he had an excellent opportunity to apply "first aid to the sick and injured," but was very much chagrined to learn that his assistance was not required.

FINE PICTURES OF THE CHASE

Mr. Fred Roy Secures Some Magnificent Photographs

Mr. Fred Roy of the Roy Studio, has spent the last few days among the Peterborough hunters in the north and has brought back with him souvenirs of the occasion in the shape of many dozen of magnificent photographs of the hunters, their prey, their camps, etc. Mr. Roy pronounces them the best assortment of photographs of such subjects that the studio has ever produced, and the general public will agree with Mr. Roy when they see the pictures. Mr. Roy left the city on Monday in company with Mrs. Roy, and visited the Ketchecum Lake party on the lake of that name, the Eagle Lake party on Little Gold Lake, Eastwood's party at the Depot Camp, Stony Creek, and the Crawford Club of Lakefield at Mortimer's Lake.

The pictures include groups of all these parties, as well as individual pictures, among the most noteworthy of the latter being snapshots of Mr. Harry Winch and a big buck, Mr. William Irwin, carrying a deer on his shoulders, Mr. Harry LeBrun, and the biggest buck of the year shot by him; and the Eagle Lake party afoat in their war canoe.

BOTTLE LAKE CLUB HAD GOOD LUCK

The Bottle Lake Hunt Club returned home last night after an absence of 10 days, eight of which were spent in the chase. The party was composed of Messrs. Gus Chedrane, M O'Brien, Dave Johnston, Arthur Head, Jack Wiley and Dr. Amys. They had good luck, bringing back 7 deer, the largest weighing over 200 lbs. and the rest being almost as heavy. The party have some great shots, according to the stories that are going around. Dr. Amys got a buck and a doe while they were in full run, Mr. O'Brien got a doe in the same way, and Mr. Cochrane a buck. Mr. Head shot one of the largest deer in the district. He got it in the lake and is highly elated over his capture.

The weather was not the best, but the men had excellent sport and a good time. "Mick" O'Brien was a host in himself and made a great hit by his songs in the evenings. All the boys can now sing "Every Little Bit Added to What You Get, Makes Just a Little Bit More," and—

"Save up your money,
Be as cunning as a fox,
And you'll always have tobacco
In you old tobacco box,"

As a result of Mr. O'Brien's encores.

COOKED BODY OF ONE WIFE

Others Pulled To Pieces With Pincers And Immersed in Boiling Oil — Inhuman Surgical Experiments

A former Peterborough resident, now living in China, has sent the Examiner the following story, in which the inhuman acts of a monster are depicted:—

By the abdication recently of the mad King of Annam, Indo-China is rid of a monster whose crimes outvie in horror the worst excesses of the Emperor Nero. King Thanh-Tai, is a slim young man of twenty-eight, with physique and features typically Chinese. He would be considered good looking but for the vacant expression of his eyes and hanging lower lip. As a monarch he had nothing to do with the affairs of the State of Annam, which is a French Protectorate. He merely acted as the State and once a year he was dressed in the sacred robes and shown to the people.

Bluebeard Up-to-date

Undoubtedly he is a criminal lunatic. During his monarchy he was seized with periodical fits of frenzy when he ordered, apparently without reason his friends and Ministers to be tortured and killed. Appalling stories are told of his cruelties. He killed one of his wives, had the body cooked, and compelled his courtiers to devour it under threats of instant death. Others of his wives were pulled to pieces with pinchers and immersed in boiling oil. One day he ordered one of his mandarins to arrange a fight between a tigress and her cubs and a naked man. The mandarin refused, and the King shot him, afterwards despatching the tigress. He then had the two cubs brought into the grounds of the palace, where a woman was thrown to them, and devoured alive.

Inconceivable Brutality

In August of last year this inhuman monster being displeased with several of his wives for some trifling offence that they had committed, ordered them to be put to death. Wishing to get as much savage pleasure as possible out of their deaths, he ordered them to be tortured in a manner too awful to mention. This was done in his presence, the King watching the women's last agonies with the greatest delight. A day or two later in a fit of passion, he drew his revolver and shot dead the prince, who was the president of the council of the Royal Family. A few years ago he was afflicted with a mania for experimenting in medical matters. One of his experiments was to shut up his own mother in a room with two persons in the worst stages of bubonic plague. Again, under the pretext that he was acting in the cause of science, he had one of his wives vivisected. In January, 1903, he so tortured his personal attendants that their screams were heard at night at the French Residency, whereupon the Resident interfered and rescued from the palace seven victims, all of whom had undergone atrocious tortures. A favourite amusement of this "merry monarch" was to shoot arrows at young girls tied to posts until he killed them.

HUNTER WAS KNOCKED FROM BOAT BY THE SUDDEN REACTION OF RIFLE

Every hunting party returning from the forest brings with it some tale of a hunter's mishap. The little party of four under the leadership of Mr. Jos. Lytle of Lindsay, in which Mr. Frank White was a member, had an accident while away in Sinclair township, Muskoka, showing the trials of hunters in the north.

One of the party, who has been back to his woods for several years, was paddling along Big East River, when he spied a deer coming towards the water. His gun was an old one, charged with buckshot which did not help shooting any. He raised his shooting-piece and fired. The charge struck the deer, but the gun kicked, and nearly knocked him out of his boat. Brave as ever, he filled the gun with the same kind of a charge, and paddled his canoe so as to have the bow facing the shore. Then he stood up and fired again. There was a loud splash, and the party gazed in the direction of the canoe, to see their friend disappearing beneath the water. The deer was killed, all right, but the hunter does not wish to go through the same experience again. He says the water was cold.

ICE ON RICE LAKE

Steamer Water Lily Delayed Four Hours And Monarch Couldn't Get Through to Peterboro'

3-4 OF AN INCH THICK

Rice Lake was so badly frozen over this morning, as to delay the steamer Water Lily for four hours on her regular Saturday trip to the city, and to prevent the Monarch from coming up at all. The Lily left Harwood at the usual hour but had to break her way through three-quarters of an inch of ice as far as the mouth of the Otonabee. She arrived in port at 1.30 p.m., or four hours behind her scheduled time.

The Water Lily returned this afternoon and will bring a snow load up

JOHN LEAVES THE HOMESTEAD

Moose Jaw Times.

You're going to leave the homestead,
You're twenty-one to-day,
And the old man will be sorry
To see you go away.
You've laboured late and early,
And done the best you could;
I don't a-going to stop you,
I wouldn't if I could;
Yet something of your feelings
I s'pose I ought to know;
Though many a day has passed away,
'Twas forty years ago—
When hope was high within me,
And life all lay before me,
And I with strong and measured stroke
"Cut loose, and pulled for shore."
The years they come and go, my boy,
The years they come and go;
And raven locks and tresses brown
Grow white as driven snow;
My life has known its sorrows,
Its trials and trouble sore,
Yet God with all has blessed me
"Un-basket and in store."
But one thing let me tell you
Before you make your start;
There's more in being honest
Twice o'er than being smart.
The rogue may seem to flourish,
And sterling worth to fail;
Oh! keep in view the good and true,
'Twill in the end prevail.
Don't think too much of money,
And dig and drive and plan,
And rake and scrape in every shape
To hoard all that you can.
Though fools may count their riches
In shillings, pounds and pence;
The best of wealth is youth and health,
And good, sound common sense.
And don't be mean and stingy,
But lay a little by
Of what you earn you will soon learn
How fast 'twill multiply.
So when old age comes creeping on
You'll have a goodly store
Of wealth and happiness and health,
And maybe something more.
There are shorter cuts to fortune,
We see them every day,
But those who seize their self-respect
Climbs up the good old way.
"All is not gold that glitters,"
And makes the vulgar stare,
And those we deem the richest
Have oft the least to spare.
Don't meddle with your neighbours,
Their business nor their cares,
You'll find enough to do, my boy,
To mind your own affairs.
The world is full of idle tongues
You can afford to shirk—
There are lots of people ready
To do such dirty work.
And if amid the race for fame
You win the coveted prize,
The humble worth of honest men
You never should despise;
For each one has a mission
In life's unchanging plan;
Though lowly as his station
He is no less a man.
Be good, be pure, be noble,
Be honest, brave and true,
And do to others as you would
That others do to you.

The Peterboro' Light and Power Co. will be unable to supply light on Sunday between the hours of eight a. m. and five p. m., on account of alterations to plant.

A HOLD UP

Can it be that a highly virtuous combination like the Whitney Government should countenance and practice sectional administration? The Government propose to construct electrical transmission lines to supply Niagara Falls power to municipalities, from Toronto, included, west and north, at a cost expressed in a prepared schedule. Now that there is a dangar of the cost exceeding the estimate, the Government declares its willingness to bear the expense of any cost above the estimate. In other words the Government commits portions of the province out of the power area, which, for geographical reasons cannot be served with, or do not for some reason need, government power, to paying for something they will not receive, for the benefit of other parts of the province which are in a positon to profit. Premier Whitney was once in favour of making Niagara power "free as air," now he is seeking to make some of the people pay for power they do not get. The principle involved is bad, and it acted upon will be equivalent to a hold up of the unelectrified parts of Ontario.

BAD IN PRINCIPLE

The Ontario Municipal Association still clings to its fetich of irresponsibility. It clamours for legislative relief from the responsibility incurred by the neglect of municipalities to maintain public highways — not in good condition — but in a condition of safety for life, limb and property. In thus agitating for legislative immunity from the consequences of maintaining, or, rather, permitting, bad and dangerous highways, the Association is advocating a principle hostile to the interests of farmers, who have the largest concern in good and safe highways. If a municipality is to be relieved by law of all penalty for keeping roads in a condition that will cause loss to the farmer through damage to his person, his horse, or his vehicle, why not pass legislation to relieve the drivers of automobiles from responsibility for the consequences of reckless driving, high speed, and indifference to the rights of other users of the highways of the land? Yet the latter would be but the logical sequence of the recognition in concrete legislation of the principle of relieving municipalities of responsibiltiy for permitting the existence of bad and dangerous highways. If a law were passed to specifically relieve automobilists from responsibility for accidents their actions might cause, would there not be a great increase of the prevalent recklessness the drivers of automobiles practice, to an extent to make the use of our highways for other purposes practically impossible? On the same principe, if the law permitted a municipality to neglect its highways, and relieved them of responsibility for accidents resulting from defects, would not the condition of our country and city highways speedily become worse and the use of our highways, with comfort and safety, become practically impossible? The legislation sought is bad in principle, and mischievous in tendency — unfair to the public as depriving them of protection and tending to the neglect of construction and maintenance of good highways, something which needs to be helped, rather than hindered.

WAS A TOTAL WRECK FROM HEART FAILURE.

Heart disease is characterised by its stealthy approach and its variety of forms, yet in all its forms nature gives unmistakable signals which warn us of its presence.

One of the first danger signals announcing something wrong with the heart is the irregular beat or violent throb. Often there is only a fluttering sensation, or an "all gone" sinking feeling; or, again there may be the most violent beating, with flushings of the skin and visible pulsations of the arteries. You may experience a smothering sensation, gasp for breath and feel as though about to die. In such cases the action of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills in quieting the heart, restoring its normal beat and imparting tone to the nerve centres, is, beyond all question, marvellous. They give such prompt relief, such speedy restoration to health that no one need suffer.

Mr. Darius Carr, Geary, N.B., writes: "It is with the greatest of pleasure I write you a few lines to let you know the great blessing your Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have been to me. I was a total wreck from heart failure, my wife advised me to take your pills, and, after using two boxes I was restored to perfect health. I am now sixty-two years old and feel almost as well as I did at twenty."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 for $1.25 at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE REAL THING AND THE OTHER

Hon. Senator Ross has been doing some plain talk to our southern neighbours. He spoke at a banquet in New York, where President Roosevelt's aim at centralizing power at Washington was severely condemned, and his effort is prescribed as the speech of the evening. In the course of it he declares that "England is a republic with an hereditary President, while the United States is a limited monarchy (with an elective King," and proceeded to prove by examples that his assertion was correct. He pointed out that the President of the United States is an absolute ruler between elections. On the other hand, he said, according to the governmental arrangement of England and Canada, the real rulers, the Gvernoment, can be made to get out by the voice of the people within twenty-four hours. Which is no news to us in Canada, who are familiar with the boon of responsible constitutional government.

ALL RED LINE

The visit of Hon. Clifford Sifton to England has given a fillip to the All-Red Line plan of binding the Empire more closely together. The London Daily Mail regards his presence in London as "a sign of the enterprise approaching its accomplishment." This would mean a service of 25-knot steamers from the west coast of Ireland to Canada, which would bring Canada, "that great and growing state," as the Mail calls us, within four days of the Mother Country. Then, with a more rapid Pacific service, as Promised by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, we should see Canada on the highway between London and New Zealand, over a distance equal to two-thirds the girdle of the globe, which will be covered in less time than it took our ancestors to cross from the Old Country to Canada half a century ago. What Imperial penny postage and an All-British cable have done in bringing the scattered units of the Empire into closer relations, will be crowned by what will be accomplished in the same direction by the All-Red Line.

PROHIBITORY PROGRESS

To-day forty per cent. of the people of the United States are under legislation, prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquor—including prohibition and local option areas. Fewer than forty years ago only nine per cent. of the population held prohibitory relations to strong drink. However, only four of all the States are completely "dry," and only one state outside of the Rocky Mountain group is wholly "wet," and strangely enough that is the Quaker state, Pennsylvania. The four completely "dry" states are—of course—the veteran, Maine, Kansas, North Dakota and Georgia. Different causes have contributed to the spread of prohibitory legislation. In the northern states change in moral sentiment has been the chief factor. In the south, where there has recently been a wave of sentiment in favour of repressive legislation the exciting cause is social and economic. It is mixed with the colour problem. In view of the terrible effect of strong drink upon the negro, it is beginning to be recognised that it must be kept from him at any cost. It aymulates his animal nature, with the results of outrages upon white women and the companion outrages of lynchings, hangings and burnings. Besides liquor unfits the negro for work and as the "white trash" of the south cannot be depended upon to labour, economic and commercial reasons indicate the suppression of strong drink. The proverbial Kentucky "Colonel" may feel the pinch of prohibition, but he can better do without his Bourbon than without his bread; for without negro labour, free from adulteration with whisky the south might, measurably, starve.

In Canada, the conditions indicating a lessened consumption of strong drink are gaining ground. So far as local option lessens drinking its area is now respectably large—and promises to extend. Then again so far as increase in the cost of indulgence in drink is concerned, that condition is operating. The dealers in intoxicating liquor, wholesale and retail, have advanced prices, between forty and fifty per cent., and in the Old Country the brewers and distillers are also stiffening the price of what Mr. Richard Swiveller denominates the "modest quencher." It seems probable that the class which cares little for liquor and drinks moderately, will drink less, if it costs more. The class that loves the grog and drinks intemperately will continue to drink to the limit of the means available. And as whisky costs more, the same money will buy less and hence less will be drunk.

President Roosevelt advises removing the United States import duties on printing papers coming from Canada, "not to benefit the publishers, but to save the forests." Thanks very much, Teddy, but it won't work. Canada won't be a party to the destruction of her pulpwood forests to save those of the United States. Of course, a Canadian government can't prevent cutting of pulp woods on private lands, but it can control the cut in the Crown domain.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The visit of Mr. R. L. Borden and "my friend Mr. Fowler" seems, says the Halifax Chronicle, to have completely demoralized the Conservatives of St. John. A few weeks ago Hon. Wm. Pugsley, Minister of Public Works, was returned by acclamation, and now Hon. H. A. McKeown, the new Attorney-General of New Brunswick, also gets his seat without a contest. The Conservative party seem to fare worse the further it goes.

THE PEOPLE'S BREAD

In a recent report to the Department of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, P. B. McNamara, Canadian Government Commercial Agent at Leeds, Eng., observes as follows:

"The recent advance in the price of wheat, only equalled by the Leiter corner in 1898, is a reminder to the British people that the problem of wheat supply is becoming a pressing one. In a few months wheat in the a dollar (4s 6d) per bushel, and United States has advanced first to then to nearly $1.25, or 37s 4d per quarter. The price in London for best Manitoba wheat has advanced to 46s 6d per quarter, and because of the advance the London Flour Miller's Association decided to raise the price of flour by sixpence a sack, and this will necessarily be followed by a rise in the price of the loaf. The universal belief that bread at 4 1-2d or 5d for a 4-lb. loaf is the limit is likely to receive a crash in the near future. Years ago the German Professor Pohle pointed out that a general advance in the price of wheat was inevitable and events are realising the prediction. There will, no doubt, be fluctuations in the near future but the tendency will be upward for the reason that the consumption is overtaking the supply of wheat.

"The total area of wheat land at present in cultivation is capable of supplying 656,000,000 mouths with bread, and the number to be fed is 585,000,000. The margin may seem large but it is one which will rapidly vanish with the natural increase of population, while the process will be accelerated by the tendency now shown in Japan and China to use wheat instead of rice for food. Thus ten, fifteen or twenty years will see the supply fall below the demand unless fresh wheat fields are brought under cultivation. Fortunately there are nearly 500,000 square miles of such land awaiting tillage in western Canada, but outside of that there is no great available area. The future bread supply of this country will thus depend on the relations of Canada to the United Kingdom, and we shall do well to make every effort to bind our daughter state to our side by the closest ties of affection and mutual interest. If these wheat lands were to pass into hands unfriendly to England her people might be made to pay enormously for their wheat, and a repetition of the days of 1812, when the loaf stood at 1s. 8d might occur. In this connection it might be stated that the demand for Canadian flour is greater now than for the past five years, and large buyers in London, Glasgow, Hamburg, Amsterdam Christiania and Helsingfors are endeavouring to establish buying connections."

HOW TO MAKE THE BEST REMEDY

FIX THIS FOR YOURSELF

A large health publication tells its readers of a number of simple and safe prescriptions that can be made at home. The following, however, for the cure of rheumatism and kidney and bladder troubles, receives the greatest praise, viz., Fluid Extract dandelion, one-half ounce, Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. These simple, harmless ingredients can be obtained at any good prescription pharmacy at little cost and are mixed by shaking well in a bottle.

The dose for adults is a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime, drinking a full tumblerful of water after each dose. It is further stated that this prescription is a positive remedy for kidney trouble and lame back, weak bladder and urinary difficulties, especially of the elderly people, and one of the best things to be used in rheumatic afflictions, relieving the aches and pains and reducing swellings in a short time.

A well known local druggist states that this mixture acts directly upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys; cleanses these sponge-like organs and gives them power to shift and strain the poisonous waste matter and uric acid from the blood which is the cause of rheumatism.

Cut this out and hand to some sufferer, which would certainly be an act of humanity.

THE NEW ENGLAND DINNER

Junior Girl's Auxiliary Have Successful Year—Dinner a Financial Success

TWO PRIZES ARE GIVEN

Last night the Girls' Auxiliary of All Saints' Church held its annual "New England Dinner" in the school house. Rev. Mr. Major was in the chair. The room was gaily decorated with flags and bunting, the work of Mr. A. Kingscote. There was a large attendance, and the dinner was a financial success. The programme which was splendidly rendered was given by the members of the auxiliary, and was as follows:

Piano Solo — Miss Ida Mulholland.
Recitation—Miss Helen Metheral.
Piano Solo—Miss Mabel Hooper.
Song—Gladys Mulholland.

After the programme, Mr. Major presented a music roll to Miss Irene Scott for having sold the largest number of tickets for this concert. The members of the society presented Miss Lillian Spicer with a gold ring for having raised the most money in the wheat club. Miss Spicer was given twenty-five cents at the beginning of the summer, and by making taffy, cookies and other little sweets, she increased her talent money to $20, which she handed into the auxiliary at the close of the summer. This little girl is one of the smallest in the auxiliary and deserves great credit for her work.

The rector then spoke to the audience, referring to the manner in which the grand and noble work had gone on. The society met every week for sewing class, the result being that a large bale was packed this year and sent to the missions, and was much appreciated by the Toronto board. "This," he continued, "brings the girls into active missionary work and makes them strong members of the church. The sewing class particularly makes the girls useful to her parents at home."

The assembly then adjourned to another room, where refreshments were served, the tables being most beautifully decorated and tastefully laid out.

Great praise is due Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Bloyes, and their assistants, Misses Haskill, Mabel Hooper, Bessie Latimer and Mabel Williams, who had charge over the concert and supper. The singing of the National Anthem brought the evening to a close.

PE-RU-NA CHEERFULLY RECOMMENDED FOR COLDS AND CATARRH.

A Prominent Canadian Gives His Experience With the World-Famous Remedy For Catarrh.

This gives rise to a discharge, or at least a stuffiness of the nasal passages.

Sometimes fever accompanies the first attack, also a feeling of languor, dullness and aching of the bones.

If no attention is paid to it, the mucous congestion is liable to spread down into the larynx, producing hoarseness and into the bronchial tubes, producing a cough.

Even when this occurs, many people pay no attention to it.

Under such circumstances, the congestion is liable to become chronic, producing a condition of the mucous membranes known as catarrh. Catarrh lasts an indefinite time. Catarrh is essentially a chronic condition and does not leave except something is done to relieve it.

CURE COLDS—PREVENT CATARRH.

What should be done when a person catches cold is to take a few doses of Peruna.

But, even in cases where the cold has been neglected and hoarseness or a cough has developed, Peruna can be relied upon to give prompt and permanent relief.

A number of the best people of various countries have given testimonials as to the value of Peruna in such cases.

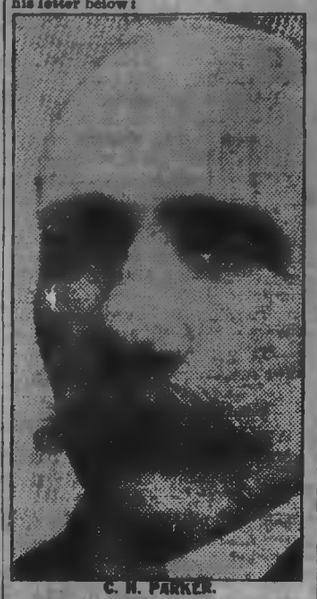
Followed Dr. Hartman's Advice—Restored to Health.

Mrs. Samuelle Vigneau, Avre au Berd, Isle de La Magdaline, Canada, writes:

"I write to tell you that I am perfectly well. I took only three bottles of your Peruna according to your advice and the directions in your book and it restored my health."

C. H. Parker, Ex-Warden of Compton Co., Quebec, has been mayor of Scotstown for a number of years. He is an influential resident in Scotstown and widely known.

He writes concerning Peruna. Read his letter below:



C. H. PARKER.

"I had several attacks of colds from time to time and finally a severe attack developed into catarrh.

"I was advised to use your celebrated catarrh remedy, and after taking three bottles I find myself completely cured, and I no longer suffer from catarrh or colds.

"I can cheerfully recommend Peruna for colds and catarrh."

If Peruna had no other medicinal value than the promptness with which it relieves common colds, it would be well worth while for any family to keep it in the house constantly.

NEEDLEWORK PATTERNS FOR EXAMINER READERS

The new and simple Wallachian embroidery is best exemplified in the making of centre pieces; the most useful article of the day is undoubtedly the centre piece, whatever the size. And when worked in Wallachian which is only a simple button hole stitch worked from the outer side of the ptal or ring to the middle, thereby making a centre rib, it is doubly attractive to the woman to whom time and expense are factors. This pattern, in both 16 and 24 inch size may be had already stamped on either white or tan linen of the best quality with plain or coloured materials to work, or in a perforated pattern which is simple to use and includes complete materials and full directions for stamping. The prices are — Table set in Wallachian embroidery, 24 in. centre piece, perforation one-half size, 25c; stamped on heavy linen, 75c.; on tan linen 85c; materials to work, white or in colours, 55c.; 16 by 16 size, perforation, 25c.; stamped on heavy linen 35c.; in tan linen, 40c; material to work, 45c.

The pride of the up-to-date house keeper in interior decorations, is best illustrated by the table linens she uses; the prevalence of table cloths has passed away to make room for the newer fashion of embroidered table sets. We present here an exquisite design in eyelet work for a set of one tray cloth and four doilies to match. As a gift this will be highly acceptable to the discriminating housewife at any time. It may be had already stamped on fine heavy linen with materials to work or in a perforated pattern which is simple to use and includes complete materials and full directions for stamping. The prices are: Lunch set, 18 by 22, tray cloth, and four 6 inch doilies, perforation, 35 cents; stamped on heavy linen, 60 cents; on tan linen, 75 cents; materials to work, 35c

DEAF BEGGER IS CAPTURED BY POLICE AND IS MARCHED OUT OF THE CITY

A deaf mute who visited many proprietors of Geenge street stores last week, and stopped several people in quest of funds to start him up in business, was rounded up in a restaurant the other night while he was enjoying a piece of cold chicken. The unfortunate man had a little card, and by means of this he conveyed the object of his business.

About 10.30 o'clock one night the police station was notified of the existence of this individual. P. C's Adams and Newhall set out after the fellow, one going in the back entrance to the restaurant and the other in the front, and took charge of the beggar.

The deaf mute was quite surprised to see the officers, but calmly wrote on a piece of paper, "If you let me go I will leave on the mid-night train." The officers decided to comply with his request, and he has not been heard of since.

Boston Millionaire Gives a Million To Depositors Who Lost Their Money

HE WAS ONE OF DIRECTORS

Last week William E. Perkins, a millionaire, died in Boston. In the obituary notices of his career a fact was revealed which had been kept a close secret during his lifetime. At one time he was president of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Railway Company, and a director of a bank. When the bank failed he contributed one million dollars out of his private fortune to prevent depositors losing their money. The facts, as now brought out, are that Mr. Perkins owned only ten thousand dollars of the bank's stock, and that he had been chosen a director without his knowledge or consent. Writing to a friend at the time, he referred to these facts, observing that by allowing his name to appear as that of a director he may have influenced some persons to become depositors, and, because of that possibility he determined to save the depositors and other creditors from loss. This revelation of an action showing a high sense of personal honour and an acknowledgment of responsibility which might have been evaded, coming before the public at a time when so much is being written and said about predatory wealth and rich malefactors, is profoundly gratifying. It suggests that there may be other rich men who are as keenly sensitive of their obligations and that, though the struggle for wealth be fast and furious, not all who amass fortunes are wholly given to the worship of Mammon.

Inhaled Nitric Acid.

Cobalt, Ont., Nov. 16.—A sad death occurred in Cobalt yesterday when William McIntosh succumbed as the result of inhaling nitric acid fumes. He upset a bottle of the acid on his coat, while engaged in making up prescriptions two days ago in the Clifford Moore drug store, where he was a clerk.

He tore his clothing off as rapidly as possible, but he nevertheless inhaled the fumes, which caused congestion of the lungs. Deceased was 28 years of age and came from Strathroy.

Another Fishing Dispute.

Burlington, Vt., Nov. 16.—The long standing dispute as to the right of seining and net fishing in Missiquoi Bay, at the northern extremity of Lake Champlain, will soon become the occasion of a conference between a Vermont commission and Canadian officials, and if not then disposed of may be referred to the Federal Government.

Another Policeman Shot.

New York, Nov. 16.—Policeman Edward Kavanagh was shot and killed in the street in Brooklyn last night by William Morse, colored, who was attempting to escape, it is alleged, after having snatched a pocket-book from Mrs. C. E. Johnston, wife of an electrical engineer of Waco, Texas.

Wealthy Woman's Sentance.

Chicago, Nov. 16.—Mrs. Evelyn Romadka, who is the wife of a wealthy merchant of Milwaukee, and who was recently indicted for burglary and larceny, was yesterday sentenced to the penitentiary for from one to twenty years.

Received the First Cable.

New York, Nov. 16.—William F. Shiebler, who received the first message over the Atlantic cable, sent to President Buchanan by Queen Victoria, is dead in Brooklyn. He had charge of the first military telegraph station.

Asks For Parcel Post Law.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 16.—The American Federation of Labor yesterday adopted a resolution calling upon Congress for a small parcel post law as a relief from the "express company monopolies."

Town Wants the Fine.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—A deputation from Essex Centre, headed by J. A. Auld, M. P. P., waited on the Government yesterday to request that the $25,000 fine imposed by Justice Riddell on the Michigan Central Railway, after the fees are paid, should be handed over to the town, which suffered so much damage from the recent explosion.

Hon. J. J. Foy said there is little doubt that they will get part, if not all, of the fine. Otherwise it would go to the Provincial Treasury.

An Eclipse.

Tangier, Nov. 16.—The Star of Mulai Hafid, Sultan of the South, appears to be waning. Mulai Mahommed, a brother of the Sultan, and pretender to the throne, has joined Sultan Abdel Axis at Rabat.

Author's Canoe Upset.

New York, Nov. 16.—Ernest Thompson Seton, the author, has returned from his exploration trip of seven months through Northwest Canada and is enthusiastic over that part of Canada below the Arctic zone, calling it the "white man's last opportunity." Settlers by the thousands, he said, are pouring in.

Mr. Seton canoed 2,000 miles, having one narrow escape from losing, not only his diaries and all his drawings and maps, but his own life, when his canoe upset in the Athabasca River.

He discovered a number of lakes and rivers in the Arctic region which he is now naming in conjunction with the geographical survey of Canada.

Committed For Trial.

St. Catharines, Nov. 16.—Stuart Nelson, proprietor of the Union Hotel, Merritton, was committed for trial on a charge of stealing a quantity of valuable lumber from the Niagara, St. Catharines & Toronto Railway Co.

Largest and Fastest.

Cowes, Isle of Wight, Nov. 16.—Great Britain, not content with possessing the largest warship in the world in the Dreadnought, has constructed the fastest fighting craft destroyer in the Mohawk.

Foundry Destroyed.

Petrolea, Nov. 16.—The foundry in connection with the Stevenson Boiler Works was totally destroyed last night by fire. The loss is covered by insurance.

What Seeds Guaranteed.

Toronto, Nov. 16.—Hon. Nelson Monteith received a deputation from the Vegetable Growers' Association, who urged that legislation be enacted requiring seedsmen to guarantee the seeds supplied by them are true to the varieties named. This would do away with the sale of substitutes and with the danger of purchasers obtaining impure seeds.

They also asked for a representative on the advisory committee to assist the Minister in the management of the experimental fruit farm at Jordan; that the Agricultural Department collect and publish statistics on vegetable growing, and that the Government grant to the association be increased.

Power From Eugenia.

Flesherton, Nov. 16.—The plant of the Georgian Bay Power Co., situated at Eugenia Falls, was inspected by a committee from the Owen Bound Council and Board of Trade. The company is said to have offered Owen Sound 3,000 horse-power per year at a cost of $30 per horse-power per year. This is on the condition that the town build the power line to it, but, as the right of way has been purchased already, this is not such a costly undertaking. It is estimated that the total cost would not exceed $80,000.

Lincoln's Great Oration.

Lincoln's Gettysburg speech derives its power from the following facts: Its brevity—everything is concise and right to the point, so that the reader receives the fullest effect at once; its absolute sincerity, creating the impression that the speaker is aiming not at effect, but at the honest unfolding of his soul's commingled joy and sorrow, sympathy and hope; its perfection of style, its words being just such as were needed properly to express the idea, simple, yet powerful, going straight to the mark like well-aimed cannon balls.

Moody on the Cards.

One evening in San Francisco Evangelist Moody sat in his room at the hotel playing a game of cards with Mrs. Moody and two friends when a messenger came in with a dispatch. As the boy stood waiting for a reply Mr. Moody suddenly asked, "Won't you sit down, my lad, and have a game of authors with us?"

The boy declined and soon left the room. Hardly had the door closed when Mrs. Moody said, "Why, Dwight, what made you think of inviting that boy to sit down and play with us?"

"My dear," replied Moody, "don't you see, if I had not called the boy's attention to the fact that we were playing authors all the morning papers would certainly have announced under big headlines that D. L. Moody had been discovered in a San Francisco hotel engaged in a game of cards?"

MODERN SURGERY.

Some of the Marvelous Feats It Has Accomplished.

By a marvelous piece of surgery Miss Dot Stephens of London music hall fame will be able to appear on the stage again in spite of the fact that in October last she had both her feet cut off through falling out of a train. At a cost of $1,000 she has been fitted with a pair of artificial feet which are not only so wonderfully made as to entirely escape detection, but which enable Miss Stephens to walk a couple of miles without fatigue and without the aid of a stick.

A prisoner had severed his windpipe with a razor. Thanks, however, to a remarkable piece of surgery on the part of two doctors, the wound was stitched up and the man's life saved.

Even this astounding feat, however, has been surpassed. Two years ago a tailor was stabbed through the heart while quarreling over a game of cards. He arrived at the hospital in a state of collapse, and the doctors decided that the only chance of saving his life was to stitch up the wound in the heart. The chest had to be opened, three ribs cut and part of the breastbone removed before the vital organ could be reached, after which three stitches were put in the heart. Artificial respiration was then resorted to, and two months later the tailor was discharged from the hospital as cured, although he was obliged to wear a shield of black leather and aluminium over his chest to prevent any injury to the wound.

Apart, however, from the fact of stitching up wounded hearts, it will probably astonish many people to learn that it is by no means a rare occurrence for surgeons to make hearts beat again after they have apparently stopped. An operation for cancer was being performed, and under the influence of the anaesthetic the patient's heart suddenly ceased to beat. In an instant the surgeon's hand was thrust inside the body, and he commenced pinching the heart, which began to beat again, thus saving the patient's life.

Quite recently at a meeting held at Baltimore a surgeon explained how he grafted a girl's little finger on her face where her nose should have been and on amputated it. The patient is now a very presentable looking child.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

"I Want The Proof" You Say

WHEN TOLD THAT NERVOUS EXHAUSTION AND PROSTRATION ARE THOROUGHLY CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

What is more discouraging and disheartening than trying to cure nervous exhaustion and prostration by means of ordinary treatments? Because you do not look sick and are suffering great pain, and because they cannot realize your feelings of weakness, helplessness and discouragement, your friends fail to show much sympathy for you, and most doctors are simply helpless in the face of exhausted nerves.

Of course you need not expect Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to work a miracle and cure you in a day or a week, but you can be absolutely sure that you will be benefitted, to at least some extent, by every dose of this great restorative that is taken into the system.

The dreadful weakness and helplessness which makes life miserable to you and leads to all sorts of dark forebodings, will gradually and certainly give way to strength and vigour under this treatment, headaches will disappear, your appetite will improve, you will sleep and rest better and you will find that day by day your nervous system is being built up to health and strength.

That Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is actually bringing about just such cures is proven in thousands of cases of which records are kept on file in these offices. The invigorating, upbuilding influence of this great medicine will surprise you if you only persist in its use.

Mrs. D. O'Connor, 378 Simcoe street, Peterborough, Ont., states: — "My heart has given me a great deal of trouble lately. The least undue exertion affected it, and brought on weakness and fainting spells. My nerves were also very unsteady, and I became so bad that I decided to try Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which was highly recommended to me. Now I am happy to be able to say that I am completely restored to health. My nerves are strong and steady, the action of my heart regular and the dizzy spells have ceased to trouble me."

THE REAL CAUSE

The Ancient Scalp-fever Theory Exploded

At one time dandruff was attributed to the result of a feverish condition of the scalp, which threw off the dried cuticle in scales.

Professor Unna, Hamburg, Germany, noted authority on skin diseases, explodes this theory and says that dandruff is a germ disease.

This germ is really responsible for the dandruff and for so many bald heads. It can be cured if it is gone about in the right way. The right way, of course, and the only way, is to kill the germ.

Newbro's Herpicide does this, and permits the hair to grow, luxuriantly, just as nature intended it should.

Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c in stamps for sample to the Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich. Two sizes —50c and $1. McDermid & Jury, Special Agents.

FREE INFORMATION

This is what one of the most prominent physicians of to-day says: That one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce of compound vimosa, and four ounces of syrup of rhubarb mixed together and taken in dessertspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime in water will effect a permanent cure for the most severe cases of kidney, liver, bladder and urinary troubles. He claims that a few doses will positively cure the worst cases of backache and rheumatism arising from disordered kidneys and impure blood. These drugs are of purely vegetable nature and inexpensive, and can be obtained at any drug store and mixed together at home.

Ye Olde Tyme Concerte Pleased Big Audience

Unique and Highly Successful Concert at St. Andrew's Last Night —Costumes, Songs, and Scenes Of By-gone Years

CHORUS WORK SPLENDID

A more pleasing entertainment has rarely been given by amateur talent in this city than that held last night under the auspices of the choir of St. Andrew's Church, and designated "Ye Olde Tyme Concerte of Musick." The old time costumes and the old time scenes with songs of the olden days cleverly rendered by soloists and chorus, made up a programme that was entirely delightful, and if the applause that followed each number may be taken as a criterion, the audience was a unit in appreciating that fact.

The production is a triumph for Mr. F. C. Freeland, the leader, and the members of the choir, and assisting singers who took part. Many weeks of hard and faithful rehearsing have been underground to make the event as nearly perfection as possible, but the reward was reaped last night in the unqualified pleasure of the audience, which was one of the largest ever assembled in the Sunday school room. Long before the concert commenced the seats were all gone, and those who came later had to stand during the performance, and no better proof of the merit of the programme could be given than the fact that they remained during the entire programme at a sacrifice of their bodily comfort. Concerts of a similar nature have been given in Peterborough before, but in none of them has there been the same study of details and the same variety of amcotiness as were displayed last night. The programme had evidently been made the object of great study on the part of Mr. Freeland, and those connected with the affair, and was so varied that there was not the slightest drag or hitch throughout. It was lengthy, but the audience did not seem to find it too much so, and even defied the rule that there were to be no encores by recalling several of those taking part. The programme was so lengthy and so uniformly good that an individual mention of the artists would be out of place. All are well known in the city, and when it is stated that they surpassed themselves last night it will indicate the high quality of the entertainment. The chorus work was splendid, reflecting great credit upon Mr. Freeland's leadership, and indicating a great deal of time and care spent in rehearsing. The effect was wholly pleasing, the voices bing well balanced and the numbers were rendered with vim and precision, while the pianissimo passages were given to great advantage.

The costumes worn were those of the long ago, and the picture presented was a pleasing one. Spinning wheels, a grand-father's clock, and other antique articles of furniture were used in the arrangement of the platform, which was most artistically decorated, while flags and bunting draped around the hall took away the bare effect from the walls.

An interesting feature of the entertainment was the use of an old-time spinet, which was kindly loaned for the occasion by Mrs. Martin, corner of King and Park streets. The instrument is over two hundred years old, but is quite serviceable, as was shown by the rendering of a duet upon it, one of the most pleasing numbers of the programme being the result.

The choir of St. Andrew's was assisted in the entertainment by vocalists from other churches, and their services were greatly appreciated.

Those concerned in the affair wish to publicly acknowledge their obligations to Mr. R. J. Davey, who kindly supplied from his private collection the very effective scenery used.

Following is the programme. Those taking part are all well known in the city, and their names should be recognized even under their nom de theatre:

Mrs. McClelland was the accompanist of the evening and was of great assistance to the vocalists by her sympathetic playing. So great was the success of the concert and so ordial was its reception by the audience that it has been decided to repeat it on Tuesday evening next in the Sunday school room, and no doubt another big audience will be present.

GOOD WORK OF KNOX BOY'S CLUB

Doing Their Part in Helping Missions And Providing Christmas Cheer

The Knox Church Boys' Club continues in its good work of keeping the boys together, and providing proper amusement, and, at the same time endeavouring to educate them along higher lines. The regular meeting was held last night, and a few changes were made in the executive. Max McClennan was appointed to the Religious Committee; Will Shepherd and E. Doxsee to the Missionary Committee; A. Bartley, to the Literary Committee, owing to the resignation of Louis Ingram; and Will Taylor, Bennie Taylor and Fred Board to the Social Committee.

An important resolution was made by the boys last night in regard to the missionary work. It was decided to support one of the boys who are being trained for native missionary work in India. The amount required for each boy is $20 a year, and each of the boys in the club intends to give ten cents a months towards the fund, which should be easily collected.

Another creditable scheme the boys proposed was to send a box of toys, books, games, etc., at Christmas time to one of the Ontario mission fields.

Next Friday evening an open meeting will be held in the church, when Mr. Frank Russell will give a lecture on the "Wonders of Water," performing a number of experiments that will doubtless appeal to the people. A silver collection will be taken, the proceeds to go towards purchasing a number of indoor games for the boys to enjoy during the winter evenings. Further notice of this will be given next week.

BADLY RUN DOWN

Dr. Williams Pink Pills Came to the Rescue After Doctors Treatment Failed

The life of any constant traveller is always a hard one, but those whose work compel them tot ake long, tiresome drives over rough roads, exposed to all conditions of weather, are in constant danger of losing their health. The extreme heat of summer or the piercing winds of winter sap their strength, the kidneys become diseased or rheumatism sets in. What is needed to withstand this hardship is rich red blood—the pure blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills alone can make. These pills are the travellers never-failing friend. Concerning them Mr. George Dalpe, of St. Eloi, Que., says:—"I am a grain dealer and am obliged to make frequent trips, sometimes very tiring. I returned home from one of these trips last summer very much fatigued. I was overheated and tried to cool and rest myself by lounging on the verandah till late at night. I caught cold and the next day I did not feel at all well. I had headache, pains in my stomach and was very weak. I went to see a doctor but he said I would be alright in a day or so, so I started on another trip. I had not gone far before I felt very ill and had to return home and go to bed. I had chills, headache, pains in my stomach and kidneys. The doctor came to see me and he said I was overworked. He treated me for several months but instead of improving I continually grew worse. I wasted away almost to a skeleton and really thought I was going to die. One day my wife returned from the village with a supply of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. She urged me to take them as she said they had been very highly recommended to her. I did so and by the time I had taken four boxes I felt enough benefit to decide me to continue them and I took about a dozen boxes. They fully cured me and to-day I am able to go about my work without feeling fatigued."

Fatigue on the least exertion is a sign that the blood is poor. Replace the bad blood with good blood and labour will be a pleasure. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills make pure, red blood. That is why they cure anemia, rheumatism, kidney trouble, indigestion, heart palpitation and the nerve-raking ills of girlhood and womanhood. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Co., Brockville, Ont.

WILL OPPOSE LEASE RENEWAL

The Church And Liquor In Kingston—Dean Farthing Makes Pointed Statement

Kingston, Nov. 16. — Last Sunday Dean Farthing made some pointed statements in St. George's Cathedral regarding Sunday liquor drinking in Kingston. The News retorted that St. George's cathedral owned property on King street, on which there was a hotel, and the church was therefore deriving a direct revenue from the liquor traffic, of which the dean was complaining. Dean Farthing replies in a letter, stating that the fact that the Kingston rectory owns hotel property here will not muzzle him on temperance reform. The dean points out that the land in question is under lease, which expires in 1909. He says that he does not know what the managers will do about a renewal, but he will not countenance any renewal or consent to any hotel being on this church property.

"MACBETH"

In view of the fact that Ben Greet's production of Macbeth was attended by a large number of the lovers of the drama at the Grand last week the following article, written by Wm. Winter, in reference to Jack London's statement that Shakspere is ruin to managers should be of more than passing interest. The article is as follows:

"... Any manager who staged it would be a candidate for the insane asylum, and all this for the same reason that Shakspere's plays, with the best actors in the world, to-day, draw small audiences at low prices."—Jack London, in "The Arcadian Postcript."

Edwin Booth's final repertory consisted of sixteen plays, eleven of which were plays by Shakspere, and with that repertory he made several fortunes—he died leaving about half a million dollars. Mary Anderson earned a fortune with "Romeo and Juliet," "As You Like It" and "A Winter's Tale." Henry Irving, who had a wider range and greater financial success than any other actor ever had, played all the leading Shakesperian parts, and he earned great profits with "Macbeth," "Hamlet" and "The Merchant"—the latter production was a highly profitable one, to the last. Augustin Daly received hundreds of thousands of dollars from presentations of "As You Like It," "Twelfth Night" and "The Shrew." Richard Mansfield successfully acted "Richard III," "The Merchant," "Julius Caesar" and Henry V"—placing almost his sole dependence on the latter piece for an entire season. For years Louis James, Frederick Warde, Charles B. Hanford and Mme. Modjeska have appeared with profit, in many of Shakspere's plays. Mr. Sothern and Miss Marlowe have recently proved the financial value of "Romeo and Juliet," "Twelfth Night" and "Much Ado." Last season Miss Annie Russell made a profitable tour of the country with "A Midsummer Night's Dream." To-day Louis James is acting with financial success, "The Merry Wives" and "The Comedy of Errors." Mr. Hanford, who acts in all the great plays of Shakspere, has lately revived "Anthony and Cleopatra." Robert Mantell, now the leader of our stage, is acting, with abundant success, a repertory that includes "King Lear," "Macbeth," "Othello," "The Merchant of Venice," and "Hamlet." Mr. Sothern, it is understood, will retain in his repertory "Twelfth Night" and "Hamlet." Miss Allen and Miss Marlowe have managed to worry along on the returns from productions of "Twelfth Night" and "As You Like It." Signior Nowell, the Italian actor, has acted in this country to crowded houses, as Othello and Petruchio. In London Mr. Beerbohm Tree annually makes successful revivals of Shakspere. Mr. Benson has earned a comfortable living for many years by presentment of a repertory including about thirty of Shakspere's plays. Mr. B. Greet flits about the country, picking up the fugacious dollar with presentations of Shakspere "in the Elizabethan manner," in various parts of the land, every night, profitable presentations of Shakspere are made by "stock" and other minor organizations. In Germany Shakspere is always loyally attended. Why prolong the list? Who was it, anyway, that told Mr. "Jack" London that he knew anything about drama or about theatrical history? Nothing more false was ever said than the remark of the old theatrical manager, Chatterton, that "Shakspere spells ruin." It is time that the parrot repetition of that nonsense should cease."—William Winter.

WERE ENTERTAINED AT BANQUET

Those Taking Part in St. Andrew's Concert Had a Social Time

At the conclusion of the "Olde Tyme Concerte" in St. Andrew's church last night those taking part with their friends were very pleasantly entertained to supper in the Manse by Mrs. A. McFarlane and Mrs. F Robinson. An enjoyable repast was done ample justice to after which some short speeches were made.

Rev. Mr. Potter referred to the kindness of Mrs. McFarlane and Mrs. Robinson in arranging the gathering and moved a vote of thanks to them and it was unanimously passed. Mr. McFarlane replied on behalf of the ladies speaking of the pleasure which they felt in entertaining the members of the choir. Rev. Mr. Potter thanked those who had assisted the choir and stated that their aid had been greatly appreciated by the people of St. Andrew's. Mr. David Moore made an appropriate speech in reply. Mr. John Crane of St. Paul's congratulated the choir and people of St. Andrew's on the great success of their concert and complimented those taking part and the excellence of the programme.

Mr. F C Eyeland, the leader of St. Andrew's choir, replied on behalf of the members and thanked those taking part for their services and faithful rehearsing.

The gathering was a fitting climax to a very successful evening which will long be remembered by the choir of St. Andrew's.

The Peterboro' Light and Power Co. will be unable to supply light on Sunday between the hours of eight a. m. and five p. m., on account of alterations to plant.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH TO MEET

Will Discuss Sanitary Inspector's Report With Water Commissioners

The Board of Health is to have a meeting on Monday. This will be somewhat surprising news to the people of Peterborough, who were of the opinion that that body had dropped out of existence altogether since nothing has been heard from them since the memorable session some weeks ago.

The Board has however been dug up again and will meet the Water Commissioners on Monday afternoon when Sanitary Inspector Ball's report on the water supply and the condition of the Otonabee River and Clear and Stony Lakes will be taken up by the two bodies.

TO MANAGE ST. JOHN OFFICE

Advancement For Mr. W. Cochrane, a Peterborough Boy With Quaker Oats Company

IS AT HOME ON A VISIT

Mr. William Cochrane, son of Mr. George Cochrane, city, who formerly was with the Quaker Oats Company here, and more recently in Montreal, has been given another advancement by the company. Mr. Cochrane will in the course of a few weeks, go to St. John, N.B., where he will manage the new office just being opened by the Quaker Oats Company, in that city. The new office will be the central point of the company's business in the Maritime provinces, in which the products of the factory are extensively sold.

This is the first district office that has been opened, so that in the recognition of Mr. Cochrane's abilities to superintend such an office, again demonstrates the success of Peterboys in the outside world.

Mr. Cochrane arrived in the city this morning and will visit his parents here for eight or ten days before going to St. John to begin his new duties. His many friends in Peterborough will be pleased to learn of his advancement and wish him the same success as he has met with in the past. Mr. Stuart of the local office will succeed him in Montreal.

Before leaving Montreal Mr. Cochrane was presented with a handsome meerschaum pipe, with amber stem, by the office staff there.

AT HOME OF BRASS WORKERS

Successful Affair in The Conservatory Of Music

The "At home" last night under the auspices of the Brass Workers was another success added to the long list already achieved under the same auspices. It was held in the Conservatory of Music Hall, which proved an ideal place for such a gathering, being roomy and with a good floor. Some forty couples were present and the light fantastic was tripped until an early hour. Enjoyable music was provided by the opera house orchestra, the members of which were exceedingly generous with their music, and encores were frequent. The committee in charge is to be congratulated upon the success of its efforts. The affair was fully up to the standard set by the Brass Workers in the past, and no doubt the other gatherings of the same sort, which will likely be held from time to time during the winter months will be equally as successful.

AND NOW THE PESKY CRITTER'S COGNOMEN IS MAUD HOOLIGAN

The perverseness of the animal mind was displayed by an amusing incident that occurred last nigth at 6.30 o'clock at the G.T.R. crossing on Simcoe street. Two men were driving east at a fair rate until they came to the tracks where they slowed up a little. Just as the horse reached the main line it stopped suddenly and stood stock still. It was simply a case of balking and the men knew they were up against it. Persuasion of every kind failed, the whip had no effect and the shunter was coming down from Lakefield and only a few streets away. The men were at a loss to know what to do, but the gateman soon told them to move their steed from the tracks.

When the horse would not proceed they tried to turn it and were successful for it drove along in its usual manner back the way it had come. The train had passed and they thought they would make another endeavour, but just as the animal arrived at the main line it stopped again as if automatically. Nothing could coax or compel it to go, and as a large crowd had congregated someone suggested that they push the stubbborn animal across the tracks. This met the general approval and the horse was soon surrounded by a bucking squad that would not give in. For once Maud was defeated, for the men with the determination and strength of the bucking fame of the Carlisle Indians, rushed the horse across the tracks for a touch down.

It decided that one treatment of this kind was sufficient and once over the tracks showed no further disinclination to continue its journey.

MR. ROBERT DURSTON'S ADVICE AS REGARDS POSTAL DELIVERY

Mr. Robert Durston, deputy postoffice inspector under whose energetic supervision the local mail delivery was inaugurated, has been in the city for several days, and is much pleased with the manner in which the people have taken to the system. However, he emphasized the fact that the box-holders should at once turn in their keys, and gives the following reasons, which will probably appeal to the people as sensible, and prove to them that the delivery is for their own benefit:

1—The business section of the city is given three mails daily; the residential section receives two mails daily; the suburban district has one daily mail.

3—In the case of the late trains, in the afternoon, the people have only to go to the general delivery, give their name and address, and they will receive their mail, providing it is more than 20 minutes after the arrival of the train carrying that mail.

4—When a person wants to close his box he need not wait until the close of the year, but go at once and he will be reimbursed for the keys he purchased to the amount of 25 cents per key.

Mr. Durston particularly wants to call the people's attention to the fact that it is to their own convenience to hand in their keys at once. They will receive the money mentioned, their mail will be brought to their residences every day without fail, they have not to pay further rental for their boxes, and the latter will be closed, not re-let. Thus all the mail will be given to the carriers, and there is no chance that any of it will be left in the boxes that had been rented.

Among those who have boxes at present, Mr. Durston says that there seems to be a misunderstanding that they have to wait until the end of the year, and will then hand in their keys. He, however, wishes to point out that this is entirely wrong and that the people should do it now. The system has proved its practicability, and those who have accepted it are much pleased with it, and the box-holders should come forward without delay, as they are gaining nothing, but are really losers.

Mr. Durston speaks well of the carriers, and says they are as good as any he has seen for the time they have been engaged in the work, and readily adapted themselves to the business.

NO HARD PRICES AT THE MARKET

People Went Home Laden With The Farmers' Choicest

A first-class market pleased the citizens this morning, and the prices in every line had taken a little to suit moderate purses. The fine weather brought crowds of women out, and the farmers likewise filled all the available space on the outside market and in the hall. As for fresh meat, there was plenty of it, although lamb was not so marked in quantity. Pork sold at nine and ten cents and beef at four and five cents. The tendency in every line was to weaken in price, and the result was that the meat might have been sold cheaper as the morning advanced. Potatoes were sold at 80 and 85 cents, and apples from 50 cents all the way to a dollar, and there was an abundance of other vegetables at good prices.

Butter and eggs were cheaper, 28 cents being asked for each, and needless to say the eggs were quickly bought up.

Hogs have reduced in price quite rapidly. Live hogs are worth $5.50 per cwt. and dressed hogs $7 per cwt.

The piles of fowl was a glad sight to the people, and any lack of hard times would be quickly dispelled by the manner in which they were carried away. Chickens sold at from 45 to 65 cents per pair, ducks at from 90 cents to $1 per pair, and plump geese at from 90 cents to $1.10. Turkeys demanded $1 up to $1.50.

Dressed Hogs	7 00
Live Hogs	5 50
Hay, bale	18 00	to	20 00
Hay, per ton	18 00	to	20 00

THE LAST CHANCE FOR APPEALS

Court of Revision Will Hear Appeals on Monday Night

Appellants against the assessment are asked to note that Monday night will be the last opportunity of being given a hearing by the Court of Revision. The court has gone through the list from "A" to "Z," but a number of those on the list were not present, and the court will give them another chance to be heard on Monday. After that the work of giving judgment in each case will be proceeded with.

The Court will meet in the Council Chamber on Monday night at 7.30 o'clock, and all those who have not been heard in reference to their appeals must be on hand then if they want a hearing.

Police Make Two Important Arrests at Welland.

Welland, Nov. 16.—George B. Buck, alias Robert L. Oliver, giving his address as St. Louis, and Harry Groots of Philadelphia were placed in Welland jail by Detective Dowd Thursday night, and the arrest is believed to be an important one. Buck seems to have been following the occupation of passing forged checks. He had in his possession check forms from the leading banks of Canada and the United States. There were as well many checks made out to himself for the amount of $100 and signed by municipal clerks.

Accompanying each is a letter from the persons signing the check, thanking him for the expeditious manner in which he is disposing of the bonds and asking him to continue in the good work.

Since the arrest, it transpires that both these men are wanted in Toronto. Groots jumped a $40 board bill at the King Edward and Buck attempted to pass one of his famous $100 checks at the Queen's. While in the city Buck made application to the S. S. Nesbitt Co. for permission to sell stocks for them, but was unsuccessful. Arriving in Bridgeburg, he attempted to pass a check purporting to be issued by the company and with the name of Samuel Sproul Nesbitt forged as a signature. A rubber stamp made for the purpose was used.

Groots has his pockets lined with keys of all kinds. Buck is a fine-looking man of 31 years. He is of splendid address and well-informed. His statement that he is a graduate of Harvard has been verified by a Buffalo lawyer.

GUELPH'S CHEAP POWER.

City Council Studies Cost of Distribution and Installation.

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 16.—There was a meeting held here last night of the City Council, the special power committee and several interested powers users, when Engineer Richards of the Niagara Power Commission went very fully into the question of costs of the power, distribution, and installation.

No city in Ontario, it was claimed, would be able to distribute power so cheaply as Guelph, on account of the very central location of their plant, and no city could benefit so much from it as Guelph, owning, as it does, all its public utilities. It is estimated that the city would save in all $10,000 a year at $24. The light and heat commission figures on saving $5,000, the street railway $1,250, the waterworks $2,250.

The commission's original estimate of $24, it was thought, would be considerably reduced, as the price of copper and other necessaries was a good deal lower. The manufacturers are looking forward to it, as several power-users here are now paying $90 per horsepower a year.

Head Tax Injustice.

Port Arthur, Nov. 16.—The injustice of the head tax as applied by the United States to foreign-born people entering the republic had an illustration in Port Arthur Thursday about the time the steamer American was leaving this port for Duluth.

Rev. W. Blohquist, pastor of Stanwrics Swedish Church in Minneapolis, who has for about ten days past been in the city assisting Rev. Mr. Totteman, pastor of the Port Arthur St. Anagarius Church, intended leaving for his home on the other side of the line. Although for thirteen years a resident of the United States and a member of the Minnesota diocese of the Swedish church, it was pointed out to him by the steamboat officers that before he could land himself and his baggage at Duluth he would have to pay the head tax of four dollars.

MET HIS FATE CALMLY.

Collins Hanged Yesterday for Murder of Mary MacAulay.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 16.—After three trials, the first and third returning him guilty, and in the second the jury disagreeing, Thomas F. Collins was yesterday morning hanged at Hopewell Cape, this province, for the murder of Miss Mary Ann MacAuley at the rectory, New Ireland, on Sunday evening, Aug. 19, 1906. The execution took place at 7.25 in the jail yard.

The condemned man died bravely. After sleeping three hours he woke shortly after 6 and spent the rest of the time in prayer with Rev. Mr. Thomas of Dorchester Penitentiary. A little after 7 Radcliffe entered the hall and conducted him to the scaffold. Collins made no confession or left any statement of any description. The doctors pronounced him dead after seven minutes.

Collins, with unflinching courage and dignity, walked briskly to the gallows.

On entering the cell, Radcliffe said, "Good morning, Mr. Collins." Collins replied, "Good morning, Mr. Radcliffe."

Radcliffe then took the prisoner's arm and walked rapidly along the passageway to the gallows. The victim stood on the trap and Radcliffe adjusted the black cap.

Mr. Thomas recited the Lord's Prayer, and as he reached the words, "Thy kingdom come," the hangman drew back the lever and the condemned man shot into eternity.

GAS STOVE EXPLODED.

Two May Die From Injuries—Twenty-Five Persons Hurt.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 16.—About 25 persons were injured yesterday, two fatally, and a dwelling house was torn to pieces, when an explosion of natural gas occurred in a house in Elm street, this city. Two firemen were severely burned.

Apparently gas had been leaking in a kitchen stove all night. When a match was struck in the lower portion of the house to light the stove in the early morning there was a terrific explosion.

C. P. R. Will Supply Cars.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—The Saskatchewan grain growers have been assured by Mr. Whyte, second vice-president of the C. P. R., that plenty of cars will be furnished for the purpose of sending damaged grain to Ontario, where it is needed for feed.

Bankers here refuse to discuss the Government's proposition of furnishing money to facilitate the moving of the crops, as they have no official instructions as yet regarding the nature of the assistance. One ventured to say that buying would be helped, and that the price would go up, thus stopping the seaport movement. As it is the prevailing prices are above the export basis.

Another banker who received word last night of the Government's contemplated action, says it will have a beneficial effect.

Motorman Committed.

Hamilton, Nov. 16.—Further developments are predicted in connection with the legal proceedings started over the collision of the street car last Tuesday afternoon with a freight train at Ferguson avenue and King street. James Mallwraith, the motorman, was committed for trial at the Police Court yesterday morning on the charge of criminal negligence. It is hinted that some of the officials of the company may be proceeded against.

Edward Stafford, car inspector, swore that when he examined the car after the accident the speed lever was on full, the reverse lever was not. Superintendent Miller testified that the motorman had had two months' experience.

ENGINEER NEGLECTED ORDER

Number of Passengers Injured But None Seriously — Both Engineers Among the Dead — Trainmen Caught In the Wreckage of Cars and Cremated—One Victim Was on Way to Hospital.

North Bay, Nov. 16.—The list of railway wrecks on the main line of the C. P. R., including those at Sand Point two years ago and at Azilda and Chapleau last year, had another terrible addition Thursday night at 11.45, when a light engine from Chalk River crashed head-on into the Soo eastbound express, crowded with passengers, and seven lives were lost, besides eleven passengers more or less injured.

The light engine left the divisional point at Chalk River in charge of Engineer James Hendry and Fireman Nadeau of North Bay, and as both were killed the real cause of the accident may never be known.

Watch May Have Stopped.

Railway men surmise that Hendry's watch must have stopped, as it is not thought possible he could have forgotten the proximity of the eastbound express, and there were two sidings between Chalk River and Moore Lake that he could have taken.

The scene of the wreck is a wild rocky country with curving roadbed, rocky cuts and hard ground, making the jumping by the train crews a dangerous undertaking. Engineer Young of the express was one of the oldest engineers on the division with a splendid record for carefulness. He was a prominent citizen of North Bay, and leaves a wife and family. His fireman, Fred Ball, a young married man of North Bay, is among the injured, but telegraphed his wife that he was all right. Engineer James Hendry lived in North Bay with his young wife of six months, and the shock is a terrible one to her.

Hendry's family live in North Augusta, near Brockville, where he will be buried. Fireman Nadeau lived in North Bay. He was unmarried, his parents living in Chalk River.

Thomas Pendergast of Webbwood, who was killed with his father in the baggage car, was being taken to the Ottawa Hospital in charge of Dr. Bennett of North Bay, having had both legs broken in Tuesday's wreck at Blind River. The case of the Pendergasts is a particularly sad one, the young man being only twenty years of age. His father leaves a family of young children.

Physician Escaped.

Dr. Bennett, who accompanied young Pendergast from North Bay, escaped serious injury. His patient was suffering severe pain from his recent injuries, and the doctor was making the young man as comfortable as possible.

How MacLeod Roberts escaped death is a mystery, as the mail car was in the worst place of the wreck. The wreckage caught fire, adding additional horror to the scene, but as the rear cars remained on the track, the uninjured passengers and train crew turned in quickly to the task of saving the injured and taking out the dead. Conductor Wright, in charge of the express, escaped injury.

Refused Information.

General Superintendent F. P. Brady left for the scene of the wreck early yesterday morning, and the list of injured has been refused the press at his office, only the official statement being made that the injured will all be able to continue the journey and none are seriously hurt. Passenger trains east and west have been held up all day by the wreck, and the first train from the scene reached North Bay after 9 o'clock.

Killed—John Nadeau, fireman, North Bay; J. Hendrie, engineer light engine, North Bay; J. Clark, express messenger, Montreal; J. Irvine, baggageman, Ottawa; J. Younge, engineer, North Bay; H. K. Pendergast and P. Pendergast, passengers, Webbwood.

Injured.—Fred Hyland, Hull; Alf. Roberts, Ottawa; Madame Gelinas, Ottawa; D. Lynch, Hintonburg; E. Roberts, Ottawa; M. Maloney, Mt. St. Patrick; E. McGuire, Ivaly; Wilfrid Malone, Montreal; E. Labella, Montreal; F. Ball, North Bay.

Four Bodies Cremated.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—Four bodies were completely cremated in the wreck at Moose Lake.

Russ Parliament Quiet.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—Neither of the Houses of Parliament was in session yesterday, pending the audience which President Khomyakoff is to have of Emperor Nicholas. The next session will be held Nov. 18.

The opening of the third Parliament Thursday attracted comparatively little attention in the country.

Street Car Men Strike.

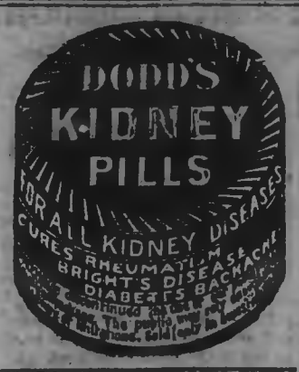
Louisville, Ky., Nov. 16.—The union men employed by the Louisville Street Railway Co. went on strike yesterday for an increase in wages and the reinstatement of several discharged men. The company employs about 1,100 men.

Dynamite In Drain.

Ottawa, Nov. 16.—A Polish immigrant named De Nango was fatally injured yesterday forenoon while working on a drain. He struck an unexploded charge of dynamite. His skull was terribly fractured.

Moral Tone Low.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—"The condition of the province has become so low that the Ministers and a great many other men are now convinced that something must be done to raise the moral standard of the province," said Rev. Dr. Shearer, secretary of the Temperance and Moral Reform Branch of the Presbyterian Church in Canada, yesterday morning.



EVIDENCE SHOWS LOOSE RAIL

Important Evidence by Constable at Caledon Wreck Trial.

WAS HANGING BY A SPIKE

Judge Decides Case Must Go to Jury —Testimony as to Excessive Speed Greatly Shaken—Passengers Say Brakes Were All Applied—Engineer and Conductor to Take the Stand To-day.

Brampton, Nov. 16.—The defence in the Grimes-Hodges case played its trump card at the Court House last night, when County Constable Thos. Smith of Caledon got in the box and swore that on Sept. 24, when examining the track at the famous horseshoe curve he found a loose rail. Members of the Caledon inquest jury were present at the time.

Constable Smith made a good witness, and when cross-examined by Crown Prosecutor Davidson made some sharp repartee, which twice, was greeted with laughter and applause from the gallery, which was packed with women.

William Stubbs, ex-M.P., who made a sensational address at the inquest as to the defects in the rail elevation, was not such a good witness, having to contradict himself at various times in giving his evidence as to the measurements taken by himself the week of the wreck.

To-day Engineer Hodge and Conductor Grimes will take the stand in their own defence, and it is expected that the verdict of the jury will be returned to-night.

The feature of the case yesterday was the fall down of the crown witnesses, who at the inquests both in Toronto and Caledon testified to the "excessive" and "terrific" speed of the exhibition extra when brought before the high court and jury appeared to be not so sure of their opinion on the speed question; in fact, in several instances, would not corroborate their statements given immediately after the disaster. In several cases Mr. Davidson attempted to refresh the memories of these witnesses by referring to the stenographic report, but his lordship overruled the question.

When the crown's case was closed, Mr. Robinette requested that the case against his clients be taken from the jury, especially the charge against Grimes. He outlined his plan of defence. If Grimes were charged with negligence the evidence went to show that he was only negligent in not stopping his train within one and one-half miles, and that it had been shown that he could not determine the time in less than one mile of this distance, and that his train would have gone in the ditch before he could have time to notify his engineer, according to the evidence of the air-brake expert. With regard to Hodge, the company had given him no instructions as to the speed he was to run down this curve, and also that the evidence had gone to show that there was a defect in the outer rail.

"The case will go to the jury," said Justice Magee.

Examined by Mr. Robinette twelve witnesses took the box and testified that the speed of the exhibition extra was no greater than the ordinary train, which made the grade every day. Some were passengers and in each case swore that the brakes were applied before the horseshoe curve was reached.

Thomas Smith of Caledon said he had found a five-eight-inch depression in the outer rail and at that point the rail was hanging on by a spike, and was loose at each side.

This was news to Mr. Davidson, and he went after the witness rough shod, taunting him with refusing to obey the crown attorney, which the witness explained, amid the applause of the gallery.

Questioned by his lordship, the witness said that he had made no note of his measurement of the five-eighth inch impression, but that the jury were present at the time and saw for themselves.

"Did you point out to anybody the loose rail?"

"Yes. The jury."

William Stubbs, ex-M. P., who asked the Caledon jury to visit the spot and take certain measurements of the depression in the rails, was the next witness. He told of taking the measurements as detailed by the last witness. He also saw the loose rail.

Caledon Wreck Expensive.

Ceylon, Ont., Nov. 16.—David Madill, injured in the Caledon wreck, has settled with the C. P. R. for $2,700. He suffered a severe fracture of the right leg.

Dundalk, Nov. 16.—A number of the more serious damage claims arising out of the Caledon wreck were settled during the past week. Some of the claims so settled, with the amounts, were, it is understood, those of Mrs. Wright, Flesherton, $3,100; Mrs. Goff, Markdale, $1,700; W. K. Richardson, Flesherton, $2,700; Mr. Brander, Pritsville, $3,000.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 16.—A fire of incendiary origin at the Baltic Shipbuilding Yards yesterday morning destroyed two gunboats and damaged several other vessels.

CONSTABLE SHOOTS THE MURDERER

BETRAYED BY INDIAN WOMAN

Police Had Hard Chase — Fugitive Eluded Pursuers For Some Days—Left No Track Behind—Attempted to Escape In a Canoe—When He Was Brought to Bay He Tried to Shoot the Officers.

Kamloops, B.C., Nov. 16.—H. Stout, alias Williams, the murderer of Bob Williams, the Cariboo trader, was himself shot and instantly killed by Donald Gordon, special constable, out with one of Chief Constable Fernie's posses last night. The chase for the murderer had been hard, and he eluded his pursuers some days, leaving no traces to work on. He had abandoned his horses, and the police were of the opinion he had hidden in the mountains, waiting for an opportunity to double back to Edmonton.

On Tuesday night an Indian woman, procuring water from the river, saw a canoe slip by in the darkness, and this gave a clue to how he was attempting to escape. Constable Fernie at once put other posses out at the lower end of North Thompson on both sides and a strict watch was kept on the river and all the trails in the valley.

Last night Donald Gordon and Duncan McLean came upon the man crouching in the brush. They immediately covered him and placed him under arrest. He gave up one revolver and with words, "I have another gun," he drew a 44 revolver from his holster and shot point blank at such close range that the side of the constable's head was scorched and powder burned him. Both specials shot, and Gordon's bullet killed him.

SHOT UP 325,000 MILES.

Outburst on the Sun Presents Remarkable Features.

Oxford, Eng., Nov. 16.—A remarkable outburst on the sun was observed by Prof. Ambay, director of the Radcliffe Observatory at 11.45 yesterday morning. An immense flame shot up at the rate of over 12,000 miles a minute until it reached a height of 325,000 miles.

At 12.10 it broke into fragments and disappeared.

Sun spots and solar disturbances have been observed for some days past. It has been predicted that they would reach their greatest magnitude about the middle of November, and that they would probably lead to violent magnetic disturbances on earth, causing storms, floods, volcanic disturbances and earthquakes. Prof. Edward C. Pickering of the Harvard Observatory said two days ago that he expected the sun spots to be attended by an earthquake, but of not sufficient gravity to cause alarm.

The Wily Chinee.

Victoria, B. C., Nov. 16.—The British Columbian Government has passed an order-in-council memorializing the Dominion authorities to repeal the clause in the Chinese Immigration Act providing for the refund of $500 per head tax to Chinamen who can produce proof that they have attended school for the term of one year.

Latterly quite a number of Chinese have been coming in under this clause and the school boards of Victoria and Vancouver are being put to great expense to provide accommodation for them.

Keir Hardie's Opinion.

London, Nov. 16.—(C. A. P.)—Keir Hardie, writing in The London Leader on the Socialist and Labor movements in Canada, says if only the Socialist and Trade Unionist could find some common platform on which to stand, progress would be very rapid. Four men in Canada, P. M. Draper, Ottawa; James Simpson, Toronto; A. W. Puttee, Winnipeg, and J. H. Hawthornthwaite, M. P., Nanaimo, if they could meet and come to an understanding, would unite the forces all over the Dominion.

Protest Against Freight Rates.

Winnipeg, Nov. 16.—The Board of Trade sent an emphatic protest to the Railway Commission against the proposed tariff of freight rates out of Winnipeg.

The council find that the rates out of Winnipeg to Manitoba points, under the new proposed tariffs, are increased, while to most points in Saskatchewan and Alberta slight reductions appear. Also that the rates on commodities to Kootenay points will be very heavily increased.

The Telegram asks that any reduction of freight rates out of Winnipeg should be done on the basis of the rates out of St. Paul and Minneapolis to Minnesota and Dakota, and should be no higher than those rates.

Caught Fire From Incense.

Findlay, Ohio, Nov. 16.—Miss Hannah Oman, 80 years of age, was burned to death Thursday while practicing an ancient religious rite. She burned incense while praying, and in some manner the fire was communicated to her clothing.

The Unhappy Financier and the Discontented Rube.

[Copyright, 1906, 1907, by Robert Howard Russell.]

IN THE DEEP WOODS.

Once there was a Stock-Exchange Midas who had great gobs of the Wherewith.

Day and Night he was hounded by those who were looking for Hot Tips, or who wanted to touch him up for Denominational Colleges, or who had Good Things which they wished him to back with much Coin.

At last, in order to escape the wearing sound of the Ticker and get the Hard Knots out of his Nervous System, he ducked away to the Country and left word behind that he had gone to Europe.

He struck a Rest Cure, where every one dressed for Dinner and a full Orchestra tore off Popular Music. He saw the same Mournful Faces of the male and female Plutocrats who were trying to purchase Enjoyment at so much per Day, and they did not seem to have a tranquillizing Effect on him. So he wandered away from the Hotel and took to a quiet Country Lane, and soon he was in the Deep Woods.

The Silence was broken only by the Rustle of Leaves, the tapping of the Woodpeckers and the occasional Stunt of some Feathered Warbler.

"This is where Man really belongs," sighed the track-sore Financier. "What an artificial and profitless Life we lead there among the Sky-Scrapers. Our Little Existence is rounded off with a French Menu and a few lines of Bromo-Seltzer in the Morning. We toil for years trying to get the Hammer-Lock on Fame, and when it comes to a Cash-In nobody knows whose Funeral it is, and the Trolley-Cars refuse to get out of the Way."

While he was thus Meditating he came to a Clearing in which there was a humble Shack with a dinky Little Garden behind it. In the Doorway of the Modest Cot sat a Rube who wore a heavy Fringe on the Sub-Maxillary. Above his Head bloomed the symmetrical Morning-Glory, and the fresh smell of the Greenwood was mingled with the pleasing Odor of the Store Tobacco he was smoking, the while he spelled out the Long Words in a Newspaper.

"There's a Three-Sheet of Contentment for you," said the weary Millionaire. "I wish I had his Snap. Nothing to do except read about Crime and watch the Squirrels. No one to call him up on the Phone. No lying awake at Nights wondering what the Attorney-General is going to do. When he's hungry all he has to do is put on the Griddle, pull a few Radishes, and milk the Cow. No getting roped in at Annual Dinners. No struggle to butt into the Headquarters of the Elite. How I envy him!"

So he approached the Man behind the Whiskers and greeted him cheerfully, for he felt that he would fain know the Secret of True Happiness.

"You have a charming Joint here," said the Financier. "You seem to be quite away from the hurry and turmoil of the World."

"Yes, it is very Lonesome," was the melancholy Reply. "I should like to live on the Main Pike, but Land is too high. As soon as I sell my Hogs I hope to have a Telephone installed. Sometimes three or four Days will elapse after an important Prize-Fight are I learn the Result. This failure to keep in Touch with Events is very trying to one who would be abreast of the Times."

"Why should the Outside World cut any Ice with you?" demanded the Millionaire. "Here you have a beautiful Sylvan Retreat. The Birds carol in the Trees. Nature is ever smiling. You are far removed from the carking Cares, the hard Throw-downs, and the Bunko Manipulations of the Commercial World. Are you not satisfied?"

"How can I be when I read here in the Weekly about a Newport Shindig where they have $800 worth of Ice-Cream? Why should I ride Horseback when you Folks have Autos costing $7000? I never get to see a good Show, and I haven't had my Picture taken for 6 Years, and sometimes I don't have anybody come in to see me for Weeks at a time."

"YES, IT IS VERY LONESOME."

"Why, you concatenated Chump, you have a two-acre Paradise here and you don't know it," said the City Man. "I'd like to trade Places with you."

"I'll trade with anybody," said the Rube. "I'm tired of this Dog's Life."

"You're on!" exclaimed the Financier. "This is what I'll stake you to. You'll have a Spring-Bed with 4 Mattresses and a Canopy. You can lie there on the Husks and look at $40,000 worth of Paintings by the Old Masters. In the Morning a British Gentleman of Aristocratic Appearance will come and lead you to the Royal Porcelain, after which he will dress you, without your lifting a Finger. You shall have Silk Underwear and a Monogram worked on each Sock. At Breakfast you shall have Hot-House Grapes and everything else out of Season, and Flowers on the Table. After Breakfast you may step into a Carriage with Gold Trimmings, drawn by two Prize Bays, and ride to an office where the Chairs are padded eight inches deep and all the Hirelings jump at your slightest Command. For Luncheon you shall go to a Club where you may meet those who have Money to burn; and if your Check is under $11, it shows that you are a Piker. You can stop Work at 3 P. M. and go for a Spin in your French Touring-Car, with a Chauffeur to work the Wheel. In the Evening you can put on your Glads and drink $47 worth of Vintage Wines and take in two or three Theatres, and after that start in again and have something to Eat."

"You are stringing me," said the Rube. "Such Heavenly Joys as these never come to the poor Yap."

"I will let you use my Bank Account, and then you won't be a Yap," explained the Millionaire. "Go and revel in the Life that you read about in the Weekly Papers. All that I ask in return is the Use for one blissful Month of this sequestered Snuggery, here among the Morning-Glories and the blithesome Chickadees."

The Financier gave the Rube all the Credentials needed and shipped him to the roaring Metropolis. Then he sat down under the whispering Trees with nothing to superintend except the rising and setting of the Sun.

Two weeks later, as the Financier was emerging from the Deep Woods he met the Rube coming in with a Pullman-Car Towel around his Head.

"What, so soon?" asked the City Man. "I've been against it for 25 Years. Why should you pass it up after two brief Weeks?"

"For the first three or four Days it was Great Stuff," responded the Sufferer. "Then I began to tumble to the Fact that the Shows were all about the Same and that a $7 Lunch was a Delusion unless I had an Appetite. The Automobile was a Hit until some of the New Machines began to pass me, and then I lost Interest. As soon as it was noised around that I had Stuff, I became a Mark for every known Con Game, so I tightened up and refused to see Visitors, and every one said I was a Snob, and the only Friends I had were the Waiters I tipped. So far as I can discover, the Bust-Head resulting from the Bubbles that cost $6 per Quart is the same old Feeling that we used to get out of Apple-Jack. In short, I begin to see that the Rich can afford all the Luxuries, but the minute they begin to dip into them, the trouble begins. I think I'm due for about one week of Absolute Calm. But what are you doing on your way to the Station?"

COMPARING NOTES.

"Say, I don't like to roast your Establishment, but you have got the dummest lot of Birds I ever listened to," said the Financier. "Their Repertory is too limited. And that Cow has a Manner that is soothing for a Day or two and then begins to suggest an irritating lack of Versatility, as it were. I discovered, also, a certain Monotony in the Antics of the Squirrels. As for the Weekly, I have read it all through four times, including the Sarsaparilla Ads, and along towards the last the only thing that interested me was the Time-Table. I needed a good Rest, and I've had enough to last me fully 3 years. When I strike that Club to-night, I'll simply sign my Name to the Card and have them bring in the whole Works from Caviar to Cafe Noir."

"I'm afraid there isn't any such Institution as a Paradise on Earth," remarked the Rube.

"Oh, yes, there is," said the Millionaire, "but we never find it twice in the same Spot."

MORAL: A Complete Change will always do one Good and sometimes do him to a Finish.

Most of our models are not made; they just happen. Girls, in most cases of breeding and intelligence, want to make a little money for some special occasion. Some acquaintance recognises that they have distinction and style and gives them the address of an illustrator who happens to need just such a person. They pose once in this way, more or less from necessity, find they can make an independent living in a congenial manner, and so come again. In consequence the women who pose for a Hvellhead in New York are exceedingly nice as a class. The prevalent idea that the words "artists' model" necessarily mean a highly paid, greatly petted and utterly depraved individual is ridiculous in the extreme. A first class artists' model in New York city receives $3 a day for six hours' hard work. A photographic model has of course a different proposition. She has shorter hours and higher rates.—From "Being a Model," by Charles E. Peters, in Scribner's.

Beauty and Health in Fruit Juices.

Apple juice acts directly on the liver, increasing the flow of bile, and this bile, entering the intestines, causes the bowels to move regularly.

Orange juice softens and beautifies the complexion, stimulates the action of the skin glands, and thus assists in purifying the blood.

Figs and prunes—free of seeds and skins—soothe the stomach and bowels and strengthen the digestion.

Fruit juice is about 80 per cent. water and 10 per cent. solid. The solids are made up of nine-tenths sweet, and one-tenth bitter, material. It is this small quantity of bitter material that acts medicinally.

"Fruit-a-tives" — these wonderful tablets that are curing so many people—are the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes, concentrated and intensified. An Ottawa physician discovered a process, by which an additional quantity of the bitter principle of the orange peel could be forced into the juices. This formed a new compound—many times more effective as a medicine than the fresh fruit juices—and without any of the indigestible pulp or fibre. In order to further improve it, tonics and antiseptics were added and the whole compound made into tablets. These are "Fruit-a-tives"—the certain cure for Constipation, Biliousness, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headaches, Backaches, Kidney and Liver Troubles, Skin Affections. 50c a box; 6 for $2.50. At all druggists, or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives, Limited, Ottawa, Ont.

DOING EUROPE.

This Tourist Seemed to Have a Mania For Souvenirs.

I had met Jones before. In fact, meeting him had become a sort of habit. The first time I saw him he was hanging by his feet, an apoplectic, squirming mass, on the facade of Blarney castle, kissing the stone of eloquence. My camera caught him in the act. "Gad!" he sputtered when I told him that his feat was immortalized. "Is my face in it? Send me one, will you? That'll prove to the folks back in Zanesville that I did it."

I had run across him again in London, where all ways meet. I was sauntering around the Whitechapel ghetto, and through the window of an alley tavern I noticed two men drinking stout. One was a "bobby" in uniform. His eyes were bleared and his face purple. The profile of the other looked familiar. I walked in and beheld—Jones. The policeman, startled by my intrusion, brought himself together and wabbled out. Jones turned to me with a look of vast reproach.

"Glad to see you again, old man, but—why in the deuce couldn't you stay away a little longer? I'd have had it in half an hour more."

"Had what?"

"Why, his club. Lord, what a souvenir that would have made!"

Our ways parted again for awhile. I was riding a wheel over the crest of the Black forest near Titisee, pumping slowly to the top of the long, white road. A pine cone struck my handle bar, another knocked my hat off, and I looked up. An aerial voice emitted a Tyrolean halloo with much unction, and I saw a swaying speck silhouetted against a cloud. My instinct told me it was Jones.

"Hey, old man!" he yelled, trumpeting through his hand, "take my picture—quick. You're just in time. Can't hold on much longer. Camera's at foot of tree. Lost it halfway up."

His camera was smashed, so I used my own. "Were you expecting me?" I asked when he shinned down, with barked hands and frayed trousers.

"No, not exactly. Look here—biggest pine cone in Germany, from the tallest tree on top of the highest hill in the Schwarzwald. There's something worth while!"

I admitted it, and we stood surveying the panorama of mounded hills and deep cut gorges full of the sound of falling water.

"Lovely!" I murmured.

"What? Oh, yes, I s'pose it is. But say—I wonder if I couldn't find a bigger cone somewhere in these parts. Let's move on."—Wilfred H. Alburn in Outing Magazine.

Some people scoff at the notion that other folks actually disappear. They read newspaper stories to that effect as a study in fiction. But there are serious facts that prove these disappearances do occur. Here is the advertisement of the Manhattan company, a well known bank of New York city. This advertisement, published under requirement of the law, shows that one woman, residence unknown, has owned one share of the company's stock since 1825 and that 142 dividends are due to her. Another woman has owned two shares since 1866 and has eighty-two dividends due her. One man has held two shares since 1853 and another sixteen shares since 1833. This last has over $3,400 due to him. The bank cannot find any of these people, whose claims run from $300 to $3,000. That indicates a genuine disappearance.—Hartford Courant.

A Skowhegan Nature Yarn.

Here is a nature story from Skowhegan which will bear investigation: "Mrs. Henry Harris broke a common hen's egg in a bowl the other morning. In so doing she noticed another little egg in the bowl with a shell on it, which proved to be a sparrow's egg. Mrs. Harris called Mr. Harris to explain what this strange discovery meant. Mr. Harris took the sparrow's egg and broke it. Inside the shell he found a little sparrow alive. Mr. Harris solved the problem. The hen had swallowed the sparrow's egg whole, and in forming the shell about her own egg the little egg had got within and the warmth of the hen had been the required aid to hatch the little sparrow. The sparrow, though not grown quite enough to hatch, is alive."

The Galley Slave Who Was Just About to, but Never Did.

[Copyright, 1906, 1907, by Robert Howard Russell.]

HE CAME INTO THE CUTAWAY.

Once there was a Youth who tackled the Mercantile Career at a very light Stipend.

His chief Ambition in Life was to get so far ahead of the Game that he could afford a nice Cutaway Suit, a swell Derby for Sunday, and a 14-karat De Beers set in a massive Gold Band.

He learned to embrace the Country Trade and talk 175 Words per Minute, so that in a little while he had an Offer from an Opposition Concern. Whereupon he said he hated to leave, but—and the House stood for an Increase.

He came into the Cutaway and the Ring, and then he found that he needed a Spike-Tail and a Folding-Hat and a Cape-Coat. His Glad Raiment carried him right into Swellety, and he began to meet Gazelles that suited him, so he figured on the Probable Expense of Keeping House.

He thought that if he could annex a good-looking Tottie with large, soulful Eyes, and take an Apartment and keep a Girl, then he would be fixed for sure.

So he went out for more Salary and carried the Bank-Book next to his Heart. At last the Proud Day arrived when he had his own Flat, with a rented Piano in the Front Room and Tidies on the Chairs. Before the Lease expired Pet discovered that the Dining-Room was too small, and began to dream Dreams of a House of their Own in which they could Entertain. So he tucked back his Cuffs and took a fresh Grip on the World of Trade, and boned like a Turk, making Payments on the House. He was beginning to look round-shouldered, but he drank plenty of Coffee and smoked fat Cigars and buckled down.

He had it all planned to take a good Rest as soon as he had lifted the Mortgage. He went so far as to send out for Time-Tables and look at the Pictures of People sitting around in Steamer Chairs enjoying the Sea Air.

He would have taken a nice, long Vacation, only he saw a Chance to break into the Firm. Accordingly he went in Debt up to his Eyes. He would lie awake at Night casting up his Liabilities and computing Interest. He talked to himself on the Street, and acted just the least bit Dippy. But he was determined to swing the Deal, and then, as soon as he was out of the Woods, he could take a Trip and hang around Picture-Galleries.

For Years he had said that it was a Crime for any one Man to pile up more than $100,000. As soon as he went above that Figure it was a Case of sitting up Nights to count it. As soon as he had that Hundred Thousand raked up and tied in bundles, then for a Quiet Spot near a Body of Water and a Naphtha Launch and the free, open Life of the Golf Links.

FOURTEEN PUSH BUTTONS IN FRONT OF HIM.

To the 50-cent Table-d'Hote Fellow, 100,000 Samoleons in one Lump looks bigger than the Union Station, but the Man who is being gnawed by the Maxuma Bacillus thinks he is a Pauper unless he can count up Seven Figures. He is always sizing up alongside of Rockefeller and Morgan, and he feels like a Piker sitting in a stiff Poker Game with one White Seed.

Just about the time the Business Man counted up $100,000 to the Good he discovered that he needed seven Servants around the House. And the Missus could float downtown on a sunny Afternoon and make $1,000 look like a Pinch of Small Change.

He set his Mark at One Million. Then, when he had that, out to the Sylvan Dell. He was going to be a Gentleman Farmer.

Every Office Building on Earth is congested with hollow-eyed Prisoners who are planning to be Gentleman Farmers. About next Year or Year after—away from the Hurly Burly and nothing to do except raise Chickens.

All of them have those Chicken Dreams. This Business Man whom we are describing even went so far as to pick out the kind of Chickens he was going to raise—Plymouth Rocks. He figured how many Eggs he could get per Hen, and sometimes, when the Pencil was working well, he estimated that he could make the Place self-supporting.

In the mean time he was bumping himself and eating Pepsin Tablets and taking a little something every Night to make him Sleep.

The Business had developed so that he had fourteen Push-Buttons in front of him, and kept two Stenographers busy, and was jumping from the Long-Distance Phone to the Private Office most of the Time, and chewing up 30-cent Cigars, and in other Ways giving a correct Imitation of a Man who has a large and ambitious Family on Hand.

He began to look Wild out of the Eyes and had a severe Case of the Jumps, but he had to postpone that Rest for a little While, because no one else understood all the Details of the Business.

When the Doctor hinted about Nervous Prostration he said that he was trying to get the whole Organization down to a System, so that some one else could step in and run it, after which he expected to take a Place in the Country and raise Chickens. He told the Chicken Story so often he began to believe it himself.

WOULD BE ALL RIGHT IN A DAY OR SO.

In order to systematize the Large Business so that he could turn it over to some one else and then have his Vacation, he began to put in 16 hours a Day, and landed in the large Corner Room, with a Trained Nurse putting Ice on his Head and telling him he would be all right in a Day or so.

He had a ticker put in at one side of the Bed, and kept a Stenographer on hand up to the Afternoon that he departed this life.

It is said that when he went to his Reward he was met by a Celestial Attendant, who proved to be the Recording Angel.

"If you're the Recording Angel, get out your Book," said the Business Man. "I want you to take a few Letters for me."

WASH OF WESTERN SEAS.

Canada Cannot Escape It, Says Mr. Rudyard Kipling.

Another recommendation for the British emigrant before all others was given by Rudyard Kipling in a recent interview at the capital.

"Your great task," he said "is to fill up your country with the best class of citizens. Fifteen millions will just begin to show here; with thirty millions you will begin to be conscious there are men about."

He made it evident that the immigrants he desired most for Canada were those of British stock, those who were bred to liberty and law and justice. There was, of course, in some quarters a prejudice against the Englishman. It was characteristic of young countries to look down sometimes as from a superior height on their forbears—the motherland. But those who had borne the white man's burden were still the best of earth's races. "The man who unfairly criticizes and looks down on the Englishman," he said, "embarrasses me. I am embarrassed for him. He has never had to pay the income tax and bear the burden of Empire."

Touching on the question of giving greater encouragement to British immigration, he noted that the establishment of a mutual preferential tariff with England would guarantee for Canada a permanent market for her grain. "It is not the cash you want here," he added. "It is the men; and the men will come if your markets are assured and there is a shade of difference in price in your favor as compared with competing nations."

State-aided immigration, he said, might well be advocated in Canada.

"What's the hurry about filling up the country?" he was asked.

"What's the hurry?" he replied. "I'll tell you: Britain has about four hundred ships guarding her shores. Once that ring is broken, you'll find out what the hurry is. You'll have to hurry then. There are hungry peoples prowling about just looking for a chance."

Regarding the Japanese, he declined to speak with any degree of authority. "It is idle," he said, "to expect that when labor conditions have created an immense vacuum of hundreds of thousands of square miles in the west nothing will blow in to fill up the vacuum. British Columbia faces the Pacific, and Vancouver is bound to become perhaps the greatest city of the Pacific coast. But you can't escape the wash of the western seas."

He discreetly hinted that perhaps the immigration policy with respect to its phases of limiting the number of white settlers who were coming in was dictated in the west by labor organizations with headquarters in the United States. "But no one here seems to dare to say so," he added. The attitude of the British Columbia white laborer was expressed as being: "I'm not going to hike wet logs out of a river at $2.50 per day."

Canada's Grain Output.

According to statistics compiled by the Trade and Commerce Department Canada's total grain production last year, exclusive of figures for the Province of Quebec, amounted to 415,038,654 bushels. The total of oats was 205,461,864 bushels, of which Ontario produced 108,341,455 bushels. Ontario leads the rest of Canada by a long margin, producing last year a total of 194,000,000 bushels, or nearly half the total for the whole Dominion. Manitoba comes next with 130,000,000; Saskatchewan, 63,000,000; Alberta, 19,300,000; New Brunswick, 7,381,000; British Columbia, 2,698,000; and Nova Scotia, 2,464,000 bushels. No returns were available from the Province of Quebec.

Better make excuses than throw the blame on some one else.

RESPONSIBILITY.

It Develops the Power and Ability That Is In a Man.

Responsibility is a great power developer. Where there is responsibility there is growth. People who are never thrust into responsible positions never develop their real strength. This is one reason why it is so rare to find very strong men and women among those who have spent their lives in subordinate positions, in the service of others. They go through life comparative weaklings because their powers have never been tested or developed by having great responsibility thrust upon them. This thinking has been done for them. They have simply carried out somebody else's programme. They have never learned to stand alone, to think for themselves, to act independently. Because they have never been obliged to plan for themselves they have never developed the best thing in them—their power of originality, inventiveness, initiative, independence, self reliance, their possible grit and stamina. The power to create, to make combinations, to meet emergencies, the power which comes from continuous marshaling of one's forces to meet difficult situations, to adjust means to ends, that stamina or power which makes one equal to the great crisis in the life of a nation, is only developed by years of practical training under great responsibility.

There is nothing more misleading than the philosophy that if there is anything in a youth it will come out. It may come out and it may not. It depends largely upon circumstances, upon the presence or absence of an ambition arousing, a grit awakening environment. The greatest ability is not always accompanied by the greatest confidence or the greatest ambition.

There is at this moment enough power latent in the clerks or ordinary employees in almost any of our business houses to manage them as well or better than they are managed today if the opportunity and necessary emergency came to call out this dynamic force.

But how can clerks who remain behind counters measuring cloth, selling shoes or hosiery, year in and year out, ever know what latent power for organization or executive ability, what initiative they possess? It is true that some of the more ambitious and courageous get out and start for themselves, but it does not follow that they are always abler than those who remain behind. Sometimes the greatest ability is accompanied by great modesty and even timidity. Then, again, employees conscious of great ability are often deterred from taking the risk of launching out for themselves because of possible disaster to those depending upon them for daily bread. But thrust great responsibility upon a man, drive him to desperation, and the demand will bring out what there is in him. It will call out his initiative, his ingenuity, his resourcefulness, his self reliance, his power to adjust means to ends. If there are any elements of leadership in him, responsibility will call them out. It will test his power to do things.—Success.

The Last Execution at Tyburn.

The last execution at Tyburn took place on Friday, Nov. 7, 1783, in the person of John Austin, convicted on the preceding Saturday of robbing John Spicer and cutting and wounding him in a cruel manner. In Walford's "Old and New London" it is erroneously said that "the last criminal executed here was one Ryland, who was hanged (sic) for forgery in 1786." William Ryland was executed on Aug. 29, two months before the date of Austin's conviction, and many a poor wretch made the fatal pilgrimage to Tyburn in the interval, hanging by wholesale being the rule in those days. The long procession westward had been attended by such disgraceful scenes that the authorities resolved to hang criminals henceforth outside Newgate prison, straight from the condemned cell. Accordingly on Dec. 3, 1783, the recorder ordered the erection of a scaffold in front of the jail, of which a notice and descriptive engraving appear in the Gentleman's Magazine for the same month, and on the 10th the new hanging place was inaugurated by the execution of ten malefactors.—London Notes and Queries.

False Telephone Calls.

The second day after the new maid came the mistress had company. Just before the callers arrived the maid said confidentially:

"Shall I go out and telephone to you while they are here?"

"Telephone?" exclaimed the mistress. "What on earth should you telephone to me about?"

"Oh, anything," responded the maid. "I always did it at the last place I worked and the place before that. The ladies wanted me to. It gave the impression that they were very popular and were overrun with engagements."

But the mistress, remembering many suspicious telephone calls that had interrupted the conversation when she herself had been calling, declined to purchase popularity on those terms.

A Resourceful Legislator.

"It will be impossible for us to transact any public business tonight," said the president of the city council, "because of the lack of a quorum."

"Mr. Chairman," said the new member, arising quickly, "I have been elected on a pledge to my constituency that I shall work untiringly and unceasingly for the upbuilding and uplifting of our city, and I now and here move that a committee be appointed to consider the immediate purchase of as good a quorum as the market affords and that the committee be instructed to secure the quorum and have it properly installed by the next meeting night. And furthermore," he said, with a fine patriotic touch, "let us obtain a good American quorum and not one of those cheap foreign things!"

History of Development Of The Y. M. C. A. Harrier Club

WHAT THE CLUB IS TO-DAY

The history of the Harriers' Club in connection with the Peterborough Y.M.C.A., extends over a period of seven years. But never before has the club been so active or in such a good condition numerically, as at the present time. And in view of the fact that long distance running in Peterborough has become the most popular sport in the city, a resume of the history of the Harrier Club will be of interest to Examiner readers.

The club was formed in 1900, just seven years ago. For its charter members it had W. Campbell, W. Richardson, R. Dobbin, John Lang and U. Kemp. Their chief sport in those days was basketball in the winter season and an outing up at Clear Lake in the summer. They indulged in a little running but with no particular end in view other than having a good time in their jaunts.

The Harrier Club, from the year of its organization, until 1906, was practically unheard of except in the basketball season in which they invariably carried of all championships.

Last year, however, when the Examiner inaugurated the ten mile road race it was shown that the club contained some speedy distance runners in Ray Best and Ernie Wilson, who ran first and second in good time. The Examiner road race was a stimulus to running, and after the race the club was re-organised, and has since been active in training for later events.

This year the race again called out superior talent, and with the achievements of Ray Best, Fred Simpson and Ernest Wilson on Thanksgiving Day, the interest in the club soared. The development has been going on now for some time and the Harriar Club Club have long distance runners who have proved themselves equal to the best.

In addition to the above mentioned men Ben Howard has been added to contest ten mile events and Fred McGrath the 100 and 200 yard speed events. A number of strong men for putting the shot are also being secured and in a short time Peterborough will have a team here to bring honour to the city in provincial events.

Toronto Central Y. M. C. A. has a number of products of the local Association who are all playing basketball together. They are Messrs. Hudson, Dobbin, N. Miller, Green and Hull, and it is hoped they may succeed in impressing upon their associates their worth in the game.

The Harrier Club held its annual meeting a short time ago, and it was then demonstrated how rapidly it has developed from the number and standing of the young men who were present at this meeting and who are taking an active interest in its welfare. The membership has increased to over 50, and the list is by no means closed. It is safe to predict that the Harrier Club of the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. will make a mark in the sporting world which will be difficult to toe by the more experienced and older clubs in the province.

"Hockey Sport" Favours Intermediate O. H. A. Team

Several Letters in Support of The Proposition---People Of Peterborough Evidently Want O.H.A. Hockey This Season---"Bard" Breaks Into Ryme

The Examiner's invitation to the people of Peterborough to vent their views of the hockey situation has already been answered by several, and their letters appear below. Both are in favour of an O.H.A. team, and while one is in prose and the other in poetry, the sentiment in both is the same, and indicates that Peterborough wants O.H.A. hockey this season. There is no doubt about this fact. The city has always had an O.H.A. team and cannot go without one this season. Letters on the subject will be gladly welcomed by the Examiner.

Following are those received to-day:—

To the Sporting Editor of the Examiner:

Sir,—Talking about hockey, I have composed the following little "ballad" trusting that you will survive it and with profound apologies to all hockey players; past, present, (mostly present) and future.

The ice will not be Dusty, if 'twas what would we care?
Harold rouse the keenest fire of sports, both lean and Gross.

But June we all admire the bright and blooming Rose,
The fields in gay attire, while the zephyr gently blows.
The Miller, too, discourses of themes both gay and light,
As he looks upon the sources of Graham bread and White.

But summer's past and ended, and fields of "Clover" dead,
The past has only tended to prove the truth of what I've said,
So let us now to hockey give all our time and care,
And watch the boys get busy as they hand the silverware.

"BARD."

To the Sporting Editor, Examiner.

Sir,—Accepting your invitation for opinions on the hockey question for the coming season, I venture to make the following remarks: That hockey is one of, in fact, the most popular games with the people of Peterborough is an assertion which requires no proof, the fact being entirely self-evident, as is attested by the enthusiastic crowds that filled the rink last winter, and every winter for that matter; and that this city should not have a team in the O.H.A. this season would be, indeed, most regrettable. We have an abundance of good material and should be able to put a team in the intermediate series, at least, that would undoubtedly give a very good account of itself. A few of last year's players are certainly available, and with the addition of others from the City League of last year a really excellent team (intermediate) could be got together. Let us hope that the hockeyists will "get busy" and take the hint, just, of course, "to smite the O.H.A.," and incidentally bring the silverware back to Quaker Oatsville. Thanking you for your space, I am, sir,

KETCHECUM LAKE CLUB IS HOME

Secured 20 Deer in the North—Among The Fortunate

The members of the Ketchecum Lake party returned last night from their annual hunting expedition at Ketchcoum Lake, thoroughly delighted with the outing and the success with attended their efforts with the rifle. The party has made the biggest killing of any local club this season, bringing down no less than twenty fine deer, of which two were eaten in camp and the remainder brought here last night. To Mr. Harry LeBrun fell the honour of shooting the biggest buck bagged by the party, in fact the biggest that has been shot in this district for some time. The animal weighed well over 200 pounds and Mr. LeBrun is naturally elated over his success.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The results of the Intercollegiate games being played to-day in Kingston and Ottawa will be awaited with interest by the fans in this city. McGill and Ottawa meet in the Capital City and if the Montreal Collegians win they will be tied for the championship. On the other hand if the victory comes to Ottawa they win the championship. Varsity plays in Queen's to-day and the Toronto Collegians by winning will be tied with Ottawa and McGill, provided the latter also wins. Both Queen's and Ottawa College are crippled because of injuries to star players, but the advantage of playing on home grounds may counterbalance this weakness. Ottawa College are especially strong on their own field and will give the Montreal aggregation a hard fight for the honours.

The Montreal Herald and Montreal Star are beginning to get angry at each other over the subject of road racing and are making remarks about the Thanksgiving Day race and that on the King's birthday. The first was conducted by the Herald and the latter by the Star, and now they are paying left-handed compliments to each other.

Tom Phillips last year tried Whitcroft's running mate on the Kenora Thistles, has decided to cast in his lot with the Ottawa team this year and will be found on the forward line with Westwick, Alf Smith and McGee. Harvey Pulford and LeSueur will be on the defence again this season and Moore will likely line up at cover.

Word comes from Tommy Burns in London that the English critics are making fun of his short stature and think that he will not be a match for Gunner Moir, when they meet on December 2nd. The Canadian-American, however, may open the eyes of the talent when he clashes with the Englishman. If he wins, thousands of dollars will accompany him back to America.

The big contests in American football to-day are the games between Yale and Princeton at New Haven, and Pennsylvania and Michigan at Ann Arbour. The Elis should beat the Tigers handily on the form displayed throughout the season and Yost's men appear to have a little on the Quakers although the latter have improved wonderfully under the coaching of Mike Murphy. The Carlisle Indians also meet Minnesota today, and the redmen are favoured by the experts in their battle with their white brethren.

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 14.—Undergraduates in Yale and the students in the graduate departments received their tickets for the Yale-Princeton game yesterday, cleaning up the list of first applications, so-called. It is announced that while the seating capacity has been increased so that the total is now about 34,000, all tickets have been sold and hundreds of applications cannot be filled. Princeton has taken 2,500 tickets more than two years ago, which was unexpected and the Yale demand was greater than ever.

HIS INVOLUNTARY BATH.

K.C. Touched Elevator Bell and Met Unexpected Result.

The Hamilton Spectator, which in well-informed circles is considered as a strong, not to say good, Tory paper, prints the following:—A good story is being told at the expense of George T. Blackstock, K.C., the well-known Toronto lawyer, who was Crown prosecutor at the Assizes here. Some people say it is not true, but this is the story which is being told: Mr. Blackstock was counsel in the action brought against the Bank of Hamilton by James Lamond for $3,000 damages for the death of a nine-year-old son, Wilfrid Lamond. Lees, Hobson & Stephens were solicitors for the bank and engaged Mr. Blackstock to defend the action, as the bank stoutly maintained that it was not at all liable for the accident. It will be remembered that the evidence showed that the lad had been playing with the elevator and had rung the bell. He had failed to let go when the elevator ascended in response to the signal, and being carried to quite a height fell to the ground and died from his injuries. Mr. Blackstock is always very thorough in preparing his case, and on the morning of the day when the case was to be tried he went to look at the elevator in company with General Manager Turnbull and a member of the firm of Hobson & Stephens.

Mr. Blackstock was curious to see what would happen if he rang the bell as the boy did. His first ring was unheeded, and he rang the bell twice. Then he found out what would happen. The elevator did not descend, but a pailful of cold water came down on his devoted head. The cook upstairs had suspected some trick, and, thinking that some more boys were monkeying with the bell, had quickly and unceremoniously dumped the pail of water out. And it hit its mark all right.

GROVE SCHOOL BEAT CRESCENTS

Lakefield Team Won a Lively Battle This Morning

The Grove School of Lakefield, and the Junior Crescents had a lively battle at the Riverside Park this morning and the school boys won out after a hard struggle by 9 points to 7. The teams were very evenly matched, and put up a fine game. Lakefield displayed better team work and science, but the Crescents were no mean adversaries, and it was anybody's battle until the last whistle blew. In fact if the local team had used their heads in the last quarter and kicked when they had the wind in their favour, the result might have been different. The Crescents got away to a goal from teh field, netting them rouge in the first quarter. The Grove came back in the second quarter, scoring an unconverted try, and a goag from the field, netting them 9 points. In the third quarter there was no scoring while the Crescents scored a rouge in the last quarter, and might have won out if they had taken advantage of the wind and booted the ball. Tom Colledge of the Peterboroughs refereed to the satisfaction of both teams, and C. Ackerman made a good umpire.

THE BASKETBALL SCHEDULE

Two Teams in Inter-provincial League And Four in The Y.M.C.A. League

GREAT INTEREST IS SHOWN

The basketball enthusiasts of the Y.M.C.A. met last night after practice and arranged their plans for the season. As intimated in yesterday's Examiner the local association have entered two teams in the Inter-Provincial League and have already chosen the players to represent them in the games. The Inter-Provincial League will include teams from Toronto, Hamilton and other western cities, and Ottawa, Montreal, Kingston and Belleville in the east, so that the basketball game will be a popular one in Ontario and Quebec during the coming winter.

In addition to the two teams which will represent the local Y.M.C.A. in the big league there will be four teams playing in the Y.M.C.A. league here. These will be the Arrows, Alerts, Tigers and Harriers. The schedule of games has been arranged as follows:—

Monday, Nov. 20.—Arrows vs. Alerts, 8 p.m.; Harriers vs. Tigers, 9 p.m.

Wednesday, Nov. 27.—Arrows vs. Tigers, 8 p.m.; Harriers vs. Alerts, 9 p.m.

Wednesday, Dec. 4.—Alerts vs. Tigers, 8 p.m.; Harriers vs. Arrows, 9 p.m.

The first and second Y. M. C. A. teams which will practice on Fridays from 7 to 8 p.m. are composed as follows:—

The Peterboro' Light and Power Co. will be unable to supply light on Sunday between the hours of eight a. m. and five p. m., on account of alterations to plant.

A RECORD CROWD AT THE MARKET

Many Salesmen Caught the Citizens' Shekels To-day

For a crowd and attractions, the market this morning out-rivalled a Missouri county fair. The farmers and townspeople surged through the square for several hours, and a number of fakirs, medicine men and auctioneers, held sway with their wares, with profit for themselves. There was business for everybody and it was curious to note the way in which the people would move around, grouping here and there, wherever the noise was the loudest, or something novel attracted their attention.

The farmers readily parted with their coin when they would go out in the streets afterwards, and haggle with the merchants over a sum of five cents.

MAN MUST NOT LACK STRENGTH

Sermon on Morality by Eminent San Francisco Divine on Subject of Strength

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

The following editorial, by Rev. William Rader, is republished from The San Francisco Bulletin because it appeals to the best in every man's bosom, irrespective of his nationality or creed.

The subject of this article is strength. A man may have culture, honesty, wealth, but if he lacks strength it profiteth him nothing. It is the one point in human character which must be looked after carefully, since all other virtues rest upon it.

Thomas Carlyle struck a keynote when he wrote "Hero and Hero Worship," because he set before the world a number of men who had done what other men would do if they could. A hero is a strong man, and hero worship in the education weakness pays to power. If we have not a real hero in history we make one in fancy. If we do not find the hero in the history of Greece, we go to the literature of Homer. We do admire Hercules, and Samson, before his hair was cut, and look with admiration upon the sightless skull of Cromwell hanging on the walls of Westminster.

Strength is everywhere respected. We look out on the sea, and, conceding the grandeur and colour of the water, are moved by its mighty power. Strength is always and everywhere admirable, whether in the span of the bridge, the power of a battleship or in the delicate spring of the watch. The red men worshipped power. Shall we blame them? The white man worships power when he bows before God. The red men were reverent in the presence of a Power not of themselves, and this reverence was the first step toward a rational religion.

Have Courage

In man, strength is an admirable virtue. When Moses was about to die he said to his successor, "Be strong." He did not say, "Be rich or learned or popular." His injunction was very simple and much to the point when he said: "Be strong and of a good courage." If colleges turn out strong men they are a success. If they do not make strong men, there is something wrong with them. What is the use of having engines without fire, or guns without powder, or ideals without the power to realize them? Did you hear of the steamship Mariposa? This good ship ran out of power, on the high seas and became as helpless as a baby on the waves. Everything else about her was in good order. There was plenty to eat and drink, and the crew in sound mind, and of a good heart, but there was no steam, and consequently no progress, which was the result that the big ship stopped and waited for help. A man without strength is like a steamer without steam. They lack power. Dreams they have but do not realize them; theories have they, but do not practice them; visions gladden them, but they have no strength to make them real. Many a man is honest, but without power to make his honesty count. He does not have the steam to make the wheels go round.

Is the modern man losing his steam? Is that the matter with character? No man is better in deed than in motive. What we do falls below what we would do, there is something wrong with the engine. Think about it, you weakling, who, when you would be good, find evil present with you.

Strength to Resist.

Honesty is more abundant than strength. Many a man goes to the devil, not because he likes the devil and wants his company, but he hasn't strength enough to resist. He perishes and is buried under the splendour of his own high ideals—which he never could live up to. Strength was not taught him when a boy and he found mighty little of it in his blood when an inventory was made of his inheritance. In short, he ran out of steam.

Courage is related to strength as the branch to the trunk. We get courageous when we know how strong we are. A weak man is never really brave—his bravery is bluff. Courage of the highest form is related to the highest morality. So Tennyson sings of one of his heroes:

"His strength is as the strength of ten,
Because his heart is pure."

Fear is the cause of many failures. A man knows little about courage when he works up a spasm of courage only when he loses his temper. Hot courage is scarcely ever well balanced. Dispassionate bravery does the best work. Like lead, it is effective when cold.

Strength and courage are two simple virtues owned by no race, found in all faiths, expressed in every real hero the inspiration of all great souls and the basis of character. Weakness and fear are neither good medicine nor sound doctrine. They lock the legs, chain the feet, hamper the brain, thwart the purpose and darken the chambers of the soul. There is no fight in fear. Be afraid of nothing except the shadow of your own life. The military idea of life—that which finds and applies the military equivalent in the battle of real experience—is a good working ideal. The soldier is still the example of the man who is aggressively good. It is a hundred times better to be a fighter than a cry-baby. Love itself must have grit. Leadership is a mixture of strength and courage which come from the Infinite. They are God. Therefore be not afraid. The stars fight for the brave fighter. Be not afraid to do the right thing nor to hold to the truth. Backbone, with an ordinary amount of brains, is a more profitable asset than an extraordinary amount of brains with little or no backbone. The neglect of the spinal column is making the ship of state wreck from stem to stern. Straight men are comparatively scarce.

Be a Soldier

Be a good fighter for the good things. Such is the soldier of civilization. The coarse-grained fellow with a club was very well in his place, but his place is not in the twentieth century. The club must be an idea and the heart of a man behind it. A soldier of the best. At any rate, I see success ahead for the man of strength and courage, who is a good honest fighter, not brilliant, but as strong as a Damascus blade that bends but springs back again to its place.

Once there was a lion and he was ignorant of his muscles. He did not know how far he could spring nor how great was his power, and he was stirred and an easy prey for his enemies. But one day he found himself. He learned how strong he was. Few men know how weak they are until tested. Few know how strong they are until tempted. Who knows? You may be a lion in strength and think yourself a weak and helpless mouse. Who can tell? You may put up a very good fight if you must. It won't do you any harm to look at life with courage and take the fighter's stand and pitch in. Instead of coddling your weakness, clothe yourself in the panoply of defence and do something. Are you to meet a crisis? Be a man. Are you to face death? Be a soldier. Are you to contend with enemies? Be a fighter. A ... while strength and ...

THE APPEALANTS' LAST CHANCE

Court of Revision Will Hear The Remainder of the Appeals To-night

To-night will be the last chance for the hearing of appeals against the assessment and those who are on the list of appellants, and who have not yet been heard by the court must be on hand to-night if they want to air their grievances. The list has been gone through once but there were a number of absentees and the court has decided to give them this opportunity to state their case. After to-night the court will consider the different cases and give judgment accordingly.

WINTER FASHIONS FOR MEN

Overcoats Which Are Most Worn For Their Individuality

"To be successful, dress well," declared a modern philosopher. The colloquialism derived from the retail dealer's window describes it as "putting on a good front."

To dress well is an art. One can study the prevailing styles in the ready-to-wear tailor shops, and learn the popular styles, but the only common sense method is to find out one's individualism and the suitable garment in style, colour and shape.

The Marlborough or Surtout Overcoat may suit particular figures, and may give more distinction to some wearers, but the "Imperial" and the "King Edward" sell more freely, for they are suitable garments for most men. There is a marked individuality expressed in a good garment when it is well tailored and when it conforms to type of the wearer.

BAG-PIPE PLAYER SURROUNDED BY PACK OF WOLVES IN NORTH USES MUSIC TO CHARM THEM

Walks Around a Tree Playing The Musical Instrument Until The Wild Animals Leave Him Alone, But Alive

STORY OF HIS ADVENTURE

Hears The Howling Of The Wolves Above The Music of The Bagpipes At The Head Of Stony Lake

Music of the bagpipes may not be the most natural sound one might expect to hear among the tall timbers of the north, but nevertheless a circumstance actually occured last week during the hunting days in which the melodious strains of the ancient Scotch national musical instrument were allowed to float among the murmuring pines for a most peculiar object—that of keeping away a pack of wolves.

It is but correct to say that the bagpipes were in capable hands — those of Donald McLean, of Warsaw, who has but recently landed on Canadian soil, and who has already made himself popular among the Dummer folk by his masterly work on that rare instrument.

In Peril of his Life

Donald McLean was in the northern woods last week and returning tells the hair-raising story of being surrounded by a pack of wolves at the head of Stony Lake with no protection other than the music of the bagpipes.

Nightfall found Donald McLean alone in the woods. Returning to camp he heard or thought he heard the distant howling of the timber wolf which he had so often heard about since coming to Canada. Not wishing to encounter any of the ravinous creatures in that lonesome spot at such an hour he was at his wits-end to devise a plan of escape. The shades of night were beginning to fall and even had he had a rifle it would have been useless in the dark against an oncoming pack of hungry wolves.

The Bagpipes Play

Donald McLean had his bagpipes. In fact he usually has his musical instrument wherever he happens to go. He had heard of how noises of various descriptions had been used to frighten off the wolf and he decided upon his last resort. Selecting a large tree, and Donald tells the story himself, he walked the night away playing with all his forces upon his ancient Scottish instrument. Around and around the tree he went and between each note that floated off among the trees he imagined the sounds of the howling of the wolves were becoming more distinct than when they first fell upon his ear.

However, with the dawn, Donald McNeil was still alive and he still lives. He has implicit faith in the charms of the strains of the bagpipe music to hold the wolf spell bound. The ordeal was a trying one, but what difference, if it saved a life?

Hiawatha Baby Boy Was Named "Frederick Herald"

Christening Service Attended By Peterboro' Friends of The Indian Runner—Presentation Of Baby Carriage

REV. DUNKLEY OFFICIATED

The sun never shone brighter on the old Kentucky home than it did yesterday upon the pretty little village of Hiawatha on the solemn occasion of the christening of "Frederick Herald," the baby boy of Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Simpson. It was the principal event in the village and was attended by a number of the Indian runner's admirers from Peterborough who went to Hiawatha by boat, taking with them a handsome baby carriage for the three weeks' old boy who was born a few days before the Hamilton Herald road race. The baby was named Frederick Herald in honour of his father and of the Hamilton newspaper, under whose auspices the big race was held.

The christening service was performed by Rev. Geo. Dunkley, the resident Methodist minister of Hiawatha, at Mr. and Mrs. Muckrat's residence, the home of Mrs. Simpson's parents. After the baptismal ceremony, Mr. E. S. Clarry, one of the Peterborough party, added a few remarks in commendation of the achievements of the noble race of redmen, of which the Hiawatha Indians were a branch. On behalf of Peterborough citizens, he expressed his appreciation of having the village of Hiawatha on the shores of Rice Lake a suburb of Peterborough city. Mr. "Dick" Baker, who was also a member of the company, presented the carriage to the infant boy, accompanied by a bouquet of flowers.

Upon the kind invitation of the Rev. Mr. Dunkley, the members of the party later visited the Sunday school during the afternoon, and listened to the Sunday school lesson taught by the minister. At the conclusion of the services, Mr. Clarry addressed the Sunday school, referring to the good work of Rev. Mr. Dunkley of the Hiawatha reserve, and to the general growth of brotherly love throughout the length and breadth of Canada from Halifax on the east to the Rocky Mountains on the west. Other members of the party also made short addresses.

Rev. Mr. Dunkley was pleased to have the young men present, and gave them all an invitation to attend again.

Conditions In The West Are Not As Bad As Reported

Mr. Thos. Lee Returned Home After Spending The Summer in Davidson, Sask.—Good Prices Received For Grain

REAL ESTATE IS QUIET

A warm reception was tendered Mr. Thos. Lee when he visited many of his old friends at the market this morning, after being absent all summer. He returned from Davidson, Sask., on Saturday night, after a successful season in the fertile Northwest, and is highly satisfied with the results of his work. Some of the districts suffered heavily, but in the neighbourhood of Davidson all the farmers had good returns, and Mr. Lee's acres gave a splendid yield.

Speaking of the West, Mr. Lee said that the conditions are really not as bad as what the customs press make them out to be. The wheat district was blasted by the frost only in belts, and many parts were untouched. The seeding had been done late, for nearly three weeks before the harvest the weather was such that the crops were at a standstill. Had they ripened then, as was expected, no trouble would have been experienced in any of the districts, so Mr. Lee believes. The yield of oats is very good, and the price of grain has so advanced that as a result the farmers are about as well off as they were last year. There is no danger of hunger's pangs being felt by the people, but a serious question that is now arising is where the winter's fuel is to come from.

A Hustling Town

Mr. Lee speaks highly of the town of Davidson. It is only about the size of Lakefield, but is making rapid progress, almost too rapid. It has just opened a new Public School with High School annex, costing $42,000. It is equipped with modern improvements throughout, and is one of the best schools in the West. A new skating rink twice the size of Brock street rink has been built for sporting purposes, and Mr. Lee says that for enthusiasm in athletics, the West is ahead of any place. Every evening in the summer there is a ball game or some other amusement, and the farmers turn out for all of them.

The weather, Mr. Lee states, was excellent all summer for working. The rain came just when needed, and most of the time at night, offering no interference to the work. Forty-three days at a stretch without losing an hour is certainly a good record, and the hired men were busy all that time without interruption to their daily work.

Mr. Lee saw many people from this district, including the Ahan brothers. Edwards is in the hardware business in Davidson and is meeting with success. The real estate boom has fell flat owing to partial failure of the crops, and many people are unable to collect their money for their property sales.

As an example of the situation, Mr. Lee tells a rather amusing story of a real estate transaction of which he heard. A broker sold three building lots to a lawyer; the lawyer turned them over to a merchant, and the merchant to a contractor, who built three houses on them. The houses cannot be rented, and the contractor cannot dispose of them nor get any money. Thus he cannot pay the merchant, the merchant is similarly situated towards the lawyer, and the broker believes that he can claim the property with the three houses that the contractor erected.

HAIRPIN SWALLOWED BY YOUNG WOMAN

She Laughed at The Wrong Time—Pin Lodged in Her Throat

Miss Ethyl Graham was the unfortunate victim of a most unusual accident the other day. Miss Graham was adjusting her collar and holding a black-headed steel pin in her mouth while doing so. Some one entering the room caused the young lady to laugh, and the sudden inspiration of air drew the pin into the throat, where it lodged. All efforts to remove it were unsuccessful, and the young lady suffered much pain from the sad mishap. At the time of writing she is a little improved, but still suffering severely, and the left shoulder is affected. The doctors so far have been unable to locate the pin, and unless they succeed, the young lady will probably be taken to Toronto, where the X-rays may be used and treatment given.—Lindsay Watchman-Warder.

HUDSON BAY ROUTE

The necessity of the opening of a route to Great Britain by way of the Hudson Bay is growing more emphatic year by year. The wheat production of the Northwest is increasing far out of proportion to the capacity of the outlets. In 1898 there was under crop to wheat, 2,500,000 acres equivalent to a production of thirty million bushels of wheat. In 1907 there were 7,000,000 acres under cultivation equivalent to a production of one hundred million bushels. If, in practically ten years, the wheat crop has trebled, we may expect a similar and even greater growth in the next ten years. When we have even three hundred million of bushels of wheat to sell the problem of moving the crop to the home market will be greatly intensified, without some important enlargement of transportation facilities. As things are at present railway construction only serves to create greater congestion of traffic. Railways open up new areas of cultivation, without sensibly enlarging the transportation capacity. Now that the feasibility of the Hudson Bay route is conceded, the question of its employment takes on added importance. The construction of a railway to Churchill from Winnipeg or some other point in the west, will give the grain of the Northwest access to a seaport, with all the advantages of shipment which water carriage implies. The opening of this route is not of merely sectional moment; not important to the Northwest alone; the prosperity of the Northwest directly affects that of the east. The slightest stay in the work of Northwest development, the slightest adverse conditions, are felt in the East, felt in our manufacturing establishments, felt in every department of commercial activity. Hence the opening of new avenues of transportation which are essential to the growth and prosperity of the West becomes a matter of national importance.

The proposal of Sir Frederick Borden, Minister of Militia, to establish military cadet corps in connection with the schools, is commendable, apart from other considerations, for one chief reason. They would promote discipline, and respect for authority. These are things needed in a time, when the rising generation is undisciplined and almost utterly lacking in respect for authority, and respect for superiors and elders. These are the open doors to anarchy — contempt for all rule, order and authority, and destructive of the essential element of individual and, consequently, national manhood.

BUILT UP HER HEALTH

SPEEDY CURE OF MISS ECCLISON

She is Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Writes Gratefully to Mrs. Pinkham.

For the wonderful help that she has found Zula Ecclison, 6 Erie St., East, St. Thomas, Ont., believes it her duty to write the following letter for publication, in order that other women afflicted in the same way may be benefited as she was. She writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I heartily recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as a tonic and regulator for female troubles. I suffered for four years with displacement and no one but those who have experienced this dreadful agony can form any idea of the physical and mental suffering those endure who are thus affected. Your Vegetable Compound cured me. Within three months I was fully restored to health and strength and now my periods are regular and painless. What a blessing it is to obtain such relief when so many doctors fail to help you. Your medicine is better than any doctor or medicine I ever had."

No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, bloating (or flatulence), displacement of organs, inflammation or ulceration can be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Her experience is very great, and she gives the benefit of it to all who stand in need of wise counsel. She is the daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham and for twenty-five years has been advising sick women free of charge. Address, Lynn, Mass.

ROYAL KING

King Edward's activities are not confined to international peace-making, or spectacular diplomatics. He has a real and earnest interest in the welfare of his people. The impending strike of 160,000 British railway employees, would have worked not only incalculable disaster to general commercial interests, but would have meant starvation and suffering to London, which, from necessity, lives from hand to mouth—has to depend on supplies of food brought in from day to day. Private letters show the state of almost panic that existed in London, while the strike threatened. While the King had no personal interest in the consequences of such a strike still he was intensely anxious. While surrounded by his family amidst his birthday festivities, and the entertainment of three or four visiting monarchs, the King's intensity of interest in the railway dispute was shown by his sending a special messenger, by special train, to ascertain and report to him, the result of Mr. Lloyd George's efforts to effect a settlement to which there is reason to believe King Edward himself personally contributed. His deep and genuine interest in what concerns the happiness of his subjects, his political impartiality, and other qualities, account for a great deal of his popularity. The Emperor of Germany, during his visit, may learn many lessons in the art of exercising kingly functions.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Whitney Government robbed Hamilton of its Normal College, and now the Ambitious City is after the Technical College. How can a city that has the bad taste to "turn down" a Conservative candidate and elect a labour representative, expect the favourable consideration of the Whitney Government?

Hon. G. E. Foster continues to preach the doctrine of a cleaner political life in Canada. Which prompts the Hamilton Times to ask: "Did that include a demand that men in public life should not fill their own pockets by speculating in the lands of the country with the money of widows and orphans entrusted to their keeping?"

The defenders of Messrs. Foster, Fowler, and the group of grafters, of which they are typical members, say that their public life is without reproach. This may be so. But what about "the nest of traitors" episode in Mr. Foster's career? Would a man, who would betray his leader, and wreck his party, of which that act was the beginning, hesitate, if his ambition or other interests suggested such a course, to betray his country? The defence put forth is otherwise defective and suggestive. If a man in his private relations is not regardful of his obligations, which involve honesty and fidelity, is it not probable that in public life, should the temptation come, the same disregard may easily find place?

ROMAINE STREET SEWER QUESTION

"Citizen" Expresses His Opinion on Action of Board of Works

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir, — I am sure every intelligent citizen will deplore the condition of things existing in regard to the Romaine street sewer. But this state of affairs is not simply of yesterday. At the time the sewer was being built the workmanship was criticised on all sides, and almost continually since it was declared finished, men have been employed digging up patches here and there, or else probing and flushing out the sewer.

Finally, the Board of Works has decided to hold an investigation; but what a farce it gives promise of being! This intelligent body arrived at the sewer last Thursday, and after taking a bird's eye view of the matter, discharged from the city's service, one Anthony, the pipe-layer.

But, Mr. Editor, who built this sewer? Was it not Foreman White, according to Engineer Hay's plans? Who was the one man placed there, and hired by the Board of Works, precisely to see that every pipe was well and truly laid, and cemented? Was it not Foreman White? For example, if a contractor had this job, and made the same muddle of affairs, would the Board of Works talk to the pipe layer for one moment? The contractor, and the contractor alone, would have to give an account to the Board of Works. If Anthony is guilty why not the man who was engaged to see that Anthony did his work well?

But, I am previous, because this brilliant Board of Works is going to get expert evidence; they are going to find out what is the matter and who is to blame, and then, ye guilty ones—beware! And who is the expert? Street Commissioner Evans, who, as far as I know, never laid a sewer of any size. On the one hand this expert is subject to Engineer Hay, and is called upon to implicate his superior officer, if that official is responsible. What nonsensical nonsense! On the other hand Mr. Evans is a brother-in-law of Mr. White, and is the Board of Works unnatural and hard-hearted enough to ask their expert to scrutinize, and, perchance, condemn, his own brother-in-law's work?

I would suggest to the aldermen who are responsible for such bare-faced bluffing to either get some competent sewer builder, who has no particular interest in the matter, to make a thorough investigation, and saddle the responsibility where it properly belongs, or else to tear off their mask and tell the people of Peterborough straight that Engineer Hay and Foreman White are to have a job from the city corporation, come what may.

Yours very truly,
CITIZEN.

CROSSED LAKE ON THIN ICE

Whetung Brothers of Indian River Made The Passage

The honour of being the first to cross Chemong Lake on the ice this season goes to the Whetung family of the Indian village, of course, but Mr. Dan Whetung who generally performs the feat first was beaten this year. On Saturday night word was received in the village that one of Mr. Joseph Whetung's sons was ill in Orillia, and accordingly, two of his brothers set out for Peterborough. The lake had frozen over, and they decided in their haste to risk the crossing. Cutting across the lake from the Indian village to Bredin's, they reached the shore in safety. The ice was about three-quarters of an inch thick.

The lake was still firmly frozen over yesterday, but with the mild weather of to-day it is not expected to last long.

Three Parties Returned With Six Deer Each

Warsaw and Dummer hunters appear to be all sizes. On Saturday night when three parties had returned home each had stories to tell of capturing six deer. The Cavanah party consisting of W. R. Cavanah, his son, and Jas. Murphy, captured six on their hunting grounds north-east of Apsley; the Payne party counted out the same number and the Tedford's a half dozen also. Other parties were north hunting, but their results have not yet been learned.

BEER* IS A FOOD

LAGER is a solid appetising product of malt and hops, with less alcohol than sweet cider, which cannot ferment in the stomach. It is specially suited to women as a dinner drink.

ALES are so rich in the food elements of malt that they rank above milk as an item of diet, and are far purer than most milk is when city-dwellers get it.

PORTER differs from ale in that the malt is roasted (like coffee) in the brewing process, and this makes porter so nourishing that it is a real specific for anaemic and run-down people.

STOUT is the richest and most strengthening of malt beers; it contains nearly as much nourishment as eggs, and digests easier. Thin people will find it adds healthy flesh.

BEER, used with meals and before bedtime, increases digestive power, gets you more good out of the food you eat—and is itself a food.

Beer does not contain enough alcohol to react upon the system — just enough to induce the stomach to do its work better.

Beer is not an intoxicant—it is a beverage with definite value for almost every grown person.

Ask your own doctor whether it wouldn't be good for you and the adults of your household.

*BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter, and stout; in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley *(a the world) malt, hops, and pure water.

More Runaway Accidents Reported From Warsaw

One Horse Ran Seven Miles—Shaft Falls Down And Scared The Other Steed

A BOY BADLY INJURED

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, November 18.

This community is by no means through with runaway accidents. Two more are to be added to the lengthy list which began last week, but fortunately the results were not very serious.

On Friday the horse belonging to Mr. Samuel Anderson ran from Mr. Jas. McCracken's gate to Mr. Fee's corner, a distance of seven miles. The animal was left standing at the gate while Mr. Anderson was absent and took advantage of the opportunity to run away. No damage was done.

The falling down of the shafts of the buggy belonging to Mr. C. J. Darling, county councillor, was the cause of the other accident. The horse upset the vehicle but did not get away. Hilliard Darling, a nephew of Mr. C. J. Darling, was injured about the legs, but the owner and his son who were also in the buggy escaped unhurt.

Three Cases To Be Heard At The Fall Non-jury Sittings

Mr. Justice Mabee Will Preside—Two Will Cases Are Involved—Mr. Talvier Claims $700 From The Robson Estate

THE LEASE OF A FARM

Three cases are to come up before Mr. Justice Maybee at the fall sittings of the High Court of Justice without jury, which opens on Thursday. One of them, that of Gunan versus Kelly and Flaherty, is too well known to need any extended reference at this time. The particulars of the statement of claims in the other cases are as follows:

Fowler vs. Green and Robson

The plaintiff, Margaret Fowler, is the wife of John Fowler, of this city, a nephew of Mary Robson, deceased, and the defendants, William Robson and Joseph T. Green, are the executors of the last will and testament of Joseph Green, deceased. The plaintiff claims that there was an agreement entered into between herself and the deceased that the former should board and lodge the said Mary Robson and that she should be paid $700 out of the estate of the deceased, as well as small weekly sums as the deceased could afford, and that the deceased signed a cheque for $700 on July 29th, 1905. The plaintiff alleges that she was not paid the $700 either in the lifetime of the deceased or by his executors, and claims that amount from the defendant, Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr for the plaintiff. R. E. Wood for the defendants.

Robertson vs. Robertson

The plaintiffs, Sarah Jane Robertson and Mary Jane Robertson, are executrices of the will of the late John Robertson, deceased, and the defendant, Mabel Hannah Robertson, is a widow residing in North Monaghan and the administratrix of the estate of the late William Henry Robertson, deceased. The plaintiffs allege that the said John Robertson was the tenant for life of certain lands in South Monaghan and that the said William Henry Robertson leased the land from the former on May 2nd, 1898, and occupied them until his death in September, 1906. The plaintiffs claim that at the time of his death William Henry Robertson was indebted to John Robertson in the sum of $2,400. The plaintiffs claim this sum as arrears of rent due the estate of the late John Robertson, bequeathed the plaintiff by his last will and testament. Hall & Hayes for the plaintiffs; Dennistoun, Peck & Kerr for the defendants.

Kidney Troubles From the Liver

COMPLICATED CASES WHICH LED TO THE DISCOVERY OF THAT GREAT MEDICINE

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

In his study of kidney disease, Dr. Chase found that fully 90 per cent. of the cases arose as a direct result of liver and bowel disorders, and it was working on this idea that led to the discovery of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Through over-eating, irregular meals, or food that does not agree the liver is deranged, poisonous bile is left in the blood, and the digestive system is upset. Headaches, biliousness, pains in the back and limbs, ill-temper, and general out-of-sort feelings result.

These are among the symptoms of liver complaint, but during such attacks the kidneys are overworked and after a while there is pain and smarting when passing water, the urine is highly coloured and contains deposits, the pains in the back become more severe, you have rheumatic pains it may be, and are gradually falling a victim of Bright's disease of the kidneys.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills were prepared for the express purpose of effecting cure in every stage of such cases. They enliven the liver, regulate the action of the bowels, and invigorate the kidneys.

In this regard they are entirely different to any treatment you ever used, and are successful in complicated cases in which ordinary kidney medicines have little or no effect. There are people in every neighbourhood in Canada ready to certify to this statement.

Mrs. John Shanahan, 319 McDonel street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—"I was troubled with pains in the back, and dropsy, and was subject to fluttering and palpitation of the heart. In order to set my kidneys right I began using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and I also used Dr. Chase's Nerve Food at the same time.

"The combined use of these two preparations has done me a world of good. I ceased to have rush of blood to the head, dizziness, and headache, but I am thankful to say that all these symptoms have disappeared, and I have been cured by Dr. Chase's remedies."

Big Treasury Issue in U. S.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Secretary of the United States Treasury Cortelyou made the important announcement last night that as a means of affording relief to the financial situation, the treasury will issue $50,000,000 of Panama bonds and $100,000,000 certificates of indebtedness, or so much thereof as may be necessary. The certificates will run for one year, and will bear interest at 3 per cent.

Kicked by a Horse.

Chatham, Ont., Nov. 18.—After being unconscious for about half an hour as a result of a terrific kick in the face sustained from a vicious horse while attempting to feed the animal, Peter McGarvin, aged about 40, part owner of a large livery barn, was found lying on the floor all but dead.

He was removed to the public general hospital.

Automobile Fatality.

New York, Nov. 18.—Joseph H. Redstern, a wealthy lumberman, was instantly killed, and his wife and Judge and Mrs. Alfred Streckler were injured Saturday night, when a West Shore, engine struck the automobile in which they were riding near Englewood, N. J.

To Stop Mixed Marriages.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—An important pastoral was read in the Roman Catholic churches yesterday, absolutely forbidding mixed marriages. Archbishop Bruchesi made an announcement that in so far as this diocese is concerned dispensations will no longer be granted to Roman Catholics wishing to marry Protestants. The custom hitherto in vogue is done away with. In strong and emphatic language his grace places a ban upon all such unions. Hereafter should Protestants and Catholics wish to marry they will not be able to secure the blessing of the Church upon their union.

Legislate Against Hindoos.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 18.—J. H. Clarke, immigration commissioner for Canada, with headquarters in Montreal, has decided, after an investigation here, to recommend the Government at Washington to pass legislation to exclude Hindoos from the United States. The recent riots at Bellingham and Everett have been given much concern.

Thousands of Hindoos have gone from Vancouver south this year to logging and railway camps in Washington and Oregon and the fruit ranches in California.

FIGHT IN LONDON THEATRE.

Comedian and Manager Have Set-To on the Stage.

London, Nov. 18.—As the result of a row which took place on the Grand Opera House stage at the conclusion of the "I'm Married Now" production on Thursday night, J. A. Shadrick, one of the principal singing comedians of the company, is now confined to his room at the London House with a badly lacerated face and other injuries, the result of connection with a pair of brass knuckles.

The singer's misfortune was that he was pummelled by a burly stage manager, who was, it is said, in love with a blonde actress who traveled with the show under the name of Miss Paquette, but who is said to have a husband and three children living in Boston.

For some reason or another, it is alleged, Miss Paquette became jealous of Mrs. Shadrick, who also played a leading part in the show, and at every opportunity took her spite out by calling her names and taunting her about her poor work.

Matters kept growing worse and worse, and on Thursday night they reached a climax when, it is alleged, Miss Paquette, who weighs somewhere in the neighborhood of 200 pounds, slapped Mrs. Shadrick, who is a rather small young woman. Shadrick perceived the action and thrust the big blonde aside. Then the burly stage manager rushed in and knocked the little actor down.

After the show Shadrick went to Frank Nason, the manager of the production, and informed him that either he and his wife or Loring must go, as Loring's manner had become unbearable. Nason tried to smooth matters over, and while the two men were discussing the question Loring came rushing at Shadrick and the fight commenced.

BURIED IN ONE GRAVE.

Father and Son Victims of Train Wreck Lie Together.

Ottawa, Nov. 18.—All that remains of Baggageman James Irvine, who was killed and cremated in the ill-fated Soo train at Moore Lake, Friday morning, arrived in this city Saturday. The funeral will leave Ottawa for Carleton Place on Tuesday morning. The Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen will take charge of the burial arrangements.

Fate seems to have haunted the deceased railwayman ever since he entered the employ of the railroads. Nine years ago he lost two fingers at Carleton while coupling cars. Later he had his foot crushed at Arnprior, and he has been in three train wrecks and sustained injuries in each. His father, too, an old railway man, is minus his left hand while at work.

The remains of Prendergast, father and son, have been placed in one casket and sent to Webbwood for burial on Tuesday. All that can be found of D. A. Clark, expressman, of Montreal, is a trace of the revolver he carried in his hip pocket.

Object to Freight Schedule.

Winnipeg, Nov. 18.—The new schedule of freight rates was vigorously condemned by the local branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association at a largely attended meeting of that organization Saturday. At the conclusion of the meeting the following telegram was sent to the Board of Railway Commissioners at Ottawa:

"The Manitoba branch of the Canadian Manufacturers Association emphatically protest against the new schedule of freight rates out of Winnipeg, just published, and respectfully request that the Board of Railway Commissioners withhold its sanction to it adoption until such time as the schedule can be studied."

Four Earthquake Shocks.

Manila, Nov. 18.—Four sharp earthquake shocks were felt in Manila and surrounding provinces on the night of Nov. 16 and the morning of Nov. 17. There was no damage.

The first shock was felt at 11.25 in the evening. Gov.-Gen. Smith and party were attending a performance of the "Mikado." A panic was averted by the presence of mind of the governor-general, who rose in his box and commanded the people, who had already arisen, to sit down. The orchestra stopped playing, but the actors continued, being undisturbed, and the audience quickly calmed down.

Dismissed Jap President.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 18.—Believing that he had divulged too much of the private affairs of the Japanese Boarding Housekeepers' Union, the directors of that institution met Saturday and dismissed I. Ishikawa from the presidency. It was his admission to Commissioner King regarding immigration affairs which caused the forming of the new commission, especially to investigate these affairs.

Yarmouth Lives Apart.

London, Nov. 18.—Lord Yarmouth is back in town after a long motor tour in France.

He is staying at the Hotel Ritz, which is a comfortable place, seemingly preferring it to the little place near Evesham, where the countess remains, refusing to be seen in London until after the trial of her brother, Harry K. Thaw.

Taft at Vladivostock.

Vladivostock, Nov. 18.—Secretary of War Taft arrived here at noon yesterday on board the converted cruiser Rainbow.

STARTS MAIDEN VOYAGE.

Thousands Gather to Give Big Liner Hearty Send-Off.

Liverpool, Nov. 18.—The departure Saturday of the Cunard steamship Mauretania, on her first transatlantic voyage, inspired the mighty crowd that had assembled to a degree of enthusiasm equal to that shown when her sister ship, the Lusitania, sailed away from Liverpool on her first voyage a few months ago. The weather was cold and rain was falling, but thousands of persons turned out in the darkness to shout farewell to the latest of all the ocean greyhounds. The giant Cunarder was a remarkable spectacle, with her many tiers of electric lights glittering when she was towed into the stream at 7.30 p. m. Whistles were blown and people cheered.

Considering the season, the Mauretania carried an unusual number of passengers, of whom there were 300 in the first cabin, while the second cabin and the steerage was booked nearly to the limit, making a total of 2,000 passengers aboard.

The consignment of gold carried by the Mauretania is believed to be the largest ever transported on one vessel. It was conveyed to the steamer on six cars, which were specially guarded, and amounts to $9,500,000.

The commander of the new steamship is Capt. Pritchard, who began life as a cabin boy on a Welsh coaster. The Cunard officers say that no special attempt will be made to break the record on the first voyage; nevertheless, great things are expected. The Mauretania was built on the Tyne, and her sister ship, the Lusitania, which now holds the record, was built on the Clyde, and there is keen interest as to which of the rival builders will make the better showing.

Traveling Fast.

Queenstown, Nov. 18.—The Mauretania, on her maiden voyage to the United States, was 207 miles west of Fastnet at 10 o'clock Saturday night. As she left Queenstown at 11 o'clock yesterday morning, her position shows that she made 265 miles in 11 hours.

NOT FOR LOCAL OPTION.

Only Five Per Cent of Kingston Electors Signed Petition.

Kingston, Nov. 18.—The council has declined to submit a local option by-law in January, as a petition asking for it had only 5 per cent. of the electors, whereas 25 per cent. is required to ask for the permission to submit the question.

It has at length been decided that the formal opening of the new medical laboratory's building will take place immediately after the return of the students to the city in January.

London, Nov. 18.—Archie Blackwell, aged 10 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Blackwell, was drowned in the Thomas at the foot of Hill street yesterday morning about 11 o'clock. The boy was venturing out on the thin ice on the river, when one foot went through and the lad could not move.

A citizen telephoned for the fire brigade, which made every effort to rescue the lad, but nothing could be done. A few moments later he went under in 18 feet of water. The body was soon recovered, but efforts at resuscitation were of no avail.

Shot Rabbits With His Teeth.

Hanover, Pa., Nov. 18.—Although he has no hands, Abraham B. Meyers broke this season's record for the most successful one day's hunt in York County, when he brought home Saturday night 23 rabbits, 18 of which he had killed himself, while his companion, possessed of both arms, shot only five. Meyers holds his gun by a ring under the stock large enough to admit the stump of his left arm, while to the trigger a strap is attached, the end of which he grips in his teeth.

Crazed Professor's Deed.

Struck by M. C. R. Train.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Nov. 18.—The body of a man was found yesterday morning about 7 o'clock alongside the M. C. R. tracks near Bender avenue, with his skull crushed in and right arm cut off, having come into contact with a passing M. C. R. train while walking the track towards the Falls. He was identified as James Killam, employed on the Convent Farm, at Falls View. He was about 30 years of age and unmarried. Relatives residing at Belleville, Ont., have been notified.

Round-Up of Smugglers.

New York, Nov. 18.—With the arrest yesterday of Austin F. Montayne on a charge of smuggling the Federal authorities have commenced a campaign against a sensational smuggling conspiracy. The other arrests are expected to follow shortly, in one of which, the duty alone on the goods smuggled, is said to be $6,000. Montayne is accused of bringing in a quantity of valuable laces and dress goods from Paris, Sept. 13.

Costly Fire at Montreal.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—A fire that assumed considerable proportions broke out Saturday afternoon on the premises of Messrs. H. R. Ives & Co., manufacturers of William street.

The two top floors, where the enameling is done, were completely ruined, while the rest of the building is virtually gutted by fire and water. The damage is $50,000.

HORSE STRUCK BY A STREET CAR

A collision between a street car and a team of horses at the corner of George and Hunter streets, on Saturday afternoon, caused a great deal of excitement, but fortunately resulted in nothing serious.

Mr. J. Welsh, of Keene, was driving west on Hunter street and had turned his team north on George street, failing to notice a Jackson Park car coming north. One of the horses and just stepped upon the tracks when the car reached the point, and the animal came into contact with the fender and was knocked off his feet, fortunately, however, being brushed to one side, thus avoiding further injury. The horse was slightly cut around the front legs but otherwise was injured, and willing hands soon put him on his feet once more. The thoroughfare was crowded at the time and the accident brought a big crowd to the neighbourhood.

Music and Drama

UNCLE TOM'S CABIN

That always pleasing and ever popular play "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was the attraction at the Grand on Saturday and was greeted by two big houses. In the afternoon the audience was the largest that ever saw a matinee in the Grand and the standing room only sign was out early, the attendance consisting for the greater part of ladies and children. The production was presented by a large and able cast and was well staged, some of the scenic settings being superb. The principal roles were all in good hands, Uncle Tom, Topsy, Simon Legree and Phineas Fletcher being especially good. The company carries several blood hounds, ponies and mules, which serves to make the action decidedly realistic.

A strong orchestra is carried and their music was much appreciated.

Several good specialties were also introduced the cake walking and buck and wing dancing of the performers bringing down the house.

The company is a splendid one and deserved the big patronage which they enjoyed in Peterborough.

IN SUNDAY SCHOOL WORK FOR 17 YEARS

Presentation to Mr. Samuel Armstrong of Otonabee Township

Mr. Samuel Armstrong, of the 6th concession, Otonabee, was last week presented with a handsome clock, accompanied by an address, byt the members of the Sunday school with which he has been associated for over 17 years. The address was read by Miss Starke, and the presentation made by Mr. John Shearer, the address being as follows:

Mr. Samuel Armstrong,

Dear Friend and Fellow-Worker,—For many years you have given yourself with untiring zeal and rare self-sacrifice to the work of our Sunday school here. When we consider that in addition to your work in the school at Bethel church, in the performance of which most men would have considered their work fully done, you have not been deaf to the call here, but have, under all circumstances and at much personal inconvenience, we are sure, given freely of your valuable services to us as well; and when we realize that whatever the measure of success has attended the work of our Sunday school in this place, has been largely due to your faithfulness, energy and devotion to duty, it has appeared to us that the present occasion, marking the beginning of a new epoch in your life, is an opportune time to express our appreciation of your efforts on behalf of our school.

You will, therefore, please accept this gift, not as in any sense a remuneration for your services, but simply as a token or symbol of our teem for you personally, and appreciation of your efforts in our behalf.

It is our earnest hope and prayer that by the grace of God you, and your worthy partner in life, may long be spared to lives of happiness and usefulness in His service.

On behalf of the 6th line Sunday school.

JOHN SHEARER,
DAVID ARMSTRONG.

Otonabee, Nov. 9, 1907.

Mr. Armstrong briefly replied expressing his thanks and stating it had always been his pleasure to serve in connection with the Sunday school

DISLOCATES HIS JAWS BY YAWNING

The Peculiar Plight of a Man While Lying in Bed

St. Catharines, Nov. 18.—Neil McGill, of Bridgeburg, met with a peculiar and rather discomforting accident the other evening. He had retired for the night, and towards morning was indulging in a prolonged yawn, when his jaws became dislocated, depriving him of speech. He succeeded awakening one of the members of the household, who, upon seeing the plight he was in, immediately summoned a doctor, who arrived as soon as possible, and the jaws were reset, much to the relief of Mr. McGill.

A SPLENDID PRESCRIPTION

An eminent physician states that he has used the following prescription in his practice for a number of years and found it very successful in the treatment of kidney, liver, bladder and urinary affections, and is unsurpassed for the cure of rheumatism, driving the uric acid entirely from the system. He claims that a very few doses will relieve the most severe pains in the back, arising from disordered kidneys and impure blood, and being harmless may be given to children with safety. The prescription is, one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce of compound vimcas, and four ounces of syrup rhubarb, taken in dessertspoonful doses in water after meals and at bedtime. These inexpensive ingredients are obtainable at any reliable drug store.

AN ADDRESS ON TRENT CANAL

To-morrow evening at the regular monthly meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's church, Mr. E. S. Clarry will give an address on the history and importance of the Trent Canal. Mr. Clarry has prepared some interesting data in regard to the canal which has never yet been brought to light, so that the address will be an important one. St Paul's Quartette will sing.

On Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock there will be a special meeting of the Ladies" Auxiliary , and at 8 p.m. the prayer meeting will be held.

On Thursday afternoon at 4.15 the annual thankoffering of the Faithful Workers' Mission Band will be held when Rev. Dr. Tailing will give an address.

THE OLD AND NEW WAY

Some Important Facts Which May Prove Helpful

Thirty years ago old-fashioned cod liver oil had to be forced down a patient"s throat. Invalids couldn't take it, and children wouldn't. But the doctors prescribed it, and it had to be taken by force. Yet it cured people where enough could be taken into the system, for it has ever been the greatest of all tissue builders and general reconstructors known to medicine.

We are now anxious to have every one know that Vinol is a new form of this very old and valuable remedy, containing in a concentrated form all the medicinal elements of cod liver oil, actually taken from fresh cods' livers, but by an extractive and concentrating process it is made without oil or grease, and is as delicious to the taste as a fresh orange.

Vinol does not upset the stomach like old-fashioned cod liver oil and emulsions; its strengthening and healing properties are remarkable, and both doctors and patients are delighted with its action.

Many wonderful cures right here in Peterborough have been effected by its use, and we ask all of our customers to try Vinol on our guarantee to return money, every time it fails to make rich, red blood, increase the appetite, cure stomach troubles, give strength and renewed vitality to the aged, run-down, tired and debilitated, or cure chronic colds, hacking coughs or bronchitis. NORWOOD MINISTER AT KNOX CHURCH

Rev. Mr. McClennan Delivered Practical Address Last Night

A large congregation attended Knox Church last night and was delighted with the splendid sermon delivered by Rev. Mr. McClennan of Norwood. His address dealt with the ways of the young generation, and contained many words of advice for the young and old. He mentioned the deficiencies of the young men and women of to-day, and pointed out what they should be and how to attain that character which is most desired. Respect for parents and relatives, and assisting the old folks about the home, courtesy to the aged, to superiors, to companions; in fact, to those with whom one comes into contact, were qualities which, the speaker said, should be cultivated. Mr. McClennan was listened to with profound attention throughout.

The following despatch from Cambridge, Mass., will be of interest to Peterborough county residents who know Prof. Schofield:

The rumour current in the American press that the choice of Professor Schofield, a British subject and a Toronto graduate, as the Harvard exchange professor with the German Government this year had met with disfavour at the German Court, brought forth the following cable from the Prussian Minister of Education, which was received to-day by President Eliot. The cable reads as follows:—"Referring to the rumours current in the American press concerning the attitude of this Government toward the present exchange professor, I deem it proper to express our complete satisfaction with the choice made by your side, and our high appreciation of Professor Schofield's efficiency."

HIGH CLASS TORONTO THEATRES CONDEMNED BY REV. MR. PEARSON

PERSONAL KNOWLEDGE

Houses of amusement, such as opera houses, were strongly condemned last night by Rev. E. A. Pearson at the George Street Methodist Church. There was a large number in attendance, and special music was rendered by the choir.

Mr. Pearson, speaking on the question of amusements, took for his text, Ecclesiastes 11; 9,—"Rejoice, O young man in thy youth, and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes; but know thou that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment."

The preacher in his sermon dwelt on all kinds of amusement, from the gay scene of a city opera house to the pleasure derived inside a hotel bar. "There are some people," he gan, "that would crush out all amusement, and there are those who will pursue everything from which pleasure is derived." Between these two there is a middle class who take amusement in its proper place. There is no sin in any lawful amusement, but all extremes are absolutely wrong. One man, who has a totally aesthetic view of life, proclaims, "It is our duty to abstain from all pleasure."

Considering the Puritans who came to this country and their ancestors, because they have no recollection of Jesus laughing, they thought it was wrong to do so themselves. Let the young people have their recreation, he said, and to associate religion with gloom is a sinful representation of the case. The Church has a right to point out to her people what proper amusement is, and to show the proper path on which a young man or a young woman should tread.

The young man who works in an office or in a factory needs amusement and refreshment to help him along in his work. No man should follow for amusement the same kind of work he is employed at during the day. St. John is said to have been one day playing with a partridge, when a hunter came along and asked him why he was amusing himself. He replied that he was taking something out of his usual line, the same as the hunter who went hunting on his holidays, and worked in the vineyards as a daily occupation.

The speaker referred to an occasion some two years ago, when there was a meeting of ministers in Toronto to investigate the disgraceful matters that were causing a moral decline in that city. He was appointed to look after the theatres. He inquired from a theatrical critic on the Toronto News as to when a good play was coming to the best theatre and when a bad play was coming to the lowest theatre. A friend and himself went to both incognito, and he emphatically exclaimed, "I tell you, brethren, that more harm would arise from the play of that high class opera house than from the low class theatre. On this ground I can say that if you come within the walls of a play-house and find that the show going on is not going to elevate your morals, leave the opera house at once." The same thing applies to books, he said. If they are not going to help and enlighten, throw them away.

Next he touched upon the question of influence. Actions influence your fellow men. He remembered and condemned the statement made by a well-known Toronto lawyer, Mr. Jas. Haverson, who acts for the Licensed Victuelers' Association, at a meeting one night, when the subject of discussion was whether it would be wise to let a certain man have a liquor license. During the discussion the lawyer rose and said, "I don't care whether he swims in liquor or not; certainly give the man a license." The closing words of Mr. Pearson's sermon were to the effect that there was a time and a place for amusements, and we should ask God to guide us in anything we attempt to do.

MORE DEER HUNTERS ARE BACK

Messrs. Ed. Huff and H. Lee Got a Deer Each Last Week

Mr. H. Lees of the Canadian Machine Telephone Company, and Mr. Ed. Huff, have just returned from a few days hunting trip in Haliburton county and brought back with them two fine deer. They left the city on Tuesday last and remained at a lumber camp fourteen miles from Gooderham, where they were royally entertained by the lumbermen, and had the time of their lives. Considering the fact that they only had a couple of days shooting their record is a good one, and they are highly elated over the two deer which arrived this morning from Lakefield.

Joint Committees Meet To-morrow To Decide Which Bank Will Look After It

A joint meeting of the Finance Committee of the Board of Education, the Water Commissioners and the City Trust Commissioners, will be held at four o'clock to-morrow afternoon for the purpose of discussing the question of which of the local banks will carry the city's account for the year. The tender of the Bank of Toronto was accepted last fall and the bank has looked after the city's finances this year, but has intimated that it will not carry the account next year at the same tender, and has not sent in any new figures. The matter will, therefore, have to be talked over by the joint bodies and it is likely that they will decide at to-morrow's meeting to call for tenders.

ILLUSTRATED LECTURE AT ARMY

Capt. Hurd, Travelling Financial Special, At The Salvation Army

Captain Hurd, the travelling financial special of the Salvation Army in Canada, who had charge of the meetings at the Barracks yesterday, will give a lecture to-night at 8 o'clock, the subject being, "Catrina," the thrilling story of a drunkard and his blind daughter." It will be illustrated by fifty coloured slides, and no doubt will prove intensely interesting.

The meetings yesterday were largely attended throughout the day. In the morning the subject was "Love," in the afternoon "The Marks That Were Left," and at night "The Great Question." At the evening service the hall was crowded and five came forward to the mercy seat.

The lecture will be repeated to-morrow night at 8 o'clock for the benefit of the children.

OPPORTUNITIES FOR YOUNG MEN

Excellent Address by Mr. Wright at The Y.M.C.A. Yesterday Afternoon

Mr. H. C. Wright, the new secretary of the Y. M. C. A., Peterborough, gave his inaugural address at the men's meeting on Sunday afternoon last. There was a large attendance and the secretary's address was of such a practical character that the future success of the Y. M. C. A. work here is assured. Mr. Wright took as his subject "The Opportunities for Young Men." The prosperity of our country—the need of men of strong mind and strong purpose in educational, political and business lines—made it essential that young men should be fully equipped. There were four aids to such preparation:

1. If men will be strong, mentally and spiritually, the word of God must be their constant companion. It is man's guide and it reveals God's plan for us.

2. The Christian home. Every young man knows the value of home life, and if parents could only realize this more there would be a deeper concern to have the young man start in the right way. Young men, too, could do more to make their homes Christian and to appreciate what had been done on their behalf.

3. The greatest institution to help men is the church. It stands for all that is best in a young man's life. Many men kept aloof from the church because of inconsistent members, but that was no excuse. In business life there were many evidences of the same and yet the true man will always throw himself against abuses and inconsistencies of every kind by his own superior character. Join some church was the closing advice of the secretary.

4. The fourth aid to young men was the Y. M. C. A. To have a strong personality in a strong body was the aim and ambition of the Y. M. C. A.

In the various departments educational, physical, literary and spiritual it was the determination of those in charge to have the strongest men that could be found, but it required the co-operation of all the men to make the work a success. The men of all the churches would be benefitted by the special work that the Y. M. C. A. is designed to accomplish. There is nothing so satisfying and inspiring as a life of service, and if the men of Peterborough will realize the value of the Christian work in leading other men to a decision for what is best in life it will mean everything in the carrying out of God's will.

The meeting was made specially interesting by the presence and help of a quartette from the Salvation Army singers, who rendered "Fear Not," in a way that reached every heart.

Mr. R. E. Hawdng presided and was ably assisted by a male choir. The Sunday afternoon meetings will take on renewed life and the men of the city will doubtless rally round the secretary in his desire and purpose to make this meeting far reaching in its effects.

SENATOR COSTIGAN SAVED FROM DEATH

New Brunswick's Grand Old Man Suffered Severely, but Made a Quick Recovery.

Practically everyone in Canada has heard of Hon. John Costigan—statesman, orator, M.P., Cabinet Minister, and now Senator, from New Brunswick. For over thirty years this prominent man was a martyr to Chronic Constipation. Leading physicians of London, Paris, New York and Ottawa treated him in vain. It remained for a wonderful Canadian discovery to cure him—and in only three months too.

232 Cooper Street, Ottawa.

"I have been a dreadful sufferer from chronic constipation for over thirty years, and I have been treated by many physicians and taken many kinds of medicine, without any benefit whatever. Finally, I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives," and, after taking them for a few months, I feel I am well from this horrible complaint. 'Fruit-a-tives' is the only medicine I ever took that did me any positive good for Constipation. I can conscientiously recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' as, in my opinion, it is the finest medicine ever produced."

This is only one of the hundreds of similar cases—all successfully treated by "Fruit-a-tives." Don't suffer longer. Take 'Fruit-a-tives.' They never fail to cure.

50c a box; 6 for $2.50. If your druggist is not able to supply you, we will send "Fruit-a-tives," postpaid, on receipt of price.

THE CALEDON MEN GO FREE

Engineer Hodge and Conductor Grimes Are Acquitted.

CHEERING IN THE COURT

After Two Hours Jury Brought In a Verdict—Trainmen on the Stand—Counsel Makes Brilliant Speech For Defence—Judge's Comments Were Favorable—Eight Were For Conviction at First Vote.

Brampton, Nov. 18.—After being out two hours, the jury in the criminal assizes, which closed here Saturday night, brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Engineer George Hodge and Conductor Matthew Grimes, charged with criminal negligence, which caused the wreck on the C. P. R. at Caledon horseshoe curve on Sept. 3, when seven lives were lost.

At exactly 8.50 the jury came into the room, two hours after Justice Magee had given his charge, explaining the legal points.

There was complete silence, and Clerk Dickson asked the foreman if a verdict had been reached. The foreman rose slowly, and in a quiet voice said: "Not guilty."

There was great applause, despite the protestations of the court officials.

When order had been restored, Justice Magee said to the prisoners: "I am glad for your sake that this verdict has been reached. I trust it will be a warning to both of you through your whole lives. I release you from attendance at the court."

Conductor Grimes will go back to work. Hodge has not decided yet what he will do. Both were heartily congratulated on the result of the trial. Grimes expected no other verdict. Hodge was glad the strain was over.

Five minutes after the jury was locked up a ballot taken stood eight to four for conviction. The four jurymen who were in favor of the accused commenced in earnest to explain and argue every point. It took over an hour, when one by one the others fell into line, until the 12 were convinced that the accident was not caused through any negligence of Hodge and Grimes.

T. C. Robinette, counsel for the accused, expected the verdict, and was naturally pleased. Crown Prosecutor Davidson thought the charge of Justice Magee had largely to do with the verdict.

Conductor Grimes in a straightforward and pleasing manner answered the questions put by Justice Magee. He explained that the schedule laid out was perfectly easy to make. Any high speed would be made on the good part of the track. He was sure the brakes were applied at the proper point, and did not pay any attention to the speed. He did not know how fast the train was traveling.

To Mr. Davidson he stated that he had never seen a bulletin regarding the running of a train on the horseshoe curve. He was busy taking tickets on the way from Caledon and looking out for order boards. The witness added that he would not like to swear to any slowdown. He thought he felt the brakes applied about a quarter of a mile away.

Hodge admitted he had little experience as an engineer on a passenger train. It was his first trip down the Caledon grade as such and he had never been warned as to the speed there. A quarter of a mile from the scene of the accident he had applied the 7-lb. air pressure.

T. C. Robinette, K. C., made a strong plea for the prisoners in an address lasting an hour and ten minutes. He spoke of the defendants as two young men who keenly felt the death of the passengers, but it was not right to hold them responsible for the accident when perhaps "the system" was equally or more to blame.

He dwelt upon Hodge's inexperience with a passenger engine, which he had been ordered to take out. On the fatal grade he had applied air brake pressure sufficient for a freight train. This was a sin of omission. It was not an offence against the law. Where reasonable doubt existed on such a point, the code declared that the prisoner was entitled to the benefit.

The crown had not proved that the accused had deliberately run the train at an excessive speed. The men had been doing their duty as they saw it. If Hodge knew that a fast rate was dangerous he would also know that if an accident occurred he would likely to be the first to be killed. That he had escaped was an act of Providence.

Mr. Robinette dwelt upon the possible affect a broken brakeshoe on the engine would have at such a time, and closed with an appeal that the jury should not punish two young men for a mistake. To err was only human.

Justice Magee addressed the jury at 5.30.

"The railways," he argued, "carry thousands of lives every day and the public relied upon railway employes for protection from any danger to life and limb.

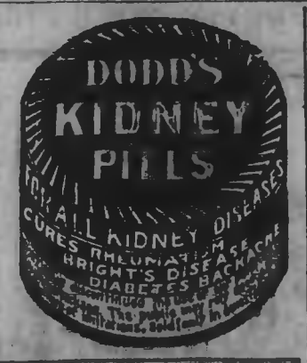
"It did not follow, however, that the first person called before a jury of his fellow-citizens should be punished, but it is clear that carelessness and negligence in the discharge of duty must be so dealt with as to give a warning to others.

"When one sent for a doctor or a veterinary he expected to be given the best service. It was in their power to give and to exercise their best caution.

"If the accused had left anything undone which might have prevented the accident," his lordship said, "then they were guilty of negligence and liable under the criminal code which covers the offence."

The history of the accident was reviewed and the evidence analyzed.

The judge commented upon the disappearance of the train bulletins at Orangeville and Toronto.



TRAITOR CONFESSES TO HIS WRONGS

Ensign Ullmo Sold Government Secrets to Germany.

SAYS SPYING IS RECOGNIZED

Forms Part of European Politics—Rear-Admiral Siegal Who Bought Documents Will Be Allowed to Remain In France—Must Revise Secret Signal Code Entirely—Also Mobilization Plans.

Paris, Nov. 18.—The treason of Ensign Ullmo, of the French navy, who was arrested at Toulon, Oct. 25, on the charge of being a spy and who, it was announced, subsequently had confessed, is now considered to be firmly established.

There is no longer much doubt that he made several trips to Germany and delivered documents to the chief of the German spy service at Brussels, which will necessitate a complete revision of the French naval and military signal codes and plans for mobilization. Nevertheless the incident is not likely to lead to diplomatic complications with Germany, as spying is a recognized institution in Europe.

The French Government officially announced yesterday that it did not demand the recall of Rear-Admiral Siegal, the German naval attache at Paris, who is suspected of having participated in Ullmo's espionage.

New York, Nov. 18.—Funeral services for the late Charles T. Barney, former president of the Knickerbocker Trust Co., who committed suicide last Thursday, were held at the family residence, 101 East 38th street, Saturday.

The services were conducted by the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst. None but the relatives and the closest friends were present. However, a dozen uniformed policemen and several detectives were required to keep in order a crowd of 300, which had gathered outside the residence.

Floral tributes were so numerous a large truck was used to carry them to the cemetery.

Crime Not Increasing.

Kingston, Nov. 18.—Dominion Parole Officer Archibald is visiting the penitentiary on official work. When asked yesterday about the population of the penitentiaries, Mr. Archibald replied: "We have no alarming or abnormal increase in the volume of crime or in the populations of our Federal institutions. There are in a few localities sporadic waves of criminality, but the disturbance is of a local character and not general.

"The Dominion as a whole is law-abiding, and you will find no nation having a more wholesome regard for good citizenship and the operation of law than in Canada to-day. Thousands are flocking in, and they are falling into line and will make useful units of this mighty country."

Mr. Archibald has visited every province in the Dominion since last June.

Poet Girl's Suicide.

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 18.—No reasonable motive has been discovered for the suicide with poison of Miss Nora May French, a beautiful young poetess. A telegram from her sister in Los Angales reveals the fact that she had suffered three surgical operations and anticipated another. It is understood that she was engaged to a young Englishman in San Francisco.

The work of the dead girl foreshadowed as much promise as that of any literary woman on the coast. Her prose was vigorous and graceful, as appears by her "Diary of a Telephone Girl," recently developed from her own experiences and published in an eastern periodical.

Fire In Baltic Shipyard.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 18.—Saturday morning fire destroyed the Baltic Shipbuilding Works. The battleship Paul, in course of construction, was seriously damage. Two gunboats were completely destroyed by the flames. An enquiry shows that the cause of the fire was accidental. The losses are covered by insurance.

PRESS WIELDS GREAT POWER

German Emperor Receives London Newspaperman.

KAISER WAS VERY CORDIAL

Hopes the Press Will Continue to Foster Friendly Relations Between Germany and England — Desires Harmony and Friendship—Should Not Foment Misunderstandings—Only Good Sense.

London, Nov. 18—Emperor William, who went to London Saturday from Windsor Castle, to receive numerous deputations at the German embassy, was specially cordial to the newspaper men, who presented him with an address, His Majesty said:

"The power you wield is great and most beneficial when exerted in the direction of promoting feelings of friendship among the nations. Your address proves that you have this task at heart. I am glad to meet you and I hope you will continue to foster the friendly relations between our two nations, which are so necessary to the peace of Europe. We are of the same race and religion, ties which should prove strong enough to keep us in harmony and friendship."

In conversation with the newspaper men the Emperor emphasized the great influence of the modern press and the facility with which international misunderstanding were fomented in the newspapers. He added that he thought what was needed was simply a little good sense on both sides.

Regarding Anglo-German relations, His Majesty deprecated attaching too much importance "to the utterances of excitable people in either country.

BOURBONS ARE MARRIED.

London, Nov. 18.—A glimpse of the manners and customs of the old French court was presented Saturday at Wood Norton, where Prince Charles of Bourbon was married to Princess Louise of France, with ceremonies, the picturesqueness and stately magnificence of which could hardly have been exceeded had the Duke of Orleans, the owner of Wood Norton and the bride's brother, been the occupant instead of a pretender to the throne of France.

About 40 members of royal families, near relatives of the bride and bridegroom, were present, each bearing a name closely associated with the history of Europe in bygone centuries, while among the 300 to 400 other guests were diplomatists representing most of the nations of the world.

The civil marriage was performed by the registrar in St. Mary's Roman Catholic church at Eversham, at 8.30 o'clock Saturday morning. Half a dozen member of royal families, including the King of Spain, and other necessary witnesses, were the only spectators at the early ceremony, though, in spite of the attempt to keep it secret, quite a crowd of people gathered in the vicinity of the little church and heartily cheered the princess, who is most popular among the country people.

The religious function was carried out at noon in an artistic temporary chapel, specially erected for the occasion, the Roman Catholic bishop of Birmingham officiating.

Parent Won His Case.

Montreal, Nov. 18.—Ex-Premier Parent Saturday won his suit against Senator Legris, securing damages from the court at Three Rivers for $1,000 and costs. He sued Senator Legris for $10,000 damages as the result of charges made against him by the Senator at St. Jerome during the bye-election campaign of 1904.

Senator Legris charged the then Premier Parent with malfeasance of various kinds, but more especially in connection with the administration of the province's timber resources. Shortly afterwards Parent was boosted out of the Premiership by Lomer Gouin, the present Premier, and he took a number of libel actions as a result of the charges made against him.

Fredericton, N. B., Nov. 18.—Thos. Nicholson, McAdam Junction, against whom were 15 Scott Act charges, was Saturday found guilty by Police Magistrate Marsh on all and fined $50 each; total $750, and costs amount to $150.

President Darroch's Annual Address Speaks of the Mix-up in The Eastern Group Of The Senior Series--Secretary Hewitt's Remarks

THE GUELPH CHARGES

Then from the disciplining of Guelph arose what were known as the "Irving charges." Mr. Norman Irving of Guelph, preferred a long list of charges, involving just about every team in sight. Stratford, Galt, Peterborough, Midland, Toronto Argonauts, Toronto Marlboros, St. George's and Lindsay, were accused, either as a whole team, or in some of its individual members. The charges were on the whole vague, largely general suspicions, and in most cases, utterly unfounded, except in minds perverted by their own acknowledged crookedness in the past. Every team hinted against was investigated. No individual was overlooked. Mr. A. H. Beaton, the solicitor of the association was engaged, not for the association, but to assist Mr. Irving in proving his charges, but with all their combined knowledge and powers of cross-examination, Mr. Irving failed to make good his charges. No doubt Mr. Irving had strong suspicions in many cases, but he had not, what he promised the association, positive evidence, which we would have gladly welcomed. The association was put to a great expense in the affair, as we felt we were in duty bound to pay expenses of men charged with an offense and not proven guilty. One or two men had in the dim and distant past received from fifty cents to a couple of dollars over and above expenses.

In senior group 1, Kingston and Midland were scheduled to play a single game in Peterborough or Toronto which should count two. Peterborough objected that it was unfair to them in that both teams were decidedly hard to beat at home, and asked that they be allowed either to play the winners of the district or of the championship. A mail vote showed the executive almost unanimously opposed to either, inasmuch as Peterborough had been a party to the schedule. They withdrew from the association.

This is from Secretary Hewitt's report —:

The senior series opened with five teams in Group I and the same number in Group II. The Kingston team celebrated their first year in the association by capturing the first group, beating Peterborough out, through winning from Midland in Toronto, in a game, which, according to agreement in schedule, counted two. As a protest against the O.H.A., for not giving them a chance against Kingston, the Peterborough team withdrew from the association, but did not turn professional. The Kingston team played good sterling hockey, were ably managed, and were such fine fellows, that no one begrudged them their honours, nor would they if they had gone further, him so much trouble last year at hockey and this year at baseball. The officers of the team will be in far better condition to manage the team this year, as last year taught them many things, it being their first venture in this line.—Kingston Whig.

Fancy the furore the road race in Montreal occasioned when 150,000 people gave up the afternoon to the witnessing of it. So many going idle and hungry and tired to see a few men run. The sporting fever has the people sure.—Kingston Whig.

Koyle and Stoddard are both spoken of as probable captains, but this will not be decided for some time yet. The team has already been entered in the Intermediate O.H.A and arrangements have been completed with Mr. S. J. Sheridan for the use of the track for practice three nights a week.

Practice will begin early in December and if all goes well Lindsay will land the championship this year for sure. The boys feel confident of making a good showing and all they ask is that citizens support them by coming to see the games during the season.—Lindsay Post.

Peterborough has heard nothing from Ottawa yet regarding the final game for the Dominion championship, but expect to receive word from the Collegians to-night, and it is altogether likely that the game will be played on Saturday, at Ottawa. A despatch from the capital to-day says that as a result of the victory on Saturday, Ottawa is considering the advisability of challenging Peterborough, the Ontario champions, but as Peterborough has already challenged through the O.R.F.U., the students will be spared that trouble, and have nothing to do but accept the challenge. The locals are dead anxious for the game, and College also seems willing, so there should be no trouble in making the arrangements.

There will be a meeting of the executive of the Karnot hockey club to-night at 7.30 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A. and every member is expected to be on hand as business of importance is to be taken up.

Mr. Wm. McIlroy is leading in the monthly bowling tournament at the Majestic Alleys for the month of November, having recently put on a score of 199, the highest made so far during the present month.

At the O.H.A. meeting on Saturday, J. L. Croasen, Cobourg's nominee for the executive was defeated. He was tied with Dr. Griffillan of Uxbridge, and the latter won out on the second ballot. Nor the Port Hope people will say nasty things about Cobourg and its inhabitants, and incidentally the car ferry.

A rugby practice is called for this evening at 7.30 o'clock on Riverside Park, and every member is requested to be present.

Rugby For Next Saturday

Crescents Willing To Meet Karnots If Weather is Favourable

While the Rugby season is practically over the Karnots and the Crescents will probably meet on the Riverside Park next Saturday to settle all doubts as to who has the claim of city championship among the junior teams. They have met previously this season but mostly in practices, and the question has not really been settled, at least not in the opinion of the former team. The Crescents are willing to meet them, if the weather is favourable, next Saturday, and the proper arrangements can be made. Both of the teams play fairly good ball and, with the existing rivalry, the contest should be a hot one. One of the Karnot players suggested thatt he losers pay for a supper for both team which would make the match the interest. If they agree to meet the game will not fail to be a warm one as the Karnots have been practising consistently of late, and arre in good condition.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

To the delight of Peterborough enthusiasts Ottawa College trimmed McGill in the Intercollegiate game in Ottawa on Saturday afternoon and thus win the championship. They will likely meet Peterborough for the Dominion honours in a sudden death game at Ottawa on Saturday and the locals have more than a little chance of winning out. They have it on the Collegians in weight on the wing line, and if an opinion can be formed from the newspaper reports are more sure and better kickers behind the line. On the other hand the students will be a little faster all round, will be in good shape and have been well trained by a number of the best football coaches in the east. With Bawlf out of the game they have no one who can kick with College and their half backs are said to be rather uncertain with their hands. College's long punts and drop kicks aided by the College fumbling and with the superior weight and aggressiveness of the Peterborough line should come pretty near to bringing the Dominion honours westward.

• • • •

The seniors had a great practice on Saturday afternoon in anticipation of the game with Ottawa this week, and played a practice match with a combination of the Karnots and Crescents, running up a big score. Nealy all the team was out and the workout was a lively one.

It is likely that a number of local people will go to Toronto on Saturday to see the walking match between Hartley and Reynolds. The contest is stirring up more interest in the city than any athletic event in years and the result will be awaited with impatience.

No O.H.A. team in Peterborough this year. Surely the Electric City without a senior, intermediate or junior hockey team would be like a production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" without Uncle Tom. Interest surely must be defunct.—Stratford Herald.

London, Eng., Nov. 13.—The Marathon course has been mapped out. It was stated yesterday at the offices of the British Olympic Association that matters had so far progressed that a rough outline of the course, the extent of which would be 25 miles 600 yards, had been agreed upon. The starting point would be Windsor, and the probabilities were that it would be in the park as this would ensure that degree of privacy which which is almost essential for a race of this kind. The competitors on striking the highway will make across towards Pinner, thence to Sudbury, skirting Wembley park, and on to Wormwood Scrubbs into Woodlane, and so into the Stadium, where they will run one lap. This will be a fine stretch of country, and the committee have very cleverly dodged suburban traffic.

Football is practically over for the season as far as Kingston is concerned, and the local followers of sport are turning their thoughts towards hockey. Everything at present points extra well for the city in this line this year. It is settled that the officers of the 14th Regiment will take charge of the senior O. H. A team, and perhaps a junior team for the same union. The last year's 14th team is practically intact, with the exception of "Jimmie" Richardson the point, and it is quite likely that he will spend the winter here. Hiscock and Vanhorn are both in the city, and with Constantine, should make an excellent defence. Richardson, Potter, Powell and Bernier are allready for the call to again don the hockey uniform when needed. Vanhorn may not be able to play this year, owing to his knee, which gave

YOUNG LADY CHARGED WITH THEFT

Said To Have Stolen Cash Box From Local Hotel—Other Cases Up This Morning

GIRL PLEADS NOT GUILTY

There was a large crowd in the police court this morning when the usual number of Saturday drunks appeared before the bench.

Edward Shields, charged with being drunk was fined two dollars and costs to be paid in ten days.

John C. Switzer, who was remanded for eight days as a vagrant, appeared again this morning. He told his honour that if he would let him go that he would leave for Elmsley to-day. His plea was granted.

Cornelius Ryan appeared again this morning on a charge of trespassing on the property of Mr. J. J. Lundy, 32 Robinson street. His Honour decided to allow him to go because Mr. Lundy had not given a month's notice. Mr. Lundy has allowed the Ryan family to occupy the house for one year without paying rent.

A second hand merchant by the name of John Doig was charged with doing business without a license. The junk dealer said he did not know a license was required. His Worship fined Doig ten dollars and costs, but would allow the fine to go if a license was procured to-day. A more serious charge was heard for receiving and buying brass castings on Sunday. To this charge he pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs or ten days in gaol.

A Theft Case

The next case was that of a young girl charged with stealing several articles from a young man named Charles V. Jones. He stated that on October 15th he went to the Noble house to board. He was afterwards called away to put in a steam service at the Delora Mines. He told Mrs. Noble to watch his things while he was away and keep his room till he returned. He wrote her telling her that he would be away for some time. He returned on November 11 and found his cash box with a policy for $1,000, forty-six dollars in cash, and two ten-dollar bills of Farmer's Bank denomination. Also a coat, a vest, and spirit level, and a pair of Slater shoes, a black-striped shirt, collar and cuffs were there. All of these things were left in the house on October 15, and when he returned they were missing.

Mr. Jones also stated that two men were sleeping in his room, and his things had been moved out of the room. Mrs. Noble was at the show that night, so one of the kitchen help showed him two trunks in the hallway, but the cash box was missing. His overcoat was found and his trunk was in the office. Mrs. Noble had taken the brushes, trinkets, etc., and placed them in her own valise for safe-keeping.

Mrs. Noble was called to the stand and told a story that did not agree with Jones' story in every particular. She swore that Jones told her that he would be away three or four days. Mr. Harrop had gone to the hospital shortly after. She put Jones' coat in her own clothes closet, as that was the only valuable thing Mr. Jones mentioned on going away. A letter was received from Jones, telling Mrs. Noble to rent his room if she could, and to take good care of his belongings. Harrop having left, Mrs. Noble put the cash box underneath the head of Harrop's bed, and left the boots in the room, and also took out an old coat and vest. Mr. Harrop sent the young lady, at whose house he was boarding, along with her sister, to the Noble house to pack his things. Mr. Harrop came on Saturday and paid for his room, and Mrs. Noble promised to send his goods up with Mr. Gibbs. Mr. Gibbs took the goods that were packed in Harrop's room up to his boarding-house.

Mr. Gibbs was next called, gave evidence which may probably change the aspect of the defence. He stated that he took Mr. Harrop's things up to his house. Later on he heard that a cash box was missing and the police were searching through the house. He went up to Auburn on a message, and thought he would call at Harrop's boarding-house to see if the box or any of the goods had been left in mistake. He was received by the young lady who was in court and was given a satchel wide open. Mr. Gibbs refused to take it because it was open. The young lady told him that that was how the expressman brought it on Saturday. Mr. Gibbs bagged the lady's parson and told her that he was the expressman, and that the valise was closed when he brought it. The lad was walking away when the baby girl inside exclaimed, "Why don't you give the man the cash box, mamma?" Upon hearing this, Gibbs went and telephoned the police. The line was busy, so he went to the station. P. C. Adams was in but did not go, so he got P. C. McGinty, and the two went up to Harrop's boarding-house and found the man sick in bed.

The case was completed about 3.45 when the young girl was acquitted of the charge.

Successful Visit.

For the past few weeks Dr. Browett, optical specialist, has been teaching opticians at Midland. A large number of persons have taken the opportunity of Dr. Browett's visit to that thriving Georgian Bay port to have their eyes examined for glasses, and thus save themselves the expense of a trip to the larger cities. While there, people from Penetanguishene and other adjoining towns have visited him, and several very difficult cases have been helped. Dr. Browett will, before visiting his next teaching appointment, be at his home office in our store until next Saturday next, the 23rd inst., and conduct examinations. ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE MISSION

Rev. Andrew Allan Coming to St.Andrew's For a Ten Days' Mission Visit

TRIBUTE TO THE SPEAKER

The Session of St. Andrew's Church met yesterday and made final arrangements for the visit of the Rev. Andrew Allan, of Glasgow, Scotland, in his ten days' mission, beginning Dec. 8th. Letters received from the Revs. Alex. Esler and A. L. Geggie, Toronto, speak in the very highest terms of Mr. Allan's very valuable work in Cookes Church and Dunn Avenue Church.

The services will be conducted every night, with song service, beginning at 7.30. Every afternoon Mr. Allan will conduct a course in Bible study, in which line of work he has been particularly successful.

The following is the language of a letter from the Rev. Dr. W. D. Moffat, M.A., of Edinburgh:

My dear Mr. Allan,—I view with reluctance the loss of your gifted ministry to your congregation in Glasgow and to our own beloved church in Scotland. Your work has been so manifestly sealed by the Spirit of God that I feel we are losing a great spiritual force in Scotland just at a time when we needed it most, in losing you.

My own comfort is that your tour round the world as a missioner may bring you back again to us a greater power than ever, and more than ever equipped for the work which, I believe, God has yet in store for you in this land, and if it please Him, in the United Free Church.

Your brethren in the ministry here, who love and esteem you both for your own and your work's sake, will follow you day by day with their prayers. They believe that nothing but the clear call of God would have separated you from their fellowship in the meantime, and believing this, they feel assured that God has great things for you to do in the ends of the earth.

As Convener of the Bridge-of-Allan Convention, I recall with thankfulness to God the memory of the valuable services you rendered us there, and as an Edinburgh minister I can never forget the blessing received by my own congregation when we were privileged occasionally to have your ministry.

May the Great Head of the One Body go before you and be with you. May He open doors wide and effectual. May He use you in undreamt-of ways for the furtherance of the Gospel and the glory of His name. And may He send you back to us to lead some great spiritual campaign in Scotland—With much affection, yours always,

W. D. MOFFAT.

The Session of St. Andrew's Church have also issued a call to the congregation to join in prayer for the Divine blessing on this mission. All the services will be open to the public and will be without charge.

Newly Married Pair Receive Clock

Meter Department of Canadian General Electric Company Present Mr. and Mrs. Mowry With Cuckoo Clock

A very pleasant surprise awaited Mr. and Mrs. Chester Mowry, on Saturday evening, at their home, 247 Cedar street, when the young couple were presented with a handsome cuckoo clock, accompanied by an address, from the members of the meter department of the Canadian General Electric Company, city. The address read as follows ;

Chester, — Unalloyed bliss does not come often within a man's life but we, your fellow employees believe you have entered within its confines by becoming a benedict. You companionship in our meter assembling department has been short, yet during that time you have endeared yourself to one and all. We cannot allow your marriage to pass without you health, wealth and prosperity and with it would ask you to accept this clock as a memento of our esteem and regard, and as it ticks, may it remind you that it represents the pulsation of love towards you of the donors.

Wishing you again together with Mrs. Mowry all the blessings that can be showered upon you.

The names of all the members of the meter department were signed to this address. Mr. and Mrs. Mowry are very thankful for the beautiful and useful present and trst that the good feeling that now exists between the meter department and themselves will always continue.

Dressed Hogs At Low Prices

Sold to be Cooked Whole as is The General Custom

Dressed hogs at $1.50 apiece. Such was the rumour that was going the rounds on Saturday on the Market and on investigation it proved to be true. On the southeast corner of the lot a farmer had his stand, and there were four dozen dressed hogs. They were about two months old and are known as roasters. The custom is to cut off the feet and head, dress them like fowl, sew them up, and roast them. In the Old Country they are largely in use, but are sold for two pounds each generally.

NOT IN LOVE WITH LANGFORD

Port Hopers Didn't Like His Insinuations —Pembroke Man to Walk Again

David Langford of Pembroke, who many Port Hopers thought was in South Africa making his fortune, is at present living in Oshawa. Langford, it will be remembered, left this place on October 17 in an effort to walk to Toronto and return in 38 hours, but it took him 39 hours and three minutes to make the journey, since that time he has been diligently practising, and on Tuesday next will endeavour to make the trip in 35 hours.

The course this time will be from Oshawa to Toronto thence to Port Hope and return to Oshawa, and he will leave at 8 o'clock in the morning, and allowing him nine hours for his trip from Port Hope to Oshawa, the home stretch, Langford would reach here at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning.

There is a little feeling here against Langford since the insinuations he made that Reynolds did not make his walk fair, but it is to be hoped that Port Hope will overlook this when Langford arrives. Let us return good for evil. It costs nothing and looks much better. — Port Hope Guide.

QUEER EXPLANATION OF AN OPENING

Contractor Says That Corner of His House Was Blown Out by Inside Pressure

HE WAS DRYING PLASTER

A local contractor offers a story that has all the bear and deep stories resigned to the shades of the background, and at the same time is vouched for as being absolutely true. On one of the new streets in the southern parts of the city he has a house in course of construction, and is all but finished A few days ago he plastered all the rooms and then decided to dry them without waiting in the usual way. Accordingly he got a large stove, which he calls a "salamander," and put it in the largest bedroom upstairs. He filled it with two nail kegs of coal and lit a good fire. He closed the door and boarded up the window and, regulating the fire to burn slowly, went away.

Towards evening of the next day he went down to the house to replenish the fire and see that everything was all right. Nothing seemed unusual, but coming around to the front of the house he noticed one corner raised slightly and the boards parted several inches. The roof was split at that corner and the appearance was as it some one had blown it up.

An Explanation

The owner looked at it for some time, trying to think of a reasonable cause for such an occurrence, but he finally gave up and decided to investigate from the inside. The plaster was cracked and an aperature much smaller than that on the outside showed that both openings were the effect of an identical cause. The corner was opposite the stove. The walls were almost dry and the fire nearly spent, and still there was no apparent cause for damage. Accordingly the contractor sat down to figure out theoretically what had happened.

He finally decided that the fire had drawn the moisture from the room so rapidly that it collected in a dense cloud. His own words were to the effect that the room became filled with steam which condensed to a certain extent and, then seeking an outlet bulged out the corner. Although people may be skeptical of this occurrence the gentleman who tells the story substantiates his statements by the fact that it cost him five dollars to repair the damage.

LANGFORD TO WALK HARTLEY

Sends Word That He Will Travel 10 or 20 Miles With The Walking Wonder

The next chapter in the running drama when the Hartley-Reynolds race is pulled off in Toronto will probably be a matched race in Peterborough between Hartley and Langford, the Renfrew man who at present is in Oshawa. Mr. McTaggart, one of the Renfrew man's supporters in Oshawa, has written Mr. J. Brooks, city, asking that a match be arranged between his man and the "walking wonder" of Peterborough. Langford wants to walk Hartley any distance from ten to twenty miles in the rink here before he goes back to England, which will be some time around December 1.

THE BIGGEST OWL AT STONY LAKE

Shot by Mr. Cameron, the Surveyor— Measured 4 Feet, 6 Inches, From Tip To Tip

Mr. A. J. Cameron, surveyor, has returned from Stony Lake, where he has been surveying for the past ten or twelve days. Mr. Cameron stayed at the Victoria House, McCracken's Landing, while at the lake, and one evening shot an owl which has most of its brethren beaten for size. He discovered the bird in the cedar grove at McCrack n's spring and found it to measure four feet six inches from tip to tip of the wings.

The bird will be mounted to adorn a shelf in the Victoria House.

BACK TO MOTHER'S RECIPES

After having tried all the well advertised patent medicines the public are turning to the old household receipts for treatment of incipient diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder and urinary organs, which if neglected too long are almost incurable. One old remedy that has come back to popular favour is the following simple prescription: Four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce compound vitamon, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre. Any druggist will fill this at a moderate cost, or you can buy the ingredients separately and mix at home. Take a dessert spoonful in a little water after meals and at bedtime. A few doses will drive out the trouble, and save you endless pain, and money.

Music and Drama

ERNIE MARKS' COMPANY

The old favourites, Ernie and Kittie K. Marks, opened a four night's engagement last night at the Grand before one of the biggest audiences that ever crowded that popular play house. Long before the curtain rose all the seats were sold, but people still continued to crowd in, many standing during the performance while several hundred were turned away. This in view of the fact that that another stock company held the boards for nearly all last week, is a startling demonstration of the reputation gained by the Marks Bros shows, and indicate that they have lost none of their hold upon the local theatre goers.

The play chosen last night, "In the Rogue's Gallery," was a strong melodrama, full of exciting situations and deep heart interest, and with a plot that was novel and always interesting. The cast supporting Mr. Marks this year is an especially strong one, the acting of the entire company being uniformly good and their efforts were appreciated by the audience it one can judge by the continuous applause and laughter which punctuated the performance. Mr. Marks, as Larry Brogan, an native of the Emerald Isle, had a part that fitted him like a glove, his comedy being very funny, while Kittie Marks, as Kitty O'Leary, gave an excellent interpretation of the role of an Irish Colleen. Joe Lyons made a big hit as the wronged and mis-judged son, and his acting throughout was very clever. Ivy Lyons was cast as Mona Travers, an adventuress and the role was entrusted to good hands, Miss Lyons doing very clever work, as did Joe N. Machan, who played the part of the villainous Herbert Crafton, alias Silky Steele.

The specialities given by the company are in keeping with the high class nature of the rest of the entertainment. The De Masters, handcuff specialists, who appeared last week with the B. Wilmot Young Company, did some new tricks in their special line, one of them in which Mr. De Master allowed himself to be locked in a safe which was bound around with rope and escaped within a few seconds completely mystifying the audience. Little Evelyn Machan sings and dances exceedingly well and Wm. Kirbo is one of the most clever ventriloquists that has visited Peterborough in a long time.

To-night the company will be seen in a strong play new to Peterborough audiences, "The Wages of Sin," and indications point to another crowded house.

"Of course we want to see the decorations," cried Katherine, with enthusiasm, and so bowing to the captain and Mrs. Kempt, the lieutenant led the young women down the deck until he came to an elevated spot out of the way of all possible promenaders, on which had been placed in a somewhat secluded position, yet commanding a splendid view of the throng, a settee with just room for two that had been taken from some one's cabin. A bluejacket stood guard over it, but at a nod from the lieutenant he disappeared.

"Hello!" cried Katherine. "Reserved seats, eh? How different from a theater chair, where you are entitled to your place by holding a colored bit of cardboard! Here a man with a cutlass stands guard. It gives one a notion of the horrors of war, doesn't it, Dorothy?"

"Don't ask me. Ask the girls."

The lieutenant laughed quite as heartily as if he had not himself hoped to occupy the position now held by the sprightly Katherine. He was cudgeling his brain to solve the problem represented by the adage, "Two is company, three is none." The girls sat together on the settee and gazed out over the brilliantly lighted, animated throng. People were still pouring up the gangways, and the decks were rapidly becoming crowded with a many colored, ever shifting galaxy of humanity. The hum of conversation almost drowned the popular selections being played by the cruiser's excellent band. Suddenly one popular selection was cut in two. The sound of the instruments ceased for a moment, then they struck up "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

"Hello!" cried Katherine. "Can your band play Sousa?"

"I should say we could," boasted the lieutenant, "and we can play his music in a way to give some hints to Mr. Sousa's own musicians."

"To beat the band, eh—Sousa's band?" rejoined Katherine, dropping into slang.

"Exactly," smiled the lieutenant. "And now, young ladies, will you excuse me for a few moments? This musical selection means that your secretary of the navy is on the waters, and I must be in my place with the rest of the officers to receive him and his staff with all ceremony. Please promise you will not leave this spot till I return. I implore you!"

"Better put the bluejacket on guard over us," laughed Katherine.

"By Jove, a very good idea!"

Dorothy saw all levity depart from his face, giving way to a look of sternness and command. Although he was engaged in a joke, the subordinate must see no sign of fooling in his countenance. He said a sharp word to a bluejacket, who nimbly sprang to the end of the settee, raised his hand in salute and stiffened himself to an automaton. Then the girls saw the tall figure of the lieutenant wending its way to the spot where the commander stood.

"I say, Dorothy, we're prisoners. I wonder what this Johnny would do if we attempted to fly. Isn't the lieutenant sumptuous?"

"He seems a very agreeable person," murmured Dorothy.

"Agreeable! Why, he's splendid! I tell you, Dorothy, I'm going to have the first dance with him. I'm the eldest. He's big enough to divide between two small girls like us, you know."

"I don't intend to dance," said Dorothy.

"Nonsense! You're not going to sit here all night with nobody to speak to. I'll ask the lieutenant to bring you a man. He'll take two or three bluejackets and capture anybody you want."

"Katherine," said Dorothy, almost as severely as if it were the elder sister who spoke, "if you say anything like that I'll go back to the house."

"You can't get back. I'll appeal to the guard. I'll have you locked up if you don't behave yourself."

"You should behave yourself. Really, Katherine, you must be careful what you say or you'll make me feel very unhappy."

Katherine caught her by the elbow and gave it an affectionate little squeeze.

"Don't be frightened, Miss Propriety, I wouldn't make you unhappy for the world. But surely you're going to dance?"

Dorothy shook her head.

"Some other time. Not tonight. There are too many people here. I shouldn't enjoy it, and—there are other reasons. This is all so new and strange to me—these brilliant men and beautiful women, the lights, the music, everything—it is as if I had stepped into another world, something I had read about or perhaps dreamed about and never expected to see."

"Why, you dear girl, I'm not going to dance either, then."

"Oh, yes, you will, Katherine; you must."

"I couldn't be so selfish as to leave you here all alone."

"It isn't selfish at all, Katherine. I shall enjoy myself completely here. I don't really wish to talk to any one, but simply to enjoy my dream, with just a little fear at the bottom of my heart that I shall suddenly wake up, rubbing my eyes, in the sewing room."

Katherine pinched her.

"Now are you awake?"

Dorothy smiled, still dreaming.

"Hello!" cried Katherine, with renewed animation. "They've got the secretary safe aboard the jugger, and they seem to be clearing the decks for action. Here is my dear lieutenant returning; tall even among tall men. Look at him. He's in a great hurry, yet so polite, and doesn't want to bump against anybody. And now, Dorothy, don't you be afraid. I shall prove a perfect model of diffidence. You will be proud of me when you learn with what timidity I pronounce prunes and prism. I think I must languish a little at him. I don't know quite how it's done, but in old English novels the girls always languished, and perhaps an Englishman expects a little languishment in his. I wonder if he comes of a noble family. If he doesn't, I don't think I'll languish very much. Still what matters the pomp of pageantry and pride of race—isn't that the way the poem runs? I love our dear little lieutenant for himself alone, and I think I will have just one dance with him at least."

Drummond had captured a camp stool somewhere, and this he placed at right angles to the settee, so that he might face the two girls and yet not interrupt their view. The sailor on guard once more faded away, and the band now struck up the music of the dance.

"Well," cried Drummond cheerfully, "I've got everything settled. I've received the secretary of the navy, our captain is to dance with his wife, and the secretary is Lady Angela's partner. There they go."

For a few minutes the young people watched the dance, then the lieutenant said:

"Ladies, I am disappointed that you have not complimented our electrical display."

"I am sure it's very nice indeed and most ingenious," declared Dorothy, speaking for the first time that evening to the officer, but Katherine, whose little foot was tapping the deck to the dance music, tossed her head and declared nonchalantly that it was all very well as a British effort at illumination but she begged the young man to remember that America was the home of electricity.

"Where would you have been if it were not for Edison?"

"I suppose," said the lieutenant cheerfully, "that we should have been where Moses was when the candle went out—in the dark."

"You might have had torches," said Dorothy. "My friend forgets she was wishing the sailors held torches on that suspended stairway up the ship's side."

"I meant electric torches, Edison torches, of course."

Katherine was displeased at the outlook. She was extremely fond of dancing, and here this complacent young man had planted himself down on a camp stool to talk of electricity.

"Miss Kempt, I am sorry that you are disappointed at our display. Your slight upon British electrical engineering leaves us unscathed, because this has been done by a foreign mechanic, whom I wish to present to you."

"Oh, indeed!" said Katherine, rather in the usual tone of her elder sister. "I don't dance with mechanics, thank you."

She emphasized the light fantastic word, but the lieutenant did not take the hint. He merely laughed again in an exasperatingly good natured way and said:

"Oh," said Katherine loftily, "Lady Angela may dance with any blacksmith that pleases her, but I don't. I'm taking it for granted that Jack Lamont is your electrical tinsmith."

"Yes, he is, and I think him by all odds the finest fellow aboard this ship. It's quite likely you have read about his sister. She is a year older than Jack, very beautiful, cultured, everything that a grande dame should be, yet she has given away her huge estate to the peasantry and works with them in the fields, living as they do and faring as they do. There was an article about her in one of the French reviews not long ago. She is called the Princess Natalia."

"The Princess Natalia!" echoed Katherine, turning her face toward the young man. "How can Princess Natalia be a sister of Jack Lamont? Did she marry some old prince and take to the fields in disgust?"

"Oh, no. Jack Lamont is a Russian. He is called Prince Ivan Lermontoff when he's at home, but we call him Jack Lamont for short. He's going to help me on the Russian business I told you of."

"What Russian business?" asked Katherine. "I don't remember your speaking of it."

Dorothy went white, edged a little way from her friend, while her widening eyes flashed a warning at the lieutenant, who, too late, remembered that this conversation on Russia had taken place during the walk from the bank. The young man coughed slightly behind his open hand, reddened and stammered:

"Oh, I thought I had told you. Didn't I mention the prince to you as we were coming here?"

"Not that I recollect," said Katherine. "Is he a real, genuine prince—a right down regular, regular, regular, royal prince?"

"I don't know about the royalty, but he's a prince in good standing in his own land, and he is also an excellent blacksmith." The lieutenant chuckled a little. "He and his sister have both been touched a good deal by Tolstoian doctrine. Jack is the most wonderful inventor, I think, that is at present on the earth, Edison notwithstanding. Why, he is just now engaged on a scheme by which he can float houses from the mountains here down to New York. Float them—pipe line them would perhaps be a better term. You know they have pipe lines to carry petroleum. Very well. Jack has a solution that dissolves stone as white sugar dissolves in tea, and he believes he can run the fluid from the quarries to where building is going on. It seems that he then puts this liquid into molds, and there you have the stone again. I don't understand the process myself, but Jack tells me it's marvelously cheap and marvelously effective. He picked up the idea from nature one time when he and I were on our vacation at Detroit."

"Detroit, Mich.?"

"The Detroit river."

"Well, that runs between Michigan and Canada."

"No, no; this is in France. I believe the real name of the river is the Tarn. There's a gorge called Detroit—the strait, you know. Wonderful place—tremendous chasm. You go down in a boat, and all the tributary rivers pour into the main stream like jets from the nozzle of a hose. They tell me this is caused by the rain percolating through the dead leaves on the surface of the ground far above, and thus the water becomes saturated with carbonic acid gas and so dissolves the limestone until the granite is reached, and the granite forms the bed of these underground rivers. It all seemed to me very wonderful, but it struck Jack on his scientific side, and he has been experimenting ever since. He says he'll be able to build a city with a hose next year."

"Where does he live?"

"On the cruiser just at present. I was instrumental in getting him signed on as John Lamont, and he passed without question. No wonder, for he has scientific degrees from all sorts of German universities, from Oxford and one or two institutions in the States. When at home he lives in St. Petersburg."

"Has he a palace there?"

Drummond laughed.

"He's got a blacksmith shop, with two rooms above, and I'm going to stop with him for a few months as soon as I get my leave. When the cruiser reaches England we pay off, and I expect to have nothing to do for six months, so Jack and I will make for St. Petersburg."

"Why do you call him Lamont? Is it taken from his real name of what-d'ye-call-it-off?"

"Lermontoff? Yes. The Czar Demetrius some time about the beginning of the seventeenth century established a Scottish guard, just as Louis XI. did in France 200 years before, and there came over from Scotland Lamonts, Carmichaels, Buchanans and others, on whom were bestowed titles and estates. Prince Ivan Lermontoff is a descendant of the original Lamont, who was an officer in the Scottish guard of Russia."

"So he is really a Scotchman?"

"That's what I tell him when he annoys me, as I am by way of being a Scotchman myself. Ah, the waltz is ended. Will you excuse me a moment while I fetch his highness?"

Dorothy inclined her head, and Katharine fairly beamed permission.

"Oh, Dorothy," she exclaimed when the lieutenant was out of hearing, "think of it—a real prince, and my ambition has never risen higher than a paltry count or some plebeian of that sort. He's mine, Dorothy; I found him first."

"I thought you had appropriated the lieutenant?"

"What are lieutenants to me? The proud daughter of a captain, retired, cannot stoop to a mere lieutenant."

"You wouldn't have to stoop far, Kate, with so tall a man as Mr. Drummond."

"You are beginning to take notice, aren't you, Dot? But I bestow the lieutenant freely upon you, because I'm going to dance with the prince, even if I have to ask him myself.

"She'll toddle away, as all aver,
With the lord high executioner.

the color of a brand new twenty dollar gold piece. See that broad ribbon diagonally across him. I wonder what it means? And gaze at those scintillating orders on his breast. Good gracious me, isn't he splendid?"

"Yes, for a blacksmith. I wonder if he beat those stars out on his anvil. He isn't nearly so tall as Lieutenant Drummond."

"Dorothy, I'll not allow you to disparage my prince. How can you be so disagreeable? I thought from the very first that Lieutenant Drummond was too tall. If the prince expects me to call him 'your highness,' he'll be disappointed."

"You are quite right, Kate. The term would suit the lieutenant better."

"Dorothy, I believe you're jealous."

"Oh, no; I'm not!" said Dorothy, shaking her head and laughing, and

"What Russian business?" asked Katherine

then, "Hush!" she added as Katherine was about to speak again.

The next moment the young men stood before them, and, introductions being soberly performed, the prince lost no time in begging Katherine to favor him with a dance, to which request the young woman was graciously pleased to accede without, however, exhibiting too much haste about her acceptance, and so they walked off together.

CHAPTER IV.

"SOME one has taken the camp stool," said Lieutenant Drummond. "May I sit here?" And the young woman was good enough to give the desired permission.

When he had seated himself he glanced around, then impulsively held out his hand.

"Miss Amhurst," he said, "how are you?"

"Very well, thank you," replied the girl with a smile, and after half a moment's hesitation she placed her hand in his.

"Of course you dance, Miss Amhurst?"

"Yes, but not tonight. I am here merely as a looker on in Vienna. You must not allow politeness to keep you away from the floor, or perhaps I should say deck. I don't mind being alone in the least."

"Now, Miss Amhurst, that is not a

DOES THIS INTEREST YOU?

A prominent physician, famous for his success in the treatment of kidney and bladder diseases, attributes a great deal of his success to the following simple vegetable prescription:—

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;

One ounce Compound Saltrates;

Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;

Mix, shake well, and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.

Your druggist can supply the ingredients, and the mixture can be prepared at home at very little expense.

This, the doctor says, acts directly on the kidneys, assisting them to filter the poisons from the blood and expel same in the urine, at the same time restoring the kidneys to healthy, normal action.

We feel that a great many readers will be pleased to learn of this simple prescription, and knowing the ability of the physician whose formula it is, we do not hesitate to recommend it to any sufferer.

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry you correspondent. Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read. And don't fill out legal papers or card records—or make out accounts or by all means in your own handwriting. Own hand writing. It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card items—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and space any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer. For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 30% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 30% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

It is easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "manifolding"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert- to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

hint, is it? Tell me that I have not already tired you of my company."

"Oh, no, but I do not wish you to feel that simply because we met casually the other day you are compelled to waste your evening sitting out."

"Indeed, Miss Amhurst, although I should very much like to have the pleasure of dancing with you, there is no one else here that I should care to ask. I have quailed under the eagle eye of my captain once or twice this evening, and I have been rather endeavoring to keep out of his sight. I fear he has found something new about me of which to disapprove, so I have quite determined not to dance, unless you would consent to dance with me, in which case I am quite ready to brave his reproachful glances."

"Have you done anything wrong lately?"

"Heaven only knows! I try not to be purposely wicked and, indeed, have put forth extra efforts to be extra good, but it seems all of no avail. I endeavor to go about the ship with a subdued, humble, unobtrusive air, but this is rather difficult for a person of my size. I don't think a man can droop successfully unless he's under six feet in height."

Dorothy laughed with quiet content. She was surprised to find herself so much at her ease with him and so mildly happy. They shared a secret together, and that of itself was an intangible bond linking him with her, who had no ties with any one else. She liked him, had liked him from the first, and his unconcealed delight in her company was gratifying to a girl who heretofore had found none to offer her the gentle courtesies of life.

"Ah, that is—that is," he stammered in apparent confusion, then blurted out, "because you—because I am sitting here. Although I have met you but once before, it seems somehow as if I had known you always, and my slight anxiety that I told you of fades away in your presence. I hope you don't think I am forward in saying this, but really tonight when I saw you at the head of the gangway I could scarcely refrain from going directly to you and greeting you. I am afraid I made rather a hash of it with Captain Kempt. He is too much of a gentleman to have shown any surprise at my somewhat boisterous accosting of him, and you know I didn't remember him at all, but I saw that you were under his care and chanced it. Luckily it seems to have been Captain Kempt after all, but I fear I surprised him, taking him by storm, as it were."

"I thought you did it very nicely," said Dorothy, "and, indeed, until this moment I hadn't the least suspicion that you didn't recognise him. He is a dear old gentleman, and I'm very fond of him."

"I say," said the lieutenant, lowering his voice, "I nearly came a cropper when I spoke of that Russian affair before your friend. I was thinking of—of—well, I wasn't thinking of Miss Kempt"—

"Oh, she never noticed anything," said Dorothy hurriedly. "You got out of that, too, very well. I thought of telling her I had met you before while she and I were in New York together, but the opportunity never seemed—well, I couldn't quite explain and, indeed, didn't wish to explain my own inexplicable conduct at the bank and so trusted to chance. If you had greeted me first tonight, I suppose"—she smiled and looked up at him—"I suppose I should have brazened it out somehow."

"Have you been in New York?"

"Yes; we were there nearly a week."

"Ah, that accounts for it!"

"Accounts for what?"

"I have walked up and down every street, lane and alley in Bar Harbor, hoping to catch a glimpse of you. I have haunted the town, and all the time you were away."

"No wonder the captain frowns at you. Have you been neglecting your duty?"

"Well, I have been stretching my shore leave just a little bit. I wanted to apologize for talking so much about myself as we walked from the bank."

"It was very interesting, and, if you remember, we walked farther than I had intended."

"Were your friends waiting for you or had they gone?"

"They were waiting for me."

"I hope they weren't cross."

"Oh, no! I told them I had been detained. It happened not to be necessary to enter into details, so I was saved the task of explanation, and, besides, we had other interesting things to discuss. This function on the cruiser has loomed so large as a topic of conversation that there has been little need of any other subject to talk about for several days past."

"I suppose you must have attended many grander occasions than this. Although we have endeavored to make a display and although we possess a reasonably efficient band, still a cruiser is not exactly designed for the use to which it is being put tonight. We have many disadvantages to overcome which are not met with in the sumptuous dwellings of New York and Bar Harbor."

The girl's eyes were on the deck for some moments before she replied, then she looked across at the dancers and finally said:

"I think the ball on the Consternation quite equals anything I have ever attended."

"It is nice of you to say that. Praise from—I won't name Sir Hubert Stanley, but rather Lady Hubert Stanley—is praise indeed. And now, Miss Amhurst, since I have confessed my fruitless wanderings through Bar Harbor, may I not have the pleasure of calling upon you tomorrow or next day?"

Her eyes were dreamily watching the dancers.

"I suppose," she said slowly, with the flicker of a smile curving those enticing lips, "that since you were so very friendly with Captain Kempt tonight he may expect you to smoke a cigar with him, and it will possibly happen that Katherine and I, who are very fond of the captain, may chance to come in while you are there."

"Katherine? Ah, Katherine is the name of the young lady who was with you here—Miss Kempt?"

"Yes."

"You are stopping with the Kempts, then?"

"Yes."

"I wonder if they'd think I was taking a liberty if I brought Jack Lamont with me?"

"The prince?" laughed Dorothy. "Is he a real prince?"

"Oh, yes, there's no doubt about that. I shouldn't have taken the liberty of introducing him to you as Prince Lermontoff if he were not, as we say in Scotland, a real Mackay—the genuine article. Well, then, the prince and I will pay our respects to Captain Kampt tomorrow afternoon."

"Did you say the prince is going with you to Russia?"

"Oh, yes. As I told you, I intend to live very quietly in St. Petersburg, and the prince has his shop and a pair of rooms above it in a working quarter of the city. I shall occupy one of the rooms and he the other. The prince is an excellent cook, so we shan't starve, even if we engage no servant."

"Has the prince given his estates away also?"

"He hasn't given them away exactly, but he is a very indulgent landlord, and he spends so much money on his experiments and travel that, although he has a formidable income, he is very frequently quite short of money. Did you like him?"

"Yes. Of course I saw him for a moment only. I wonder why they haven't returned. There's been several dances since they left."

"Perhaps," said the lieutenant, with a slight return of his stammering, "your friend may be as fond of dancing as Jack is."

"You are still determined to go to Russia?"

"Quite. There is absolutely no danger. I may not accomplish anything, but I'll have a try at it. The prince has a good deal of influence in St. Petersburg, which he will use quietly on my behalf, so that I may see the important people. I shall be glad when the captain ceases frowning"—

Drummond was interrupted by a fellow officer, who raised his cap and begged a word with him.

"I think, Drummond, the captain wanted to see you."

"Oh, did he say that?"

"No, but I know he has left a note for you in your cabin. Shall I go and fetch it?"

"I wish you would, Chesham, if you don't mind and it isn't too much trouble."

"No trouble at all. Delighted. I'm

"I am ordered home."

suze," said Chesham, again raising his cap and going off.

"Now, I wonder what I have forgotten to do."

Drummond heaved a sigh proportionate to himself.

"Under the present condition of things a bit of neglect that would go unnoticed with another man is a sign of unrepentant villainy in me. Any other lieutenant may steal a horse, while I may not look over a hedge. You see how necessary it is for me to go to Russia and get this thing smoothed over."

"I think perhaps you are too sensitive and notice slights where nothing of the kind is meant," said the girl.

Chesham returned and handed Drummond a letter.

"Will you excuse me a moment?" he said, and as she looked at him he flattered himself that he noticed a trace of anxiety in her eyes. He tore open the missive.

"By Jove!" he cried.

"What is it?" she could not prevent herself from saying, leaning forward.

"I am ordered home. The admiralty commands me to take the first steamer for England."

"Is that serious?"

He laughed with well feigned hilarity.

"Oh, no, not serious; it's just their way of doing things. They might easily have allowed me to come home in my own ship. My only fear is I shall have to take the train for New York early tomorrow morning. But," he said, holding out his hands, "it is not serious if you allow me to write to you and if you will permit me to hope that I may receive an answer."

She placed her hand in his, this time without hesitation.

"You may write," she said, "and I will reply. I trust it is not serious."

CHAPTER V.

IN midafternoon of the day following the entertainment on board the Consternation our two girls were seated opposite one another under the rafters of the sewing room in the listless, desultory manner of those who have not gone home till morning, till daylight did appear. The dominant note of a summer cottage is the rocking chair, and there were two in the sewing room, where Katherine and Dorothy swayed gently back and forth as they talked. They sat close to the low, broad window which presented so beautiful a picture of the blue bay and the white shipping. The huge Consternation lay moored with her broadside toward the town, all sign of festivity already removed from hull and rigging, and to the scarcely slumber satisfied eyes of the girls something of the sadness of departure seemed to hang as a haze around the great ship. The girls were not discussing the past, but rather anticipating the future, forecasting it, with long, silent pauses intervening.

"So you will not stay with us? You are determined to turn your wealthy back on the poor Kempt family?" Katherine was saying.

"But I shall return to the Kempt family now and then, if they will let me. I must get away for a time and think. My life has suddenly become all topsy turvy, and I need to get my bearings, as does a ship that has been through a storm and lost her reckoning."

"'She dunno where she are,' as the song says."

"Exactly. That is the state of things."

"I think it's too bad, Dorothy, that you did not allow us to make public announcement of your good fortune. Just imagine what an ovation you would have had on board the cruiser last night if it had been known that the richest woman in that assemblage was a pretty, shy little creature sitting all by herself, and never indulging in even one dance."

"I shouldn't in the least care for that sort of ovation, Kate, and if every one present were as well pleased with the festivities as I, they must all have enjoyed themselves immensely. I believe my friend Kate did my share of the dancing as well as her own."

"'She danced, and she danced, and she danced them a' din.' I think those are the words of the Scottish song that the prince quoted. He seems up in Scottish poetry and does not even resent being called a Scotchman. This energetic person of the song seems to have danced them all to a standstill, as I understood him, for he informs me 'a' means 'all' and 'din' means 'done,' but I told him I'd rather learn Russian than Scotch; it was so much easier, and his highness was good enough to laugh at that. Didn't the lieutenant ask you to dance at all?"

"Oh, yes, he did."

"And you refused?"

"I refused."

"I didn't think he had sense enough to ask a girl to dance."

"You are ungrateful, Katherine. Remember he introduced you to the prince."

"Yes, that's so. I had forgotten. I shall never say anything against him again."

"You like the prince, then?"

"Of all the crowned heads, emperors, kings, sultans, monarchs of every description, dukes, counts, earls, marquises, whom I have met and who have pestered my life asking me to share their royal perquisites I think I may say quite truthfully that I like this Jack Lamont better than any one of them."

"Surely Prince Jack has not offered you his principality already?"

"No, not yet, but with an eye to the future I have persuaded him to give up Tolstoi and read Mark Twain, who is not only equally humorous but much more sensible than the Russian writer. Jack must not be allowed to give away his estates to the peasants as his silly sister has done. I may need them later on."

"Oh, you've got that far, have you."

"I have got that far. He hasn't. He doesn't know anything about it, but I'll wake him up when the right time comes. There are many elements of sanity about him. He told me that he intended to give up his estates, but in the first place he had been too busy and in the second he needed the money. His good sense, however, requires refining, so that he may get rid of the dross. I don't blame him; I blame Tolstoi. For instance, when I asked him if he had patented his liquid city invention he said he did not wish to make a profit from his discovery, but intended it for the good of humanity at large. Imagine such an idiotic idea as that!"

"Oh, of course, but the plan is not practicable. If he allows such an invention to slip through his fingers, the Standard Oil people will likely get hold of it, form a monopoly, and then where would humanity at large be? I tell him the right way is to patent it, make all the money he can and use the cash for benefiting humanity under the direction of some charitable person like myself."

"Did you suggest that to him?"

"I did not intimate who the sensible person was, but I elucidated the principle of the thing."

"Yes. And what did he say?"

"Many things, Dorothy, many things. At one time he became confidential about his possessions in foreign lands. It seems he owns several castles, and when he visits any of them he cannot prevent the moujiks, if that is the proper term for the peasantry over there, from prostrating themselves, and, the ground on he plants by, beating their foreheads against the earth and chanting in choice Russian the phrase: 'Defer, defer. Here comes the lord high executioner,' or words to that effect. I told him I didn't see why he should interfere with so picturesque a custom, and he said if I visited one of his castles that these estimable people at a word from him would form a corduroy road in the mud with their bodies, so that I might step dry shod from the carriage to the castle doors, and I stipulated that he should at least spread a bit of stair carpet over the poor wretches before I made my progress across his front yard."

"Well, you did become confidential if you discussed a visit to Russia."

"Yes, didn't we? I suppose you don't approve of my forward conduct?"

"I am sure you acted with the utmost prudence, Kate."

"I didn't lose any time, though, did I?"

"I don't know how much time is required to attain the point of friendship you reached. I am inexperienced. It is true I have read of love at first sight, and I am merely waiting to be told whether or not this is an instance of it."

"Oh, you are very difficult, aren't you, sitting there so beautifully?"

"I may seem timid or bashful, but it's merely thoughtfulness."

Stanfield's Underwear

(Chapter 1)

Spinning the Yarn

The Stanfield mills are monuments to the value of good machinery. The wonderful spinning machines do an incredible amount of work, and do it better than even the best spinning wheels can do.

As the Maritime farmers send their best wool to the Stanfield mills, it is washed—carefully sorted—and shrunk. It then goes to the combing machines, which comb out all short lengths, weak strands, and leave only the toughest, springiest wool.

This goes to the Spinning Machines, where 18 machines do the work of 16,546 women with spinning wheels.

It is by using such improvements that Stanfield's Unshrinkable Underwear can be so good and yet cost so little.

The pure Nova Scotia wool—the best in the world for Underwear—insures warmth, comfort and wear. The Stanfield process of taking the shrink out of the wool, before the garments are woven, makes absolutely unshrinkable underwear.

The Stanfield way of combing, knitting, cutting and sewing (which will be described later) insures the completed garments being satisfactory in every way.

Stanfield's Underwear is made right here in Canada. There is no duty to pay on it. It is made by Canadians, who know what Canadians need in the way of protection for Canadian winters.

It is made in all sizes for men and women—from 22 to 70 inches.

LORD BRAMPTON DEAD.

Lord Brampton, who has recently passed away at an advanced age, was elevated to the peerage in 1899 and knighted in 1876, as Sir Henry Hawkins, one of the Justices of the Queen's Bench of the High Court of Judicature, was known as "the hanging judge." He was born in Hertfordshire, Sept. 14, 1817, was educated in Bedford, admitted to the bar in 1843 and made a Queen's Counsel in 1858. In 1875 he was appointed judge of the Queen's Bench division, being subsequently transferred by Sign Manual to the Exchequer division.

He was associated with the late Chief Justice Coleridge in the first Tichborne trial, when he particularly distinguished himself by his exhaustive cross-examination. Later, when the claimant was prosecuted for perjury, Mr. Hawkins, Q. C., led for the crown, and the skill he displayed in this trial, one of the most remarkable in the annals of the English jurisprudence, greatly increased his reputation as an advocate.

LORD BRAMPTON.

He acted for the Royal Commissioners in the purchase of the site for the present Royal Courts of Justice in the Strand, London, and for many years was standing counsel for the Jockey Club, of which he was a member. Many years ago, with Mr. Edwin James, he defended Simon Bernard, who was tried as an accessory to the conspiracy against the life of Emperor Louis Napoleon.

His rapid rise was due to his extraordinary ability as a cross-examiner; many a member of Parliament has owed his seat to Mr. Hawkins, who earned many a thousand-pound fee in election petition cases, in the years 1865-1870. In the famous convent case Saurin v. Starr he was for the defendant Lady Superior; it was the only great case he lost.

Though severe in his judgments, they have rarely been impugned, for he was as conscientious and just as a judge as he was social and genial as a man.

DECREASE IN CRIME.

In Prisons of England and Wales, a Big Decrease in Numbers is Noted.

The Commissioners of Prisons, in their annual report just issued, are able to point to a gratifying decrease of serious crime in England and Wales: Only 199,283 persons were received in the local prisons last year, as compared with 217,326 in the year before, a decrease of 18,043. There has been a considerable decline in the convictions for drunkenness and for larceny, but the most satisfactory feature of the report is the evidence it gives of the decrease of criminality among the young. Only 724 children between the ages of 12 and 16 were sent to prison, as compared with 1,039 in the previous year; and there is an astonishing decrease in the numbers of lads over 16 who fall into evil courses. The success of the Borstal system for the treatment of such offenders is conspicuously proved, and the report contains the suggestion that such treatment should be extended in a special penal reformatory to all wrong-doers under the age of 23. In this way youths may be saved from lifelong crime, and the advantages of the plan are so obvious that it is bound to be brought into operation before long.

MADE WEIRD BARGAIN

Faust Story In Real Life — Made Contract With Jew—Then His Bad Luck Begins—Goes Insane From Remorse — Buys Back Deed For $100 — Regains His Reason and Is Discharged Cured.

A remarkable case, in which the effects of mediaeval superstition and suggestion are curiously mingled, has come under the notice of the doctors of the Rudolf's Hospital, in Vienna.

A Hungarian tradesman named Weiss was recently admitted to the hospital suffering from an illusion which caused him continually to lament the loss of his salvation. It appears that some weeks before Weiss was sitting with friends in a coffee house in Pressburg, when the conversation turned on religion and a future life.

Weiss declared that there was no such thing as a future life or salvation, and added: "I would sell my chance of salvation for $2.50."

A Jew named Krauss accepted the offer on condition that the transaction was put in writing. A regular deed of sale conveying Weiss' salvation in the next world to Krauss was thereupon drawn up, executed by Weiss and duly witnessed. Krauss took the deed, and handed over the $2.50 to Weiss, who boasted that it had been easily earned.

A fortnight later Weiss lost his wife, who was killed in a carriage accident. He regarded this accident as a sign of the divine anger with his impious bargain, and the idea so preyed on his mind that his reason gave way, and he was taken to the hospital.

Prof. Obermayer, who had charge of the case, on hearing this story from the man's relatives, decided to try the effects of counter-suggestion, and advised Weiss' relatives to recover the deed of sale.

Krauss, however, declared that since he had bought the other man's salvation, his own business had prospered exceedingly, and he refused to give it up under $200. Weiss was unable to pay this, but finally the chief rabbi of Pressburg, to whom the matter had been reported, induced Krauss to hand the deed back to the sick man on receipt of $100.

The effect was most marked. Weiss, reassured as to the fate of his soul, immediately improved. A new deed was drawn up, in which Krauss solemnly reconveyed the other man's salvation to him. This was witnessed by two doctors, and Weiss has now been discharged cured.

TRY TO BEAT LUSITANIA.

Germans Place Order in Ireland For Monster Ocean Greyhound.

The new transatlantic liner to be built by Harland & Wolff, of Belfast, Ireland, for the Hamburg-American Steamship Company as a rival to the Lusitania, is to be called the Europa.

It is probable that the Europa will be the last great German liner constructed in a British yard. The large German shipbuilding companies are extending their yards as rapidly as possible, in order to be able to accept contracts for vessels of the largest size.

The Europa will not be completed for two years. She is to be 700 feet long, 88 feet beam, and of 48,000 tons. She will be fitted with turbines and reciprocating engines.

Her cabins and saloons will be fitted in the most luxurious manner, and include the latest improvements. Every effort will be made by the Hamburg-American Company to recover the" blue ribbon" of the Atlantic.

The contract for a sister ship to the Europa will ultimately be given to the Vulcan Shipbuilding Company, which is constructing gigantic shipbuilding yards.

The Lusitania has a length over all of 785 feet, a breadth of 88 feet and is of 32,500 tons. She is propelled by Parsons turbine engines.

MOST TALKED-OF CHILD.

Princess Monica Pia of Saxony Attracts Great Attention.

If all the world's a stage, a villa at Fiesole, the charming resort, a couple of miles from Florence, is at the present time a very fascinating corner of it for the public. The villa is, of course, that at which the ex-Crown Princess of Saxony is now staying with her husband, Signor Toselli. No need to recall the fact that the ex-Crown Princess eloped with M. Giron, the tutor to her children, from her husband's palace, then Crown Prince of Saxony. Now the prince of those days is King, and Signora Toselli would be the Queen of a flourishing kingdom had she minded her duties as the first of Saxon housewives.

The little Princess Monica Pia was born after her mother's elopement with Giron. The child was left to the mother, and an allowance of $10,000 a year settled on her while she complied with certain conditions. These conditions have been broken by her marriage with Signor Toselli, and now the King of Saxony wants his little girl. The battle for the child, who is at Fiesole with the honeymooning couple, is concentrating widespread attention on the newly wedded pair. It is stated that German police officers are at Fiesole trying to secure possession of the child. But this is probably untrue, as other steps are being taken of a less melodramatic nature in the shape of negotiations conducted, says Reuter, by Count Mattarelli.

Princess Monica, although a child of melancholy temperament, is to be seen playing with "bourgeois" children in the spacious garden grounds of the Hotel Aurora, where every foreign visitor to Fiesole is wont to tarry to enjoy the glorious panorama.

Squaw Buried In London.

In 1835 a party of the Michigan tribe arrived in London, including the chief Muk Conee (the Little Boar). Their object was to negotiate for the sale of certain lands, and it was arranged that they should be presented to King William. But on the appointed day "Diving Mouse," the squaw of "Little Boar," died in the party's lodgings in Waterloo Road—a pitiful ending enough for a daughter of the wild. When sickness came upon her she refused all medicine, saying that if the Great Spirit intended her to die it would make him angry to fight against his will. She submitted to baptism only for the singularly feminine reason that there would be more ceremony at her funeral. "Little Boar" took a melancholy pleasure in making sumptuous preparations for the funeral. An elaborate shroud was laid over the Indian garments; flowers and laurel leaves were placed upon her breast; her dead face was painted red, and over all was flung a magnificent Indian shawl. Thus invested "Diving Mouse" was carried to St. John's churchyard in the Waterloo road, and the chief, with infinite dignity, addressed the persons assembled, concluding with these words: "She who was all my earthly happiness is now under the earth; but the Great Spirit has placed her there, and my bosom is calm. I am not, I never was, a man of tears; but her loss has made me shed many."

A Lucknow Veteran.

In the little village of Balderton, near Newark, there resides a veteran who, exactly fifty years ago gave the news of the approaching relief of Lucknow to Havelock and Outram—a living link with two names illustrious and world-famed, and imperishably enshrined in the annals of heroism and achievements. His name is Sergt. Patrick Dunlop, and he was born at Newry, County Down, in 1828. At the time of the Indian Mutiny he was in the 5th Northumberland Fusiliers, and from his watch tower on the palace at Lucknow, on Oct. 17, 1857, he heard the distant booming of cannon, which he immediately reported. The following day Lucknow was finally relieved. Though 79, Sergt. Dunlop still has good health. Long may he enjoy it!

MOB STOP IRISH HUNT

FIVE HUNDRED PEOPLE ARMED WITH STICKS ATTEND MEET.

Prevented Hounds From Being Unchained — Pitchforks, Revolvers and Clubs Were Freely Used—Band and Whistle Brigade Created Horrid Din—Police Swept Aside by the Crowd—Members Dispersed.

Matters have come to a crisis in connection with the dispute between the Ormond Hunt, Kings County, and the local branch of the United Irish League. The latter is opposed to the grazing system and has been agitating for breaking up the grazing lands and for their distribution to enlarge small holdings.

The graziers are the chief obstacle. Certain graziers are members of the Ormond hunt, and the league some time ago informed the hunt committee that if they were not allowed to follow the hounds the hunt would be stopped. Negotiations ensued and it was then announced that the Messrs. Kenny, who are chiefly aimed at agreed not to hunt during the season.

This, however, was not considered sufficient, and the United Irish League circulated a notice broadcast calling on the people to assemble their hundreds at the opening of the meet at the master's, Mr. Craddock's residence, and teach the insolent men a lesson by stopping the hunt.

More than 500 people, all armed with heavy sticks, assembled, and, headed by a band, marched to Mr. Craddock's residence.

As the crowd drew near Mr. Craddock's place they created a terrible din, the band playing, horns and tin whistles being blown and others cheering.

At the entrance to the private grounds in front of the mansion, Mr. Corbet Craddock and half a dozen police cleared the way, but were quickly swept aside and an excited throng of several hundreds broke down the ornamental shrubs and swarmed all over the place amid waving sticks, and the ringleader declared that the hunt would be stopped.

At this juncture, Mr. Michael Hogan, M.P., for North Tipperary, arrived and exerted his influence to prevent the breach of peace which seemed very imminent.

Shortly after Mr. E. F. Saunders, Mrs. Saunders and Grant Saunders rode up and were met with boohs and hisses.

The crowd declined to let them pass through, but Mr. Saunders at length got an opening and passed on. Mrs. Saunders in attempting to follow, was prevented, and a justice of the peace, who was on foot and endeavoring to make way for her was severely hustled. He had his hat knocked off and narrowly escaped a violent blow from a stick.

At length the hunt committee appointed three members to confer with a like number from the league, but the conference came to no agreement, the league demanding as a minimum the expulsion of the Messrs. Kenny from the hunt.

The master decided that in view of the threatening attitude of the crowd it was inadvisable to bring out the hounds, and those present rode off amidst rounds of cheering by the crowd.

HAD A STAB-LIKE PAIN THROUGH THE HEART.

MILBURN'S HEART AND NERVE PILLS CURED HER AND SAVED HER LIFE.

There is no one, we imagine, who acts deliberately to do injury to the heart, yet in the excitement and excesses of present-day living, the nervous system is done violence to, and the heart and nerves being so intimately bound up with one another, disorganization of the one means disease and disorder of the other.

When you find your heart the least bit out of rhyme, your nerves unhinged, don't wait until you are prostrated on a bed of sickness. Take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. They'll put you in such condition you'll never know you have a heart, make your brain clear and active, your nerves strong, your blood rich and pure, and your whole being thrill with a new life.

Mrs. John C. Yeomo, Little Rocher, N.B., writes: "I was troubled with a stab-like pain through my heart. I tried many remedies but they seemed to do me more harm than good. I was advised by a friend to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, and after using two boxes I was completely cured. I cannot praise them enough for the world of good they did me for I believe they saved my life."

Price 50 cents per box or 3 boxes for $1.25, at all dealers or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

TO PROTECT INDIA.

Aggressive Policy by Prominent Jap May Cause Clash.

Pekin, Nov. 19.—The speech delivered at Kobe by Count Okuma, who was at one time head of the progressive party in Japan, in which he declared that Japan would sorely disappoint the people of India as well as ignore the opportunities given by heaven if she failed to afford protection to the millions of India now being oppressed by Europe, has caused great excitement among the British newspapers published in Northern China.

In this section of the empire the Japanese expansion movement is interfering greatly with British interests and there is open warfare between Japanese and British merchants.

Since last May Englishmen have been the leaders in the anti-Japanese campaign in Pekin and Tientsin. The Times, which is the principal despatch organ in North China, gives expression to the "deep seated and smoldering wrath" of Britons in the far east and accepts Count Okuma's words as a national expression.

"They reveal," this paper declares, "the cloven hoof and the attitude of ill-mannerism toward a country, the support of which gave her her present position in the world. We hope that the revelations made by Count Okuma will open the eyes of King Edward and his countrymen as the eyes of Briton were opened long ago."

The pro-Japanese press in the south of China has recently indicated its purpose of fighting the Japanese, "Who see operations," it is declared, "now conflict with those of Britain's from the Yangtse to Manchuria." One paper expresses the conviction that agitation of the present situation probably will result in breaking the Anglo-Japanese alliance.

ASSEMBLAGE WAS UNIQUE.

Windsor, Eng., Nov. 19.—Sunday will be long remembered in Windsor as an occasion of an event probably unique in history; at Windsor Castle a luncheon was served in the state dining-room to a party consisting of three kings, five queens, and sixteen princes and princesses.

The royal guests were the King and Queen of England, the Emperor and Empress of Germany, the King and Queen of Spain, the Queen of Portugal and the Queen of Norway.

Several interesting photographs of the group of monarchs and then of the entire party were taken.

London Power Bylaw.

London, Nov. 19.—The Niagara power bylaw was given its first reading at the City Council last night, and was referred to the special committee of the council, who were given power to instruct the engineer to prepare a statement of the estimated cost of distribution and to prepare plans showing the area proposed to be covered.

These plans and estimates will be considered at a special meeting of the council. The bylaw providing for an expenditure of $383,500 for waterworks extension was given its second reading after strong opposition. It was decided to apply to the Legislature for power to grant financial aid to the Western University.

Played Practical Joke on Reinhard.

New York, Nov. 19.—Ringlief Reinhard, 45 years old, of Warren street, Newark, is in the Newark City Hospital with a badly injured head. The physicians believe his skull is fractured and that he may die.

Practical jokers told Reinhard the shoes on the hind feet of a mule were different, and when nobody was watching he went into the Essex stables at No. 64 Golden street to investigate. The mule didn't take kindly to the investigation and kicked Reinhard squarely in the head. He was still unconscious when he reached the hospital.

Logging Industry at Standstill.

Vancouver, Nov. 19.—Many of the largest logging camps on the coast closed during last week and it is expected within a short time the industry will be practically at a standstill for the reason that there is now no demand for logs of any description. Some mills operating there own camps have laid off part of their crews in view of approaching close down of the mills for a month at the very least.

To Improve Vancouver Narrows.

Vancouver, Nov. 19.—The Federal Government has been petitioned by the Vancouver Liberal Association to send an engineer to this city to report upon the proposal to deepen and widen the first narrow's entrance to Vancouver harbor. An expert has already given the opinion that to remove a couple of bars and put the narrows in first-class condition will cost about a million and a half dollars.

The All-Red Route.

London, Nov. 19.—(C. A. P.)—The Mail says that preliminary steps have been taken toward the formation of a corporation of the establishment of an Atlantic section of the all-red route. The corporation's character gives assurance that with the cordial co-operation of the two Governments the idea will in due course become an accomplished fact.

In addition to 15,000 letters there were 150 pieces of registered mail matter.

Wife Goes to Jail.

Brockville, Nov. 19.—For attempting to take the life of her husband with a butcher knife Mrs. Joseph Male was sentenced to three months in jail.

POVERTY IN IRELAND.

Royal Commission Gives Some Reasons for Prevalent Conditions.

New York, Nov. 18.—The Herald has received the following cable despatch from London: The Government has just issued the voluminous evidence taken before the Royal Commission on the congestion in Ireland, and many are the gloomy and dismal phases of life in the Emerald Isle which can be picked out of its pages.

Rev. Thomas McAnran, a parish priest of Killinaga, County Cavan, supplies one which is typical of many. He says that as soon as the youth of the country are able to provide for themselves they fly off to America, thus leaving the aged and the young children to look after the homes, with the result that the lands are not tilled as much as they should be, the children are not sent to school, and all depend for support on the credit given by the local shopkeepers, waiting for the American dollar.

The further result is they become loaded with debt, and if the shopkeepers refuse them credit there is nothing before them but an emigrant ship to America, or the workhouse.

C. P. R. WINS APPEAL.

Privy Council Decides Toronto Must Pay For Crossings.

London, Nov. 19.—The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council has dismissed the appeal of the City of Toronto v. C. P. R., and orders that the appellants pay the costs.

The Supreme Court of Canada directed that the city and railway companies must divide equally the cost of protecting the railway crossings at Avenue road, Dufferin street and Bathurst street.

The city claimed that the order providing for such a division of the cost was not valid, and appealed to the Privy Council of England.

The decision of the Privy Council has now been handed out and confirms the decision of the Supreme Court.

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

Kansas City Man Dragged by Engine on the I. C. R.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 19.—Cornelius Van Diemen of Kansas City, who, with his brother, Benjamin, has been here since Saturday selling patent medicine, was killed by an Intercolonial train about 9.15 last night near this city. He was lying on the track when seen by the engineer of the train, then two car lengths away. He was dragged by the engine and was dead when taken out. Benjamin Van Diemen, who identified the body, said they had been drinking, and had a dispute early yesterday, and his brother had left his company. He said he had been searching for him.

Took Fit, Drank Poison.

Woodstock, Ont., Nov. 19.—Frank Hall, a farmer residing in Blenheim Township, met with an accident one day last week that is probably unprecedented in the annals of the county.

Hall bought some Paris green with which to exterminate some squirrels that were doing mischief about his house. He was engaged mixing the poison with water when he was attacked with an epileptic fit. It appears that he is subject to this terrible malady and is in the habit of taking a drink of water when it comes on if water is available. He seized the Paris green mixture, and evidently thinking it to be water, drank it. He was immediately taken with violent pains. A doctor was summoned. A stomach pump was used and after great labor he was brought around.

Killed at North Bay.

North Bay, Nov. 19.—A young man named Angus Macdonald, from Nova Scotia, aged about 22, employed by Forest City Paving Co. on the construction of the T. & N. O. Railway shops at North Bay, was struck by a shunting engine yesterday while standing on the track in the T. & N. O. Railway yard talking to a companion.

Macdonald was instantly killed, his body being cut in two. He leaves a widowed mother in Nova Scotia.

Greater Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, Pa., Nov. 19.—The action of the United States Supreme Court in declaring the Greater Pittsburg bill constitutional, was received with enthusiasm here yesterday. The consolidation gives the city an area of thirty-eight square miles and an estimated population of 550,000.

It will outrank Cleveland and Baltimore, and come close to Boston for fifth place in size.

Quebec's Finances.

Ottawa, Nov. 19.—Provincial Treasurer Weir of Quebec was in the city yesterday on departmental business. Mr. Weir says that the province was never in a better position financially. For the first four months of the fiscal year, that is for July, August, September and October, there was an increase in the surplus as compared with the same time last year of $348,000.

British Crown Enriched.

New York, Nov. 19.—Two landed estates in England, a third in Scotland and a sum in the Bank of England, which by the interest of nearly a century has grown to five million dollars, is the bounty which falls to the British crown by the death of Dr. George Sullivan Carter on Saturday in his home in Terrytown.

Feeders and Stockers.

Few feeders or stockers were on sale, and prices were unchanged. Messrs. H. & W. Murby were the main buyers, altho there were some farmers who were looking for a few well-bred feeders of good weights. Heavy feeders of good quality were reported as being worth from $3.60 to $3.65, and something choice would be worth a little more money.

Milkers and Springers.

Few milkers and springers were on sale, and more would have found a ready market, as three of the leading cow buyers were on the market. Prices ranged from $40 to $60 each.

Veal Calves.

Calves sold at $3 to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

The run of sheep and lambs was fairly large, and prices were quoted at $4 per cwt. for export sheep, and $5 to $5.35 for the best lambs, with common to inferior at $4 per cwt.

Hogs.

Gunns, Limited, quote hogs at $5.75, fed and watered, and $5.50 to $5.60, f.o.b., cars, at outside points.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 18.—(Special.)—At the Montreal Stock Yards' West End Market the receipts of live stock for the week ending Nov. 16, were 4215 cattle, 2543 sheep and lambs, 3225 hogs and 353 calves, while the supplies this morning for the local trade consisted of 2000 cattle, 2200 sheep and lambs, 1200 hogs and 250 calves.

There was little or no demand here from exporters, and trade in this direction was slow. Sales of good cattle here were made at 4¼c to 4½c; fair a. 3½c to 4c; commonu at 2½c to 3c, and inferior at 1½c to 2c per lb. A weaker feeling has developed in the market for export sheep since this day week, and prices are ½c per lb. lower, which is due to increased supplies coming forward and discouraging advices from abroad. At the above reduction demand was fairly good, and sales were made at 4c per lb. In butchers' sheep, trade was quiet, but prices ruled about steady, at 3¼c to 3½c, and culled sheep were dull of sale at 2c per lb. The demand for lambs was good, and, as the offerings were somewhat larger than usual, an active trade was done at 5½c to 6c per lb. The trade in calves was fairly brisk, and prices ruled steady, with sales of choice stock at $12 to $15; good at $8 to $10; fair at $5 to $7, and common at $3 to $4 each.

A stronger feeling has developed in the live hog situation, and prices have advanced 25c to 25c per 100 lbs. since this day week. This has been due principally to the falling off in the receipts and the increased demand from packers for supplies; but, aside from these facts, there has been no other factor in the market to warrant the higher prices, as cables from all the leading foreign markets on Canadian bacon have been anything but encouragig to exporters. A fairly active trade was doe here in hogs, and sales of selected lots were made at $6.25 to $6.50 per 100 lbs., weighed off cars.

AUSTRALIA IS COY.

Canada's Efforts For Better Trade Arrangements.

Although the Canadian Government have been endeavoring for a couple of years or more to make a preferential trade arrangement with Australia there does not appear to be any immediate prospect of success. As soon as the Deakin Government adopted its new tariff, giving a preference to Britain, the Canadian Government cabled for a reciprocity arrangement. Mr. D. H. Ross, Canada's trade representative at Melbourne, was asked to conduct the negotiations. In the Government communication to Mr. Ross it was pointed out that Canada admits free of duty several important lines of Australian products which are heavily taxed on importation into the United States. Thus greasy wool is subject to five and one-half pence; washed, eleven pence, and scoured, one shilling and four and one-half pence per pound duty on entering the United States, but all are free in the Dominion. There are other important lines in which, the communications set forth, Canadian duties are so much lower than United States that the Canadian market can alone of the two be successfully exploited. The letter adds that it is the desire of both countries to increase their trade relations, and divert, if possible, trade that is now going to alien countries. Leading lines of both Australian and Canadian goods can be exchanged to advantage by both countries, and a large and growing trade can be established. The suggested basis of the mutual understanding is that Australia should extend her United Kingdom preference tariff to Canada, except in items of the following schedule, in which there is no preference or the preference is deemed insufficient, and on which Canada asks a special rate of duty: Printing paper, news and wall paper, tinned fish, bicycles, motor cars, vehicles, leather, leather belting, timber, bags and trunks, boots and shoes, India rubber hose, furniture, chairs, agricultural implements, chaff-cutters, corn-shellers, churns, harvester parts, cream separators, wearing apparel, furs, denims, striped, cotton piece goods, cartridges, ammunition, blacking, fruits and vehicle parts. In return Canada offers to extend the entire British preferential tariff, which means, on the whole, a reduction of not less than thirty-three and one-third per cent. on the general tariff to Australian products, and is willing in addition to this to discuss special preferences on items in which Australia is specially interested; one of these items, for instance, is meats. It is understood, however, that the Australian Government declines to increase the present preferential tariff which is granted to Britain, although Sir William Lyne says that he is not unwilling to see it extended as it stands to Canada. However, neither he nor Premier Deakin has made any apparent effort to carry this out. In regard to the special items above mentioned, Sir William says that it is impossible to give a preference upon harvesters, which is one of Canada's most important items of export to Australia. The excuse he gives is that if special concessions were granted to Canada they would have to be extended to the United Kingdom. Sir William declares that the colony would never think of maintaining a higher duty on any item against the Mother Country than is imposed on the products of any other colony.

MEETING OF STUDENTS BROKEN UP

Socialists Arrested While Holding Conference at Kieff.

POLICE INVADED UNIVERSITY

With Troops Formed Cordon Around Buildings—Students Resented Interference—Became Riotous and Two Hundred Were Jailed — One Speaking, Protested Struck—One Thousand Rouble Taken.

Kieff, Nov. 19.—A cordon of police and soldiers was thrown around the Kieff University Sunday while a conference of the southern social revolutionary organization was being held in the building in the guise of a student meeting.

The meeting was broken up and every person who could not show matriculation papers was arrested.

After the departure of the policemen and the troops a mob of students broke into the university and demanded that lectures be suspended as a protest against the invasion of the university precincts by the authorities. To put an end to this disorder the buildings were surrounded by troops a second time. Two hundred students were arrested and the names of a thousand others were taken down. Cossacks occupied the streets leading to the university, and no one was allowed to pass the building.

Conservatives Get Offices.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 19.—The ticket of the Octoberist-Conservative coalition was successful in the subordinate election for officers of the Lower House of Parliament yesterday, Prince Vladimir Wolkonsky being chosen first vice-president, and Prof. Baron von Meiedorff, of the Baltic Provinces, second vice-president, receiving 253 of the 402 votes cast.

The election showed the strength of the Progressive group, the Constitutional Democratic candidate, M. Mutklakoff, receiving 133 votes on the first ballot. The Social Democrats, as before, refrained from voting.

The election of a Baltic German as a vice-president of the Lower House of the Russian Parliament is considerably commented upon. Baron von Meiedorff, who is a professor of the St. Petersburg University, is a member of the Baltic Constitutionalist party, whose aims are similar to those of the Octoberists.

The text of the address of the House to the Emperor as drafted by the Octoberist committee has been approved by the Conservatives. It declares it to be the intention of Parliament to carry out the principles of the October manifesto, considering this to be the Emperor's will, and expresses the hope that it finally will abolish anarchy and give the Government an opportunity to make progress along the path of reform, to aid in the economic development of the country, and to grant further civil liberties.

Finally, the address says that the House will first devote itself to endeavoring to bring about a rapprochement between the Emperor and the people, and hopes the House will merit the confidence of both.

The Constitutional Democrats do not object to the wording of the address, and probably it will be adopted without dissent.

SIX SAILORS ADRIFT IN OCEAN

Schooner Vinita Sank and Captain With Crew Took to Boat.

EXHAUSTED WHEN SAVED

Had Been Without Food or Water For Forty Hours—Exposed on Open Sea to Rigorous Weather—All Hands Suffered Severely—Saved Nothing But Their Clothing and Ship's Flag—Feet Frozen.

Boston, Nov. 19.—After forty hours of helpless drifting in their little yawl during the cold weather of the past few days, without food or water, Capt. Himmelman and five members of the crew of the British schooner Vinita, were brought into port Sunday by the Boston fishing schooner Mattakesett from the Middle Bank. The vessel, which was loaded with sulphur, from New York for Lunenburg, N. S., her home port, sank about 20 miles east by south of Eastern Point Thursday evening. All the members of the crew suffered severely from their exposure, and one was taken to the hospital to be treated for frozen feet. The men saved nothing except the clothes they wore and the ship's flag.

While coming over the Pollock Rip shoals last Thursday the Vinita was badly battered by a stiff gale and bad chop, and that evening she began to list to port. A hurried examination showed that her hold was filling with water, and the yawl boat was lowered, and the men tumbled into it quickly. A constant watch was kept for some fishing vessel, but through the long, cold hours of Thursday night, Friday and Saturday morning the six chilled and hungry men drifted. Then the Mattakesett's sails were made out and the frantic cries and signals of the shipwrecked men were seen.

MET DEATH WITH SMILE.

Ossining, N.Y., Nov. 19.—John Wenzel, the murderer of George Spatz, a Brooklyn saloon-keeper, went to his death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison yesterday with a smile just as he had promised his sister he would do. Bourbon Prince Dead.

Rome, Nov. 19.—Prince Charles Louis Marie de Bourbon, Infanta of Spain and Duke of Parma, died of heart disease Sunday near Parma.

Prince Charles was born in 1848. He was deprived of his succession to the throne of the Duchy of Parma in 1860, at the age of 12 years, when the Duchy was incorporated with the Kingdom of Italy. The prince was twice married, the first time to Marie Pia, Princess of Bourbon, Sicily, and the second to Maria Antonia, Infanta of Portugal. He was the father of 21 children and leave a fortune estimated at $40,000,000. The last child, a son, was born June 17, 1903.

Nothing Definite Yet.

Winnipeg, Nov. 19.—The bankers of Winnipeg have not as yet received any definite information as to the progress or result of the conference at Montreal between the representatives of the Dominion Government and of the Canadian banks regarding the talked-of $10,000,000 loan by the Government to the banks.

LONDON CASE BEFORE THE COURTS

Counsel Declares London Bribery Case Outlawed.

INDICTMENT MUST STAND

Crown Refuses to Alter It—Question of Jurisdiction Again Raised—But Objections Not Recognized—Trial For Election Conspiracy Commences at Toronto—Four of Accused Plead Not Guilty.

Toronto, Nov. 19.—The four defendants, George Reid, John O'Gorman, Daniel Wiley and W. J. Mulloy, in the London election conspiracy cases appeared before Judge Winchester, pleaded not guilty and were placed on trial.

G. Lynch-Staunton, K. C., of Hamilton, and H. L. Drayton of Toronto appeared for the crown, and associated with them were John Gould of London and Mayor J. C. Judd of London. The defence counsel were E. F. B. Johnston, K. C.; George Wilkie of Toronto and J. M. McEvoy of London.

Two witnesses were examined yesterday—W. A. Buchner of London and John Pritchett, the star ballot switcher, who operated in Brockville, South Ontario, West Huron and West Elgin. Nothing new or startling was brought out.

Before his honor decided to go on with the case, and after the defendants had elected and pleaded, Mr. Johnston proceeded to file four objections to the lengthy and complicated indictment.

"There are in all," he noted, "some twenty odd paragraphs. Each paragraph charges a distinct crime on a distinct conspiracy, and in many instances in different years. No court has the power to try a series of charges extending for a number of years, each one conspiracy an indictable offence.

"In the second plea, each of the counts—at least, so far as concerns the first five or six—contain in themselves several different crimes and offences, each one of which might be a charge of conspiracy. We contend that conspiracy should be charged with particularity, and the specific offences and dates given in order that we may have an opportunity to meet the charges."

The third objection raised by Mr. Johnston was that "the charge or charges made in this case are no longer an offence at law. The right to proceed as regards bribery and kindred offences was barred by the lapse of time. To conspire to do an offence no longer unlawful was not a conspiracy at all. The whole thing was dead, as it were, and has no longer any existence."

No conspiracy, he contended, took place at two places in regard to the same occasion. If it took place in London, then that was a complete and separate conspiracy, or if at Toronto, the same.

Mr. Johnston moved to quash the indictment. Mr. Staunton said he had no reason to change it. Judge Winchester then decided, in view that the divisional court had not allowed a change in venue, he would hear the case.

The first witness was W. A. Buchner, barrister, of London, who was returning officer during the Hyman-Gray election in June, 1905. He told of the appointment of Jerry Collins as deputy returning officer, on the recommendation of Jeffreys, a barrister.

Witness received protests on some of the appointments. J. P. Moore protested against the appointment of Percy Bradwin and Jerry Collins to the office of deputy returning officer. But witness paid no attention to Moore's demand that a change be made. Collins was objected to because he was a hotelkeeper, and Bradwin because in a previous election Mr. Moore said there was something wrong with his ballot-box.

"Sent them to the Department at Ottawa."

To Mr. Johnston witness said that as far as he knew the election was clean and honest, both on his part and on the part of his deputies.

"Did anyone make a proposition that the Conservatives here sanctioned the appointment of half of the returning officers."

"Yes. Young Mr. Meredith. At least, he asked me if he could act," said the witness.

John Pritchett was called. He had operated in spoiling ballots in South Ontario in the election of Dryden and Mr. Calder. He had gone there at the request of O'Gorman, whom he had met at the Walker House in Toronto to switch and spoil ballots. He was to be paid $100 and expenses. He had met Tom Lewis at Oshawa and Whitby, but had nothing to do with him. The story of Pritchett's work under O'Gorman's instructions at Brockville, in the Comstock-White election, was given as in the Police Court. He described to Judge Winchester his method of switching ballots.

Pritchett also told of his flight from London to the other side on instructions from O'Gorman. He received $625.

At this juncture Judge Winchester adjourned to give Mr. Staunton opportunity to look up authorities on some points of evidence.

The four defendants were allowed their liberty on sureties of $2,000 each.

Captured Alleged Bank Robbers.

Montreal, Nov. 19.—The two suspected bank robbers who were only captured after a stand-up revolver fight with four city detectives Sunday at St. Lambert, and who are now lodged in jail, the remaining four of the gang having taken to the woods and escaped for the time being at least, are from Ontario. One is John Boevin of Berlin, and the other Thos. Hudson, a Scotchman by birth, resided in Lindsay up to three years ago.

Chinamen Cross Border.

Brockville, Nov. 19.—A party of four Chinamen during the past week eluded the U. S. officers watching the Canadian and American shores between here and Prescott and making a landing succeeded in getting away without being captured. Prescott and Brockville are the headquarters of the Celestials, who are seeking to get across the line, and it is intimated that upwards of 200 are in waiting to take the chance.

Royal Visit Concluded.

London, Nov. 19.—The official visit of Emperor William and Empress Augusta Victoria to King Edward and Queen Alexandra was concluded yesterday, when they both left Windsor, the Empress proceeding to Holland, where she will visit Queen Wilhelmina, and the Emperor going to High Cliffe Castle, where he will spend several weeks in recuperation.

Warner Convicted.

New York, Nov. 19.—Frank H. Warner was convicted last night of murder in the second degree, for killing Esther C. Norling on July 23 last. The trial has been in progress for a month.

"I'm sorry they did not make it first degree," was Warner's only comment when the sentenced was announced.

UNITED STATES STEEL MEN IN THE CITY SEEKING A SITE FOR AN EXTENSIVE PLANT

Here Through The Efforts And On The Invitation of Mr. Wm. Rudkins of This City

VISITED NUMBER OF SITES

Visitors Apparently Well Pleased, Especially With the Shipping-out Facilities

Peterborough's advantages as a manufacturing and distributing centre have only to be made known to be appreciated. In this connection, the action of a public-spirited citizen is responsible for the presence of the representatives of a large industrial establishment in the United States, who are seeking a Canadian site for a similar industry.

Mr. Wm. Rudkins, Collector of Inland Revenue, and practically interested in several local manufacturing enterprises, has been in communication with a large steel manufacturing establishment in the United States, and with such good results that upon his representations and invitation, representatives of the works in question are in the city to look over the situation.

This morning these gentlemen were conducted by Mr. Rudkins and the Mayor about the city, and several available sites were inspected. Among these there were two or three which the visitors regarded with great favour as well suited to the requirements of the proposed works.

The industry proposed will be for the manufacture of sheet and bar steel from billets at first, and ultimately from the ore itself. The size and importance of the proposed works are shown by the fact that from five to seven acres—not less than five—will be required to accommodate the plant. Such an establishment will of necessity have a large pay roll, and represent a very important addition to the population and industrial forces of the city.

The prospects for securing this industry for Peterborough are good. While cheap power, which Peterborough can supply, is a powerful inducement, a much greater inducement consists in our excellent facilities for shipping and distributing the finished products of the proposed works. We have, in addition to two lines of railways east and west, two lines—to the northwest and northeast—and the Trent Valley Canal, now in the last stages of completion, providing cheap shipment inward of raw material, and giving access by water carriage to all the important manufacturing cities of Canada on the frontage of our great lakes and the St. Lawrence.

In addition to these transportation advantages, the visitors were greatly struck with the central position occupied by Peterborough in relation to the great steel-using industries of Canada, the markets for their products. Peterborough is mid-way between Montreal and Toronto and Hamilton, to which places sheet steel and bar steel, the products of the works under consideration, can be shipped the greater part of the year by direct water carriage. With all these things taken into consideration, it is not too optimistic to feel that the gentlemen visiting us are satisfied with Peterborough as a site for the large steel works they propose to establish, and will give the most favourable consideration to the claims of this city.

BUSINESS INCREASING ON G. T. R.

Sunday Traffic of Grain Trains Was Unusually Large

Last week it was mentioned that a marked increase of extra traffic is being noticed on the G.T.R., especially on Sunday, owing to the heavy shipments of grain. This Sunday just passed, however, was busier than a week ago, and in fact was one of the busiest days that could be expected. Twelve "double-headers" and six single-headers, all special trains, passed over the line. There were also the usual number of regulars. The time referred to is the 24 hours that comprise Sunday. This is certainly a big day's work and nearly proves the importance of the Midland route.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PETERBOROUGH CURLING CLUB

MR. T. F. MATTHEWS,
President of Club Which Holds Annual Meeting To-night

SUCCESS OF TURTLE LAKE PARTY

Mr. C. Young Shot Two Deer Weighing Together 340 Pounds

The Turtle Lake Hunting Club returned on Saturday night from its annual two weeks' hunting on the shores of Turtle Lake in Harvey township. The club, which is composed for the most part of Lakefield men, Mr. C. Young being the only local member, had one of the most successful outings in its history, succeeding in bagging seven fine deer, of which Mr. Young shot two, a buck weighing 200 pounds and a doe tipping the scales at 110 pounds. Deer were fairly plentiful, and while the weather was bad during the first week, the party was able to pass the time very pleasantly, and during the last week the conditions were delightful.

Mr. Geo. Baptie had a narrow escape from being injured by a large buck which charged at him. His rifle was tied up with the dog chains over his shoulder and could not be used, but he managed to throw himself to one side as the big animal rushed, and was uninjured. The deer made his escape before Mr. Baptie could get his rifle into condition for use.

The party was composed of Messrs. John Balsdon, captain; Geo. Balsdon, Dr. Gibson, P. Moore and W. Sherin of Lakefield, and C. Young of Peterborough. They were joined during the last few days by Messrs. A. W. Kilbourn and Geo. Baptie of Lakefield. Chief Jackman of Lakefield looked after the needs of the inner man in capable fashion.

RETURNS FROM NEW ONTARIO

Mr. Martin McFadden Had Pleasant Outing in the Far North

Among the local business men who delay their outings until the autumn season, is Mr. Martin McFadden, who returned on Saturday from a two weeks trip to the wilds of Northern Ontario. He was visiting his friend, Mr. Jim Cleary, who is located about 40 miles north of Englehart, on the T. and N. O. Railway. Mr. McFadden had a good time in the haunts of Canada's principal fur-bearing animals. While he did some shooting he was more interested in trapping, as Mr. Cleary had just begun to put out his traps for the season. Mr. McFadden describes the country as rugged and rocky, and covered with a second growth of scrub wood that is almost impenetrable.

Mr. Cleary has located a good mine and has staked his claim. He has followed the vein for about six feet and an assay shows the mine to return copper, silver and gold. The mine promises to be a good one, the gold alone assaying $80 to the ton. Mr. Clery expects that when he goes deeper the vein will become richer, and if so the mine will prove to be a valuable one.

WEDDING BELLS

COONES-BELL

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's manse last evening by Rev. J. G. Potter, when Miss Luella Bell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Bell of Bridgenorth, became the bride of Mr. Harold Coones.

After the wedding ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Coones left for Toronto, and points west. Upon their return the young couple will reside in Bridgenorth.

PETERBOROUGH HUNTERS ARE ALL HOME WITH A RECORD OF NO SERIOUS ACCIDENTS

The hunting season is at an end, and the merry bands of sportsmen who left Peterborough two weeks ago, for the haunts of the deer in the north, are back again to the routine business of life, looking hale and hearty, after their fortnight of "roughing it in the bush." Not one accident of a serious nature occurred among any of the Peterborough hunters, which in view of the alarming frequency of serious mishaps which have marked the hunting season of this, and the past few years, should be the subject of thanksgiving on the part of the hunters, and their friends. The record reflects credit upon the sportsmen of the city, as it indicates that they are careful in the use of firearms, and have learned to distinguish between a deer and a man. There has been no reports of any reckless firing at rustlings in the bushes, or have any of those who have returned complained of narrow escapes on the part of themselves, or their comrades.

YOUNG COUPLE ELOPE FROM A NEIGHBOURING VILLAGE AND TELL OF THEIR EXCITING ADVENTURE

Bride is Just 17 Years Old—Married in Peterborough Last Night And Leave on Their Honeymoon To-day

BOTH OF THEM ARE HAPPY

A little village a short distance from Peterborough is alive with excitement to-day over the elopement of one of its most respected young ladies with a merchant of the village. The young couple came here last night and were happily united, leaving this afternoon on their honeymoon.

The young couple were seen this morning by an Examiner representative who found the pair perfectly happy and willing to talk about their adventure.

The young wife has just seen seventeen summers, while the husband, a handsome young man, is some few years older. He is quite proud of his young wife and says he will return with her to their native village at the end of their honeymoon.

The story of the elopement is an old one. It appears that the young couple met at school and went together for sometime. The parents of the girl upon her leaving school tried to separate the two and would not allow the young fellow to come around the house. The bride told several stories of how they used to meet in secret and plan to run away. One evening the young couple were found together by the bride's father and she was given to understand that she was never to speak to him again.

She explained to her fiancee her trouble and they decided to leave at once for Peterborough and get married.

After some persuasion on the part of her lover she decided to trust her future happiness to him and they hired a livery and eloped to Peterborough. The couple left on the 4.48 C.P.R. train for Toronto and points west and will return to their native village after their honeymoon.

EXAMINER LOST ADS BRING BACK THE TIME

As a last resource for lost articles the Examiner's columns are still without peer. A lost watch was brought to time to-day by an ad. on yesterday's issue and the lady thankfully received it. If the watch keeps the time as well as the Examiner keeps up with the time in recovering lost articles it will be as regular as Old Sol himself.

THE NORTH AMERICAN INDIANS

Number in the Various Tribes in Western Portion of Canada

The story of the early explorations and of the trading adventures of the French and English on the plains of the great Northwest has ever been one of exceeding interest to the people of Canada; but, while filled with romance and important as illustrating how the great domain has gradually been brought under the dominion of the British Crown, it nevertheless is largely lacking as a record of the more silent, yet more potent, influences which for over a century have been at work transforming the Indian aborigines into members of a civilized society and loyal subjects of the King. Restrained through diplomacy, force and the interests of [illegible] by the great fur-trading companies, the widely distributed and wandering bands of Indians would still have been savages, had it not been for the heroic devotion of those missionaries who, attaching themselves to some band, moved with it in its wanderings, or travelled from post to post where the Indians were assembled while bartering their furs.

The evolution of schools amongst the Indian population of the Northwest naturally begins with the efforts of the early missionaries to obtain an influence over the Indians through the education and guidance of the children. The Roman Catholic Church as early as 1817 sent its first missionary into this extensive region and its work has been extended so far within the Arctic Circle, reaching even to the Northern Ocean. Co-incident with its work has been that of the Church of England, whose missionaries locating near some Hudson's Bay Company's trading post, have covered, through the work of the Church of England Missionary Society, the entire Northwest to Fort McPherson and the Yukon. To illustrate—the first Anglican mission was established at Winnipeg in 1820, Dynevor in 1833, Cumberland in 1840, Lac la Ronge in 1849, Battleford in 1876, the Blood Mission in 1880, Fort Simpson in 1858, Fort McPherson in 1874, and Rampart House in 1882. The British Methodist Church began its labours by establishing missions on Lake Winnipeg at Norway House and Berens River in 1854, gradually extending westward as far as the Stony reserve in the foothills of the Rockies. The Presbyterian Church latest in the field, started a mission at Prince Albert in 1867. The stories of hardship and of danger endured by these missionaries of the Cross have been but incidentally told, but the results are shown in the list of missions and of day schools in existence when this enormous territory passed into the hands of the Dominion of Canada in 1870. The lists are very incomplete, but a published report shows that 20 Roman Catholic schools and 5 Church of England schools received in 1877 some financial aid from the Dominion government.

Rapid Detective Work By Police Officer Newhall

Nine Boys Were Captured—Copper, Wire and Brass Returned To Owners Inside of One Hour

FINED IN POLICE COURT

All police records for quick work were broken yesterday by P C Newhall. This clever officer at nine o'clock on Monday morning was notified that some brass casting were stolen from the Machine Telephone Company; fifty pounds of brass from the Carbon Works and fifty pounds of copper wire from the Canadian General Electric Company. The smart officer was out after the goods at once and at ten o'clock the same morning the goods were all found, the junk dealer who bought the goods fusing the magistrate on two charges and nine boys were arrested charged with the theft of the articles mentioned.

In the police court this morning nine of Peterborough's respectable families were represented in court by a boy charged with having stolen copper wire and brass castings.

The first witness called was John Doig, who bought the wire and castings from the boys on Sunday last. He told of how the lads came to him on Sunday morning last and sold him a brass casting for five cents, the casting was worth $5.00 to the owner. Witness also stated that he had bought goods from these boys on several occasions. He also bought on Saturday evening about fifty pounds of copper wire, he did not remember buying any more brass castings, so that the other one produced in court must have been concealed amongst the copper wire sold to him on Saturday. The boys pleaded not guilty to this charge in the face of the evidence and the case was adjourned till four o'clock this afternoon.

Another charge was brought against four of the boys for stealing theb rass castings, to this the boys through theeir counsel Mr. G. Gordon, pleaded guilty and were fined $5 each and costs to be paid forthwith or in default of payment, 20 days in the common gaol.

NEW HOTEL SCHEME

Mr. Kinleysides, Accompanied By An Architect Arrives in The City—Plans For New Building

ESTIMATES TO BE MADE

The new National Hotel scheme is still progressing towards the carrying out of the big proposition mentioned by the Examiner some time ago. Already it has been stated that a large amount of the $200,000 stock necessary has been subscribed, that a manager has been secured in the person of Capt Lumb, of Belleville, and that architects would soon be here to prepare drawings and plans of the hotel.

Last night Mr. W. Young Kinleysides, general manager of the North American Investment Company, arrived in the city accompanied by Mr. Ackary F. Saunders of the firm of Stroud & Saunders, architects, of Toronto. Mr. Jas. Doris, of the office staff off the company is also here in connection with the scheme. Mr. Saunders who is a former resident of Peterborough, is to-day making ground plans of the proposed new building and spent the morning in that work. His drawing proposes to take in a strip of land extending out to George street to the south of the Customs House and shows the locations of lanes and the various outdoor buildings as well as the hotel.

This afternoon Mr. Saunders spent the time drawing the plans to a scale with a view to obtain an estimate of the cost. When this has been accomplished tenders will be called for and it is expected that work will begin before the new year. In this event the hotel will be completed some time during next year.

Mr. Kinleysides who came for the purpose of starting the architect on his work stated to the Examiner that the company are their way clear to go forward with the scheme and that all doubts as to the hotel not being erected as at first proposed are at an end.

BRASS SUSPECTS WERE ARRESTED IN DOUBLE QUICK TIME

P. C. NEWHALL'
Who Found The Stolen Goods and Arrested Nine Boys in One Hour.

LAST HONOURS WERE RENDERED

Funeral of the Late John A. McWilliams Took Place Yesterday Afternoon.

The funeral of the late John A. McWilliams, which took place yesterday afternoon, from the family residence, Rogers street, East City, in its attendance and circumstances testified to the high position the deceased held in the esteem of the community and of the Orange Order, in which he occupied so prominent a position. At the residence the religious ceremonies were conducted by Rev. J. G. Potter of St. Andrew's, assisted by Rev. Dr. Talling, Rev. C. H. Coons and Rev. A. H. Brace, chaplain of the district.

The procession to the Little Lake cemetery was composed of a long line of the brethren of the Order, headed by the band of the Salvation Army, and followed by a large cortege of citizens in carriages. At the graveside Rev. Dr. Talling read the burial service which was followed by the ritual prescribed by the Orange Order, in which Rev. A. H. Brace, chaplain, W. H. G. Armstrong and Bro. Jos. Batten took part.

The pall bearers were Bros. J. B. McWilliams, P.C.M.; Wm. Graham, P.C.M., Lakefield; Jas. Moore, P.C.M., Lakefield; Jos. Batten, P.C.M.; Wm. Kindred, P.C.M., and John W. Stewart, P.C.M.

GIRL WAS SHOWN TO BE INNOCENT

Makes Slight Mistake by Placing Jones' Clothes in Harrop's Trunk

As mentioned yesterday in the police court items the young girl who was charged with theft by Chas. V. Jones was acquitted when it was shown that she had nothing whatever to do with the stolen goods. She was sent to pack up some goods in a trunk and naturally put everything that was in Jones' room in the box. A mistake was thus made but otherwise the girl was shown to be innocent.

The Crown's interest were looked after by Crown Attorney Wood and the defence by Mr. G. Gordon.

YOUNG LAD WAS THROWN FROM HORSE

PETERBOROUGH MAN MEMBER OF DESPERATE GANG OF BANK ROBBERS FROM MONTREAL

Thos. Hudson, Whose Father Died Here, Loosens Up To The Montreal Detectives—Tells of Organized Band

HAD CAMP IN THE BUSH

Travelling Across Continent To Rob Safes—Arrested After a Fierce Gun Fight

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Nov. 19. — That there is a chain of safe-breakers coming across the country, thoroughly organized, and with scouts to go ahead of them and agents to find out what good jobs could be done, was the statement made by one of the fraternity, Thomas Hudson, of Peterborough, who was arrested at St. Lambert on Saturday after a revolver duel with the police.

It was a stiff fight, and only the darkness prevented bloodshed.

News came to the detective office that there was a gang of suspicious characters near St. Lambert and Detectives Le Huquet, Laberge and Connors went out.

While the townspeople were on the streets enjoying the afternoon air a shot rang out from the direction of the camp. Then a regular fusilade followed and shortly after the police came back with two of the six who had been in camp, John Brown, aged thirty-five, of Berlin, Ont., and Thos. Hudson, nineteen, formerly of Peterborough.

During the course of the fight in which participated the three detectives and the six men they were sent out to capture, several shots were fired and the fusilade coming from a quarter where most of the villagers knew half a dozen tough looking characters were encamped, aroused great apprehension in the place and routed out Chief of Police Gravelle, who organized a posse and set out to assist the city officers. It was the posse which was responsible for the arrest of Brown,

Villagers are Alarmed

For some days a gang of six rough customers had located around St. Lambert. They had a camp in a bush near the railway track, foraged for provisions and slept in a convenient barn.

The village people became alarmed, and sent word to Chief of Detectives Carpenter, asking for his assistance in apprehending the strangers.

Yesterday afternoon shortly after four o'clock, the Chief deputed Detectives Le Huquet, Laberge and Connors to make the arrest. The three drove to the Victoria Bridge, and on the way over met the man who had telephoned to Chief Carpenter and who had agreed to lead them to the camp.

The detectives dismissed their hack at the bridge and walked across. On the way over they met four strangers whose appearance was not in the least prepossessing. In fact they were so much the opposite that one of the detectives remarked that they might be some of the men they were in search of. After they were a couple of hundred of yards away from the quartette the guide said he was sure that they were some of the men that they were after. It was then too late to do anything with them, so the detectives proceeded along the railway track to the camp.

Revolvers Work Overtime

To reach the latter they had to go through a bush. They could see the smoke of a fire but they could not proceed noiselessly as it was dusk, and they were unable to see their way very clearly. Just before the camp was reached the party had to leap over a small stream, and there they made so much racket that two men who were sitting by the fire became alarmed and made for cover.

A cry to "Halt! or we fire," from the detectives, only urged the pair to more strenuous efforts to get away. Seeing that their command was not obeyed the detectives opened fire.

The fugitives were not slow in responding, and their guns began to bark viciously. At the same time it became evident that the four men who had been seen on the bridge had followed the detectives to the camp, for a brisk fire opened from the railway track, and the detectives were exposed to front and rear attacks.

Apparently it was the idea of the rear firing party to divert the attention of the detectives from the two men in front, but the manoeuvre failed, as the officers kept right on after their quarry.

It was quite dark by this time, and the detectives had to be guided by the flash of the pistol shots and the crashing through the bushes.

It was a dangerous and a strenuous chase for both pursuers and pursued.

Stumbling and falling over the roughest kind of ground into gullies and up banks slippery with ice, the experience was truly heart-breaking.

BOARD OF TRADE ORATOR

The gentleman selected by the Board of Trade to be the chief speaker at their first annual banquet, on Wednesday night, is well qualified to give a most interesting and instructive address, if he is as well equipped oratorically, as he is qualified by special commercial and industrial knowledge, and large financial experience, to deal authoratively with subjects of that character. For fifty years of his three score and six, Mr. Rolland has been in the thick of the commercial, industrial and financial fight. About fifty years ago he entered the book and paper business with his late father, and in 1859 became a partner in the business. The mills of the Rolland Paper Company, of St. Jerome, of which he is the president, are said to be the finest in the Dominion. The breadth of Mr. Rolland's experience is to be judged by the numerous activities that have engaged his energies and enterprise. For many years he sat in the Montreal city council, being, for a time, chairman of the Finance Committee. He was for three years mayor of Hochelaga. He is an active member of the Montreal Board of Trade, a member of the Chambre de Commerce, and a director of the Manufacturers Life Assurance Company, President of the Franco-Belgian Steamship Company, a Harbour Commissioner, besides being connected with many other commercial, industrial and financial enterprises. On the score of his practical familiarity with trade and cognate subjects, Hon. Mr. Rolland, who became a member of the Legislative Council of Quebec in 1896, seems to admirably equipped for dealing in an intelligent and instructive manner with whatever subject he may choose to speak upon on Wednesday night.

THE BANKS AND THEIR WORK

A business man's standing and reputation are of the most sensitive, and the same conditions extend to the reputation of financial institutions, especially banks. A very good way to lessen the influence and impair the standing of a business man is to decry his credit and spread rumours as to the uncertain standing of his affairs. Criticism of our banks, which, under our splendid system, are the business backbone of the country, should, under the greatest seemingly justified provocation, be sparingly employed. There is a disposition, in the West especially, to denounce the banks for not throwing wide their vault doors to furnish funds to move the western crop. The banks are quite willing to help the movement of grain, but advances must be made with caution. A prominent manager of a local bank branch said yesterday that there would be forthcoming sufficient money for legitimate movement of grain, but that there was, and would be, no money to be locked up in western elevators in the form of grain to be held for speculative purposes. If money were needed to help move wheat to the market to be converted into cash there would be no lack of a sufficient supply. In this connection even caution is necessary. It was pointed out that while it is desirable to help the farmers of the Northwest to get their grain forwarded to the foot of the great lakes, it is in the interests of the general business of the country to avoid locking up a large quantity of money at Fort William and Port Arthur in the form of stored grain, which might not, in case of closed navigation, find an outlet and a market for months. When money is needed so urgently for other purposes it would be only intensifying conditions of stringency to thus tie up money in idleness. We may well suppose that the banks know what they are doing, and while their action may work hardship in individual cases and momentarily be prejudicial to some interests, the prudence they are exercising, the apparent good judgment they are showing, should meet with the approval of the public, who are very directly concerned, because it is the money, the savings of the people as a whole, which the banks are so carefully caring for. We may well be proud of our banks and banking system, especially when we compare it with that of our neighbours to the south of us. In an article, re-printed upon this page, from the Finance Chronicle, is set forth the protective measures the Canadian banks have been taking. Silently and steadily they have been setting their financial house in order against the very conditions which are now upon us. We may, with more or less warrant, criticise the banks for sending too much Canadian money out of the country to New York, but we must set to their credit a course of action in regard to steadying the situation which far outweighs the fault, if it is regarded as a fault, of sending Canadian capital out of Canada. There is probably no country in the world where the money of the people at large is so well cared for by its banks, and the commercial, industrial and other interests so well helped and so amply protected by them, as in Canada. As a result, when a crisis comes we feel a pinch, where others experience disaster and panic.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Commenting on the financial turmoil of recent weeks in the United States, the doubt and distrust cast on banks and other financial institutions, the United States Investor says: "Holders of life insurance policies and prospective applicants ought to be glad and proud of the position which life insurance occupies to-day. Fortunately, not many banks have failed, but some have gone so, and all have been forced to gradually contract their operations. On the other hand, no life insurance company has closed its doors, none has repudiated any just claim, and all companies which were worthy of any confidence have full filled their obligations to the last letter."—Monetary Times.

PROTECTIVE BANKING MEASURES; HOW CANADA HAS BEEN PREPARING

The following temperate and apparently well reasoned article, singularly apropo to the present time, is taken from the Chronicle of Montreal:

It would not become us in Canada at this time, when the banking affairs of the neighbouring country are in a state of confusion, to speak boastfully of our superiority, and to declare that such troubles as other peoples are suffering will not come nigh us. So far as we can judge from the past—from 1893 in particular—we have little reason to fear that the acute phase of the United States financial upset will be experienced here. It is well known that New York's troubles sprang from causes which are not existent in Canada. It has already been pointed out that nobody in the Dominion has been able to acquire control of any Canadian bank by purchases of its stock on margin; and so nobody could dictate to a Canadian bank, as Heanse, Morse, et al dictated to the banks under their control, that it devote its resources to the special purposes of bolstering up the financial deals and speculations of a particular clique. This abortion of banking functions it was that resulted in starting the runs on the Morse chain of banks—the beginning of the trouble. This was followed by the runs on particular trust companies, and by the shade of distrust falling on trust companies in general, because it was so well known that they held enormous deposits with slender cash reserves. It cannot be too often repeated that in neither of these respects is there any similarity in the Canadian situation. There are a few Canadian trust companies that advertise for deposits, but they are not, as they have been in the States, formidable competitors of the banks. The total of the deposits held by all the trust companies here possibly would not exceed $25,000,000. And in New York the Knickerbocker had $60,000,000, the Trust Company of America, $60,000,000. In Canada virtually the whole deposit fund is controlled and held by the chartered banks and the Dominion Government. An eminent English financial authority, speaking of the situation in the States and the prospect of its spreading to England, said: "In England we do not put our money in sham banks." The same might be said of Canada; and in that circumstance lies our chief justification for hoping that we shall escape serious trouble.

But it would, obviously, be folly for our banks and financial institutions to go their way as usual without adapting their policy in some degree to the prevailing conditions in the States. The public mind is now keenly interested in banking matters; people are very watchful of the developments. It is a matter for deep thankfulness that the Ontario Bank failure and the banking reorganization in Toronto last June are over and done with. Happening when they did, with the people not excited, the events were invested with only their proper significance. Had both or either of them been delayed they would have furnished an element of danger to the present situation. But happily they are out of the way.

As remarked, it would be a source of danger if the banks in Canada underrated or ignored the events in New York. The news coming from all parts of the country proves convincingly that they are not underrating these events. If the Canadian bankers had had a foreknowledge of the New York panic they could hardly have better shaped their course to meet it. Since early in the present year a heavy hand has been laid on land speculation in the West; speculation in stocks has been discouraged for nearly a year; commercial borrowers have been cautioned to go slow, their lines of credit kept down. So when the storm struck our neighbours, the financial ship in Canada was running with sails reduced. As a result of the repressive measures, the position of the banks has been getting stronger month by month. Their cash and available assets stand comfortably at a high ratio. In bringing this to pass it was inevitable that borrowers should complain. Quite probably a check would be administered, in a number of directions, to the legitimate development of the country. In the last week complaints have been heard that enough money was not being furnished by the banks to handle the western crop, and stories come down of vessels not able to get cargoes at Fort William and Port Arthur because banks will not loan for the term of the voyage. No doubt there is some exaggeration here. The bankers say they are providing what is needed to market and export the crop, but that they are giving no money to enable the grain buyers to sit down, holding their purchases for rises in price.

Even granting that hardship is entailed on many business men by the banking course of action, granting that the country's proper development along perfectly legitimate lines, is somewhat checked temporarily, the times are such that the people will forgive the banks if the keep our financial situation safe. Canadians are not fools. The most of them can see that the situation in the States was, and is yet, grave indeed. They recognize, with all their complainings, that safety is the first consideration, and that the banks must ensure that end, even if borrowers are inconvenienced, industries and trades handicapped. And so it is a time for patient endurance. The policy of our banks has for its object the safety of our situation, the keeping bright of our financial honour in the eyes of the whole world. The time of stress incident even to big panics does not continue indefinitely. People generally cannot remain greatly excited over these things for more than a few weeks. After the excitement dies down, and the unaccustomdangers disappear, when the people have resumed and give their full thought to their ordinary occupations, it commonly happens that the banks have more funds to lend than their borrowers want.

MUCH CONCERN FELT

Ordinary Method of Treating Catarr Proves Unsuccessful

Recent statistics showing an increase in catarrh have shaken the confidence of medical men in the usual prescriptions to safeguard human health from the ravages of this disease.

When stomach dosing proved ineffective, it was natural to look for some other treatment, and it is believed that in Hyomei an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles has has at last been found. Breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, its healing medication reaches every spot where there are catarrhal germs, destroys them, prevents their future growth, and soothes the irritated mucous membrane so that relief is felt almost instantly, while lasting cure is practically sure to follow.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and is sold by Wm. Madill, under an absolute agreement to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. It is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures, but Mr. Madill has so much faith in its power to cure all catarrhal troubles that he is willing to take the risk, as if Hyomei does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense. Get an outfit at once on this liberal plan.

A LIVELY FRACAS ON STREET CORNER

Two Old Men Using Canes When P. C. Newhall Arrives

On Saturday afternoon about 4 o'clock, two elderly gentlemen gave vent to their feelings at the corner of George and Hunter streets. One hauled off with a walking stick and hit the other on the head, felling his opponent to the pavement. Not to be disposed of so quickly he arose and struck the other a short arm jab in the ribs, sending him six feet away sprawling along the sidewalk, and smothering him with dust. The pitched battle was spoiled, however, by the arrival of P. C. Newhall on the scene.

TREASURE LANDS OF SILVERY COBALT ARE DESCRIBED BY A WOMAN FROM PETERBOROUGH

Miss Margaret Kidd of Aylmer Street Recently Returns From a Visit To Her Brother There

THE HUDSON BAY MINE

The Town Location as Seen By a Woman—Interesting Account Of The Home Of The Silver

Cobalt described by a woman is of a rare occurrence. Yet Miss Margaret Kidd, daughter of Mr. A. P. Kidd, Aylmer street, who has just returned from the home of the silver tells to the Examiner as interesting an account of the world-famed treasure lands as any prospector of the sterner sex. Miss Kidd went to Cobalt about three weeks ago to visit her brother, Mr. Ottis Kidd, who has been located a few years in "the land of promise," and to an Examiner representative last night pictured graphically the mining town of Cobalt, explained the existing conditions and prospects for the future.

The country around the town can scarcely be called a picturesque one from the standpoint of the beauty of the landscape, but of course, from the standpoint of the expert miner and prospector there is more in it than the surface would tend to portray.

Rough and rocky is the silver region, which includes the town itself, but the country is nevertheless a revelation to the eye which has never yet looked upon it. Hills rise and fall in the very centre of the town, making travelling, especially at night, a little more dangerous than over the grandiithic pavements of Peterborough. The town is partially lighted with electricity, but nevertheless the inhabitants rarely leave their residences at night without a lantern to light up their pathways.

No Pavement There

There are no pavements in Cobalt. In fact it can scarcely be said that the town is equipped with streets. Houses have been erected promiscuously on the town site, many overlapping many feet on the roads that should be.

The monotony of the rocks is broken in spots by the appearance of stumps which have not yet been extracted from the rock and handful of earth covering its surface. The school house grounds are possibly the only place in Cobalt free of stumps and other projections. Miss Kidd states that the Trustee Board of the Public School, of which her brother is a member, have spent over $400 in clearing away the unnecessaries and have left the school and the play grounds one of the handsomest places in the town.

The various religious sects are well represented and many houses of worship welcome the crowds that come and go to the land of the hidden treasure. There are four hardware stores but no hotels—the latter being prohibited by law, Yet liquor finds its way into Cobalt as it usually does wherever there is a demand and it was of frequent occurrence to see intoxicated miners on the streets of Cobalt. Drinking, however, was not so prevalent as in the more northern towns where hotels are located.

It is surprising to find so many transient travellers in the Cobalt regions. Three trains run to and from the town and all are usually well laden with human freight. Cobalt is an active spot and is growing rapidly.

Cobalt Wealth

Miss Kidd of course visited the famous gold fields known as the Hudson Bay and Nipissing mines. These, she states, are the two most prominent mines of the district and stock in them is valuable. The former of the two is the most active at the present time and is paying the largest dividends. Work is going on rapidly. The strike is over and the men, at least those allowed by the employers of labour, have gone back to their occupations without securing what they demanded.

Wages are good, ranging from $3 to $3.50 per day, and there is apparently work for all to do. The blasting of rock goes on at intervals through the day and night in the midst of the city where the mines are in operation.

The Cobalt Bloom

There is one spot cherished by all true Cobaltonians. It is the "Cobalt Bloom" a vein of silver showing the glittering metal on the surface of the rock made bare by the tread of so many feet. This is pointed to with pride as a sample of the value of the region in which such a wealth lies.

Miss Kidd spent an enjoyable visit with her brother and his family and returns home with a great knowledge of the land that has so recently and so effectively sprung into prominence among the treasure lands of the continent.

What Joy to be Freed From Piles

THERE IS SCARCELY A SUFFERER IN THIS BROAD LAND BUT CAN BE CURED BY

Dr. Chase's Ointment

The utter misery and despair of the sufferer from a severe case of piles, of hemorrhoids cannot be described in words.

It is not only the intense itching and stinging which in themselves are bad enough, not only the dread of a surgical operation, with its pain, expense and danger, but the whole system seems to be undermined, and as the ailment drags on from day to day, and year to year, one becomes discouraged, despondent, and in despair gives up all hope of cure.

The joy which cured ones experience on being cured from itching, bleeding and protruding piles, is told in the thousands of letters which we have received from time to time.

You need not tell the writers of these letters that there is a case of whish Dr. Chase's Ointment will not cure, for they will not believe it. They alone know how they suffered, and also know that Dr. Chase's Ointment cured them. In many cases the cures were almost like miracles, so little ointment was used. In other cases, while relief came quickly, cure was only effected by the persistent use of several boxes of the Ointment.

W. E. Talbot, of Talbot Bros., tobacco merchants, 324 George street, Peterborough, Ont., states: "It is from a desire to help other sufferers that I offer a statement of my experience with Dr. Chase's Ointment as a cure for itching piles. I was for a long time troubled with this unpleasant and torturing disease and though I tried many treatments remained uncured until I came across Dr. Chase's Ointment. It was highly recommended to me, and I find that every word of praise that is given to it is true. THE PERFECT LIKENESS.

It is related of Frederick II., king of Prussia, that he one day made a present of a golden snuffbox to one of his counts. When the latter opened the lid he found the picture of an ass painted upon the underside of it. Though he scarcely relished the king's joke, he said nothing at the time, but as soon as he quitted the king's presence he sent one of his valets with the snuffbox to the city and gave him instructions that the picture of the ass was to be painted out and a portrait of the king put in its place.

A few days later a distinguished company dined with the king. The count was one of the guests, and after a time he produced his snuffbox and pretended to examine it with the air of a man who was proud to have received such a gift from the king. The latter, wishing to enjoy a little amusement at the count's expense, mentioned to the Duchess of Brunswick that he had made a present of the box to the count on the preceding day. She desired to inspect it, and when the box was handed to her she opened the lid and, looking inside, cried in raptures: "Perfect! The likeness is charming! It is one of the best portraits of you that I have ever seen!"

She handed the box to the person next to her, who was equally charmed with the likeness. From one to another the box was passed, and all testified to the excellent resemblance which the picture bore to the king. The king, thinking that the ass' head was still to be seen on the snuffbox, felt exceedingly embarrassed and scarcely knew what to make of the incident, but at last the snuffbox, having made the tour of the table, came to his hands, and the first glance showed him how cleverly the count had anticipated his little joke and turned it against him.

The Music Critic.

At the risk of making this an apology as well as a confession I venture to express the hope that I may some day have the means to enjoy the best music without need of telling three hundred thousand or more readers why; whether Carubouci had fears in his voice; how Mme. Sembrich-Eames looked and acted; whether the second soprano was off key; the basso dependent upon the prompter; the conductor too fast or too slow, according to actual stop watch and metronome; how the lights were managed; whether the audience was large and appreciative or otherwise and whether the music was good, bad, indifferent and why.—Atlantic.

A Medal of Honor.

[Original.]

The British government gives its soldiers who show great bravery in life saving a decoration called the Victoria cross. The badge is an unpretentious affair made of gun metal, but it is the most coveted of any British army honor. In America we have no such decoration, and when a man bravely rescues a comrade he must be content with the thanks of the man he has saved.

During the Mexican war a general of brigade was one day reconnoitering with an aid-de-camp when he ran full upon a nest of Mexicans, who spat fire like so many rattlesnakes. The aid threw himself before his general and covered his retreat, receiving a wound in the arm and one in the leg. The general escaped unhurt. When the affair was over and the two dismounted before the general's tent he said to his aid:

"What's that on your belt clasp?"

The aid looked down and pulled away a bullet that had been flattened against the brass clasp. Had it not been stopped on its way it would have penetrated the youngster's stomach, and that at that time meant death. The general pressed the young man's hand silently. Words would not express what he owed his subordinate.

When Lieutenant Passmore went home after the war he took the flattened bullet with him. He used to call it his medal. A man who is especially adapted for fighting is often useless for anything else, and Passmore failed completely in a business life which he took up on leaving the army. Perhaps the disposition he had shown to bear another's burdens was not in accord with commercialism, where the object often is to outwit those with whom one does business.

The poor fellow at last got ragged. His appearance was all the more slouchy from the wound he had received in the leg in saving his commander's life, since it caused him to limp. He pawned his belongings one after another. His watch and chain he held as long as possible, because they had been given him by his mother. When his watch went, in order to keep up appearances with his chain he took his flattened bullet and wore it where the watch should be.

Meanwhile the general whose life Passmore had saved had prospered. We will call him Wingate. He had made money, and the prominence arising from his wealth and his service in war had placed him in a high position in politics. He became governor of his state. Since he lived in the eastern states and his former aid-de-camp in the west the two were apart. Passmore after hearing that Wingate had attained so high a position spent six months trying to make up his mind to apply to him for some subordinate office whereby he could make a living. Finally he overcame his retiring disposition, succeeded in borrowing enough money to pay his fare and went to see the governor.

He arrived on the day of a great parade of the state militia. The governor was to review the procession. Passmore took a position near the stand and saw his former general enter with his suit. He tried to reach a point on the street in front of and below the governor's seat, but a policeman stopped him.

"Let me go on," said Passmore. "I know the governor personally."

The policeman looked suspicious, but passed him. Passmore stood directly beneath his old chief, with his hat pulled down over his eyes. The parade was late in moving and had not arrived. The governor took out his watch impatiently.

"This isn't the way you moved on the Mexicans, governor," said Passmore, looking up from under his hat.

The governor glanced down to see who spoke.

"Half an hour."

"My watch says 12:10," rejoined the governor. "The head of the column was to have passed here at 12."

"Your watch is wrong, governor—twenty minutes wrong."

"What time have you, my friend?" asked the governor.

Passmore pulled out the flattened bullet.

A change came over the governor's face. His eyes were glued to the crude medal. It brought a far distant memory. Then he leaned over the rail that divided him from the street, grasped Passmore's hat and pulled it off.

"Great heavens! Are you Tommy Passmore?"

"That I am, general."

The governor was a large, powerful man. He took Passmore by the collar, lifted him clean over the rail and set him down in a seat beside him. Just then there was a hurrah down the street, strains of martial music, and governor and staff assumed that position of attention and dignity expected of a reviewing party. Then the procession passed, many wondering who was the shabby man beside the governor.

The world is full of ingratitude, but the army doesn't foster it. Soldiers rarely forget that other life when their standards were different. The governor gave Passmore a lucrative office, and when the former went to the senate Passmore went to Washington with him.

And Passmore hung on to his flattened bullet. Senator Wingate borrowed it, and when he returned it the soft metal was incased and on the case was an inscription stating how the "decoration" was won.

MERRICK AUGUR.

Can Animals Enjoy a Joke?

Many instances have been collected to prove that the sense of humor exists in the lower animals. A puppy on one occasion stole a bone from a dog that was chained up and sat gnawing its capture just out of reach of the chain, wagging its tail and apparently enjoying the humor of the situation to the full.

Monkeys, again, will chatter in huge glee when they succeed in pilfering the spectacles of an old lady, and cats have been known to pur with delight when they have been successful in cheating a rival of some dainty morsel.

Animals are also subject to sorrow, and horses, cattle and deer have been known to weep at the loss of their progeny.—London Answers.

Dandyism Which We Admire.

One is sorry for the dandies of our day, because, though their clothes fit ever so well and are ever so fresh, custom prescribes a dark or subfusk hue, with no lace, no velvet (above all, not on coat collars), no slashes, puffs and vandykings, no pearls and gold, no gules and azure. The common trousers are shapeless things, and for perfection you need two pairs every day. Genius is stunted, display is checked, and, though you may wear brilliant hose with knickerbockers in the country, glorious waistcoats are rarely seen except in the windows of tailors' shops at Oxford and Cambridge. The dandy can only cultivate immaculate neatness and perfection of fit. Our officers at Ladysmith when the place was relieved looked like skeletons, but were as spruce and neat, I have been told, as ever they showed in the park. They cultivated self respect, like Stendhal, the celebrated novelist, who was said to have been the only man that shaved every day in the dreadful winter retreat from Moscow. This is the dandyism which we admire, the perfection of personal self respect exhibited in Julius Caesar, Claverhouse, and Montrose, combing his lovelocks, like the Three hundred of Thermopylae, on the morning of his shameful death. He went to the gibbet "like a bridegroom to his bride." History, and "the human heart by which we live," have an immortal tenderness for the great, the wise, the brave, who have died dandies as they lived, gallant hearts and stately gentlemen.—Andrew Lang in Century.

TRIPLE EXTRACT.

Process by Which the Odor of Flowers Is Obtained.

Flowers that are to be used in the manufacture of perfumes are always gathered at nightfall or quite early in the morning, when the dew is upon them. Before they are gathered, however, receptacles are prepared for them in the shape of large frames, over which are stretched cotton cloths well saturated with olive oil or almond oil. The cut flowers are brought in and are thickly spread on a frame. Then another frame is fitted over it, and that in turn is well spread with flowers. Then a third frame is fitted over the second spread of flowers, and thus the work goes on until a huge pile of flowers is prepared.

This flower heap is left for two days, at the end of which time the flowers are removed from the frames and replaced by fresh ones. The frames are filled and emptied every two days until two weeks have passed. Then the cloths are detached from the frames and placed under great pressure, and all the oil is pressed out of them. The oil thus obtained is heavily charged with the fragrance of the flowers, and it is mixed with double its weight of very pure rectified spirit and put in a vessel called a "digester," which is simply a porcelain or block tin kettle that fits in another kettle. When in use the outer vessel is filled with boiling water.

In this vessel the mixture of oil and spirits "digests" for three or four days. Then, after having cooled, the spirit is decanted into another vessel, holding the same quantity of fragrant oil, and the digesting process is repeated. After being thus digested three times the spirit is found to have taken up enough of the perfume, and it is then decanted from the oil for the third and last time through a tube, one end of which is filled with cotton wool to serve as a filter. The fluid thus prepared is called "triple extract."

Austria's Fisheries.

Austria's fishing industry suffers from the handicap that the fishermen are nearly all in the clutches of usurers. They are compelled to borrow money when the catch is poor, and they are never able to get out of debt again.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE AT BARRACKS

Captain Hurd's Illustrated Lecture Was a Treat

Captain Hurd"s recital of "Catterina," the story of a dipsomaniac and his blind child, was given at the Salvation Army Barracks last night to a large assembly. It is a pathetic story of life in London in which a little blind girl rises from the position of organ-grinder's companion to a splendid operatic pa[illegible] and finally gives herself up to God. The fifty coloured scenes taken from life models which illustrated the lecture were very good and assisted Captain Hurd in depicting the many scenes of his story.

Captain Hurd will be in Peterborough for the last time in this work next February. He is a favourite with the people of this city and in his two years work has made many friends in Peterborough. The G.B.M. boxes which come under his charge have been very successful and have been of great assistance in the social work of the Army.

The band turns out last night in large numbers and rendered good music.

RIGBY BROUGHT BACK LAST NIGHT

Arrested at Mountain, Ont., by P. C. Meharry—Sent to Central For Six Months

A special session of the Police Court was held yesterday afternoon upon the arrival of Thomas Rigby from Mountain, Ont., in charge of P. C. Meharry, on the charge of having stolen a bicycle.

According to the evidence given against Rigby, it appears that on Friday last he asked a man in front of the Nobig House for a ride on his wheel, but was refused. When the man came out he found that his wheel was missing, and thought that the prisoner had just gone for a ride, but the wheel did not turn up.

The police authorities were at once notified, and a search was instituted, and the suspect was found to have gone to Mountain. P. C. Meharry was sent down at once and the prisoner brought back.

The Magistrate, after hearing the evidence against Rigby, sentenced him to the Central Prison for a term of six months.

UNDERWRITERS HELD MEETING

Association is Growing in Numbers And in Strength

The regular meeting of the Central Ontario Life Underwriters' Association, was held last night and attended by a fairly large number of the members. Important matters bearing on the underwriting business were discussed and six or seven new members were added to the association since the last meeting held in Lindsay about a month ago. The next meeting will be held in December, probably in Port Hope, and it is expected that a further increase in membership will be the result.

The idea is to have a large meeting in Peterborough in January, and to give a banquet at which prominent speakers will be present, and address the gathering.

THE ICE CAUSED SOME TROUBLE

Monarch Had Great Difficulty in Getting Through This Morning

The steamer Monarch arrived shortly before noon this morning from Rice Lake and will return to-night. Her captain reports that it was only with the utmost difficulty that the steamer was able to break her way through the ice from Gore's Landing across the lake, and stated that if he had thought that the conditions were so bad he would not have started out. The Water Lily had trouble on her return passage Saturday getting through the ice, which is quite thick on the lake now, the warm sun seeming to have not much effect upon it.

BOARD OF HEALTH NO QUORUM

Provincial Board to be Petitioned to Define an Area

The Board of Health, as usual, failed to get a quorum yesterday, and hence the joint meeting of the Board and the Water Commissioners could not transact much business, although they talked over the question of the pollution of the waters of th Otonabee, and Clear and Stony Lakes. The Water Commissioners were all on hand but only three members of the Board responded to the alarm call, including the Mayor. The other two were the chairman and Mr. Geo. Schneider.

Mr. Eyres expressed the opinion that it would be advisable for the Water Commissioners to pass a resolution calling upon the Provincial Board of Health to define an area of water in which it would be possible to stop the depositing of any offensive matter in the water. This the commissioners promised to do at once, at the same time suggesting that the Board of Health should pass a similar resolution. The chairman was doubtful when he could get a quorum together for that purpose, but agreed to pass the resolution as soon as possible, after which the meeting was adjourned, after a short reference to the Isolation Hospital, to which point the discussion wandered.

BUCK FEVER LESSENS GAME BAG

Mr. Jno. Blackburn, However, Has Good Luck With Spence's Party

Thirteen may be an unlucky number for some people, but it certainly was not in connection with the Garrett Spencer hunting party, of which Mr. John Blackburn, of the mechanical department of the Street Railway, was a member. Mr. Blackburn returned home yesterday and has many interesting tales to tell of the hunt.

The party consisted of eight, and secured 13 deer in the allotted time. They hunted in the vicinity of Jack's Lake, and considering the fact that half the nimrods were "greenhorns" with the rifle, they did remarkably well to obtain the baker's dozen. Buck fever was responsible for the missing of a number of the fleet-footed creatures, but the party expects next year to even up with the best of them.

TIPS OF INDEX FINGERS WERE CUT

An Employee of McDonald's Mill Meets With Slight Accident

Frank McCoy, an employee of the McDonald Lumber Company, met with an accident yesterday while jointing shingles, and as a result will be unable to continue at his work for a few days. The points of his index fingers were cut off, and while the accident was not very serious it was rather painful, and both fingers had to be dressed.

FORESTERS' BANQUET AT ZION

Members Of Court Peterboro' at Zion, Otonabee, Last Night

A pleasant and profitable evening was enjoyed by the brethren of Court Peterborough who journeyed to Zion last night to pay a fraternal visit to the brethren of that section of the county, who meet monthly in a spacious and well-appointed hall, the property of the Court. The visiting brethren exemplified the degree and were highly complimented for their efficiency. Supper was announced, and to judge by the manner in which the many good things provided by the ladies disappeared, the city boys sustained their reputation for having a good relish for all that is wholesome. After supper an hour was spent in getting acquainted and in speech-making.

NO INFANTS WILL BE ADMITTED

At Evening Performances at The Grand Opera House Henceforth

Owing to complaints from patrons the management of the Grand Opera House is reluctantly compelled to notify the public that henceforth no infants in arms will be admitted to the Grand during the evening performance. While Messrs. Turner & Sons are adverse to doing anything that will deprive mothers of enjoyment, yet it has been found that the presence of the infants, unless they are abnormally quiet, detracts very much from the pleasure of the rest of the audience, a fact that was very clearly demonstrated last night. The matinees are given for the benefit of children especially, and there will be no objection to their presence there, but henceforth they will not be admitted in the evening, and mothers are requested to bear this fact in mind.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

PETERBORO' MAN MEMBER OF DESPERATE GANG OF ROBBERS FROM MONTREAL

was the first to cave in, and made no resistance when, as his lagging footsteps brought him within reach of Detective Laberge, the latter seized him. Hudson was "all in" and extremely weak from his exertions.

The officers were in little better plight, for clad as they were in heavy winter overcoats, they found the chase a most trying ordeal. One of them led Hudson and the others went after Brown. The latter, though, evaded them. Coming to the village, the party met Chief of Police Gravelle with a posse. Chief Gravelle and his men made a detour towards Victoria bridge round by the railway track, while the officers took another course. The chief came upon Brown near the bridge, and the tired tramp threw up his hands. It seemed that when he emptied his revolver in the bush he threw it away. He still retained his cartridge belt and holster, and the cartridge which this belt contained indicated that the gun had been a murderous Colt of 44-calibre.

Hudson had also thrown away his revolver, but had some 38-calibre cartridges in his pocket.

Taken before Chief Carpenter last night, the pair were closely questioned. They were reticent to a degree, the only information they were willing to give being their names.

This morning they were again interrogated, and while Brown was uncommunicative, Hudson was a little more voluble than last night.

Brown last night said he was 35 years old, but this morning he said he was 28 years of age. He is above the medium height, strongly built, with stooping shoulders, very dark in complexion and hair, and wore a rough gray sweater with overalls. He spoke with a strong German accent.

Tells of Hobo Gang

Hudson said that he was of Scotch parentage, that his mother had died at his birth, and that his father some years later died in Peterborough. Hudson was not very old when he embarked on the roving life, and though only 19, he admits that he has travelled over the greater part of the United States and Canada, often in company with notorious criminals.

The young fellow is a bright, innocent-looking chap, and it was likely these characteristics that have enabled him to keep out of trouble to a greater extent than those whom he chose as companions.

From what Hudson says it would seem that there is a regularly organized chain of hobo camps throughout the country and that these keep in regular touch with each other. Hudson travelled from one to the other acting as a sort of scout or agent. His good front helped him to get information where another would have failed. He could move freely in the towns and cities where his companions would have been closely watched.

Neither Brown nor Hudson would give any particulars about their camp-mates, saying that they were strangers to them.

The pair will be held while the police make investigations concerning them.

Detective Le Huquet has had considerable experience in gun fights. It was only recently that he was shot twice by a burglar named Walker who was caught in Handey, Starke & Co.'s Hardware place, St. Peter street. Detective O'Keefe knocked Walker out with an axe-handle and the prisoner is now serving a 25-year sentence in St. Vincent de Paul.

Plead Not Guilty

Detective Laberge this morning found the weapons that were thrown away by the prisoners.

The latter appeared in court this morning and were charged with carrying concealed weapons with suspected burglary and with vagrancy. They were remanded.

A RUGBY PRACTICE TO-NIGHT

Every Member of The Team Must Be On Hand To-day

There will be a full practice of the Peterborough rugby club to-night at 7.30 o'clock in preparation for the game with Ottawa on Saturday and every man is expected to be on hand as the team must keep in shape. The following are asked to be out in uniform: Mulhern, Crough, Coltedge, Quinlan, Lundy, Clarke, O'Brien, Deannard, Dillon, Dickson, Hurtubise, Fitzgerald, Crowley, O'Connor, Wilkie, Cannift and MacDonald.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

Four of the Ottawa College team are in the hospital as a result of Saturday's game. Nick Bawlf, the great full-back who had his shoulder broken a few weeks ago and just left the hospital, went to the game Saturday, and in the crush that followed had his arm so badly hurt that he had to return to the institution. Street, one of the scrimmage men, had his ankle broken. Capt. Filiattreault, the star wing man, had his hip hurt, and Joron's shoulder is out of gear, and all three are in the hospital.

Dave Hartley left for Toronto yesterday to finish his training there for the big walking match with Jimmy Reynolds in the Queen City on Saturday. The local wonder is in good shape and is confident of beating the Port Hope barber. He will be the guest of his brother-in-law while in Toronto and will do a little training every day this week in preparation for the match. He is not taking long walks, contenting himself with a few miles each day just enough to keep himself loosened up for the contest.

Port Hope and Cobourg will each have intermediate teams in the O.H.A. this season, and with Lindsay in as well there should be a great battle for the group championship. Peterborough should get in line with the other teams of the district, and the struggle would certainly be a warm one.

• • • •

The locals had a good practice last night and will be in the best of shape in the event of having to play Ottawa on Saturday. Most of the team was on hand at Riverside Park and worked hard.

• • • •

That Keene will have a team in the city league this season is a certainty, according to a statement of a resident of that village, who says that the team will hold an organization meeting this week and will make application for admission into the League. They have a number of their old time Trent Valley players this year and should make a good showing.

The cat's out of the bag! The secret of Davy Hartley's swiftness was due to the fact that before starting on his memorable day and a half triumph he anointed his feet with deer's tallow. We often hear of the old expression, "greased lightning," in in reference to extreme speed, and David's feet must have absorbed the fleetness of the deer from the tallow. Though there may be a great deal of merit in this, there must also be muscle and stamina behind it, and though the deer's grease may have aided him, he could never have finished as he did without the more important requisites.

COUNTY POLICE COURT TO-MORROW

A Session Will be Held Before Magistrate Edmison

Two cases will come up in the county police court before Magistrate Edmison to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, Vincent Clancy and Joseph O'Toole will appear on the charge of having unlawfully damaged and destroyed a portion of a fence on lot 29 con. 29, Otonabee. The complainant is Mr. Sidney Garrett. The boy, it is alleged, pulled down some of the boards and made a fire of them, thereby giving the cows in the field liberty to the highway.

The case of Haines v. Bell, which was adjourned from October 26, will also be heard. Wm. O. Haines of Cavendish is charged with the theft of 300 feet of lumber. Richard Bell is complainant.

MR. LARRY CONNORS RETURNED

Had Quiet Outing and Returns to His Route on The Railway

Mr. Harry Connors has returned after two weeks' holidays and has resumed his duties on the street railway as conductor on the George street route with Mr. Jos. Thomas, motorman. Mr. Connors was visiting with friends near Gannon's Narrows and had an enjoyable shoot near Oak Orchard. He went out for small game and had a good time and a pleasant outing.

SAW HIS OPPORTUNITY.

The Reporter Seized It and Got His Real Start In Life.

All the city travelling public loves a strap hanger because it has a fellow feeling for him. This is why the story of how Frank Vanderlip, the banker, got his start has an almost universal appeal. It happened when Vanderlip was a reporter on a Chicago newspaper and writing financial news. The traction situation then, as now, was almost impossible. Charles T. Yerkes was traction dictator, and the stockholders and the public never had a word to say in the conduct of the roads. Nor could they get any definite idea of the financial condition of the properties.

The time for the annual meeting of the stockholders of the principal road came along. At all the meetings Mr. Yerkes had rattled off the reports in the usual undecipherable corporation way, and no one knew what was doing. So Vanderlip planned a coup. He bought a share of stock, which admitted him to the meeting. He had been a stenographer before he became a newspaper man. When Mr. Yerkes sailed into his breezy explanation of finances the young reporter took down everything he said. Mr. Yerkes used one striking phrase, and it was this:

"The passengers who have seats pay the operating expenses, but the strap hangers pay your dividends."

The next day the sentence topped Vanderlip's account of the meeting. It aroused a storm of discussion, for it laid bare some of the traction methods; also it got Vanderlip a raise in salary and a promotion.

Nothing Like That in America.

"This was told me the other day," said a man, "by a friend who has just made the tour of Ireland. He was at the lakes of Killarney, and a jarvey driving one of those side seated cars was telling him of a visitor who was attempting to masquerade as an American, but had all the outward signs of being an Englishman.

"'You say, sorr,' said the jarvey, 'that yez live in the United States. Were yez iver in Dubuque, Ia.?'

"'I was,' said the traveler. 'I was there for a fortnight.'

"'Off wid ye!' said the carman. 'Ye were niver there. Divil a fortnight do they have in America.'"

MEETING OF PARK STREET YOUNG PEOPLE

Successful Evening Held Monday Night At Park Street Baptist Church

The expectations of the young people of the Park Street Baptist Church were more than met on Monday evening at their social, for they succeeded in filling the building with young life, a very imposing sight and a most profitable programme. The president, Mrs. Chas. Barrie, very ably filled the chair. A most acceptable duet was rendered by Mrs. Jewett and Mr. Jas. Tranter. Miss Hill followed with a very pathetic recitation which made a profound impression.

Rev. A. H. Brace, in a short speech, introduced Principal Dunlop of the Kind Edward School, who gave an address on "Wanted — Men for Gideon's Band." The address was scriptural and intensely practical, and Mr. Dunlop received the hearty thanks of the young people.

Miss Kidd of the Murray Street Church favoured the gathering with a solo in good form, which was encored. Mr. Jas. Tranter also rendered a solo by request, "When the Spirit Comes to You."

The interesting gathering then formed into small groups, and dainty refreshments were then served. The B.Y.P.U. is to be congratulated on the deserved success of its social.

BRIDGENORTH FOLKS SEE A WOLF

Great Excitment in the Village—Threshing Machine Smashed

Examiner Special

Bridgenorth, Nov. 19.—One of the young men in the vicinity who was taking a stroll in a swamp about a mile south of the village, saw what he claims was a wolf, wandering alongside a creek. He says that if he had had his rifle he could easily have shot the wolf, as he was within rifle range, but had to let it go. It has not been seen since.

Kelly Bros. are busy fitting up an outdoor skating rink. They are going to force the water from the lake through pipes to the rink, using the engine in the grist mill for this purpose.

The lake got a coat of ice last Friday night, but this fine weather will be very apt to rob it of its garb.

Mr. R. Hurd had a smash-up with his threshing outfit last Friday, which has delayed operations for a few days until it is repaired. He has a lot of threshing to do yet.

CHIEF OFFERS DEMATEO HANDCUFFS

If Demateo Can Open Police Handcuffs He Will be Presented With Them

Can M. Demateo open the handcuffs belonging to the police authorities here? This is a question that is asked by every person who went to the opera house on Monday night to see this mysterious individual open the handcuffs belonging to the police and placed on him by P C Newhall. The police officer did not attend the performance, having instructions from the Chief not to do so.

In conversation with the Chief and another policeman yesterday, the Examiner was informed that the authorities here will present to M. Demateo or any person else a pair of nickel plated handcuffs, now the property of Chief Roussel, if they can free themselves from these handcuffs. The conditions surrounding this challenge are these. That the person shall try for the prize in the police station with the chief and a friend of the contestant as judges. Secondly that no keys, wires, etc. shall be used in the operation.

Here is an excellent chance for this expert Demateo to add another pair of handcuffs to his large store. The Chief is perfectly willing to allow publication of the feat, when it is accomplished, and should the contestant fail there will be nothing said about it.

ON THE THEATRICAL QUESTION

"Church Goer" Writes to Examiner in Connection With Recent Sermon

QUESTION OF AMUSEMENT

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir, — What is the difference between a theatre in a church building and in opera house building? If the pulpit hits at the theatre in the opera house would it not be better to take the beam out of the eye of the Christian church, before it attempts to take the mote out of her brother's eye? If I am to judge, I would like to ask if all this entertainment and singing in our churches is for the glory of God? Is it not rather for show and affectation? What kind of worship is this? "True worship is of the heart." Is not the church of to-day a place of buying and selling and feasting? Where is the Christ of to-day to drive out the money changers? There are many people in Peterborough looking for Christ in the so-called Christian churches, but fail to find Him. They say, "Come ye out from among the ungodly and be ye separate." Have they not great reason to say this. God is love. Do we find that love in the Christian church? Have not our churches degenerated into a bundle of formalities, creeds and ceremonies? I think that if God's Spirit moved upon the so-called Christian people with an outpouring of His Holy Spirit it would not be a very difficult thing for them to decide to keep away from horse racing, man racing, lacrosse matches, dancing, card playing and other questionable amusements. The preacher would not have to tell them to keep away.

Yours truly,

CHURCH-GOER.

HUNTERS SHOULD BE CAREFUL

Teeney Party Return—Hunters Hold Service in Muskoka Church—How Accidents Would be Avoided

Mr. R. A. Elliott, one of the hunters who returned on Saturday from the north, tells of the little chance of danger from shooting in the woods stating that it is almost impossible to mistake a man for a deer. If every hunter would exercise the least precaution, he could not understand why a human life should be lost. He strongly objected to hunters going into the woods with a cartridge in the barrel of a rifle, because a man is liable to fall or stumble, and if his rifle should be discharged there is no telling where it may strike. He said that none of his party would ever fire unless they something to fire at. Some hunters will fire into a clump of bushes in the hope that there may be a deer hidden among them. Mr. Elliott told of an incident when he was positive that there was a deer behind a certain bush. He steadily crept along until he came up to it. The crashing of a twig showed the deer that they were being followed, and four of the finest he had ever seen struck off through the forest before he could raise his rifle. The hunter stated that if he had taken the risk of firing a shot into that bush he would have had another deer to hang up that night.

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE MEETING

Was Held at Mount Julian—The Officers Of The Institute

SOME PERSONAL ITEMS

Examiner Special

Mount Julian, Nov. 18—The November meeting of the Mount Julian Women's Institute was a very successful one. Owing to the unavoidable absence of the president and the vice-president, the chair was taken by Mrs. Albert Reid. The meeting opened by the singing of "God Save the King." Then the minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Miss Jessie Reid, and accepted.

The topic for the day was the "Preserving and Pickling of Sweet Apples," taken in an interesting manner by Mrs. Wellie Sanderson, and a lively discussion followed by the other members. Papers on "A Young Girl's Duty at Home" were read by Mrs. Lauder and Mrs. Wm. Church.

A motion was made to send the president and secretary to the convention at Guelph in December, and carried.

After the business of the meeting was over Misses Sanderson, Reid and Wigg sang "My Old Kentucky Home," followed by mouthorgan solos from Miss Millie Reid and Miss Addie Wigg.

The meeting closed by all singing "The Maple Leaf Forever."

This Institute was opened in July of this year by Miss Carter from Guelph. The directors are Mrs. Albert Reid, Mrs. Lauder and Mrs. Clarke Stone.

Pres.—Miss Emma Reid.

Vice-Pres.—Mrs. Jos. Northy.

Sec.-Treas.—Miss Jessie Reid.

One meeting is held every month, and a regular programme carried out. There are now 22 members, with an average attendance of about 15. Two magazines, "The Ladies' Home Journal" and "Good Housekeeping," are taken, and each member is given a copy of the hand-book used in Woman's Institutes. The meetings are held in turn at the homes of each of the members, and tea is served at the close. The fee for each member is 25 cents per annum.

Mr. Wm. Northy, who was unfortunately burned out last May, has built a nice new home again. His son, W. T. Northy, has also built one.

Mr. Jas. Reid is building a large addition to his house.

Mr. Alex. Reid, near Mount Julian wharf, has been building chimneys and sheeting his house.

Mr. Hopkins left Bosebink on the 14th for his home in Boston, the last of the summer tourists to leave Stony Lake.

Mrs. W. M. Church has been up to close her cottage, "Cedar Brae," Mount Julian, for the winter, and visit relatives in the neighbourhood.

CURED AT HOME

Your physician will tell you that if his patients used a little precaution and attended to their ailments in time his profession would not have so many wealthy members. Those pains in the back denote kidney trouble, the liver is out of order, or the urinary organs are affected. The following prescription, which you can make at home very inexpensively, would relieve all such ailments with a few doses. Get at your drug store one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce of compound vimosa, and four ounces syrup rhubarb. Mix and take in dessert spoonful doses in a little water after meals and at bedtime.—S.

"You're a bit of a humbug, Dorothy."

"Why?"

"I don't know why, but you are. No, it was not a case of love at first sight. It was a case of feminine vengeance. Yes, you may look surprised, but I'm telling the truth. After I walked so proudly off with his high mightiness we had a most agreeable dance together. Then I proposed to return to you, but the young man would not have it so, and for the moment I felt flattered. By and by I became aware, however, that it was not because of my company he avoided your vicinity, but that he was sacrificing himself for his friend."

"What friend?"

"Lieutenant Drummond, of course."

"How was he sacrificing himself for Lieutenant Drummond?"

"I surmise that the tall lieutenant did not fall a victim to my wiles as I had at first supposed; but, in some unaccountable manner, one can never tell how these things happen. He was most anxious to be left alone with the coy Miss Dorothy Amhurst, who does not understand how long a time it takes to fall in love at first sight, although she has read of these things, dear, innocent girl. The first villain of the piece has said to the second villain of the piece: 'There's a superfluous young woman over on our bench; I'll introduce you to her. You lure her off to the giddy dance and keep her away as long as you can, and I'll do as much for you some day.'

"Whereupon Jack Lamont probably swore—I understand that profanity is sometimes distressingly prevalent aboard ship—but nevertheless he allowed the lieutenant to lead him like a lamb to the slaughter. Well, not being powerful enough to throw him overboard when I realized the state of the case, I did the next best thing. I became cloyingly sweet to him. I smiled upon him; I listened to his farrago of nonsense about the chemical components of his various notable inventions, as if a girl attends a ball to study chemistry! Before half an hour had passed the infant had come to the conclusion that here was the first really sensible woman he had ever met. He soon got to making love to me, as the horrid phrase goes, as if love were a mixture to be compounded of this ingredient and that, and then shaken before taken. I am delighted to add, as a testimony to my own powers of pleasing, that Jack soon forgot he was a sacrifice, and, really, with a little instruction he would become a most admirable flirt. He is coming to call upon me this afternoon, and then he will get his eyes opened. I shall tread on him as if he were one of his own moujiks."

"What a wonderful imagination you have, Kate. All you have said is pure fancy. I saw he was taken with you from the very first. He never even glanced at me."

"Of course not; he wasn't allowed to."

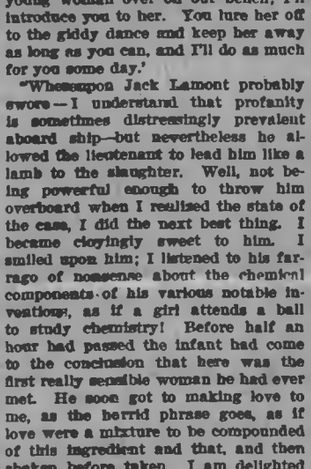
"Nonsense, Kate. If I thought for a moment you were really in earnest I should say you underestimate your own attractions."

"Oh, that's all very well, Miss Dorothy Dimple. You are trying to draw a red herring across the trail because you know that what I want to hear is why Lieutenant Drummond was so anxious to get me somewhere else. What use did he make of the opportunity the good natured prince and my sweet complacency afforded him?"

"He said nothing which might not have been overheard by any one."

"Come down to particulars, Dorothy, and let me judge. You are so inexperienced, you know, that it is well to take counsel with a more sophisticated friend."

"I don't just remember"—



"The prince has come."

"No, I thought you wouldn't. Did he talk of himself or of you?"

"Of himself, of course. He told me why he was going to Russia and spoke of some checks he had met in his profession."

"Ah! Did he cash them?"

"Obstacles—difficulties that were in his way, which he hoped to overcome."

"Oh, I see. And did you extend that sympathy which"—

There was a knock at the door, and the maid came in, bearing a card.

"Good gracious me!" cried Katherine, jumping to her feet. "The prince has come. What a stupid thing that we have no mirror in this room, and it's a sewing and sitting room too. Do I look all right, Dorothy?"

"To me you seem perfection."

"Ah, well, I can glance at a glass on the next floor. Won't you come down and see him trampled on?"

"No, thank you. I shall most likely drop off to sleep and enjoy forty winks in this very comfortable chair. Don't be too harsh with the young man, Kate. You are quite wrong in your surmises about him. The lieutenant never made any such arrangement as you suggest, because he talked of nothing but the most commonplace subjects all the time I was with him, as I was just about to tell you, only you seem in such a hurry to get away."

"Oh, that doesn't deceive me in the least. I'll be back shortly, with the young man's scalp dangling at my belt. Now we shan't be long," and with that Katherine went skipping downstairs.

Dorothy picked up a magazine that lay on the table and for a few moments turned its leaves from one story to another, trying to interest herself, but failing. Then she lifted the newspaper that lay at her feet, but it also was soon cast aside, and she leaned back in her chair, with half closed eyes, looking out at the cruiser in the bay. A slight haze arose between her and the ship, thickening and thickening until at last it obscured the vessel.

Dorothy was oppressed by a sense of something forgotten, and she strove in vain to remember what it was. It was of the utmost importance, she was certain, and this knowledge made her mental anxiety the greater.

At last out of the gloom she saw Sabina approach, clothed in rags, and then a flash of intuition enabled her to grasp the difficulty. Through her remissness the ball dress was unfinished, and the girl, springing to her feet, turned intuitively to the sewing machine, when the ringing laugh of Katherine dissolved the fog.

"Why, you poor girl, what's the matter with you? Are you sitting down to drudgery again? You've forgotten the fortune!"

"Are—are you back already?" cried Dorothy, somewhat wildly.

"Already! Why, bless me, I've been away an hour and a quarter! You dear girl, you've been asleep and in slavery again!"

"I think I was," admitted Dorothy, with a sigh.

CHAPTER VI.

THREE days later the north Atlantic squadron of the British navy sailed down the coast from Halifax, did not even pause at Bar Harbor, but sent a wireless telegram to the Consternation, which pulled up anchor and joined the fleet outside, and so the warships departed for another port.

Katherine stood by the broad window in the sewing room in her favorite attitude, her head sideways against the pane, her eyes languidly gazing upon the bay, fingers drumming this time a very slow march on the window sill. Dorothy sat in a rocking chair reading a letter for the second time. There had been silence in the room for some minutes, accentuated rather than broken by the quiet drumming of the girl's fingers on the window sill. Finally Katherine breathed a deep sigh and murmured to herself:

"Far called our navy fades away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire.
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!

I wonder if I've got the lines right," she whispered to herself. She had forgotten there was any one else in the room and was quite startled when Dorothy spoke.

"Kate, that's a solemn change, from Gilbert to Kipling. I always judge your mood by your quotations. Has life suddenly become too serious for 'Pinafore' or the 'Mikado?'"

"Oh, I don't know," said Katherine, without turning round. "They are humorous all, and so each furnishes something suitable for the saddened mind. Wisdom comes through understanding your alphabet properly. For instance, first there was Gilbert, and that gave us G; then came Kipling, and he gave us K; thus we get an algebraic formula, G. K., which are the initials of Chesterton, a stiff after arrival, and as the mind increases in despondency it sinks lower and lower down the alphabet until it comes to S, and thus we have Barn-yard Shaw, an improvement on the Kail-yard school, who takes the O pshaw view of life. And relaxing hold of him I sink deeper until I come to W—W. W. Jacobs. How I wish he wrote poetry! He should be the humorist of all sailors, and perhaps some time he will desert barges for battleships. Then I shall read him with increased enjoyment."

"I wouldn't give Mark Twain for the lot," commented Dorothy, with decision.

"Mark Twain isn't yours to give, my dear. He belongs to me also. You've forgotten that comparisons are odious. Our metier is not to compare, but to take what pleases us from each.

"How doth the little busy bee
Improve each shining hour
And gather honey all the day
From every opening flower.

Watts. You see, I'm still down among the W's. Oh, Dorothy, how can you sit there so placidly when the Consternation has just faded from sight? Selfish creature!

"Oh, give me tears for others' woes
And patience for mine own!

I don't know who wrote that, but you have no tears for others' woes, merely greeting them with ribald laughter," for Dorothy, with the well read letter in her hand, was making the rafters ring with her merriment, something that had never before happened during her long tenancy of that room. Kate turned her head slowly round, and the expression on her face was half indignant, half humorous, while her eyes were uncertain weather prophets and gave equal indication of sunshine or rain.

"Why, Katherine, you look like a tragedy queen, rather than the spirit of comedy! Is it really a case of 'Tit-willow, tit-willow, tit-willow?' You see, I'm a-rescuing you from the bottom of the alphabet and bringing you up to the Gilbert plane, where I am more accustomed to you, and understand you better. Is this despondency due to the departure of the Consternation and the fact that she carries away with her Jack Lamont, blacksmith?"

The long sigh terminated in a woeful "Yes."

"The ship that has gone out with him we call she. If he had eloped with a real she, then wearing the willow or singing it, however futile, might be understandable. As it is I see nothing in the situation to call for a sigh."

"That is because you are a hardened sinner, Dorothy. You have no heart, or at least if you have it is untouched and therefore you cannot understand. If that note in your hand were a love missive instead of a letter from your lawyers, you would be more human, Dorothy."

The hand which held the paper crumpled it up slightly as Katherine spoke.

"Business letters are quite necessary and belong to the world we live in," said Dorothy, a glow of brighter color suffusing her cheeks. "Surely your acquaintance with Mr. Lamont is of the shortest."

"He has called upon me every day since the night of the ball," maintained Katherine stoutly.

"Well, that's only three times."

"Only three! How you talk! One would think you had never been schooled in mathematics. Why, three is a magic figure. You can do plenty of amazing things with it. Don't you know that three is a numeral of love?"

"I thought two was the number," chimed Dorothy, with heartless mirth.

"Three," said Katherine taking one last look at the empty horison, then seating herself in front of her friend—"three is a recurring decimal. It goes on and on and on forever, and if you write it for a thousand years you are still as far from the end as when you began. It will carry you round the world and back again and never diminish. It is the mathematical emblem of the nature of true love."

"Is it so serious as all that, Kate, or are you just fooling again?" asked Dorothy, more soberly than heretofore. "Has he spoken to you?"

"Spoken? He has done nothing but speak, and I have listened—oh, so intently and with such deep understanding. He has never before met such a woman as I and has frankly told me so."

"I am very glad he appreciates you, dear."

"Yes, you see, Dorothy, I am really much deeper than the ordinary woman. Who, for instance, could find such a beautiful love simile from a book of arithmetic costing 25 cents as I have unearthed from decimal fractions? With that example in mind, how can you doubt that other volumes of college learning reveal to me their inner meaning? John presented to me as he said goodby a beautifully bound copy of that celebrated text book, 'Saunders' Analytical Chemistry,' with particularly tender passages marked in pencil by his own dear hand."

Rather bewildered, for Kate's expression was one of pathos, unrelieved by any gleam of humor, Dorothy nevertheless laughed, although the laugh brought no echo from Katherine.

"And did you give him a volume of Browning in return?"

"No, I didn't. How can you be so unsympathetic? Is it impossible for you to comprehend the unseen link that binds John and me? I rummaged the book store until I found a charming little edition of 'Marshall's Geologist's Pocket Companion' covered with beautiful brown limp Russia leather—I thought the Russia binding was so inspirational—with a sweet little clasp that keeps it closed—typical of our hands at parting. On the flyleaf I wrote, 'To J. L., in remembrance of many interesting conversations with his friend, K. K.' It only needed another K to be emblematic and political, a reminiscence of the olden times, when you people of the south, Dorothy, were making it hot for us deserving folks in the north. I hadn't time to go through the book very thoroughly, but I found many references to limestone, which I marked, and one particularly choice bit of English relating to the dissolution and reconsolidation of various minerals I drew a parallelogram around in red ink. A friend of mine in a motor launch was good enough to take the little parcel direct to the Consternation, and I have no doubt that at this moment Jack is perusing it and perhaps thinking of the giver. I hope it's up to date and that he had not previously bought a copy."

"You don't mean to say, Kate, that your conversation was entirely about geology?"

"Certainly not. How could you have become imbued with an idea so absurd? We had many delightful dalliances down the romantic groves of chemistry, heart to heart talks on metallurgy, and once—ah, shall I ever forget it?—while the dusk gently infolded us and I gazed into those bright, speaking, intelligent eyes of his as he bent nearer and nearer, while his low, sonorous voice in well chosen words pictured to me the promise which fortified cement holds out to the world—that is, ignorant person, portland cement strengthened by ribs of steel—and I sat listening breathless as his glowing phrases prophesied the future of this combination."

Katherine closed her eyes, rocked gently back and forth and crooned, almost inaudibly:

"When you gang awa, Jimmie,
Faur across the sea, laddie,
When ye gang to Russian lands,
What will ye send to me, laddie?

I know what I shall get. It will probably be a newly discovered recipe for the compounding of cement which will do away with the necessity of steel strengthening."

"Kate, dear, you are overdoing it. It is quite right that woman should be a mystery to man, but she should not aspire to become a mystery to her sister woman. Are you just making fun or is there something in all this more serious than your words imply?"

"Like the steel strengthening in the cement, it may be there, but you can't see it, and you can't touch it, but it makes—oh, such a difference to the slab! Heigho, Dorothy, let us forsake these hard headed subjects and turn to something human! What have your lawyers been bothering you about? No trouble over the money, is there?"

Dorothy shook her head.

"No. Of course there are various matters they have to consult me about and get my consent to this project or the other."

"Read the letter. Perhaps my mathematical mind can be of assistance to you."

Dorothy had concealed the letter and did not now produce it.

"It is with reference to your assistance, and your continued assistance, that I wish to speak to you. Let us follow the example of the cement and the steel and form a compact. In one respect I am going to imitate the Consternation. I leave Bar Harbor next week."

Katherine sat up in her chair, and her eyes opened wide.

"What's the matter with Bar Harbor?" she asked.

"You can answer that question better than I, Kate. The Kempt family are not visitors, but live here all the year round. What do you think is the matter with Bar Harbor?"

"I confess it's a little dull in the winter time, and in all seasons it is situated a considerable distance from New York. Where do you intend to go, Dorothy?"

"That will depend largely on where my friend Kate advises me to go, because I shall take her with me if she will come."

"Companion, lady's maid, parlor maid, maid of all work, cook, governess, typewriter girl—which have I to be? Shall I get one afternoon a week off, and may my young man come and see me, if I happen to secure one, and, extremely important, what are the wages?"

"You shall fix your own salary, Kate, and my lawyer men will arrange that the chosen sum is settled upon you so that if we fall out we can quarrel on equal terms."

"Oh, I see, it's an adopted daughter I am to be, then."

"An adopted sister rather."

"Do you think I am going to take advantage of my friendship with an heiress and so pension myself off?"

"It is I who am taking the advantage," said Dorothy, "and I beg you to take compassion rather than advantage upon a lone creature who has no kith or kin in the world."

"Do you really mean it, Dot?"

"Of course I do. Should I propose it if I didn't?"

"Well, this is the first proposal I've ever had, and I believe it is customary to say on those occasions that it is so sudden or so unexpected, and time is required for consideration."

Tired, Nervous Mothers

Make Unhappy Homes—Their Condition Irritates Both Husband and Children—How Thousands of Mothers Have Been Saved From Nervous Prostration and Made Strong and Well.

Mrs Albert Mann — Mrs Chester Curry

A nervous, irritable mother, often on the verge of hysterics, is unfit to care for children; it ruins a child's disposition and reacts upon herself. The trouble between children and their mothers too often is due to the fact that the mother has some female weakness, and she is entirely unfit to bear the strain upon her nerves that governing children involves; it is impossible for her to do anything calmly.

The ills of women act like a firebrand upon the nerves, consequently nine-tenths of the nervous prostration, nervous despondency, "the blues" sleeplessness, and nervous irritability of women arise from some derangement of the female organism.

Do you experience fits of depression with restlessness, alternating with extreme irritability? Are your spirits easily affected, so that one minute you laugh, and the next minute you feel like crying?

Do you feel something like a ball rising in your throat and threatening to choke you; all the senses perverted, morbidly sensitive to light and sound; pain in the abdominal region, and between the shoulders; bearing-down pains; nervous dyspepsia, and almost continually cross and snappy?

If so, your nerves are in a shattered condition, and you are threatened with nervous prostration.

Proof is monumental that nothing in the world is better for nervous prostration than Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; thousands and thousands of women can testify to this fact.

Mrs. Chester Curry, Leader of the Ladies' Symphony Orchestra, 42 Saratoga St., East Boston, Mass., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"For eight years I was troubled with extreme nervousness and hysteria brought on by irregularities. I could neither enjoy life nor sleep nights. I was very irritable, nervous and despondent.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended and proved to be the only remedy that helped me. I have daily improved in health until I am now strong and well, and all nervousness has disappeared."

The following letter is from Mrs. Albert Mann, 154 Gore Vale Ave., Toronto, Ont.:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I suffered a long time with serious female trouble having intense pains in the back and abdomen and very sick headaches every month. I was tired and nervous all the time and life looked very dreary to me and I had no desire to live until I began to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and to get some relief. My recovery was slow but it was sure and I have never regretted the money spent for the Compound as it brought back my good health."

Women should remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine that holds the record for the greatest number of actual cures of female ills, and take no substitute.

Free Advice to Women.

Mrs. Pinkham, daughter-in-law of Lydia E. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., invites all sick women to write to her for advice. Mrs. Pinkham's vast experience with female troubles enables her to advise you wisely, and she will charge you nothing for her advice.

Now, you have scorned my side of the river, and I have objected to your side of the river. That is the bad beginning whic., let us hope, makes the good ending. Who is to arbitrate in our dispute?"

"Why, we'll split the difference, of course."

"How can we do that? Live in a houseboat on the river like Frank Stockton's 'Rudder Grange?'"

"No; settle in the city of New York, which is practically an island in the Hudson."

"Would you like to live in New York?"

"Wouldn't I! Imagine any one having the chance living anywhere else!"

"In a hotel, I suppose—the Haildorf for choice."

"Yes; we could live in a hotel until we found the ideal flat, high up in a nice apartment house, with a view like that from the top of Mount Washington or from the top of the Washington monument."

"But you forget I made one proviso in the beginning, and that is that I am going to build a church, and the church is to be situated not in the city of New York, but in the village of Haverstock."

"New York is just the place from which to construct such an edifice. Haverstock will be somewhere near the West Shore railway. Very well. We can take a trip up there once a week or oftener, if you like, and see how the work is progressing. Then the people of Haverstock will respect us. As we drive from the station they'll say:

"'There's the two young ladies from New York who are building the church.'

"But if we settle down among them they'll think we're only ordinary villagers instead of the distinguished persons we are. Or, while our flat is being made ready we could live at one of the big hotels in the Catskills and come down as often as we like on the inclined railway. Indeed, until the weather gets colder the Catskills is the place.

And, lo, the Catskills priat the distant sky,
And o'er their airy tops the faint clouds driven,
So softly blending that the cheated eye
Forgets or which is earth or which is heaven."

"That ought to carry the day for the Catskills, Kate. What sort of habitation shall we choose, a big hotel or a select private boarding house?"

"Oh, a big hotel, of course—the biggest there is, whatever its name may be—one of those whose rates are so high that the proprietor daren't advertise them, but says in his announcement, 'For terms apply to the manager.' It must have ample grounds, support an excellent band and advertise a renowned cuisine. Your room at least should have a private balcony, on which you can place a telescope and watch the building of your church down below. I, being a humble person in a subordinate position, should have a balcony also to make up for those deficiencies."

"Very well, Kate; that's settled. But, although two lone women may set up housekeeping in a New York flat, they cannot very well go alone to a fashionable hotel."

"Oh, yes, we can. Best of references given and required."

"I was going to suggest," pursued Dorothy, not noticing the interruption, "that we invite your father and mother to accompany us. They might enjoy a change from sea air to mountain air."

Katherine frowned a little and demurred.

"Are you going to be fearfully conventional, Dorothy?"

"We must pay some attention to the conventions, don't you think?"

"I had hoped not. I yearn to be a bachelor girl and own a latchkey."

"We shall each possess a latchkey when we settle down in New York. Our flat will be our castle, and, although our latchkey will let us in, our Yale lock will keep other people out. A noted summer resort calls for different treatment, because there we lead a semipublic life. Besides, I am selfish enough to wish my coming out to be under the auspices of so well known a man as Captain Kempt."

"All right; I'll see what they say about it. You don't want Sabina, I take it."

"Yes, if she will consent to come."

"I doubt if she will, but I'll see. Besides, now that I come to think about it, it's only fair I should allow my doting parents to know that I am about to desert them."

With that Katherine quitted the room and went down the stairs hippety-hop.

Dorothy drew the letter from its place of concealment and read it for the third time, although one not interested might have termed it a most commonplace document. It began, "Dear Miss Amhurst," and ended, "Yours most sincerely, Alan Drummond." It gave some account of his doings since he bade goodby to her. A sailor, he informed her, needs little time for packing his belongings, and on the occasion in question the prince had been of great assistance. They set out together for the early morning train and said "au revoir" at the station. Drummond had intended to sail from New York, but a friendly person whom he met on the train informed him that the Liverpool liner Enthusiana set out from Boston next day, so he had abandoned the New York idea and had taken passage on the liner named, on whose note paper he wrote the letter, which epistle was once more concealed as Dorothy heard Katherine's light step on the stair.

That impulsive young woman burst into the sewing room.

"We're all going," she cried—"father, mother and Sabina. It seems father has had an excellent offer to let the house furnished till the end of September, and he says that as he likes high life he will put in the time on the top of the Catskills. He abandons me and says that if he can borrow a shilling he is going to cut me off with it in his will. He regrets the departure of the British fleet, because he thinks he might have been able to raise a real English shilling aboard. Dad only insists on one condition—namely, that he is to pay for himself, mother and Sabina, so he does not want a room with a balcony. I said that in spite of his disinheritance I'd help the family out of my salary, and so he is going to reconsider the changing of his will."

"We will settle the conditions when we reach the Catskills," said Dorothy, smiling.

CHAPTER VII.

CAPTAIN and Mrs. Kempt, with Sabina, had resided a week in the Matterhorn hotel before the two girls arrived there. They had gone direct to New York, and it required the seven days to find a flat that suited them, of which they were to take possession on the 1st of October. Then there were the lawyers to see, a great many business details to settle and an architect to consult. After leaving New York the girls spent a day at Haverstock, where Dorothy Amhurst bought a piece of land as shrewdly as if she had been in the real estate business all her life. After this transaction the girls drove to the station on the line connecting with the inclined railway and so, as Katherine remarked, were "wafted to the skies on flowery beds of ease," which she explained to her shocked companion was all right because it was a quotation from a hymn. When at last they reached their hotel, Katherine was in ecstasies.

"Isn't this heavenly?" she cried. "And, indeed, it ought to be, for I understand we are 3,000 feet higher than we were in New York, and even the skyscrapers can't compete with such an altitude."

The broad valley of the Hudson lay spread beneath them, stretching as far as the eye could see, shimmering in the thin, bluish veil of a summer evening, and miles away the river itself could be traced like a silver ribbon.

The gallant captain, who had been energetically browbeaten by his younger daughter and threatened with divers pains and penalties should he fail to pay attention and take heed to instructions, had acquitted himself with eclat in the selection of rooms for Dorothy and his daughter. The suit was situated in one corner of the huge caravansary, a large parlor occupying the angle, with windows on one side looking into the forest and on the other giving an extended view across the valley. The front room adjoining the parlor was to be Dorothy's very own, and the end room belonged to Katherine, he said, as long as she behaved herself. If Dorothy ever wished to evict her strenuous neighbor, all she had to do was to call upon the captain, and he would lend his aid, at which proffer of assistance Katherine tossed her head and said she would try the room for a week and if she didn't like it out Dorothy would have to go.

There followed days and nights of revelry—hops, concerts, entertainments of all sorts, with a more pretentious ball on Saturday night, when the week-tired man from New York arrived in the afternoon to find temperature 20 degrees lower and the altitude very much higher than was the case in his busy office in the city. Katherine revaled in this round of excitement, and, indeed, so, in a milder way, did Dorothy. After the functions were over the girls enjoyed a comforting chat with one another in their drawing room, all windows open, and the moon a-shining down over the luminous valley, which it seemed to fill with mother of pearl dust.

Young J. K. Henderson danced repeatedly with Katherine.

Young J. K. Henderson of New York, having danced repeatedly with Katherine on Saturday night, unexpectedly turned up for the hop on the following Wednesday, when he again danced repeatedly with the same joyous girl. It being somewhat unusual for a keen business man to take a four hours' journey during an afternoon in the middle of the week and as a consequence arrive late at his office next morning, Dorothy began to wonder if a concrete formation, associated with the name of Prince Ivan Lermontoff of Russia, was strong enough to stand an energetic assault of this nature, supposing it were to be constantly repeated. It was after midnight on Wednesday when the two reached the corner parlor. Dorothy sat in a cane armchair, while Katherine threw herself into a rocking chair, laced her fingers behind her head and gazed through the open window at the misty infinity beyond.

"Well," sighed Katherine, "this has been the most enjoyable evening I ever spent."

"Are you quite sure?" inquired her friend.

"Certainly. Shouldn't I know?"

"He dances well, then?"

"Exquisitely."

"Better than Jack Lamont?"

"Well, now you mention him, I must confess Jack danced very creditably."

"I didn't know but you might have forgotten the prince."

"No, I haven't exactly forgotten him, but—I do think he might have written to me."

"Oh, that's it, is it? Did he ask your permission to write?"

"Good gracious, no! We never talked of writing. Old red sandstone, rather, was our topic of conversation. Still he might have acknowledged receipt of the book."

"But the book was given to him in return for the one he presented to you."

"Yes, I suppose it was. I hadn't thought of that."

"Then again, Kate, Russian notions regarding writing to young ladies may differ from ours, or he may have fallen overboard or touched a live wire."

"Yes, there are many possibilities," murmured Katherine dreamily.

"It seems rather strange that Mr. Henderson should have time to come up here in the middle of the week."

"Why is it strange?" asked Katherine. "Mr. Henderson is not a clerk bound down to office hours. He's an official high up in one of the big insurance companies and gets a simply tremendous salary."

"Really? Does he talk as well as Jack Lamont did?"

"He talks less like the Troy Technical institute and more like the Home Journal than poor Prince Jack did, and, then, he has a much greater sense of humor. When I told him that the oath of an insurance man should be 'bet your life!' he laughed. Now, Jack would never have seen the point of that. Anyhow, the hour is too late and I am too sleepy to worry about young men or jokes either. Good night!"

Next morning's mail brought Dorothy a bulky letter decorated with English stamps. She locked the door, tore open the envelope and found many sheets of thin paper bearing the heading of the Bluewater club, Pall Mall.

"I am reminded of an old adage," she read, "to the effect that one should never cross a bridge before arriving at it. Since I bade goodby to you up to this very evening I have been plodding over a bridge that didn't exist, much to my own discomfort. You were with me when I received the message ordering me home to England, and I don't know whether or not I succeeded in suppressing all signs of my own perturbation, but we have in the navy now a man who does not hesitate to overturn a court martial, and so I feared a reopening of the Rock in the Baltic question, which might have meant the wrecking of my career. I had quite made up my mind, if the worst came to the worst, to go out west and become a cowboy, but a passenger with whom I became acquainted on the Enthusiana informed me, to my regret, that the cowboy is largely a being of the past, to be met with only in the writings of Stewart Edward White, Owen Wister and several other famous men whom he named. So you see I went across the ocean tolerably depressed, finding my present occupation threatened and my future uncertain.

"When I arrived in London, I took a room at this club, of which I have been a member for some years, and reported immediately at the admiralty. But there, in spite of all diligence on my part, I was quite unable to learn what was wanted of me. Of course I could have gone to my uncle, who is in the government, and perhaps he might have enlightened me, although he has nothing to do with the navy, but I rather like to avoid Uncle Matgarna. He brought me up since I was a small boy and seems unnecessarily ashamed of the result. It is his son who is the attache in St. Petersburg that I spoke to you about."

FERROZONE

Miss Dorothy E. Ledue of Chester gives the following convincing evidence of Ferrozone's power:—"My work compels me to rise early in the morning and work ten hours daily as a milliner. Last Spring I was run down, lost my color, and fell off in weight. I got used to lack ambition and the life was out of me. A friend recommended Ferrozone, and I took one tablet after meals with wonderful results. Ferrozone brought back my complexion, and has given me new strength and abundance of energy and spirits. I would advise all young ladies to use Ferrozone."

Mrs. H. G. Wilder of Dexter says—"My daughter was not very well last Winter, and lost her strength completely when the Spring came. I gave her Ferrozone, and am glad to say it did wonders. After six boxes were used my daughter was strong, and looked the picture of health."

BEER* BENEFITS THE WHOLE BODY
(NO OTHER FOOD-BEVERAGE DOES THAT MUCH)

NOT six people in a thousand (and those six have either diabetes or gouty tendencies) can get anything but real good from the use of good beer with their meals. Because that kind of beer (and no other kind is brewed in Ontario) benefits the whole body of the normal adult,—enriches the blood, vitalizes the stomach, makes kidneys and liver active, builds flesh and betters nerves.

Beer Is Not A Mere Tonic

Good beer, drank with meals and at bedtime, is not merely a tonic—for a tonic simply gets one part of the system to work better for a while, by stimulating its activity, while beer, rightly used, does the whole system permanent good.

Beer Builds Up Thin Folks

That is why good beer is such a notable flesh-builder, and why it is so effective in changing the too-white blood of aenemic people into the red, strong, healthy blood of the vigorous. It has qualities that are very valuable to women, especially. It is distinctly NOT an intoxicant, nor a hurtful stimulant. Ask your doctor if beer wouldn't be good for you as an item of daily diet.

* BEER is a term which covers lager, ale, porter and stout; and, in the practice of Ontario brewers, implies beverages made under most hygienic conditions from Ontario barley (the best in the world) malt, hops, and pure water. 205

SEWING HINTS.

When making a skirt it is always best to try it on first time on the wrong side, then reverse it and finish on the right side.

Needles should never be kept in flannel lined needlebooks, as sulphur often enters into the composition of this material. Sulphur invariably rusts the needles in time.

Metal eyes which protrude beyond the edge of the material—where a hook and eye fastening is employed—should always be carefully and neatly covered with buttonhole stitching.

Bent pieces of whalebone can be strengthened by being placed in cold water for two or three hours. This will make them pliable. They should then be pressed under a heavy weight.

The Appreciative Word.

This old world would be a happier place if we made it a habit to tell our friends of the nice things we hear about them. We all know how pleasant it is to hear things of that sort.

The employer who appreciates and occasionally praises the work of his employee gets far better results than the one who never takes the trouble to recognise the well meant efforts of those whom he employs.

It is so in every kind of work.

The mistress who praises work well done earns the affection and willing service of those she employs. Do not praise where no praise is due, but keep your eyes open, and you will find something praiseworthy in almost every one.

KIDDING THE PERFORMANCE.

Once there grew up alongside of a Railroad Track an overgrown Village that refused to be called a Town, so it was known as a City. It had a Water Tower, a Court-House Park, and a Steam Laundry. On the Main Street was a Business College where the Yokels learned in nine weeks how to be Merchant Princes. Also a Trolley Line that ran as far out as the Cemetery and then threw up both Hands. The Particular Pride of the Place was a $2.50 Hotel with a Tiled Floor and a Ladies' Parlor so Magnificent that no one had been known to use it.

All the Residents of this Progressive Community took their Cues from two Families that controlled more or less Bank Stock and had Fountains playing in the Front Yard, to say nothing of Senegambians to look after the Horses. These two Tribes, the Winkles and the Skilligans, were the real three-X Gonzabas.

One of the many Diversions planned by the high-collared Residents, so that they might temporarily forget where they were living, was Amateur Theatricals.

Two or three times every Season the Club gave a Show at the local Temple of Art. After all Expenses had been paid, the Net Proceeds, which sometimes ran as high as $18, went to Charity. This was another Case in which Charity covered a Multitude of Sins.

At one of these Dramatic Treats it was decided to put on the Balcony Scene from "Romeo and Juliet." Wm. Shakespeare was in no Position to get out an Injunction, and the Club had such a Social Drag that no one dared to set fire to the Opera-House in order to head off the Massacre.

It was unanimously agreed that Mr. Philo Quackenbush was the Boy to do Romeo. He was Golf Champion, having done 9 Holes in 58 on a Course which made it necessary to Putt with a Lofter. Besides, he had led the German every Year for 18 years and had Relatives in New York City.

But when it came to the selection of Juliet there were two Candidates, as follows: Mrs. Skilligan and Mrs. Winkle. Each of these estimable Ladies had a kind of inward Hunch that she could revive Memories of Mary Anderson and leave Maude Adams somewhere back of the Flag. Mrs. Skilligan was tall, fibrous, and weighed 108 when in Condition. She had a Daughter who was a Sophomore, and that was why some of her Enemies said that she was too far along to look the Part of Juliet. Just the same, Mrs. Skilligan wanted a Whack at it, for what she lacked in Looks and Youthfulness, she could make up in Jewelry. So she began to lay her Pipes and do some tall Scheming.

THE LARGE WHITE MASS UP ON THE SHELF.

In the mean time, Mrs. Winkle was studying the Lines and checking off the Names of all Members who would not dare to throw her down. Mrs. Winkle could see herself on the Balcony giving an entirely new Interpretation of the Part. She had discovered certain Hidden Meanings in the Lines, and she wanted to hand out the Immortal Hot Stuff in such a Way that Folks would forget all about Julia Marlowe and those other ordinary Actresses who were after the Coin, regardless of Art.

The Stage-Manager employed by the bold Amateurs was an Ex-Legit who had lost his Voice asking for Salary. He plucked up Courage and ventured to ask Mrs. Winkle if she didn't think she was a little too strong on the Measurements to be the girlish Capulet.

"Oh, Pickles!" quoth Mrs. Winkle. "I'm just about the size of May Irwin, and she's a lovely Actress. Besides, I'll wear something Loose, so that they can't see my Real Shape."

The Stage-Manager said no more, for he needed the Money.

The Club had a Meeting and the Lady who carried Weight for Age beat out the Anti-Fat Candidate. Mrs. Winkle was elected the Ideal Juliet by a Majority of One, and some were mean enough to say that she voted for Herself. As for Mamma Skilligan, she was not Put Out a Particle. Not on your Facial Expression! A good many Competent Judges had told her that Shakespeare must have had her in mind when he wrote the Part, but if the Club preferred a large, coarse Creature to tackle that beautiful Stuff, let it go at that!

Just to prove that she wasn't Miffed she bought all of the lower Boxes, and on the Night of the Performance she gave a Dinner-Party at which the Gentlemen proceeded to tea up and roast the Large Party, in spite of anything she could say to choke them off. About about 9 o'clock she said it was time to go down and watch the Balloon go up.

The Push landed in at the Opera-House just in time to break up the Scene in which the Child Sweetheart sighs and wonders where Romeo is. The whole Outfit came into the Boxes and upset Chairs and begged everybody else to take the front Seats and called for Programmes. By the time they settled down and got ready to kid the Performance, the large White Mass up on the Shelf didn't know whether she was playing Juliet or Bridge Whist. She got twisted on her Lines, so that Romeo, with the Red Mustaches, skipped a couple of speeches. Then the Moon shifted a few Feet and the Balcony squeaked and promised to give way, and some one in the Skilligan Party made a low Crack that started a Giggle. Juliet lasted, but she was too Pink for Words.

Then Mrs. Skilligan said she was sorry for the Poor Thing, for it really wasn't her Fault, as she had been bunkoed into thinking she was Good.

Juliet had 8 Curtain Calls, or two more than Melba's Record, and before the Night was over she received so many Flowers and was complimented so often by those who came up to her little Supper-Party that she had a good Notion to leave Winkle and go and work for Charley Frohman. In fact, at 3 a. m. she was ready to make Affidavit that she had Virginia Harned, Maxine Elliott, and Mary Mannering completely thrown back into the Chorus.

ROMEO SKIPPED A COUPLE OF SPEECHES.

Next day the Paper said that she was Great, and she took 200 Extra Copies and read them all herself and then sent a few to the Skilligans.

About a month after that Mrs. Skilligan gave a Fancy-Dress Ball, with Costumes all the Way from St. Louis, and three kinds of Punch on the Dining-Room Table. Lady Skilligan did Queen Elizabeth, with $80,000 worth of Rock Crystals hanging to her. Mrs. Winkle came, for fear People might think she cherished some Animosity against her crushed and fallen Rival, and when she sized up against the Hostess she fell backward and took the Count, for she was only a Dresden Shepherdess.

She went home and began to whet her Axe, and the first Thing any one knew she had the U. S. Senator right up at her House and a few Friends in to see him Eat and no Skilligans in the List.

Then the Carpenters at Work enlarging the Skilligan House and a Grand Reception with imported Music and no Winkles there to bear it.

After which a quiet Evening at the Winkles and the Souvenirs costing $18 per. In due Time a private Vaudeville at the Skilligans and Expense cutting no Figure, the same as at Newport.

Then two Men meeting at the Court-House, where the Bankruptcy Papers are fixed up. They silently shook Hands, and then Skilligan said to Winkle, "It's a Dead Heat."

MORAL: The Men are always the first to Quit.

Friends Were Alarmed—Advised Change of Climate.

Miss Mildred Keller, 718 18th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I can safely recommend Peruna for catarrh. I had it for years and it would respond to no kind of treatment, or if it did it was only temporary, and on the slightest provocation the trouble would come back.

"I was in such a state that my friends were alarmed about me, and I was advised to leave this climate. Then I tried Peruna, and to my great joy found it helped me from the first dose I took, and a few bottles cured me.

"It built up my constitution, I regained my appetite, and I feel that I am perfectly well and strong."—Mildred Keller.

We have on file many thousand testimonials like the above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hartman is receiving.

WHAT TO EAT.

Delicious Salads In Which Nuts Play a Prominent Part.

A few green peppers of the mild kind are a delightful addition to a plain tomato salad, and a few chives or tiny young onions finely minced will enhance the flavor still further.

A pretty salad to look at is one of tomato jelly cut in strips. On each strip is placed a sardine. Arrange a bed of parsley in the center of a platter. Place the strips of jelly upon it, decorate the top of each with mayonnaise dressing and arrange stuffed olives in a circle around the edge.

For a creole salad cut the tops off of six sweet peppers, remove the veins and seeds without injuring the skin and place them in iced water. Chop a Spanish onion, two tomatoes and a red pepper, add a spoonful of chili sauce, a little salt, three tablespoonfuls of cracker crumbs and enough olive oil to moisten well. Take the peppers from the water they are standing in, dry them and fill with the mixture. Let them stand on the ice until ready to serve, then cover with dressing and garnish with bits of cheese and stuffed olives.

Edible cups, such as the sweet peppers make, are most attractive for individual services of salad. Tomatoes and cucumbers are often used in this way, and so are boiled beets (hollowed out), as well as apples and celery root. Beet cups are suitable for shredded cabbage, diced potatoes, celery moistened with dressing or any mixed vegetable salad.

A mushroom salad will be a novelty to many. Peel twelve good sized mushrooms and cut them into pieces. Saute them a few moments in a little butter, add two drops of onion juice and season with mixture. Scoop out the inside of a few chilled tomatoes—enough tomatoes to hold all the mayonnaise—and fill the tomatoes. Decorate the tops of them with a spoonful of mayonnaise.

Walnuts and other kinds of nuts are now used in salads as never before, and they are used in eccentric ways. For instance, tomatoes hollowed out to form cups are stuffed with pineapple and English walnuts, then served with a mayonnaise dressing on a bed of lettuce leaves. At an attractive luncheon the other day walnut meats were served with slices of bananas and mayonnaise on a bed of lettuce. Walnuts are even combined with potatoes in the following way: Cut potatoes into round balls. Boil them until tender, then cool, and to three cupfuls of cooked potato balls add a cup of shelled and chopped English walnuts, half a cup of boiled cream dressing and a half teaspoonful of grated onion. After tossing all together heap it into a salad bowl lined with watercress. The salad will be better if prepared several hours beforehand, so that the dressing will flavor it sufficiently.

SOMETHING TO MAKE.

Butterfly Pattern For a Smart Lingerie Tie.

The little butterfly end will make a very attractive tie. It should be embroidered on handkerchief linen, Persian lawn or some very sheer material, buttonholed around the entire edge with No. 30 mercerized cotton. Work the dots as eyelets and the lines in the outline stitch. The head may be done in the solid embroidery with eyelets for eyes.

BUTTERFLY OF WHITE LINEN.

Business Hours In Honolulu.

Business manners in Honolulu lack the strain and flurry of the mainland city. The hard, white, anxious Chicago face no man wears here. The dodging and hurrying to go around the man in front are never seen. The accent of life is on men, not money or machines. There is not much doing before 10 o'clock, and at 4 the safes are locked, the desks are shut, and the men who do things are off for a ride or a swim or a game of tennis. Here a man does his business.

His Luck.

Cynicus—I have been engaged to at least a dozen girls. Sillicus—Always been unlucky in love, eh? Cynicus—Oh, I don't know. I've never married any of them.

KING'S GIFT TO JERSEY

PRESENTS MONT ORGUEIL CASTLE TO CHANNEL ISLAND.

Ancient Fortress Played Memorable Part In Bygone Years—Supposed to Be Impregnable—Has Undergone Many Sieges—Sir Walter Raleigh Former Governor — Prison of Prynne, Famous Puritan Author.

King Edward has given further proof of his tactfulness and genius for doing popular things by presenting Mont Orgueil Castle to the Island of Jersey as a birthday gift. The old fortress is of no personal use to the King, but because of the memorable and heroic part it has played in their history the Jersey folk take great pride in it.

Mont Orgueil stands proudly — as its name implies—looking over the sea towards France, which is distant some 14 miles. Its massive keep and strong flanking towers still show how magnificent a stronghold it has been. It is built of huge blocks of stone hewn from the crags at its feet, and before artillery was brought into use in warfare it must have been almost impregnable. A French historian declares that the English in ancient times were so jealous of Mont Orgueil that no Frenchman was allowed to pass its gates without being blindfolded.

For centuries the men of Jersey have fought to uphold the flag of England in her most southern outpost, and much of the fighting has centered around the castle. It has undergone sieges innumerable. The earliest of which any authentic record exists was in 1338, when Philip of France sent a powerful navy to attack England. Southampton was burnt, Guernsey and its castle taken, but Mont Orgueil held out, though all the rest of the island was in the possession of the French. The most prolonged investment began in 1643 during the civil war and lasted for over eight months, Lady Cartaret, the wife of the famous loyalist, Sir Philip Carteret, holding it all that time against the Parliamentarians, while her husband was defending Elizabeth Castle, in which he died.

In 1651 it was decided to subdue the Jersey "pyrates," as they were called, and 80 ships, under Admiral Blake, with an army of 5,000 men, were despatched to the island. Owing to dissensions among the garrison the castle made practically no defence. Otherwise it must have been pounded to ruins by the Roundheads' artillery, and shared the fate of Elizabeth Castle, which offered a stubborn resistance.

Many famous governors have ruled over the old fortress. Among them was Sir Walter Raleigh. He had only a short reign, but he left his mark as one of the greatest benefactors the island has known. To him is attributed the introduction of the potato, which more than 200 years later was to prove the salvation of the island when other industries failed.

Until 1693 it was a prison as well as a fortress. The most notable of its prisoners was William Prynne, the Puritan, author of the monumental work entitled "Histriomastix," in which he condemned stage plays and players, music and dancing, with impartial severity. For this literary effort and another achieved when he was a prisoner in the tower, he was condemned to pay the King a fine of $50,000, to suffer the loss of his ears, and to be imprisoned for life. In 1637 he was removed to Mont Orgueil after an unhappy voyage of 14 weeks "in a bruised shipwrackt vessel, full of leakes, through dangerous storms and seas, which spoyled much of his stuffe and bedding, and threatning often shipwrack to him."

The ancient castle will henceforth serve the purpose of a museum, in which will be stored interesting relics of the little island's stormy history.

A GOOD FIGURE.

Healthful Ways to Achieve the Fashionable Wasp Waist.

Just at present the wasp waist is fashionable, but for health as well as beauty ignore the extremes of fashion and follow such simple rules as will tend to the making and keeping of a good figure.

It is perhaps scarcely necessary to remind readers that carriage is of first importance. Round shoulders and a stooping back are more often due to carelessness than to constitution and are easily cured by constant care in keeping the chest up and the shoulders and the hips back.

It is the ambition of most girls to be tall and slender, and, though we cannot add to our inches, yet gymnastics may do much to stretch the limbs to their fullest extent, keep the knees straight and the spine erect and in this way give the figure the benefit of its full amount of inches.

Belts or stays or whatever supports are used for the improvement of the figure should afford no hindrance to the free flow of the blood through the veins, but allow perfect freedom of respiration. There is no reason that corsets should necessarily be "unhealthy" garments. On the contrary, they may perform a good work in relieving the waist of the pressure of the skirt band, etc., and a well cut corset judiciously worn may also act as a check to an inclination on the lower part of the figure to spread. Any good corsetiere makes a specialty of stays for stout figures.

It is a mistake to resort to the foolish "cure" of tight lacing as a remedy for embonpoint. It simply presses the superfluous flesh from one place to another without getting rid of it.

A lack of grace is often due to a cramped condition of the waist more than to anything else, but this is hardly to be wondered at when corsets are drawn to sixteen and nineteen inches.

Women who have cause to bemoan a thin neck and chest have faith in vocal and chest gymnastics and in massage, coupled with the use of a good, nourishing skin food. The treatment should be persevered with daily. In the same way thin arms may be improved and rounded by massage, ointment and gymnastics.

The thin woman finds salvation in pouched blouses and open coats with full vests, and so forth, which conceal deficiencies and apparently yield roundness to a flat figure. It is in evening dress that she suffers most from her appearance, but she is helped much by today's fashions, which admit of the arms being covered with sleeves of puffed chiffon even when a decollete bodice is worn, and a bony neck may be partly smothered with strings of pearls and other ornaments or with pendants of lace proceeding from a collar band of the same united to a berha of lace.

HAD THIRTY-TWO BOILS ON HIS BACK AT ONE TIME.

Boils are simply evidence of the bad blood within coming to the surface.

Just when you think you are cured of one, another seems ready to take its place and prolong your misery.

The only way to rid yourself of boils, pimples, and all skin blotches and blemishes, so that they will never return to bother you again, is to have the blood thoroughly cleansed of all of its impurities.

For this purpose there is no other blood medicine to equal Burdock Blood Bitters.

It has been on the market for over thirty years, and in that time we have received thousands of testimonials stating positively that it will cure the worst known cases of boils.

Mr. James Combs, Eden, Ont., writes: "I think Burdock Blood Bitters a great medicine for boils. I had them so bad I could not work. I had thirty-two on my back at one time. I used only two bottles of B.B.B. and they completely cured me. I cannot recommend it too highly.

NEEDLEWORK NOTES.

In ripping long seams of machine stitching the work can be quickly and easily done if you will simply put the garment under the pressure foot and lower the needle to hold it firmly, then hold it in the left hand a short distance and with a sharp knife inserted in the seam to rip it.

To make a cushion slip durable, especially when it is to be filled with fir, balsam or life everlasting, wax the cloth and iron it over the inside of the slip. This prevents the little ends of branches from coming through to tear the silk or fine lingerie covers. Use heavy white or unbleached muslin for the slips.

Neat and inexpensive are the dresser scarfs made of satin faced pique. Select a flowered pattern and outline some of the white flowers on the border edges by using a dainty colored floss or make a neat Dresden border, stitched on both sides. The washstand cover and splasher may be similarly constructed.

Before mending stockings with ordinary darning yarn it is a good plan to hold the card or skein over the spout of a kettle of boiling water. By this means the steam effectually shrinks the wool, and when the mended stocking is sent to the wash no fear need be entertained of the mended portion shrinking away from or tearing the surrounding part.

American Women Stare?

Dear, dear! A correspondent in a foreign paper, moved by fresh reports from here of the vivacious manners and expressions of American women, points out that their nervous, excited, eyebrow lifting, lip curling joyousness is all a thing of the past in Europe. They are said to be copying the expression of Englishwomen, who are often wont to stare with petrifying sternness and blood freezing disdain at strangers, making their victims feel that their hats can't be on straight or that something must be wrong elsewhere. "In France," this woman remarks, "the glaring eye is nowhere visible save among English and American visitors." To fashionable Americans to glower seems to be significant of that pampered state which only money creates and occasional gleams of intense indifference the very height of the aristocratic manner.

Kid Gloves Last Long.

Just as soon as long kid gloves begin to show an edge of white along any of the seams turn them wrong side out and paste a little piece of court plaster over the weak place, which strengthens them so that they seldom tear. By thus re-enforcing them and by always carefully pulling them in shape each time after taking them off they will last much longer than with ordinary care.

CAST ON DESERT ISLAND

STRANDED FISHERMAN LIVES 14 DAYS ON CRAB AND SEAL.

Could Barely Creep on Hands and Knees When Rescued — Battled With Waves In Open Dory For Four Days—Suffered Terrible Privations — Fastened to Wreck by Heavy Hook.

After battling with the elements for four days in an open boat, August Kocht, a fisherman of the schooner Stanley, and formerly a dragoon in the Tsar's army, was stranded on the desert island of Unimak, where he existed for 14 days on a crab and the carcass of a seal which he found there.

When he was picked up by the schooner Alice, a codfishing boat from Seattle, which had put into Dublin Bay for a supply of water, Kocht was so weak from hunger and cold that he could barely creep on his hands and knees and wave the signal of distress which brought him assistance.

On board the Alice, Kocht was fed with whiskey and milk, and his swollen limbs rubbed with alcohol. It was six days before he was able to stand upon his feet. Four hundred miles north of the point where he was picked up, Kocht was turned over to the schooner Stanley, and arrived in port on board that vessel.

While fishing for cod off the island of Unimak the dory which Kocht occupied was swept away from the schooner Stanley by a terrific southwester. For four days the distressed fisherman battled with the waves. One of the oars broke under the strain the second day, and he drifted helplessly.

Then the dory capsized half a mile off the shore of the island. As the boat upset a heavy codfish hook caught in the back of Kocht's left hand. It was only by gnawing the heavy twine with his teeth that the fisherman succeeded in escaping from the leash which held him to the wrecked boat. Kocht finally managed to reach the beach, where he sank down in distress. The hook he managed to tear from his hand with his teeth.

For two weeks Kocht suffered privations to which but for his superb vitality he must have succumbed. On the fourth day of his stay on the island he found a dead crab lying in the sand. Upon this he lived for three days without water.

There was no refuge where he might find shelter, and he was compelled to pace the beach during the night to keep warm. Almost crazed with thirst, Kocht wandered thirty miles inland in search of water, at last finding it in some small clefts in the rocks.

Refreshed with the water, Kocht once more wandered back to the shore to set up a lonely vigil for a passing ship. There, cast upon the beach, he found the body of a seal, and upon the carcass the marooned man contrived to exist.

From a piece of canvas from the wrecked dory Kocht manufactured a signal, and twice a day, as long as his strength lasted, climbed to a pinnacle of rock, where he kept a lookout for a passing sail.

When the schooner Alice hove in sight Kocht was so weakened from his sufferings that he could barely creep upon his knees. The schooner stood off from the shore and the skipper motioned for him to swim. Fearful lest the vessel might pass him by, Kocht sank unconscious on the sand, and it was thus that the fishermen found him.

It was not until he was revived on board the schooner that Kocht learned that within 40 miles of the place where he was stranded there is a lighthouse. Capt. Wallstedt, of the schooner Stanley, stated that following Kocht's disappearance he sent out two dories, but was unable to find a trace of him.

$5,000 Challenge Trophy.

CHALLENGE TROPHY.

superior playing. This annual event is open to all amateur bands in Great Britain, and is always keenly contested. To hold the trophy is a coveted distinction.

A procession paraded the streets for an hour, concluding with a dinner at the Town Hall, and the public being admitted, cheered the bandsmen to the echo. It is of interest to note that during the last eight years' contests this band has always been among the prize-winners, while it has also secured no fewer than 13 first prizes during the past 16 months.

TRAIN AND TRACK.

In Canada 1,300 miles of railroads have been constructed in twelve months, and 3,000 more are under way.

A railroad will soon be completed which will extend from Puerto Barrios, on the Atlantic coast, to the city of Guatemala, putting the capital of the Central American republic within five days' steam communication of New Orleans.

The report of the interstate commerce commission for the year ending June 30, 1906, shows a total single track mileage in the United States of 224,363.17, an increase of 6,262.13 miles during the year. The total number of railway employees was 1,521,355.

There is now in use on the Union Pacific railway a motor weed burner which, with its crew of three men, does the work of 800. The machine is propelled usually at the rate of three miles an hour, and it destroys from twenty to twenty-five miles of weeds a day.

GLEANINGS.

Nearly half the meat eaten in Berlin is beef; pork comes next, then mutton, while veal is fourth.

A Lawrence county (Mo.) man who is building an addition to his home is making the shingles by hand out of oak.

London is to have a dress exhibition next February, at which dresses, furs and laces to the value of at least $500,000 will be displayed.

The goats which produce the milk for the famous Roquefort cheese hardly ever drink water, obtaining the moisture they require from the herbage.

The Greenport (N. Y.), Watchman says that in its eighty-two years of unbroken publication it has had but three editors, two in one family. In December the present editor will have completed forty-nine years in that position.

RANDOM DEFINITIONS.

Egotist—A personified, perpetual, monotonous, perpendicular pronoun.

Public opinion—The moving fingers of the writers and artists of the daily press.

Business—Something in which friendship and love have no part. Don't be deceived.

Duty—A cold, loveless fact of the reason, a perfunctory performance without soul or sentiment.

MONEY MATTERS.

The Italian government has decided on an issue of ten and five lire notes for a sum of $20,000,000.

At present all Canadian coins are minted in London, but after this month they will be turned out at the Ottawa mint. The profit, which is now nearly half a million dollars, will accrue to the Dominion government.

If all the money in the world was equally divided among all the people in the world each person would have just $7.50 at the time of division. This would not be enough to pay off the per capita public debts of the principal customers.

A Neat Rebuke.

"The late Julia Magruder, as her brilliant books show, detested the married flirt," said a Washington woman. "I once heard her at the seashore rebuke a married flirt rather neatly.

"The woman, young and pretty, was always surrounded by a throng of adorers—football and golf and tennis champions from the leading colleges—very young, but very handsome, very charming lads.

"Late one night, on Miss Magruder's return from a dinner, she found the young woman and a young man seated in the hall of the hotel alone.

"It was very late. Every one else had gone to bed. The young woman was embarrassed. But she looked up and laughed nervously, and then, for something to say, she extended her handkerchief and murmured:

"'See, I have a knot in my handkerchief, and I can't remember what it was put there for.'

"'Perhaps,' said Miss Magruder, smiling gravely, 'perhaps it was put there to remind you that you are married.'"—Washington Post.

A Good Idea.

Here is another opening for some bright young woman. A New York woman possessed of more money than brains—the combination is not rare—has a "private dramatic critic" who attends all the new plays and then sits down to her typewriter and pounds out witticisms and epigrams, which the rich woman learns verbatim and repeats to the admiring world which gathers around her tea and bridge and dinner tables.

BRITISH PREMIER IS NOT WELL

HAS BEEN ORDERED ABROAD

Prime Minister Is Seventy-One Years of Age—King's Physician Says He Must Have Complete Change and Rest — Has Overtaxed His Strength — Cabinet Colleagues Will Run Next Session.

London, Nov. 20.—Sir Thomas Barlow, physician to King Edward's household, made a lengthy examination of the Premier, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, at Downing street, yesterday, and an official announcement was subsequently issued to the effect that the patient's condition was satisfactory, but that in view of the approaching session of Parliament it is necessary that he should have some weeks' complete change and rest. The Premier, therefore, is going abroad almost immediately. He has not been the same man since his wife died, last year, and his recent acute attack of heart trouble at Bristol was a signal that his political activities have overtaxed his physical strength. It would be no surprise to the friends of the Premier, who is 71 years of age, if much of his parliamentary work during the coming session is delegated to his colleagues in the Cabinet, and the rumors of his possible retirement next year from the leadership of the Liberal party are revived, as, in view of his onslaught on the House of Lords, it is not thought likely that he will care to accept a peerage and continue in the leadership amid the less strenuous surroundings prevailing in the hereditary House of Parliament.

BRAKEMAN WAS KILLED.

Cow Derailed Train of Empties on Harbor Hill, Goderich.

Goderich, Nov. 20.—An extraordinary accident occurred here yesterday morning on the G. T. R., which resulted in the death of Brakeman Durst of Sebringville, Ont.

The switching crew were taking 14 empty cars down hill, three-quarters of a mile west of the Goderich yard, when the train struck a cow on the track, derailing four cars and throwing Brakeman Durst under the train, killing him instantly.

Brakeman Durst was riding on the first car of the 14 which were being shoved down the Goderich hill ahead of the engine. The train was only running about five miles an hour. The deceased was knocked off the top of the car when the train struck the cow, and thrown underneath the train and cut completely in two.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The trial of the six men who were charged with manslaughter in connection with the Buckingham riot of over a year ago and by which three lives were lost, was concluded yesterday.

The charge of manslaughter was found not proven, and the accused condemned to two months in jail for rioting. Immediately after the decision, which was made last in the afternoon, petitions for their release were put in circulation. There was much jubilation in Buckingham over the finding that the charge of manslaughter was not proven.

Lisbon, Nov. 20.—Three anarchists were engaged in making bombs when the material exploded. Two men were killed outright and the third was arrested.

EVIDENCE TAKEN IN THE CASE

Pritchett Makes Many Damaging Admissions on Witness Stand.

THE LONDON BRIBERY TRIAL

Tells Story of Election Treachery—Implicates O'Gorman—Counsel For Defence Scores Crown Witnesses—Was No Conspiracy—Pritchett Acknowledges Being Guilty of Perjury and Forgery.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Many witnesses from London took the box at the London conspiracy trial yesterday and testified that the money to help Hyman win at the 1905 election was plentiful.

At the morning session Mr. Johnston went at Pritchett, self-confessed ballot-switcher and manipulator of spoiled ballots, with hammer and tongs. In some instances Pritchett contradicted his story of yesterday and told at the Police Court.

Mr. Staunton accused Mr. Johnston of trying to make political capital out of the case. The counsel for the defence hinted that considerable capital had been made out by the crown at the lower court. Mr. Staunton said he was not responsible for what took place in the Police Court.

Pritchett's evidence incriminated Lewis and O'Gorman.

To Mr. Johnston, Pritchett confessed that he had gone under an assumed name often, and that he did not know why there was a warrant out for his arrest. He admitted perjury and forgery in his work, which was not for money but for the party.

"Guilty or not guilty," continued Mr. Johnston. "At the bar of your conscience are you guilty or not guilty of all these things—bribery, forgery, and all the rest? Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," answered Pritchett.

"And you come here now and want us to believe you?"

"Yes."

Mr. Johnston then questioned the witness about his buying a $4,500 house in London when he came back after the trip to Detroit.

"I thought you were broke then?" said Mr. Johnston.

"I bought that out of my own hard earnings."

"You would pretty near swear to anything for money?"

"Money talks with most of us, I guess you wouldn't object to a little," said Pritchett.

"Are you swearing the truth now?"

"Yes."

"With the same kind of conscience as you had in West Elgin?"

"I probably tried to overcome it there."

Many questions were asked about the witness' work in West Huron and South Ontario, which he reiterated as in the Police Court. At one time Pritchett swore that he had nothing to do with the defendant Reid.

W. Truedell, who voted in the bye-election in June, 1905, told of receiving $10 from Mulloy. George McCoy told the same story.

Cross-examined with regard to the meeting witness said he had had with O'Gorman and Smith in the Walker House, Toronto, Pritchett said there was no agreement as to bribery or other corrupt methods. Slipping ballots was only discussed. He had suggested that it would be cheaper to switch than to buy voters. Pritchett said that in each constituency he had a new agreement to operate with O'Gorman.

Witness admitted signing a paper as Marshall B. Johnson in West Elgin, declaring that he had regularly performed the duties of a deputy, but he had not thought of it as forgery.

In 1900 he had made an affidavit while in Detroit, at the request of "some parties from St. Thomas and Hamilton."

"Was Mr. Barker there?" asked Mr. Johnston.

"Yes."

"He was the Conservative organizer at Hamilton?"

"I believe so," replied witness, and then Mr. Staunton registered his objection to the defence trying to make political capital out of the evidence.

Pritchett said he had made the affidavit because he wanted to return home under the promise that no proceedings would be taken. This he had been promised by Mr. Barker or a Mr. Fleming.

Mr. Johnston quoted from Pritchett's evidence in the Police Court to that effect, but witness insisted that he did not say so. Asked whether he took the oath of secrecy at West Elgin, witness said he did not think so.

"Then," said Mr. Johnston, "our evidence is that you would have taken the necessary oaths in West Elgin, which you knew would have been perjury. You obtained your position of deputy for fraudulent purposes by using a false name. In law you admit that you committed the offence of forgery by wilfully and fraudulently using another man's name to papers that were wrong. You admit that you endeavored to instruct those people to swear what was false and to avoid the penalty of swearing. You admit that you were criminally engaged as a conspirator with O'Gorman in deceiving the electorate. You admit that where you find necessity for using a name not altogether your own, you use it. What do you say to all that—guilty or not guilty?"

"Guilty," said Pritchett.

WESTERN SETTLER MISSING.

Companion Found With His Money Has Been Arrested.

Calgary, Nov. 20.—Recently a homesteader hailing from North Dakota named Jacob Snyder, who had come to this district and purchased some land, disappeared very mysteriously after he made all arrangements to build on his property. He was last seen in the company of a man named Leonard Shan, another North Dakotan, who gave his address as Hague, with whom he left the hotel one day.

Shan came back shortly afterwards and later reported the disappearance of his friend to the police. The latter were suspicious of the stranger and when diligent search failed to afford a trace of Snyder the arrest of Shan, who had suddenly left town for the south, was ordered. He was caught at Caresholm, and when arrested had $78 in cash and two drafts for $400 and $500 respectively, drawn in the name of the missing man, on his person. They were payable in banks in the States. Shan will be held on the charge of theft pending further investigation.

JAPANESE COMMISSIONER.

Ishi to Return Shortly to Tokio—Will Report on Emigration.

Tokio, Nov. 20.—The Japanese Government anxiously is awaiting the return from abroad of Kiki-Yiri Ishi, chief of the bureau of commerce of the Foreign Office, who is expected about the end of this month.

It is stated at the Department of Foreign Affairs that negotiations concerning Japanese emigration to the United States and Canada will necessarily be delayed until his arrival, as he was a special commissioner sent to America for the purpose of investigating the subject.

Meanwhile, within the last week, private instructions have been sent to the inspectors at all ports to exercise the most vigorous supervision over emigrants for all points, and especially San Francisco, because recent investigations have shown negligence resulting from the passage of a number who were not qualified to be classed as students.

His lordship decided that the libels in some cases are not the same, and that therefore they cannot all be consolidated.

The costs are given to the plaintiff in any event.

Flag From Kingston, Eng.

Kingston, Nov. 20.—On Monday Miss Jennie C. Shaw received a most interesting package from England. It contained a Union Jack and a gracefully-worded note from the girls in St. John's School, Kingston-on-Thames.

The note spoke of the kindred name, Kingston, and said that the girls of the old home town wished to be one in spirit with the girls of the school in the new Kingston. They asked that a Canadian flag be sent them by the children here. This will be done.

For Legislature to Deal With.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Hon. J. J. Foy stated yesterday that the request of the Town of Essex Centre to be paid the fine of $25,000 imposed on the Michigan Central Railway by Judge Riddell will come before the Legislature at its next session. As the town sustained considerable damage through the explosion the council feel that they are entitled to the fine, less the legal fees.

MET WITH A TERRIBLE ACCIDENT

Men Hurled Ninety Feet Down Tunnel Shaft at Toronto.

FOUR KILLED, THREE HURT

Defective Cable the Cause—Accident at New Waterworks on Bay—Rope Broke and Hoist Dropped—Heavy Weight Crashed Down Upon Struggling Heap of Men at Bottom — Names of Dead.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Falling ninety feet to the foot of a shaft through the parting of a steel cable, four workers in the waterworks tunnel that is being constructed under the bay are dead and three are in a critical condition at St. Michael's Hospital.

The last blast had been fired, about 7 o'clock, and twenty men and two ponies had been drawn to the head of the 110 foot shaft just east of Hanlan's Point wharves. Seven men remained. These were nearing the top in the wooden "bucket" or elevator cage, when the 7-8-inch cable snapped on the winch drum and whirling over the pulley at the nose of the derrick-boom, allowed the bucket with its human freight to drop clear to the foot of the shaft.

After them came the 500-pound iron weight, which is used to unreel the cable when the "bucket" is lowered empty into the shaft. This weight crashed down upon the huddled forms on the floor of the "bucket" at the foot of the shaft, crushing the heads of two and the arms and legs of others.

Frightful Scene.

Superintendent of Construction W. J. Bradley had gone over to the tunnel head on the tug "Roy Mac," arriving just at 7 o'clock. He had just reached the head of the shaft as he heard the snap of the parting cable. This was followed by the sound of the bucket as it descended the shaft, banging against the sides.

Bradley immediately ordered a squad of men into the tunnel. Descending by the ladder at the side of the 12-foot shaft, they discovered the bodies of the men. Upon them lay the 500-pound balance weight. The cries of the living were frightful.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in removing this weight, and it took some time to extricate the men. They were carried into the mouth of the tunnel. Mattresses and pillows from the sleeping quarters were thrown down the shaft and the injured were placed on these. A cable was rigged on the drum and through the derrick above, but when lowered into the shaft it was found to be too short. This occasioned a further delay while another cable, taken from a nearby derrick, was rigged on a nearby shaft hoist. With this the injured, then numbering five, were hoisted to the top. Blackmore and Nelson had been killed instantly.

A telephone call had been sent to police headquarters and the two police ambulances, with H. Ellis' private ambulance, were waiting at the city side. The injured were hurried to St. Michael's Hospital.

But before he could be removed from the dock, Huron Elliott, the Indian foreman, was dead. Nevertheless, the body was taken to the hospital, where, after examination, the hurried verdict pronounced at the waterfront was confirmed.

The dead are: D. F. Blackmore, nipper, married; Jack Nelson, helper, 50 years of age; Huron Elliott, drilling boss, Indian, 24 years; "Jack" Gordon, driller.

A BIG BLACK BEAR ATTRACTING ATTENTION

Now In Front of Porter's Store—Shot by Tedford Party

A dead black bear in front of Porter's Delicatessen attracted considerable interest to-day. It was brought to Peterborough by the Tedford party of Burleigh Falls, which was responsible for the killing of the animal, the death of which has been mentioned in the Examiner. One shot killed the bear. It passed through its head, and brain scarcely realized what had occurred.

It weighed 265 lbs. before being dressed. The Tedford party also shot a cub bear weighing 85 lbs., and among the party's venison were a couple of the finest bucks that succumbed to the deadly aims of hunters in the north.

INSPECTION OF THE CADETS

Col. G.W.D. Gordon Highly Pleased With The Cadet Corps Of The Collegiate Institute

LT. HODGSON INSTRUCTOR

The praise which Col. W D Gordon, District Officer Commanding East Ontario, bestowed upon the Cadet Corps of the Collegiate Institute on the occasion of their annual inspection this morning, should be sufficient recompense to Lieut. J E Hodgson for his faithful services in drilling the boys. It is not very often that an officer as high in command as Col. Gordon inspects the corps and the compliment he paid them on their excellent showing was greatly appreciated by the cadets, their officers and all those connected with the institute.

Thee custom of many schools is to select one company from all the boys and drill them alone, thereby providing the best the school could offer for inspection. Lieut. Hodgson, however, presented three companies representing the whole school and the smaller boys went through the different manoeuvres with the same precision and skill as their seniors.

The Corps

Harry Hall is this year the Major of the corps and performed his duties in a most acceptable manner. He showed a thorough knowledge of the movements and gave his commands clearly and without hesitation. The captains of the three companies were, No. 1, Frank Austin; No. 2, Michael O'Brien; No. 3, S. Anderson. The total strength of the corps was about 125 averaging forty per company.

The inspection was divided into three parts. The first was company drill followed by battalion drill and concluded by the march past.

Col. Gordon's Address

The cadets were afterwards formed up in column and Col. Gordon made a few complimentary remarks on their work. He congratulated them on the fact that one of the staff was an officer of the 57th Regiment and well fitted to construct them in military drill. The boys ,he said, had acquitted themselves exceedingly well and were a credit to their instructor and to the Collegiate. The officers were also praised for their good work and altogether Col. Gordon expressed himself as being most favourably impressed by the local corps. The new armouries, he said, would afford them further opportunities of learning thed rill and especially will they then be able to practice shooting.

Among those who witnessed the inspection were Col. Miller, Rev. Canon Davidson, Capt. Eastwood, Major Clegg, Robt. Fair, Wm. Pringle, A Mowat and the members of the staff of the Collegiate.

The students were given a half holiday this afternoon to mark the success of the boys.

Several thousand dollars has been already promised, and if heartily supported a long-felt want will soon be supplied.

GOLD MINE IN HARVEY

Mr. Fred Pleurd Reported To Have Struck it Rich—The Mineral Has Been Assayed

NORTH OF BUCKHORN

Mr. Fred Pleurd, a Harvey township man, believes that he has found a gold mine on his farm, which will prove a valuable asset. About two weeks ago he accidentally ran across the mineral, which showed well on the surface, and began digging to see what the rock was composed of. Mr. J. Johnston of this city was in Harvey last week and brought down some samples of the ore, which he showed to the Examiner last night. They look to be pretty good, and Mr. Johnston states that samples have been sent to Toronto to be assayed, and that the return report indicates a good percentage of the glittering metal.

Mr. Pleurd's farm is situated about three miles north of Buckhorn and consists of between three and four hundred acres. The discovery he believes to be a valuable one, and if it turns out as expected his farm will be worth more than he ever in the past dreamed of realizing for it. Toronto experts are expected down in a few days, when the property will be thoroughly looked over with a view to begin mining operations.

SMALLEST INFANT KNOWN TO SCIENCE

Chicago, Nov. 20. — One of the smallest and most perfectly formed infants ever known to medical science, lies contentedly in a diminutive incubator in the room of its mother, Mrs. Edna Hess, wife of Charles E. Hess, a civil engineer.

The baby, when born, October 19th, weighed little more than a pound and measured but fourteen inches in length. Over his perfectly formed wrists his mother easily slipped her wedding ring. During the weeks that have elapsed the baby has gained only a few ounces, and now weighs about a pound and a half.

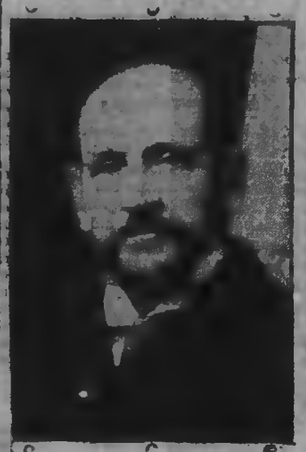
A number of impromptu speeches, complimentary to Mr. Bolin, who is leaving Peterborough in a short time, were made by the boys. Mr. Bolin replied, thanking the members of the Test for their many acts of kindness while at the Canadian General.

ANNUAL MEETING OF THE PETERBOROUGH CURLING CLUB



MR. G.W. Ferguson, Member of The Executive

THE CURLERS HELD MEETING

Annual Meeting Held Last Night Foretells An Enthusiastic Season

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

Judging from the enthusiasm that was manifested by the large gathering of the lovers of curling at the annual meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club which was held in the the club rooms last night, the coming season should surpass those that have been recorded in the pages of history, and should see some grand games in the old rink.

In every respect the club is in a flourishing condition, with a large membership, and every prospect of its increasing this season. The roller skating lease closes on December 1, and Mr. Angus McIntosh will then take charge of it for the winter. As soon as the weather man begins to assert himself and ice will be possible Mr. McIntosh intends to prepare the sheet for the preliminary bouts.

New Officers

The election of officers was the first routine business, and everyone took an interested part in the proceedings. Mr. C. N. Brown succeeds Mr. T. F. Matthews as president of the club, and as a prominent curler and one of the most popular members of the club, Mr. Brown was a general favourite. The election resulted as follows:

Hon. Pres.—Mr. T. F. Matthews.
Pres.—Mr. C. N. Brown.
Vice-Pres.—Mr. R. M. Waddell.
Sec.-Treas.—Mr. R. M. Waddell.
Associate Sec.-Treas. — Mr. H. T Foote.

Executive Committee — Messrs. W. G. Ferguson, R. Neill, Jas. H. Connell, C. Rutherford, J. E. A. Fitzgerald.

Chaplain—Rev. E. A. Pearson.

Auditors—Mr. H. Morphett and Mr. T. B. Yeates; re-elected.

Mr. R. M. Waddell was elected secretary-treasurer, with Mr. Foote associate. Mr. Waddell received many complimentary remarks for his services in behalf of the club. Mr. H. H. Kenner moved a vote of thanks to the retiring officers for the efficiency with which they performed their duties last season. Mr. Talbot seconded the motion.

Mr. Matthews' Report.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, who represented the club at the annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association, held in October, gave an account of what that body had done in regard to matters of general interest. The grouping for the tankard games was untouched, and will be the same as last year, but will be recast at the next annual meeting. The district games will be played at Lindsay this year and afterwards alternatively at Peterborough and Lindsay. Orillia and Beaverton were added to district number two.

Other Appointments

Following the election of officers Messrs. W G Ferguson and H F Matthews were re-elected as representatives of the local curlers at the annual meeting of the Ontario Curling Association which will be held next year.

A hearty vote of thanks were tendered the press for their assistance in making public the schedules and referring in general to the Club.

It was unanimously decided to invite the clergymen of the city to join the club and it was decided to present them with tickets.

The Committees

The following were appointed to compose the Membership Committee: Messrs. T F Matthews, W S Dodd, R J Winch, R. Neill, J Davidson, A Moore, W M Lang, W E Talbot, T Brightman, W Maltroy, W G Reed.

It was moved by Mr. Waddell, seconded by Mr. Talbot, that Mr. Angus McIntosh receive the same fee as last year for arranging the schedules of the various games during the season and the following were appointed to assist him: Messrs. C Rutherford, R J Waddell, H T Foote.

The Bonspiel Committee was next selected, the nominations reputing as follows: Messrs. T Brightman, R M Waddell, W G Ferguson, W J Thompson, D Davidson, J E A Fitzgerald, H T Foote, R Neill, C Rutherford.

General Discussion

Teh holding of a bonspiel in the city this winter was fully considered and the consensus of opinion was in favour of the idea. That of last year was such a success and had won so much outside favour that the members believed another success would be scored by a bonspiel this winter and the matter will be given further consideration in the near future.

It was also decided to send two rinks to the tankard games in Toronto and Messrs. W J Ferguson and Jas. Connel were appointed as skips. The tankardd players of course will not be allowed to participate in the district games. The district cup skips are Messrs. R Hicks and D Hall.

Mr. Matthews moved, seconded by Mr. Talbot, that Messrs. Yeats, Madd and D Davidson, be a committee to confer with the company holding the rink as to what rent should be paid and to report at the next meeting.

The Finances

Those members who are in arrears with their dues are not to be allowed to play until last year's membership tickets are paid for as well as the tickets for this year. A special inducement is held out to young men under 21 years by a considerable reduction in the fee. The members should have their fees in for this year by Jan. 15.

Other matters of interest were discussed including the rental of the lockers and insurance of the stones, but nothing was done for the present. The appointing of skips was left until the next meeting which will be held on Tuesday evening December 3rd.

Detective Arrested

A telegram was received at the attorney-general's department yesterday, announcing that W. J. Wells, who was temporarily connected with the department as a detective some months ago, had been arrested in Winnipeg for vagrancy. The telegram was from Chief of Police J. C. McCuaig.

GEESE ARE GONE

Twenty-nine Lost in One Night Near Warsaw—Supposed To Have Been Stolen

OWNERS HAVE NO TRACE

A wholesale goose-robbing is reported from the vicinity of Nassau. No less than 29 geese disappeared in one night, and the owners are out apparently on a wild goose chase for the stolen property. The birds were among the finest specimens in the country, and ready for the table.

Mrs. Allen of Douro was the greatest loser. On Monday night she lost 21 geese which took their departure in a mysterious manner. On the same night Mr. Bell of Smith lost eight handsome birds.

Where the geese are is unknown, as well as the identity of the thieves who corralled them.

KICK OF A DYING CALF KILLS A MAN

Campbellton, N.B., Nov. 20. — The death to-day of Frank Powers, a butcher, at St. Mary's Hospital, was the strangest in the history of that institution.

Three months ago Powers swung a sledge on the head of a calf. He stooped over, thinking it was dead. One of its hind legs shot out, kicking a small tumor on Powers' head.

The kick irritated the tumor, and in a short time it became so threatening that he was taken to a hospital. It grew until it penetrated the brain, and the end came to-day.

Music and Drama

"THE WAGES OF SIN"

Another crowded house greeted Ernie Marks and his big company at the Grand last night, when the strong melodrama, "The Wages of Sin," was presented most effectively. The play is one that permits of thrilling climaxes and stirring situations, and the capable company took advantage of every opportunity. The acting throughout was excellent, and the audience that filed out at the conclusion of the entertainment was a thoroughly pleased one. Mr. Marks had the leading comedy role, and he made the most of it, keeping the house in laughter on his every appearance.

The specialties were excellent throughout. Mr. De Mateos, who yesterday underwent an operation, was unable to appear, but the company substituted other numbers, which proved very popular. To-night the company will present "Lost and Won," a play that will appeal to every lover of melodrama.

Meeting of Special Bay of Quinte Conference Committee at The George Street Church

SPECIAL RECOMMENDATIONS

This morning a meeting of the ministerial portion of the Bay of Quinte Conference special committee, was held in the parlours of the George street Methodist church. The meeting was presided over by Rev. Mr. Duke, of Newbury, the president of the conference, and Rev. C. H. Coon, of Mark street acted as secretary.

The other ministers present were Revs. H. M. Manning, Peterborough; McCullough, Omemee; Wm. Johnston, Warkworth; D. S. Douck, of Bloomfield; J. A. Connell, Thomasburg; D. W. Henderson, Port Hope; D. H. Mounteer, Cannington; George Brown, Colborne and John Garbutt, Bowmanville.

The chief business considered was the endorsement of the employment of certain young men with a view to their entering the ministry later.

Mr. Lucas M. Sharp, of Mountain Grove Mission, near Napanee, was one of these. The others considered were Messrs. Haycke and Sockett, who received special recommendation to administer the sacrament for one year.

C. J. Schewadt Was Painfully Injured This Morning

Conrad J. Schewardt, of Victoria avenue, a baker in the employ Stock & Son, Sherbrooke street, met with a very painful accident while at work in the firm's bakeshop this morning. In some manner while mixing dough in the moulding machine his hand came in contact with the rapidly revolving knives and before he could release himself that member was very badly cut. It was found necessary to call medical attendance, and Dr. McCulloch attended to his injuries, which though painful are not regarded as serious.

Last night Mr. Percy Pammet, of Lakefield, entertained a few of his friends to a delightful outing. After the performance was over, the party had lunch in a local restaurant and drove back to Lakefield again. HISTORY OF CANAL

Address By Mr. E. S. Clarry At Guild Meeting Last Night—Early History of Trent Waterway

SOME INTERESTING FACTS

The meeting of the Young Men's Guild of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church which was held last night was well attended. The address of the evening was delivered by Mr. E. S. Clarry, who gave a very interesting account of the origin of the Trent Canal, as well as an account of the struggles on the part of the people of this district years ago in order to accomplish the completion of the work as at present constituted, the benefit of which this district enjoys at the present time.

The meeting last night was presided over by Mr. G. B. VanBlaricom, and at the conclusion of Mr. Clarry's address the speaker was given a hearty vote of thanks on motion of Rev. Dr. Talling, seconded by Mr. J. W. Garvin.

Among the many interesting historical facts adduced by Mr. Clarry was the statement that Champlain was the first man to propose the construction of the Trent Valley Canal, and was as well the first white man, so far as known, to come over the route of the Trent Canal. This was about three hundred years ago.

Concerning the actual undertaking of the construction of the canal, Mr. Clarry read extracts from early records, which were very interesting.

Early History

In the year 1833, the project of connecting the waters of Lake Simcoe with those of Ontario by means of a Canal passing through Rice Lake and the Bay of Quinte, was generally discussed, and received the attention of the Government. Mr. N. H. Baird, Civil Engineer, was appointed by his Excellency Sir John Colborne, to make a survey of the waters connecting those two lakes with a view of deciding upon the eligibility of the route for that purpose. He entered upon the work in 1833, and in that year completed the survey of the Trent and Otonabee Rivers. Having received further instructions, he resumed the survey in 1835, and continued it from Peterborough via the Otonabee, and back waters to Lake Simcoe. This report of his surveys was exceedingly favourable.

The estimate for the works east of Rice Lake upon the River Trent was £23,147 6s. 11d, which added to the estimate for the northern section made the entire proposed cost of opening up an uninterrupted water communication between the Bay of Quinte and Lake Simcoe, a distance of about 165 miles, and 706.4 feet of lockage, £385,515.

Least Expensive

Mr. Baird, however, appears to have feared that the amount of the estimate might deter the Government from prosecuting the work, to which he attached very considerable importance. He therefore made the suggestion that only the least expensive sections of the canal should at once be proceeded with, and the other portions railwayed, "for which," says the report, "it is rather remarkable the whole ground of these intermediate sections affords the most favourable opportunity for construction that can be imagined or wished for, any descent that is being in the proper direction and of easy construction."

The objection of transshipment, an almost insuperable one in the double scheme, Mr. Baird proposed to get rid of thus:— "With the view of doing away with the only, at least, the chief objection to the expedient system—the idea of frequent transhipment, I would propose that long and substantial steamers of particular construction should regularly ply to and from on the intermediate water communication, and so arranged as to admit of the train of cars being transported at once, with their loadings, direct either for Lake Huron, or Lake Simcoe, as the case may be, and which I am satisfied can be done in such a way as to be practically useful, and serve well the present, and until such time as it may be deemed proper to put the lockage system in execution, the prospective wants of the country."

This project, great as was the interest which attached to it at the time, was never carried out. Some £90,000 odd was expended upon the River Trent works; and the lock at Peterborough basin, proposed by Mr. Baird, was constructed; but the troubles of 1837 and 1838, and the changes which immediately succeeded, prevented the full execution of the project of connecting the waters of Simcoe with the Bay of Quinte. The necessity for such a work, however, has never been lost sight of.

Continuing, Mr. Clarry traced the construction of the various works down to the present day. A number of interesting newspaper articles of years ago, some in commendation and some in condemnation of the proposal to build the canal, were read.

His lecture was a most beneficial one and was greatly appreciated by the members of the Guild present.

SIR WILFRID

Yesterday, November 19th, was the 66th birthday of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and thousands of Canadians feel their congratulations and wish him many happy returns. It is a suggestive coincidence that the greatest living King, and the foremost Premier of any colony, or perhaps, any country, should have been born in the same month, of the same year. Sir Wilfrid is not only a great Canadian, but as a statesman he is known as a recognized the world over. He has become known everywhere by making, during his premiership, Canada known everywhere. In regard to his achievements, the London Morning Post says: "No other statesman could have accomplished so much in the space of a life time, as the great French-Canadian, who combines an imaginative eloquence unsurpassed in British history, with the charm and courtesy of a cultured Frenchman."

THE PAROCHIAL BIG COUNTRY

An American physician, Dr. Hal. C. Wyman, residing in Detroit, reading a paper on "Our Policy Toward Our Newly-Acquired Possessions," advocated the purchase by the United States of the whole Pacific coast of British Columbia, and thus secure direct land connection between the United States and its Alaskan "possessions." Dr. Wyman's paper was read to a gathering of the Sons of the American Revolution, and we are told in the concluding sentence that "his plan was endorsed by other speakers." It is a great thing to have a plan. It may never amount to anything; may be utterly impossible of realization, but it confers on the planner the fame or notoriety of harbouring far-reaching thoughts that give a man a right to figure among the "intellectuals."

But does not this meeting and its spokesman set you thinking? There are unquestionably more provincial people to the acre in the United States, the greatest aggregate of common-schooled individuals in the world, than can be found in any other part of the footstool. Just think of a man belonging to a learned profession getting on his hind legs to startle humanity with such a proposition as is referred to above! Was it received as a humourism? No, he "was endorsed by other speakers." We have people capable of such asininities even on this side of the border, and it is possible that an M. D. might be the offender, but the hope may be indulged that he would not be "endorsed by other speakers." There would at least be one present with a sense of humour—in other words, a fool-killer.

The poet has told us what happens to "the wretch concentred all in self." It would be ungracious to call the typical United States citizen a wretch, but he certainly is a good deal concentred on the great republic. He may be able to tell accurately how many stars should be represented on Ola Glory, to repeat the Declaration of Independence without a skip, enumerate all the Presidents since Washington, and yet be a desperately uninformed and ill-balanced personage. This is a great world, and intelligent men endeavour to cultivate a large view of its inhabitants. Neither the American school nor the American newspaper aims at such width of cultivation, with the consequence that even the men of fair education are often the most parochial grown man one can meet the world around.

The writer encountered a Detroit merchant in his own shop who had the belief that Queen Victoria was in the habit of sending cablegrams to "put John Smith in jail," and was "implicitly obeyed. He declared he would not live in a country where that was possible—and you could not blame him. Here was a man who could see the shores of Canada from his own shop door and was continually selling its people goods (to be smuggled). The desire to enlighten him which immediately rose in one's heart died away when the vast seas of equally dense humanity in States far away from Canada impressed its helplessness on the spirit. The care of over-seas possessions may in time do something towards a wider enlightenment.—Globe.

There is enough popular distrust in the power and efficacy of prayer, without making it ridiculous, not to say, balsphemous. A professor of a Quaker College in Pennsylvania, prayed for the success of the college football team against another college team. If a professor of the other college should also pray for the success of his team, the Almighty would be placed in the position of referee of a football match. If blasphemy is not involved somewhere, one would like to know what better means could be adopted.

EDITORIAL NOTES

There are two or three classes who do not desire a continuation of fine weather—the merchant, with winter clothing to sell, the furrier, with furs to sell, and the women who have a new set of furs, to wear in public.

Mr. E. B. Osler's repudiation of the Beck power policy, and his failure to "enthuse" over Mr. Borden, and the Hamilton Spectator calling upon Sir Wilfrid Laurier to get Hamilton the Technical College, which Mr. Whitney is not disposed to give, are all little indications of the powerful cohesion, and unbroken unity, of the Conservative party.

If Mr. Whitney is anxious, as he declared himself to be, for civil service reform, why did he not appoint the deputy registrar to the position vacated by Dr. Beattie Nesbitt's resignation? The deputy did all the work anyway, as Dr. Nesbitt declared that he drew $9,000 a year for doing nothing. But, instead of this, he appoints a Conservative "worker" to do nothing, though Mr. Whitney has compromised with his conscience, and his responsibility to the country, by cutting down the price of doing nothing to $5,000 a year—the salary of a Cabinet Minister.

Now, some of President Roosevelt's admirers and toadies, propose that at the next election "Teddy" should not be elected President, but King, of the United States. Is history repeating itself? Ceasar had kingly ambitions, but two or three score dagger thrusts let out at once his life, and his royal ambitions. As Hon. Senator Ross pointed out in a speech in New York, Roosevelt or any other president, is as much a King in fact of autocratic power, if not in name, during his four-year term as the Czar of Russia—he is an irresponsible ruler.

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE

Weakens The Tissues And Lessens The Organic Vitality

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles.

Five people suffer to-day where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleeplessness, and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles, and that means at least two out of three in Peterborough, and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective; nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na.

It is not a mere digestive taken after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition, that it does the work nature expects of it.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that Mr. Madill with each 50 cent box he sells gives a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

Editor Post Card Column,—

Dear Sir, — I understand that in dealing out his decisions yesterday afternoon at the police court, His Worship Magistrate Dumble allowed the man to go free who was apparently the chief cause of the trouble over the brass and copper disappearance. It was shown by the evidence that he purchased the goods from the boys, on Sunday, without even asking them where they got the metals. Now, this in itself, it appears to me, was sufficient to show the Magistrate that the man was guilty of acts of wrong, in aiding the boys to commit thefts. In allowing this man to go free, seems, to me, an incomplete judgment.

Yours, etc.,
JUSTICE.

INSPECTOR'S CERTIFICATE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Our attention has been directed to an article published in a local paper last evening, giving an account of the poisoning of several members of a family on Harvey street, which poisoning was attributed to the eating of port sausage.

As we manufacture a very large percentage of the port sausage sold throughoutt this city, not only in our own retail stores, but by other dealers, it would perhaps be inferred by many that the sausage which was used by the family in question, would be of our manufacture. We wish to state most emphatically that we can prove beyond the shadow of a doubt that the sausage was not obtained at our retail stores, or from any dealers to whom we supply sausage.

Perhaps the public are not generally aware that all of the animals slaughtered in our plant here, and all of the product manufactured, are under inspection by a competent government official. This officer not only certifies to the purity of the ingredients of all our product, but is in charge of the department, inasmuch as cleanliness of manufacture and sanitation are concerned.

We attach hereto, certificate which is sent out with each shipment of goods, bearing the signature of Dr. Ransom, which applies not only to goods shipped for export, but also to goods for local consumption.

T. F. MATTHEWS,
Secretary.

The Certificate

I hereby certify that the meat-product factory of the firm of Geo. Matthews Co., Peterborough, is located in the meat inspection district of the province of Ontario; that the animals killed in that establishment are subjected to competent official veterinary ante-mortem and post-mortem inspections; that all of the meat sold by that firm is the product of animals free from disease; and that the meat and meat-food products of that firm are free from chemical preservatives or other foreign substances injurious to health.

Highly Recommended Prescription For Kidney and Bladder Troubles

IT IS MIXED AT HOME

A well known authority states that there are more cases of kidney trouble here now than ever before, while recent reports show that more people succumb each year to some form of kidney disease than any other cause.

When there is sickness, examine the urine. Rheumatism is only a symptom of kidney trouble. It is nothing more or less than excessive uric acid in the blood, which the sluggish, inactive kidneys have failed to sift out, leaving it to decompose and settle about the joints ad muscles, causing intense suffering; frequently resulting in deformity; often reaching the heart when death ensues.

Pains across the back, frequent, painful and suppressed urination and other symptoms of weak bladder are not the only signs of kidney trouble; many cases of stomach disease, headache, pain in the heart, inactive liver, etc., are but symptoms; the cause of which can be traced to feeble, clogged kidneys.

The physicians for the insurance companies always carefully examine and report on the condition of the urine. It is a certain sign of sickness or health of the human body.

A test of the urine should be made by every man and woman at least once each year. A simple test is to void a small quantity of urine in a bottle or glass and let it stand over night; next morning, if there is a reddish brick-dust sediment, or white, flecoy substance present, either consult some reputable physician or take a good vegetable treatment. The following prescription is recommended highly in these cases, and it dearable the sufferer can mix it at home. Any good prescription pharmacy has the ingredients, which are harmless and inexpensive: Compound Kargon, one ounce; Fluid Extract Dandshon, one-half ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. Where any of the symptoms enumerated above are present, good results are sure to follow immediately the use of this simple prescription.

TENDERS ARE TO BE CALLED FOR

In Connection With the Carrying of The City's Banking Account

A joint meeting of the Finance Committee of the City Council, the Water Commissioners, the City Trust Commissioners and the Finance Committee of the Board of Education was held yesterday afternoon for the purpose of making some arrangements for the carrying of the city's banking account for next year. Last year the Bank of Toronto was given the contract, but have intimated that they will not accept it again this year at the same figure. Those present at yesterday's meeting were the mayor, Ald. Tovey, Morrow, Bradburn and Phelan, of the Finance Committee; Messrs. T. F. Matthews and W. H. Moore, of the Water Commissioners, and Messrs. R. Fair (chairman), L. M. Hays (chairman of the Finance Committee); B. F. Ackerman and W. S. Robinson, of the Board of Education. After some consideration a committee, consisting of the Mayor, Ald. Morrow of the Finance Committee, T. F. Matthews of the Water Commissioners, W. H. Moore of the City Trust Commissioners and L. M. Hayes of the Board of Education, were appointed to ask for tenders for the carrying of the various city accounts for the year. Tenders will be received until December 10th.

OLDE TYME CONCERTE REPEATED

Another Large Audience Heard The Splendid Programme

The "Olde Tyme Concerte," under the auspices of the choir of St. Andrew's Church, which was given with so much success on Friday of last week, was repeated last night with the result that those taking part scored a distinct triumph. The audience was even larger than on the first occasion, the seating accommodation of the Sunday School room being severely taxed.

The programme, which was much the same as that presented on Friday, was greatly enjoyed by the audience and the applause that greeted each number indicated that if there had not been a rule that there were to be no encores recall numbers would have been plentiful.

The success of the affair reflects great credit upon Mr. Freeland, the leader of the choir, and upon Mrs. McClelland, Mrs. Mowat and Miss Hopwood, all of whom have done valuable work in the preparation and presentation of the programme.

Must Pay Damages.

Toronto, Nov. 20.—Justice Clute yesterday awarded the relatives of Alonzo Burley $1,000 against the G. T. R. Burley, a conductor, was killed at London.

"It is difficult, I think," says Mr. Justice Clute, "to conceive of a practice more negligent and likely to cause injury than permitting, at night, the flying shunt to be made without any person or light to give warning of the approaching car. In the present case, while the engine carried a head-light, the car was allowed to follow without light or other protection. The engine, so far from warning the deceased of the approach of the car, was rather likely to mislead."

Anglo-American Convention.

London, Nov. 20.—A commercial convention between Great Britain and the United States was signed at the Foreign Office yesterday between Foreign Secretary Grey and Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, under which British works of art will henceforth be admitted to the United States at one-quarter less than the present duty. In return American commercial travelers' samples will be admitted free at British ports. In future the duty on works of art from Great Britain will be only 15 per cent.

Unrest at Vladivostock.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—Members of Parliament in sympathy with the Government evidently expect that next session will be a lengthy one. Most of them are taking houses for six months or longer.

Senate Vacancies.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—At the Cabinet meeting yesterday afternoon it was expected that the Senate vacancies would be filled, and that the Alberta judges would be appointed. Though these matters were discussed, no decision was arrived at. The only two certainties for the Senate, as stated in a former despatch, are Hon. N. A. Belcourt, M. P., and Archibald Campbell, M. P. The other Ontario vacancy lies between Hon. John Charlton and W. S. Calvert, M. P.

The rumor was in circulation that R. G. MacPherson, M.P. for Vancouver, would be appointed warden of the penitentiary at New Westminster, B.C., but the position which Mr. MacPherson is anxious for is the postmastership of Vancouver.

Land Immigrants at St. John.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 20.—The plan arranged by the C. P. R. and Allan Line, of landing all second-class and steerage passengers here, will materially swell immigration figures at this port. Both companies intend to bring passengers right to St. John, instead of landing them at Halifax as formerly.

Medical and baggage officials will meet all steamers at Halifax and complete the checking and examining on the way around. As a result the I.C.R. will lose $2 on each passenger who comes here direct instead of getting off at Halifax.

Montreal, Nov. 20.—A judge yesterday protected a debtor in usury who owed $164.80 by making his payments $4.80 a month. It will take ten years to pay.

Are You Bankrupt In Nerve Force

THERE IS A RICH FRIEND TO RESCUE YOU—LEARN MORE ABOUT

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

If you spend three dollars a day and earn two you are sure to come to bankruptcy, unless, perchance, some rich friend comes to your assistance.

And yet this is just what thousands of us are doing in regard to our health. By worry, overwork, anxiety or the disobedience of the laws of nature, the energy and vigour of the body is wasted more rapidly than it is built up, and the result is the bankruptcy of the health and the decay of the body.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food may be likened to the rich friend, for it supplies in condensed and easily assimilated form the very ingredients from which nature constructs nervous energy and builds up the human system.

Mrs. F. Turner, 336 Aylmer street, Peterborough, Ont., and whose husband is employed at the Hamilton foundry, states: "For some months past I found myself growing nervous and gradually becoming a victim of sleeplessness, and subject to frequent attacks of nervous headache. About six weeks ago I began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and cannot speak too highly of this medicine. I can sleep well now, the headaches have entirely disappeared, and I believe that my system generally has been improved greatly by the use of this treatment."

Sleeplessness, headaches, indigestion, loss of appetite, worn-out feelings, spells of weakness and despondency are some of the symptoms of exhaustion which point to the approach of nervous prostration, locomotor ataxia and paralysis.

No one would think of neglecting such ailments if they realized their condition, but they do not, so gradual and insidious is their approach.

If you are persistently subject to these symptoms you are in danger. Your blood must be enriched. Your nerves must be invigorated. Your system must be built up. And there is no means whereby this can be so certainly accomplished as by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food; 50 cents a box at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.—7.

TO CONCILIATE TELEGRAPHERS.

Grand Trunk Railway Applies for a Board of Arbitration.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The G. T. R. have asked the Labor Department at Ottawa to appoint a board of arbitration to enquire into the merits of the request of the company's telegraphers for an increase in pay. The negotiations between the company and the men were broken off on Saturday.

The men are holding out for extra pay for Sunday work, a thing that is granted by every large system in Canada except the Grand Trunk, and for a general increase of about 20 per cent. in the wage schedule.

The G. T. R. yardmen have been successful in securing a 12 per cent. increase in pay, taking effect from Nov. 1.—The average yardman now receives $55 per month, and the yard conductor in the neighborhood of $75 per month. They will now receive, under the change, yard brakemen $70, and the yard conductor $95. This change will affect between 500 and 600 men on the entire system.

It is expected the demands of the engineers, firemen and telegraphers of the T. & N. O. Railway will be satisfied. The board of arbitration, composed of Prof. Adam Shortt, Wallace Nesbitt, K. C., and Mr. Campbell, have almost concluded their work and an award may be expected shortly.

OTTAWA MINT CLOSED.

Must Be Provided With Stout Fence According to Rule.

Ottawa, Nov. 20.—The Ottawa branch of the royal mint, which was proclaimed open on Nov. 9th has been proclaimed closed again by the Imperial authorities. In case of a mint the British authorities are very strict. The King personally puts his signature to the proclamation which announces the mint open and ready to coin gold for anyone who may offer it. Therefore, everything has to be in readiness, according to the regulations of royal mint authorities.

One of these regulations declares that around every branch mint there must be a protection in the form of a good stout fence. Since proclaiming the Ottawa branch of the royal mint open the royal mint masters have learned that the fence here is not furnished. Therefore they have withdrawn their proclamation and postponed the opening of the mint until Jan. 1.

Y., Nov. 20.—Angele Crousset, a 12-year-old girl, whose assertion that she had been assaulted by a strange man in the woods near her home in Clyde, caused great excitement in the neighborhood and led to the organization of a posse to hunt down her assailant, has confessed to the sheriff that her story was a pure invention.

The child declared that reading a newspaper account of an assault upon women, had led her to seek notoriety.

Woman's World

MRS. ARTHUR STANNARD.

Says Women Must Work, Play and Sleep Well to Be Beautiful.

More work, more play, more sleep. That is the potent trinity which all women in all climes must cultivate assiduously if they would preserve their beauty, charm and health, according to Mrs. Arthur Stannard, better known to the literary world as John Strange Winter.

"Work well, play well and you will sleep well," she says to her sisters the world over.

"Play is quite as essential as work, and a reasonable amount of work is essential to that kind of sleep which does the body good.

"The woman idler may sleep, but it is not the kind of sleep that comes to the woman who has exercised her brain enough to feel the effort and whose muscles have been in motion long enough to require rest.

"It is such work, such play and such sleep, and this kind only, that develop character in woman, make her healthy and preserve her charm.

Cure For Seasickness.

Of the so called cures for seasickness there is no end, and as many people are taking sea voyages there can be no harm in giving the latest recipe. It is as follows:

"The appliances are a basin of hot water at 80 degrees and a couple of handkerchiefs. Whenever the traveler feels that he is becoming giddy he must lie flat on his back on the cabin sofa or a deck chair. The clothes are unbuttoned so that there is nothing to hinder breathing. Then the handkerchiefs are wrung out in the hot water and bound round the forehead. This bandage must be made very tight, which can be done by using a penholder or something of the kind as a lever when twisting it. During the first minute or two the sensation is not particularly pleasant, but those who bear it are completely cured, which is surely sufficient reward for any temporary inconvenience. When the bandage begins to get cold another must be put on and the process continued, each time with a hotter bandage if possible until the patient is relieved of the squeamish feeling. This should be accomplished in about half an hour. In very obstinate cases it may take an hour.

"While under treatment the patient must not eat, drink or smoke. One of the symptoms of seasickness is excessive thirst, which must not be assuaged. If the patient has a craving for food he may be given a little dry toast and weak tea. Two hours after the cure the patient need not fear a hearty meal, smoking or drinking. Those who undergo this treatment at the beginning of a voyage are never troubled with seasickness even when the sea runs high."

A Good Layer Cake.

A good cake to be made into a dark and a light section for a layer cake can be made as follows: For the dark part, in which some fruit is to be mixed, take one cupful of brown sugar and a half cupful of butter. Rub these together and add one-half cupful of sour milk, a tablespoonful of cinnamon and half as much of cloves ground fine, two cupfuls of sifted flour, one teaspoonful or less of soda dissolved in warm water, according to the sourness of the milk and freshness of the soda. Add the beaten yolks of three eggs.

The white part will require a cupful of granulated sugar, one cupful of butter, one cupful of flour, with one-half cupful also of cornstarch, one-half a cupful of sweet milk, one teaspoonful of baking powder and the whites of the three eggs for which the yolks were used for the dark part.

Stone and chop some raisins, enough to make a cupful, beforehand, so they will be ready for the dark part of this fine cake. Other fruits may be used, such as part figs or prunes or currants if preferred. Even chopped dried apricots or peaches make a nice addition.

Bake in jelly cake pans and arrange in alternate layers, with icing between them and over the surface.

Peaches and pears may be sliced for a salad and chopped blanched almonds sprinkled over them. Lay upon heart leaves of lettuce and serve with either French dressing or a mayonnaise made quite white with whipped cream.

Shoe Sense.

The shoe should be three-fourths of an inch longer than the foot, for the foot works forward in walking.

Short shoes force the toes back, and finally the joints become distorted and

SHOWING OFF A GUEST.

The Innkeeper Was Determined Fessenden Should Appear.

One night while ex-Secretary of the Treasury Fessenden was on a political mission to the northern part of Maine he stopped at a small hotel.

In the center of the house was a big store that warmed two rooms. In one of the apartments Judge Fessenden established himself and prepared to take proper comfort during the evening. Just as he had got well located with a book the landlord, a six foot French Canadian, came in.

"Excuse me, 'seir," said he, "but Mr. Ed Wiggone of Maysville, she be in de odder room, an' she wan' to see Mr. Fessendeen."

"Tell Mr. Wiggin I'll be in a little later," said Judge Fessenden, turning another leaf in his book.

The landlord went out. He returned in a moment. "Mr. Wiggone she send his compliments, an' she say dat she wan' Mr. Fessendeen right away."

The interruption just at that moment rather nettled the judge, who was in no way accustomed to dictatorship. He sent back such a sharp reply that it was easily seen that the landlord was cut by his asperity. In just thirty seconds the landlord was back. Judge Fessenden raised his eyes to find the man staring at him with a look of desperate resolve. With suppressed excitement in his tones the tall landlord spoke.

"Mr. Wiggone say she wan' see Mr. Fessendeen quick, an' she gues' o' de house, an' I say she gon' to see him."

Forthwith the big landlord swooped down on the astonished gentleman, seized him, tucked him under his arm and strode across into the room of the peremptory gentleman from Maysville.

"Mr. Wiggones," calmly said the landlord, as matter of fact as though he had just delivered a pitcher of ice water, "here be Mr. Fessendeen." He set the indignant "caller" down on a chair and retired smilingly.

CURIOUS WILLS.

The Last Testament of an Eccentric Englishwoman.

When a woman makes a will she often shows a curious turn of mind, as, for instance, an Englishwoman named Margaret Thompson, who was a noted snuff taker. She left a will that reeked of the fragrant tobacco dust from beginning to end. She gave implicit instructions that her body should be completely covered with the best Scotch snuff, "in which," so ran her words, "I always had the greatest delight," and her coffin carried by six men who were known to be the greatest snuff takers in her parish and who were to wear snuff colored beaver hats.

Her pall was to be borne by six maidens, "each to wear a proper hood and to carry a box filled with the best Scotch snuff to take for their refreshment as they go along." The minister was to walk before the procession and carry a pound of snuff, for which he was to receive 5 guineas. Her old servant was "to walk before the corpse and to distribute every twenty yards a large handful of Scotch snuff to the ground and upon the crowd who may possibly follow me to my burial place." And as if this were not enough of the precious powder to dispose of, she ordered that "at least two bushels of the said snuff may be distributed at the door of my house."

Another and more human kind of a singular will was that of a Mrs. Balls, who had two pet animals she was extremely fond of—her late husband's cob mare and a greyhound. In her will she set apart the sum of $525 a year for the support of the mare and $25 a year for the keep of the dog. She also stipulated that the mare "be kept in a comfortable, warm, loose box and not put to work either in or out of harness." It was to be "ridden by a person of light weight not over four days a week and for not more than one hour each day at a walking pace."

Hard to Shave.

The hardest beards, or faces, to shave are those of the stonecutters. The fine particles of granite or marble become ingrained into the skin, and "once over" such a face means half an hour on the hone for the best razor. Coal heavers come next, but coal dust is not so deadly to an edge as granite powder.

A Bit of Sarcasm.

A young man who had prolonged his call on his sweetheart a few nights ago was surprised when a window in an upper story was raised as he left the house and the voice of the mistress called out, "Leave an extra quart this morning, please!"—Argonaut.

HARRIERS' VICTORS WERE HONOURED BY THE Y. M. C. A. BOARD OF DIRECTORS

Interesting Athletic Gathering Held In Y.M.C.A. Last Night—Prize Winners Were Guests of Honour

THE PRESENTATIONS MADE

Ernie Wilson and Peter Wallace Were Recipients of Gifts From Their Club Mates — Many Speeches Were Made

A fitting tribute to the work of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers Club, in the road racing events this season, was the complimentary banquet tendered by the Board of Directors of the Y. M.C.A. to the club last night. The gathering numbered about thirty-five including the members of the Harriers, their friends, and the directors, and a most pleasant evening was the result of the efforts of the latter It was an indication of the fact that the showing of the club is not unrecognized by the management the Association, and as such, was very pleasing to the Harriers, who appreciated the honour very much, and the gathering will do much to draw close the bonds of esteem and fellowship between the directors and the young men of the association. No better way of improving the esprit de corps of the members could have been devised by the directors, and the success of their action will no doubt be grateful to them

The Winners Present.

The guests of honour who occupied seats one each side of the toast-master, were Fred Simpson, who was second at Hamilton, in the Herald race, Ernie Wilson, who won the Examiner road race, and defeated Tom Coley; Ben Howard, who ran second to Wilson in the Examiner race, Ray P. Best, who represented the club at Montreal, and was 25th out of a field of over 260 runners; Peter Wallace, winner of the Examiner five mile event; and Dick Baker, the trainer of the Harriers, who has done so much for them this season. A large number of the other members of the Harriers and their officers were present, and there was a good representation of the directors.

THE GUESTS OF HONOUR

Fred Simpson of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers Who Ran Second in The Hamilton Herald Race

The Examiner trophy, won by Ernie Wilson and the Hamilton Herald cup, captured by Fred Simpson, were prominently displayed.

An excellent repast had been prepared by Messrs. Coleman Bros for the occasion and the good things provided were attacked with a zest that indicated that road racing has no demoralizing effect upon the appetite.

The Support of the Directors

Mr. R. E. Harding, president of the Y.M.C.A., acted as toast master in an efficient manner. Before calling upon the gathering to drink the first toast, that to the King, he expressed his pleasure at seeing such a large turn out of the Harriers, and their friends. The directors at their meeting, had been unanimous in their decision to do something to show their appreciation of the work of the Harriers, the name of which club, he stated, in Scotch, and some time ago, meant, "robbers," but the directors knew the members of the club, and had no fear of their earning that name.

The toast to the King was heartily honoured, the gathering singing the National Anthem in loyal fashion.

"Our Guests" Honoured

The next toast, "Our Guests," was proposed by Mr. V. Eastwood, in an able speech, in which he stated that he was sure that the directors of the Y.M.C.A. were greatly pleased to meet the young men who were taking an interest in physical work, which, he said, appealed to everyone. Out-door sports should be encouraged, because the out-door life off-sets the degenerating influence of the indoor life of the average young man of the city or town. Athletics would develop the brain as well as the brawn of the young men. Speaking of the Harriers' club, the speaker stated that Peterborough could not be excelled for opportunity to develop a club of this nature. It was an excellent thing to see the development of the young men in connection with the Y.M.C.A., which should be made as attractive as possible. The importance of the work could not be magnified too much, and he extended to the Harriers the best wishes of the directors.

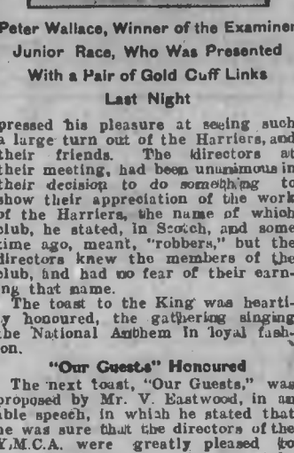
The toast was honoured amid much enthusiasm and applause.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner replied on behalf of the winners in an excellent speech, thanking the directors of the Y.M.C.A. for the kindly spirit shown shown to the Harriers. He was sure that all those interested in sport, owed a great debt to the Y.M.C.A., for what it had done in connection with athletics. The church in the past had not done its duty in respect to sport, which it should encourage. It was waking up to the importance of that fact now, mainly due to the prominent place that the Y. M. C. A. has taken in that connection.

The Ancient Sports

Mr. Kenner then gave a most interesting address on sports, showing the great attention that was paid to athletics by the people of ancient days, notably by the Greeks. The first Olympic games were described and the story of the first Marathon race told in a vivid manner that made the subject a most interesting one.

THE GUESTS OF HONOUR



Peter Wallace, Winner of the Examiner Junior Race, Who Was Presented With a Pair of Gold Cuff Links Last Night

THE GUESTS OF HONOUR

Ernie Wilson Who Beat Tom Coley in Toronto And Won Examiner Road Race

Speaking of the Marathon races of recent years, Mr. Kenner paid a tribute to Billy Sherring, who had won the classic event at Athens in a most creditable manner. He had gone over to Greece with hardly any money and had pitted himself against the best runners of the world, backed up by unlimited capital and with true Canadian courage had carried off the honours.

Mr. Kenner then referred to the victories won by members of the Harrier Club. Fred Simpson, he stated had made a remarkable showing in the Hamilton Herald race, the classic road racing event in Canada, and deserved great credit for his work, Ernie Wilson had not only won the Examiner road race, but had also beaten Tom Coley in most creditable time in Toronto, and he was glad to know that his efforts were recognized by the Club.

Presentations Made

At this stage Mr. Kenner called upon Mr. C G Graham, the treasurer of the Harriers, who, on behalf of the club, presented Mr. Wilson with a handsome pin as a recognition of his victories.

Mr. Kenner paid a tribute to Peter Wallace, the winner of the Examiner five mile race. In doing so he said that the club shouyld not lose sight of the younger runners, who would be afled upon to take the place of the seniors before long.

Mr. Graham presented the junior winnier with a neat pair of gold cuff links on behalf of the Harrier Club.

In conclusion Mr. Kenner remarked that the local road race had done much to develop the sport of long distance running in this city.

His remarks were greeted with prolonged applause.

Mr. J H Connal proposed the next toast, "The Harrier Club." In doing so he referred to the splendid work done by the original members of the club, who had been of the greatest assistance to the physical director and the members of the physical department. Speaking of the importance of athletics Mr. Connal remarked that there were present a number of men who had formerly engaged in sports and whose appearance indicated that it had not been time spent in vain, instancing Mr. J J Howden as a good example. It was important that the Y.M.C.A. should get as many men of the stamp of the Harriers interested in their work.

A Grant for the Meet

Mr. E M Best, president of the Harriers, made an excellent speech in their behalf, speaking of the good work done by the Harriers and expressing the hope that next year they would be equally as successful and earn another banquet. He thanked the Y.M.C.A. directors for their kindness in giving them the reception which he said was appreciated by the Harriers. Before concluding, Mr. Best referred to the athletic meet which will be held under the auspices of the Harroiers in the Brock street rink on Dec. 3rd, which he hoped would be a great success.

At the conclusion of Mr. Best's speech, Mr. Harding made an announcement that was received with great enthusiasm. It was to the effect that the directors of the Y.M.

THE GUESTS OF HONOUR

Ben Howard of the Y.M.C.A. Harrier Second in Examiner Road Race

C.A. had decided to give the Harriers a grant of $50 towards the expenses of the event.

The Association

The toast to "Our Association" was proposed by Mr. R M Glover, who complimented the Y.M.C.A. on the excellent work that it was doing. There were three departments in which the Association was endeavouring to develop young men—mentally, morally and physically. Before concluding he paid a tribute to Mr. Wright, the new secretary.

The latter replied to the toast in an able speech in which he spoke of the work of the Association and referred in terms of the highest praise to the Harriers of whom he said that he hoped that he would always be a friend.

Rev. E A Pearson of the George street methodist church, was called upon for a speech and complied briefly, but effectively. He spoke of the benefits and importance of sport and referred to the days when he was pitcher for the Peterborough baseball team and helped the cricket team to win victories.

Mr. J C Shook, of the Board of Directors, also spoke. In reply to a suggestion that had been made in one of the previous speeches, he said that the Directors had in view the installing of a bowling alley in the Y.M.C.A. building which he thought would tend to make the place more attractive for young men. The last toast was to the "Ladies" and was proposed in a humourous and eloquent speech by Mr. W D Campbell and replied to in a neat oration by Mr. Chas. Simson.

In conclusion the benediction was given by Rev. Mr. Pearson, bringing a most enjoyable evening to a close.

Letters of regret at their inability to be present were read from Mr. J. W. Bennett and Hon. J. S. Stratton.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

TRAINMEN CAPTURED A WILD GOOSE

Picked it up in a Fatigued Condition After a Long Flight

A gentleman, recently returned from the north, speaks of an incident which was quite common in Peterborough three decades ago. The wild geese flocks are very numerous and with ducks provide excellent shooting. The longer resident citizens will recall the days when the wild fowl used to gather around the town in the late autumn, an dif such were to happen to-day the people would consider it a wonder. But the wild pigeons, ducks and geese are gone with the development of the country.

While coming down on the T. and N. O. Railway one of the crew picked up a wil dgoose that had become fatigued and was unable to fly. They put him in a crate and Mr. Cassidy, the superintendent of the construction work at the northern terminus, decided to brin gil to his home.

BOYS DISCHARGED ON THEFT CHARGE

Charge of Stealing Brass Castings Could Not Be Proven

The case against a number of boys for stealing brass castings, copper wire, etc., from the Carbon Works, Canadian General Electric Company, and the Machine Telephone Company, was continued yesterday afternoon at 4.30, in the police court.

Mr. E. G. Goodwill represented the Children's Aid Society.

John Doig was again put in the witness box. He was shown a piece of brass and identified it as a piece he bought on Sunday from the boys, while he was lying in bed. The chief showed him another piece, which evidently formed part of a street car at one time, but Mr. Doig could not inform the court as to whom he got it from or when.

P. C. Newhall told of how he received the information and went to Doig's junk shop on Sherbrooke street. The officer carried with him a certain piece of a machine phone, and wanted Doig to produce two pieces similar to it, which had been stolen. "I haven't got any," was the junk dealer's reply. "Yes you have," said Newhall; "they were brought here on Sunday and I am going to search."

The officer then stated how he searched and found the brass union of the machine phone near the top, and the piece of metal from a street car three-fourths of the way down. Doig told the story to P. C. Newhall the same as he told in court as to how he came to get the brass.

The three boys charged with the theft then took the stand, and swore they had no knowledge of selling Mr Doig anything belong to the Machine Telephone Company, but said that the piece that they sold Doig on Sunday morning was found on the car track near the G. T. R. station. They also corroborated Doig's statement about going to his room and getting five cents for the brass found. One of the boys stated that Doig supplied them with bags to carry scrap.

The Magistrate upon hearing the evidence decided to allow the boys to go on the charge of having stolen brass castings from the Canadian Machine Telephone Company. Mr. Lyttle, the local manager was present, and asked His Worship in his evidence, to be lenient with the boys, as all he wanted was the goods back.

G.T.R. Gate Broken Again

Was Uprooted by Car But Was in Working Order at Noon by Rapid Repair

The railway gates at the Charlotte street crossing of the G. T. R., again met with an accident last night, and as a result the south gate, on the east side of the street was badly twisted, and will be out of commission for some time, at least until it is repaired.

The Edison car was following the Jackson Park car going east, at 15 minutes to six o'clock. A shunting engine crossed, and the night gateman raised the gates to let the two cars pass. The green car got over all right, but the gateman apparently forgot the other car and began to lower the gates. As a result the red car smashed into the east gate twisting it out of all shape, and throwing it over on its side.

ON TEMPERANCE

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—Believing the press to be the mightiest of all mighty on which the arm of progress leans, this open letter is addressed to you, in the confidence that yourself, sir, together with all other citizens, whose civic ideals are broader than merely economic prosperity—"who count their brother's welfare as sacred as their own," must have come fact to face with the problem of intemperance and its train of evils in our city.

Apparently drunkenness is on the increase. Probably we are no worse in this respect than other cities, possibly better, but, Mr. Editor, is there not room for improved conditions?

There is so much to gratify our natural pride in our city — the rapid growth of our industries, our public buildings, educational and philanthropic, our churches, and yet, are not these "such boastings as the Gentiles use," while we forget that the strength and stability of our city depends on the moral tone of our manhood. The city's most valuable asset is the boys.

The trend of life to-day is to the city. The city is full of traps, and snares and stumbling blocks for the boys. What are the Christian men doing to clear the path that the boys may find it easier to live a clean, noble manly life?

Doubtless you are aware, sir, of the work that has been carried on in Toronto since the year 1839, by the Canadian Temperance League. It is not a secret society, but an association that believes in the educative power of gospel temperance work. With this aim in view it has secured the best available platform talent on the continent for the Sunday afternoon meetings. Each year the League its books with a clear balance sheet.

Another feature of the work has been the introduction of coffee houses, as an offset to the bar, in districts most frequented by working men. A am informed that these have been a success almost from the start.

Our city is not nearly so large as Toronto, but is there not a call to the Christian men to inaugurate some movement whereby the boys and young men may learn the evils of the drink habit, from moral, economic and scientific view points? All our cherished heritage of liberty and security has come to us as the result of self-sacrifice and heroism, that words cannot adequately express. What are we to bequeath to the succeeding generation? God of our fathers known of old.

"Be withus yet,
Lest we forget, lest we forget."

I remain, sir,
Yours,
M. L.

PATHETIC STORY OF LITTLE BOY

Attempts to Walk to Toronto From Here —Taken Into House at Pontypool

NO FRIENDS AT STATION

The story of the travels, by foot, of little Herbert Spickenrider, the 9-year old Home boy, who left Toronto a week ago Saturday for a farm in Douro Township, is a very pathetic one. The little fellow was placed on the train in Toronto, in charge of the conductor, who brought him safely to Peterborough.

Arriving here the boy found no person awaiting for him at the station, or at least he did not make much of an effort to find out the details of his destination, which was the home of Mr. James Leary, of Douro township.

Without a place to go to, and in desolate spirits, the youth turned his back on Peterborough and began to walk back towards the Queen City, which he had left but a few hours before. On Sunday the youthful pedestrian had reached Pontypool, footsore and tired. He was taken in charge there by Mr. Chambers, who found him still plodding along the railway track on his homeward journey. He carried a parcel with a little note, "For Herbert" enclosed.

The police here were communicated with and Mr. J. J. Kelso, of the Children's Aid Society, informed of the case.

The boy after being taken care of at Pontypool, in the Chambers residence, was sent back to the Shelter in Toronto, to get a fresh start. He arrived back in the city yesterday, and as far as can be learned, he has reached the Leahy farm in safety.

Examiner Newsboys Competition

The Examiner Weekly Prize of $2.00 was won on Saturday last by HAROLD LEES, whose profits for the week were over $5.00.

Just think of making this amount of money by working a little while after school! Of course every boy who sells the Examiner does not make this amount, but he does make enough, and more than enough to pay him for his trouble.

We want every newsboy to work even harder than he has been for the list of EIGHTEEN PRIZES that is to be paid on January 1st, next.

The boy who has the greatest number of new customers will get $25.00 in cash. In all eighteen boys will receive prizes and if you hustle a little you are sure to be one of the winners.

Big Athletic Meet Will Be Held In Rink On Dec. 3

Harriers Decide on That Date—Irish Canadians Will be Here With Their Best Athletes—Great Evening's Sport is Promised

THE HANDICAP EVENTS

The Y.M.C.A. Harriers have decided to hold their big athletic meet in the Brock street rink, on Tuesday night, December 3rd, two weeks from last night, and are now busy at work in arranging the programme. The chief feature, of course, will be the presence of the Irish-Canadian team from Toronto, which will include Tom Longboat, Tom Coley, Percy Sellen, Hilton Greene, the Mohawk runner; O'Rourke, the great shot putter, and, T. C. Flannagan, the manager of the Club. The presence of such well known athletes should pack the rink. To get a chance to see the wonderful Longboat, Coley, the winner of the Hamilton Herald race, and the victor of a dozen other battles; Sellen, the holder of the Canadian five-mile record and Greene, next to Longboat, the best known Indian runner in the world, all in one night is an opportunity not to be missed.

There will be a number of handicap events in which local athletes, whether members of the Harriers or not, are cordially invited tot ake part. There will be several sprinting events, the distances of which have not yet been decided upon, and there should be good fields of local sprinters in the events, as well as in the jumping and shot-putting.

There will, of course, be a number of races in which the Irish-Canadians will be pitted against the best of the local runners. It is probable that there will be a three-mile race between Coley and Sellen, of the Irish-Canadians, and Wilson and Howard of the local Y.M.C.A., which should result in a battle royal, as the four on form seem very evenly matched. Coley is burning for an opportunity to get revenge on Wilson for his defeat in Toronto; while the local boy will do his best to take him into camp one more. Meanwhile Sellen and Howard must not be lost sight of, as the little Englishman has a great turn of speed, while Howard has shown good form in every event in which he has taken part. It has been found by measurement that it will take thirteen laps in the rink to make one mile. The rink will make an excellent spot for such an event, as the spectators will be able to see the track from any point along the sides.

Ottawa College May Play In Peterboro' On Saturday

Canadian Union Has Ordered The Collegians To Meet The O.R.F.U. Champions—Winners To Play Montreal For The Honours The Week After

GREAT GAME IS PROMISED

The Peterborough rugby club is in a delightful state of uncertainty just now in regard to the games for the Dominion championship, and they do not know whether they will play Ottawa here on Saturday, whether they will go to Ottawa for the game, or whether they will meet Montreal in Montreal for the championship honours. Telephone and telegraph messages have been flashing along the wires in all directions all day, and at the time of going to press nothing definite had been arrived at. At one stage the locals had arrived at a decision to go to Montreal on Saturday, but after considering the matter they decided to telephone Ottawa to the effect that they would give the Collegians their expenses to come here on the week-end, and had not been able to get into communication with the students when the Examiner went to press.

Last night while Ottawa College and Peterborough were endeavouring ot come to some agreement in regard to the game on Saturday the officials of the Canadian Rugby Football Union were holding a meeting in Toronto to consider the question of the Dominion championship. This morning Secretary McDonough received a telegram from President Irvine of the Montreal Club, stating that Montreal was endeavouring through the C.R.U. to arrange a game with Peterborough in Montreal on Saturday for the Dominion championship. Before the locals could make any reply to this, another telegram arrived, this time from the Canadian Union to the effect that the Union had ordered Ottawa College and Peterborough to meet in Peterborough on Saturday and the winner to meet Montreal in the eastern city on the following Saturday.

Ottawa College were called up immediately by 'phone, and at first declined to come to Peterborough on Saturday, and this was thought to have ended the matter. The local management decided to try them again, and this afternoon informed Ottawa that they would give them their expenses to play here on Saturday so that it is possible that the fast College team will be seen here this week in the first of the final games for the Dominion championship. If they come there should be the biggest crowd on hand that ever saw a Rugby match in Peterborough.

The rugby boys will practice on Riverside Park to-night. Every man is requested to be there.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The act of the Board of Directors of the local Y.M.C.A., in making a grant of $50 towards the expenses of the big athletic meet which the Harriers will put on in two weeks' time, shows the proper spirit on the part of the management towards athletics, and will do a great deal in making the institution even more popular with the young men of the city than it is at present.

An Ottawa man in writing to T. C. Flanagan of the Irish-Canadians has the following knock for Lou Marsh, which will be read with interest:—

PUT THEM ALL OUT.

"As you know, I was a member of the Carnival Committee and know every step that was taken in the matter of your engagement, and you must know that such information is sufficient to put your men out of business, including your (water-carrier, Lou Marsh. Why you have that antiquated number, except as a pacemaker and (water-carrier, I don't know, as we have a dozen boys here who can trim him, but Mr. Marsh has spent considerable of his time writing a conglomeration, of nonsense, and incidentally abusing Ottawa men in the Rod and Gun, and get a member of a string of professionals. Then, again, you will remember that while here I asked you how you managed to hold your men, and your reply was, 'I keep them,' and when I asked for a further definition of that phrase, you said, "I pay for their keep.' And while I was in the rotunda of the Hurdson House I saw this celebrated Marsh accept this share of the swag."

LANGFORD REPORTED IN BAD SHAPE

Arrives at Port Hope After 10 And At Newtonville at 2.53—One Foot Sore

LIMPED FROM PORT HOPE

Examiner Special.

Port Hope, Nov. 20.—David Langford, who is endeavouring to walk from Oshawa to Toronto and thence to Port Hope and return to Oshawa, a distance of 138 miles, in 35 hours, arrived here at 10.55 this morning. He went to the Queen's Hotel, where he had a rub down and took some stimulants. He says the roads are bad in many places. When he arrived he was limping very badly, but he expressed himself as feeling confident of completing his journey on time. Langford said that his legs were all right, but that the bottom of the left foot was very sore. He was an hour short of Jimmy Reynolds' time, but was confident of beating Reynolds' record. Langford looked pale and weary, and it was the opinion here that he could not go much further. When he started away he limped rather slowly and painfully up the hill towards Oshawa.

Newtonville, Nov. 20.—Langford arrived here at seven minutes to 3. He left Port Hope at 11.15, and therefore footed the 12 miles in three hours and 38 minutes. He was in pretty bad shape. He has to get to Oshawa, 20 miles from here, before 7 o'clock, to finish in the 35 hours, having four hours and seven mniutes to go it in.

FIRST ANNUAL BOARD OF TRADE BANQUET A SUCCESSFUL EVENT; HON. J. D. ROLLAND THE SPEAKER

Well Attended by Manufacturers, Professional And Business Men Of The City

PRAISE FOR PETERBORO'

Speaker Refers in Complimentary Terms To Growth of City—Touches on Preservation of The Forests

THE SPEAKERS

Hon. J. D. Rolland,
F. D. Kerr,
R. R. Hall, M.P.,
T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.,
Dr. M. A. Morrison,
George A. Gillespie,
T. F. Matthews,
D. Hughes Charles,
W. H. Moore,
Mayor McWilliams.

The excellent success of the first annual banquet of the Board of Trade last night should amply justify and strengthen the decision to make it a yearly event. There was a large attendance, about a hundred guests being present to greet and welcome Hon. Mr. Rolland. A feature of the attendance was the presence of so many of the younger generation of business men, indicating the continuity of the enterprise and business energy that has contributed so largely to the city's position of prominence in industrial and commercial activities, which gives so much cause of pride to citizens, and challenge the attention of visitors. In the course of his speech, Hon. Mr. Rolland expressed his high appreciation of the importance and promise of our manufacturing establishments. In fact, he more than made it a feature of his address, it constituted one of the principal subjects of it. His good opinion is worthy of attention, too. As president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and from a life long practical association with manufacturing enterprises, he should be in a position to form a correct estimate. His remarks upon this head should be a lasting encouragement to the Board of Trade to enter with new energy upon the work of adding to the number of our industries. Naturally, Mr. Rolland was an ex-officio champion of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, which, with its membership of 2,000, occupies an important relation to the national economy. Naturally, too, he insisted upon the necessity of preserving, especially, our pulpwood forests, and advocated measures which would promote such preservation and give Canada the largest possible share of benefit from the exploitation of the resources with which we had so generously been endowed. Altogether, the banquet may be pronounced a success and a credit to its directly active promoters and to the auspices under which it was held.

The Banquet

The banquet was laid in the dining rooms of the Oriental Hotel, which were dressed en fete for the occasion, the work being done by Messrs. Turner & Sons, in a very tasteful and elaborate manner. In addition to the national flags a treize festoon of tricolour bunting was effectively employed in complement to the original nationality of the guest of the evening. The banquet was represented by an elaborate menu, and its excellent character can be judged by the following copy:—

New York Counts.
Mock Turtle au Bordeaux
Celery Queen Olives Salted Almonds
Fillet Columbia River Salmon (Hollandaise) (Pommes Oriental)
Cromesquis of Chicken au Provencal
Boiled Potatoes Petit Pois
Jellied Fruit, Richelieu
PUNCH a la ROMAINE
Spring Turkey, Stuffed with Chestnuts (Cranberry Sauce.)
Mashed Potatoes
Cauliflower and Cream
Waldorf Salad
Steamed Board of Trade Pudding (hard) Brandy Sauce.
Glaces Assorties Neapolitan Ice Cream
Roquefort Cheese Water Crackers
Nuts Raisins Malaga Grapes Oranges
CAFE AU LAIT

During the courses of the banquet a programme of pianforte selections was artistically presented by Miss Kate Graham, the Intermezzo to Cavalleria Rusticana by Mascagni, being performed with especial taste and finish.

The Guest List.

Dr. Morrison, President of the Board of Trade, acted as chairman, having on his right the guest of the evening, Hon. J. D Rolland, President of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Mr. R R Hall, M.P., and Mr. D Hughes Charles, a member of the Council of the Board, and on his left Mayor McWilliams, Mr. T. The Toast List

Dr. Morrison in a neat reference proposed "The King" which was royally and loyally honoured, "God Save the King" being heartily sung.

To this succeeded a quartette, "Boys of the Old Brigade," so splendidly sung by Messrs. J. Crane, A. B. Bennett, W. F. Nelson and H. Gillespie that a repeat was insisted upon, and satisfied, by the singing of a humorous ditty, "Fishing."

The chairman announced that he

65 Mile Drive From Lumber Camp With Broken Thigh

Donald Robinson of Bobcaygeon Had Painful Experience After Serious Accident—Brought To Nicholls' Hospital

COUSIN CAME WITH HIM

Donald Robinson, an employee of the Cavendish Lumber Company, lies in the Nicholls Hospital with his left thigh broken as a result of an accident in the lumber camp near Bobcaygeon, and the experience which he has come through was enough to test human endurance to its utmost limit.

On Tuesday morning with some of the other men he was skidding logs and a number of them were in position when a chain that was holding them parted, letting the logs roll down from the pile. Mr. Robinson was struck on the left hip by one of them and hurled to the ground. When his companions went to assist him they found that his left leg was powerless and judging from the sound of a breaking bone when he was struck they realized that he needed medical help.

Extreme Pain

Although Mr. Robinson was suffering excruciating pain, he bore up well and coolly explained to the men what he thought had resulted. Everything possible was done for the injured man but all their efforts were unavailing. It was finally decided to bring Mr. Robinson to the Nicholls Hospital in this city and his cousin, Capt. Robinson, decided to drive him down.

A Long Trip

It was not long after the accident that Capt. Robinson, of the steamer Empress, and cousin of the injured man, was on his way to the city with him. He had made everything as comfortable as possible for a buggy and began a long trip of 65 miles to Peterborough. Both men will not forget the experiences of that drive the miles seeming to slip by very slowly. Word was sent from one of the northern villages, either Buckhorn or Burleigh to prepare a room at the hospital and all necessary arrangements were left to Dr. Neal.

Mr. Donald Robinson, the man who suffered the accident was received at the hospital yesterday morning and was given the best medical care. His condition is as favourable as could possibly be expected after such a trying experience and it is not anticipated that any serious results will be felt from the rough journey in the improvised ambulance.

Mr. Robinson is a son of Mr. W J Robinson, of Bobcaygeon, and is apparently about 24 years of age. He bore the pain of his injury with unusual nonchalance and displayed most commendable endurance.

Drops Dead On Returning From a Wedding Reception

Douro Woman Suddenly Expires—Attended Reception Last Night To Bridal Party

WAS A RESPECTED WOMAN

The hand of death fell suddenly upon Miss Mary Tobin of Douro township early this morning just as she had returned home from the wedding reception of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. John McManus. The event was held at the new home of the bridal party, and almost in the midst of the pleasures of the occasion, death called away one of the happy number.

Miss Tobin resided with her brother in Douro township, about three miles this side of the village of Warsaw, on the Warsaw road. Returning home, she suddenly became ill with heart failure, it is stated, and passed away before medical assistance could be summoned.

The deceased woman was well known throughout the township of Douro, where she was much respected by all who knew her, and the news of her sudden death will be received with regret by the whole township, as well as by many friends in the city.

Surviving her, besides her brother Maurice, with whom she resided, are two other brothers, Thomas of Nassau and Cornelius in the United States, and one sister, Miss Sheppard of Rochester.

At the time of going to press the arrangements had not been made for the funeral.

STRINGENCY OF ARGUMENT

The Mail and Empire has made the wonderful discovery that it is not the action of the banks nor the tying up of money in stock speculation that has caused the financial stringency. It is the direct and diabolical work of the people themselves, aided, abetted, and practically held up by Hon. Mr. Fielding, Dominion Minister of Finance. The organ in question—and very much in question, too, as to the soundness of its claim—points out that in 1894, in the slow and stately progress of stagnation under Conservative auspices, the taxes collected from the people amounted to only $27,579,203; but that under the Liberal Government's squeezing, last year the taxes collected from the people amounted to $66,895,000. The organ continues to agonize over the woes of the people who have paid such a large total of taxation, and, as the result of a brilliant calculation shows, that in the past eleven years of Liberal rule the tariff taxation paid by the people had amounted to the "startling total" of $490,000,000; whereas, if the same inflow of revenue as resulted from the lean years of Conservative rule had continued the past eleven years, the total would have been only $308,000,000. Thus, by subtracting the smaller total from the greater, the remainder—$188,000,000 — according to the Mail and Empire's figuring, indicates the amount which, but for Mr. Fielding's folly—which, but for the pig-headed insistence of the people upon buying things—would have now been in circulation, and helped to stave off the financial stringency. What puerile nonsense! A country schoolboy in a back township side line schoolhouse debate would scorn such flimsy argument. In the first place, deceptive presentation of alleged facts, or a presentation evidently intended to deceive, is employed. The Mail and Empire infers a false statement when it says that if the rate of taxation under the Conservative regime had not been increased, so much money "would not have been withdrawn from business during the past eleven years." This is directly misleading. The rate of customs taxation, under which the Liberal Government has collected a revenue of 496 millions in eleven years, has been fourteen per cent. lower than the Conservative was. This means that if the Conservative rate of customs taxation had been in force during the Liberal regime, the total of revenue, assuming the same conditions of prosperity and expansion that have obtained for the past eleven years, would have been 565 millions, instead of 496 millions. "The Laurier Government," is falsely asserted, "to have drawn from the business of the country 186 million dollars more than would have been taken from our earnings, which lessens our working capital, had the old and moderate scale of taxation been continued." The Laurier Government did not withdraw the money spoken of; it was paid by the people, and the people are to blame, if there is any blame. The Laurier Government is guilty of producing a condition of prosperity, or, at least, such conditions of prosperity have attended their administration, that the people had abundant employment; they earned money plentifully, and insisted on purchasing goods which were imported for the use of the people, and in the process they paid the tariff taxation, which is complained of. The business of the country expanded so enormously, under a business administration, that a greatly increased revenue was produced by a much lessened rate of tariff taxation. If the Mail and Empire is disposed to charge the people with producing stringency, by buying too much, it should also bring the people to task for "withdrawing money from the business of the country, by hoarding it in the Government savings banks. It should denounce the outrage of the people, looking up, according to the last statement, $14,712,257.70, in the Government savings banks, and $47,763,348.96 in the Post Office savings bank. The Mail and Empire charges the present stringency of money upon the fact of the Laurier Government having collected taxes, which the people paid in the process of buying what they wanted, and, under the prosperous conditions prevailing, could well afford to buy. It looks upon this money as entirely withdrawn from circulation. It condemns the Government for extravagant expenditure, which represents the distribution of the revenue paid throughout the country. Of the revenue collected, all of it, excepting the surplus remaining and the amount sent out of the country to pay interest on the national debt, is spent in the country, and enters into circulation. There has been, and is, no such sum as 188 millions, as the organ contends, withdrawn from business. The national funds sent out of the country to pay interest on the debt are less, with an overflowing revenue, than it was in the days of Conservative rule, for the Liberal Government has decreased the public debt. The "stringency" is in the organ's argumentative assets.

MUCH CONCERN FELT

Ordinary Method of Treating Catarr Proves Unsuccessful

Recent statistics showing an increase in catarrh have shaken the confidence of medical men in the usual prescriptions to safeguard human health from the ravages of this disease.

When stomach dosing proved ineffective, it was natural to look for some other treatment, and it is believed that in Hyomei an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles has has at last been found. Breathed through a neat pocket inhaler, its healing medication reaches every spot where there are catarrhal germs, destroys them, prevents their future growth, and soothes the irritated mucous membrane so that relief is felt almost instantly, while lasting cure is practically sure to follow.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and is sold by Wm. Madill, under an absolute agreement to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction. It is the only cure for catarrh that has ever been sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures, but Mr. Madill has so much faith in its power to cure all catarrhal troubles that he is willing to take the risk, so if Hyomei does not help you, there will not be a penny's expense. Get an outfit at once on this liberal plan.

FALLING HAIR STOPPED

Baldness Cured by Destroying the Parasitic Germ That Causes It

Baldness follows falling hair, falling hair follows dandruff, and dandruff is the result of a germ digging its way into the scalp to the root of the hair, where it saps the vitality of the hair. To destroy that germ is to prevent as well as cure dandruff, falling hair, and, lastly, baldness. There is only one preparation known to do that, Newbro's Herpicide, an entirely new, scientific discovery. Wherever it has been tried it has proven wonderfully successful. It can't be otherwise, because it utterly destroys the dandruff germ. "You destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. RESTAURANT WINDOW BROKEN

Two Citizens Did Not Send Children To School—Man Burns Rubbish in City Limits

Among the charges brought before Magistrate Dumble in this morning's police court was one against a young man named Arthur Fowler, for creating a disturbance and breaking a window in the Canadian Chinese Cafe at the corner of George and King streets.

The Chinaman, with great difficulty, told His Worship the story of the fracas. He said that Fowler came in with another man and ordered a meal. After it was over they tried to get out without paying. The Chinaman made a grab at Fowler, and during the confusion around the door the prisoner put his arm through the window. Witness said that he began to get abusive and swore. The Chinaman told him that there was a lady in the shop, and to stop swearing.

Fowler was then called to give his story. He said that he went down with a friend to get a meal. He said that he had had four glasses of whisky before going in. On coming out he said the Chinaman took hold of him. Witness admitted that he swore, but said it was the plaintiff who had put his arm through the window.

His Worship fined Fowler $2 and costs. The latter collected the amount from friends in the court court.

John Caridimo and a woman named Mrs. Watman appeared before His Worship on a charge of not sending their children to school. The sons of both of these people have been away from school forsome time. Mrs. Watman was allowed to go, promising to see that her son went to school. John Caridimo's case was enlarged until to-morrow.

Burning Rubbish
For burning rubbish within the city limits was the cause of Mark Butcher's appearance in court this morning. Butcher stated that he did it in ignorance of the law, and had applied to the Chief for permission to do so, but this was before the bylaw was passed. The Magistrate allowed him to go with a warning not to do it again.

FIRST ANNUAL BANQUET OF BOARD OF TRADE

had received letters of regret, which was shared by himself, and he was sure, by the company, from Mr. Robt. Stuart, Chicago; Hon. Geo. A. Cox, Mr. Frederick Nicholls, Hon. J. R. Stratton and Mr. Jas. Kendry."

Representative Institutions

Mr. F. D. Kerr in a thoughtful little speech, proposed the toast of "The Parliament of Canada, and the Legislature of Ontario." He traced the origin of constitutional government in Canada, which had its culmination in the two bodies represented by the toast. He believed that in these two bodies Canada had legislatures that would compare on equal terms with those of any country in the world, and was optimistic enough to believe that on both sides of politics, ninety-nine out of a hundred, were trying to do their duty honestly and faithfully. Reference was made to the great men that had adorned both bodies — Macdonald, Laurier, Blake, Borden, Mowat and Meredith. The toast so happily proposed was associated with the names of Messrs. R. R. Hall and Mr. T. E. Bradburn.

Mr. Hall did justice to his task in a neat and meaty speech, in which, after pointing out that the Dominion Parliament largely concerned itself with the development of trade and commerce, said that it had done its work well as was shown by the fact that the growth of trade in Canada during the past eleven years had only been surpassed by one country — Japan. In that same time the increase in her case had been 213 per cent., and that of Canada 176 per cent., and it was nearly four times greater per head than that of the United States. Canada was so happily situated, so richly endowed, that there seemed to be no probability of a returning ebb to her tide of progress. Grateful reference was made to the guest of the occasion, and to the desirability of a larger interchange of association with prominent men from the sister province, so that we may know what they are doing. He paid a high tribute to the French-Canadian representatives in Parliament. One of the surprises of his first appearance there, was the evidence he received that in intellectual culture, oratorical ability, etc., the French-Canadian members stood head and shoulders above their English-speaking associates. The loyalty and service of French Canada in maintaining connection with the empire, was referred to, and the hope expressed that cordial relations between the two great provinces would be strengthened.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn spoke enthusiastically of the merits of the Ontario Legislature, and asserted that the legislation of the past three session had been of first-class quality. Great credit was due the banquet committee for the success of their first annual attempt.

Mr. W. Mellroy contributed, in stirring style, "The Stein Song," and was compelled to respond to an encore with the "Banks of Loch Lomond. In both of these selections the company caught the burden, and carried it with ringing enthusiasm.

"Our Guest."

In introducing the toast of the evening, "Our Guest," Dr. Morrison said that it should be introduction enough to announce him as president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, though that was by no means his only title to distinction. Reference was made to the many high positions he held in municipal office, as well as in financial and industrial enterprises, combinations which pointed to Hon. Mr. Rolland as a striking representative of the strenuous life. He felt it an especial honour and pleasure to ask the company to drink to the health of "Our Guest, Hon. J. D. Rolland," which was done with the greatest enthusiasm.

Orator of the Evening

The Honourable Mr. Rolland, on rising, was greeted very enthusiastically. His address was one of sound common sense, and being presented in the melodious dialect for which the French-Canadians are noted, made it doubly acceptable to the company. He thanked the members of the Board of Trade for their invitation to him to be the speaker for their first annual banquet. It was the first social event he had attended since becoming president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association of Canada, and he was pleased that the growing city of Peterborough should be the first in which he should be present on such an occasion.

Touching upon the history of the Association, he mentioned that it had been founded thirty years ago in Montreal. Later, that city joined its forces with Toronto, and now the Canadian Manufacturers' Association has a membership of 2,200, with branches from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The aims of the Association are to secure united action among the manufacturers to secure proper tariffs, through a committee to look after their rectification; to secure freight regulations through a Railway Committee, and to advance trade with other countries through a Bureau of Commercial Utilities. Our goods being known, our Canadian manufactures shall continue to be considered among the best.

His First Visit.

Hon. Mr. Rolland next referred to his first visit to Peterborough of some thirty years ago, which was recalled to memory yesterday as he drove about the city and visited the prominent factories. Peterborough was not a century old, but from its advancements he knew that it had grown old in progress. History showed that Smith's Plains, where now stands Peterborough, were first settled about 1818. In 1825 there was a rush of immigrants, each with a cow, an axe, saw, gimlet, hammer, nails, a hoe, a kettle, some potatoes, and some Indian corn to begin life.

Bouquet for our City

Peterborough was called after Peter Robinson, an early influential settler. Although Peterborough has had a short history, said the speaker, every line rings to her credit, due to the rank and file being public-spirited men. Peterborough was known to many countries as the home of the canoe and of the Quaker Oats. After visiting the industries here, including the Quaker Oats establishment, he could readily see why the latter designation, at least, was true and appropriate.

He also referred to the marvellous work carried on in the Canadian General, and to the flourishing condition of the new carpet factory. The speaker next dwelt upon the enormous increase of customs in Peterborough during the past few years, pointing out that we should assist in the manufacture of goods in our own country. "Your imports show an increase of from one and a half millions in 1904 to three million in 1906." Mr. Rolland next touched upon the growth of the city since 1881, when the population was only over 6,000 and his statement was greeted with applause when he said that there was no other city in Canada that had made such a progress. The Trent Waterway was a means of transportation to which he had taken particular notice. Its advantages not only to Peterborough, but to Montreal and to the whole of Canada when completed would be great in view of the fact that railways cannot compete with water in the question of carrying of freight.

Forest Preservation

A hobby of Mr. Rolland's, as he said himself, was the question of the protection and preservation of forests and the "white horse power," Lakes and rivers would exist only until their banks were left nude of the forests. Then they soon became dry and useless so far as water power is concerned.

Touching on the pulpwood problem he pointed out how lands in certain parts of Quebec were being laid bare to provide the raw material for the United States pulp mills. United States companies who have purchased limits in Canada are cutting away our forests to provide work for men in the country across the line. When the forests go, dry go the lakes and rivers that were once uncircled by the forests.

Mr. Rolland advocated the manufacture of pulpwood in Canada and referred to the advantages that would be forthcoming to Canadian labour providing we manufactured our own paper on this side of the line.

Raw material for pulpwood is diminishing and the demand from the United States is robbing us of our forests and to preserve our pulp we must preserve our forests.

The speaker before resuming his seat again thanked the committee in his affable manner for their kindness in taking him around the city, which journey had been a most interesting one to him, and he hoped for the continued prosperity of the City of Peterborough. (Loud applause.)

Another Toast

The male quartette was again called upon and rendered in splendid style "Mamma's Little Baby Boy," after which Mr. Geo. A. Gillespie, the Vice-President of the Board, proposed the toast to the Financial, Manufacturing and Mercantile Interests. Mr. Gillespie briefly referred to Peterborough's standing in commercial lines and to the proud fact that Canada was holding her own among the commercial advancements of the various countries of the world. The toast was heartily drunk and responded to by Messrs. T. F. Matthews and D. Hughes Charles.

Mr. Matthews stated he was particularly well pleased to have such a prominent manufacturer from the east to be the speaker on such an occasion. He next gave a few interesting facts on Canada's trade advance during the period of the decade between 1896 and 1906. It has steadily increased in that time from $231,000,000 to $546,000,000. The bulk of the commerce is with Great Britain and the United States and Mr. Matthews quoted figures showing the expansion of trade with these two countries.

Gratifying Figures

From Great Britain our imports during the 10 years above referred to have increased from $40,000,000 to $68,000,000 and from the United States from $40,000,000 to $175,000,000.

The expansion of our trade is distributed over a wide range of products including minerals, fisheries, forest products, animals and their produce, agricultural products and manufacturies. The increase in Canadian trade with the British West Indies is also noticeable and domestic trade in Canada in 1906 was exceptionally prosperous. Although many factories were running night and day, new ones were constantly established on account of the further press of business.

In conclusion Mr. Matthews touched upon the tariff question referring to Hon. Mr. Fielding's views on the question.

On Banking

Mr. Hughes Charles said he had been asked to fill Senator Cox's shoes at the present hour, and he was afraid that they were a little too large for him. He congratulated the Board of Trade on having secured such a prominent manufacturer as Mr. Rolland to address them at the first annual banquet. Speaking of financial matters, Mr. Charles said the banks were the most important of Canada's financial institutions. Canadians had reason to be proud of Canada's banking system. It was far superior to that of the United States, as was plainly evidenced in the present financial stringency. New York had boasted that it was rapidly becoming the great financial centre of the world, yet at the present time the banks there had no money, and could not even provide a small loan. He cited a case that happened a few days ago, where three prominent New Yorkers were not able to secure $600 from their bankers. In connection with the financial stringency, the speaker ventured the assertion that there were millions of dollars in gold and currency, hoarded up in the country, because the people were afraid to trust the financial institutions. The reason why money was so scarce in Canada was that it was tied up in works of development. The banks had loaned it to men who needed money to develop their business and it was tied up at the present time. The speaker did not believe there would be much letting up for some time. He advised the citizens of Canada to manage their business affairs, and private matters, as if they expected there would be hard times next year or a year from now. There would be no money scarcity of money when the time came.

Municipal Institutions

Mr. W. H. Moore, in proposing the toast to "Our Municipal Institutions," said that it was a regrettable fact that the young men of Peterborough did not take the interest they should in the municipal affairs of the city. It was their duty to come forward and take their place.

In replying to the toast, Mayor McWilliams congratulated the Board of Trade on the success of the banquet, and for having secured such a prominent manufacturer as Mr. Rolland. Speaking of municipal matters, the Mayor deplored the lack of public spirit among the business men of Peterborough. There were too many "knockers," with the result that the best men were sometimes not found in the city council. There were too many fault finders, and there were too many changes in the council. The only thing the present aldermen lacked was experience and they could never secure that if there were changes every year.

The banquet then closed with the National Anthem.

The Poisons Must Be Removed

FROM THE SYSTEM—BOTH KIDNEYS AND BOWELS ARE RESTORED TO ACTION BY

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

There three ways, and three only, by which the system can be rid of poisonous waste matter, the bowels, the kidneys and the skin.

The bowels are named first, because on them falls the greater part of this work, and so long as they do do their duty there is seldom trouble with the kidneys, or skin, as excretory organs.

When the bowels fail, however, and become sluggish and constipated, there is work thrown on the kidneys which they have no business to do, and which they cannot do for any length of time without becoming deranged.

Now, there is only one medical treatment which recognizes this condition of affairs, and that is Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. This is, so far as we know, the only kidney medicine that regulates the bowels, as well as the kidneys, and thereby removes the cause of trouble, and cures the most complicated cases.

You can scarcely find a case of kidney disease that did not begin with liver and bowel troubles and which could not therefore have been prevented by the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills.

Mr. Jas. H. Harvey, baker, 641 George street, Peterborough, Ont., states:—"I was troubled very much with constipation and pains in the back. At times the pains were very sharp, like a stab with a knife, and caused me great suffering.

"I heard of many being cured by using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and decided to try them. I am pleased to say that they soon helped me, and I used them right along until cured. I never have pains in my back now and only take a pill in order to keep my bowels regular."

Thousands of people are ready to testify to the superiority of Dr. Chase's Kidney Liver Pills, as a cure for kidney troubles. The reason of their efficiency is found in their action on the Liver and Bowels, as well as the Kidneys.

Suffered From Heart and Nerve Troubles FOR THE Last Ten Years.

The heart has supplied to it two sets of nerves, one set which quickens, the other which slows its action. The proper action of these nerves, so important to the well-being of the heart, depends upon the general condition of the nervous system. If there be nerve derangement of any kind it is bound to produce all the various phenothenh of heart derangement.

Knowing the intricate structure of the heart, and being aware how diseases of the nerves affect the heart, we have combined in Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a treatment that will cure all forms of nervous disorders as well as act on the heart itself, and in this is the secret of their success in curing so many cases of heart trouble which have defied all other treatment.

Mrs. John Riley, Doure, Ont., writes: "I have been a great sufferer from heart and nerve troubles for the last ten years. After trying many remedies and doctoring for two years, without the least benefit, I decided to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a trial. I am thankful to say that, after using nine boxes, I am entirely cured, and would recommend them to all sufferers."

Price 50c. per box or three for $1.25, at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

THE DEBATING CLUB MEETINGS

Y.M.C.A. Young Men Speak on "The Men Who Have Helped To Make Canada"

AN INTERESTING EVENING

The regular meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Literary and Debating Club was held last night, when there was a good attendance. The club has prospered steadily ever since its organization and is now one of the most interesting as well as profitable clubs that any young man interested in literary work or wishing to cultivate the art of public speaking can belong.

The meeting last night was in the form of orations of 15 minutes each on, "Men who have helped to make Canada." Sir John MacDonald was ably and clearly dealt with by Mr. N. A. Howard-Midons.

Sir Thomas Howe was dealt with by the president of the club, Mr. Wilfred Shiner, and the life and works of Hon. Geo. Brown was dealt with in a very able manner by Mr. Fred Ray, after which a general discussion on some of the great men who have helped to make Canada was indulged in by several of the members present. The question as to whether a man who is elected to parliament should necessarily adhere strictly to his principles or be let with the majority, was discussed at some length.

The critic of the society, Mr. J E Hodgson, gave a very concise and impartial review of the different orations and complimented the speakers on the splendid address and the manner in which they had been delivered and was well pleased with the literary progress of the club.

The next meeting will be held on Dec. 4th, when an interesting debate, "Resolved that individual control of capital is opposed to the best interests of the people." All young men whether Y.M.C.A. members or not, are cordially invited to be present.

HAROLD LEES WAS LAST WEEK'S WINNER

Harold Lees was the successful Examiner newsboy during the last week. He started on Monday with but ten customers, and on Saturday night he finished up with 60. Harold is a son of Mr. Richard Lees, and a brother of the boy who won the $2 special prise the previous week. He has secured more new customers in one week than any other newsboy in the same length of time since the competition began. But the boys all begin the week on an equal footing, and the question is who will win the $2 prise for this week.

ALARM BOX USED FOR LETTERS

Woman Made Mistake And Futile Efforts To Drop a Letter

A Peterborough fire alarm box on Charlotte street just west of the G.T.R. tracks was mistaken yesterday for a letter-box by a woman who was apparently a stranger in the city.

She approached the box with a letter in her hand and looked over it for the usual opening. She was rather bewildered when her efforts were in vain, but undaunted, she began a closer inspection, feeling on top and looking closely on every side.

She then noticed the key, and tried to get at it without breaking the glass. All her efforts being unavailing, the woman leaned in some way that she had made a mistake, and with a parting glance to reassure her that her final opinion was correct, she walked away, to the amusement of several persons who had witnessed the affair.

WAS SERIOUS SHOOTING ACCIDENT

Youth Out With Revolver Hallowe'en and Shot a Woman

The Codrington hoodlums who celebrated Hallowe'en night so boisterously, are in heaps of trouble just now. One man while looking for trouble on the streets that night, fired off his revolver, and the bullet lodged in Mrs. George Rightmyer's head, and it is said that the young woman is now in a critical condition. Mrs. Rightmyer is a daughter of Mrs. Webber of this village. The Codrington young men have had a rather dear lesson from their evening's fun.—Warkworth Journal.

Music and Drama

WON AND LOST

In spite of the inclement weather last night another big house was on hand at the Grand, when Ernie Marks and his clever company presented the successful play "Lost and Won" in which they displayed the same histrionic ability that won their audience on their first appearance in this city. The play is a good one with an original plot and plenty of stirring situations and the audience seemed to find it very interesting. Ernie Marks as Michael Casey, a whole-souled and witty Irishman, made a big hit, being perfectly adapted to such a role. Joe Lyons was strong as Harold Vincent, and Jos N Machan was successful in his presentation of the part of Maurice Delmore. The specialties were clean and bright and were much enjoyed.

THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR

That excellence in stagecraft, scenic, light and mechanical effects, demanded by the audience of the moment, has been embodied in the melodramatic production, "The Way of the Transgressor," which comes to the Grand on Saturday, Nov. 23rd, matinee and night. The play is from the pen of Charles H. Fleming, whose previous efforts in the same line have been so successful. "The Way of the Transgressor" tells a good story and tells it well.

One of the principal features in the production is the introduction of a group of highly developed canines, who perform their parts in a manner that will convince anyone that they are almost human. These magnificent specimens of the Landseer breed were educated by the well-known trainer, Mr. William T. Stephens, who for seven years played all the principal cities in Europe, including a four months' engagement in London, and where they won the highest of praise of both press and public.

The leading role is in the hands of Miss Francesca Parker, who is supported by a company of rare merit. Among them will be found Miss Grace Young, Miss Emma Cirole, Harry C. Philibert, Howard Sydney, Billy Williams, Lorraine Westford, Frank Baldwin, Thomas Ward, Wm. C. Pealock, Hal. W. Hastings, Irene and Zasa, and others.

Plan now open.

WEDNESDAY MARKET WAS GOOD

But Citizens Do Not Turn Out to Patronize It.

The women of the city apparently do not know that the Wednesday market is growing and the same opportunities are offered as on Saturday. Yesterday in the hall and outside there was a fairly large number of families but the citizens did not turn out as they should have done. Prices were favourable and if the people want a Wednesday market they should patronize it.

JUDGMENT GIVEN TO PLAINTIFF

Mr. Jas. H. Lawless Wins Case Against Mr. T. H. Crowley

Judgment was to-day given by His Honour Judge Weller in the case of Lawless vs. Crowley, which came up before him in June last when the judgment was reserved.

The court gave its decison, being judgment for the plaintiff for his claim and dismissing with costs the defendant's counter claim for $1,500 on the contracts. Mr. S T Medd represented the plaintiff and Messrs. Dumble, K.C., and Mr. A K Dickson, acted for the defendant.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are only local, for, as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, and stinging sensations of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes, stubborn disease.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS BANQUET

Delightful Time Spent Last Night in Games And Dancing

The Knights of Columbus banquet held last night in their rooms on George street, was an enjoyable event. It was attended by about fifty members of the club, accompanied by their lady friends. The fore part of the evening was spent in progressive euchre, the winners being Mrs. M. McFadden and Mr. Louis Potvin.

An excellent supper was provided for the guests, the catering being done by Mr. Hooper. Dancing held away for some hours, with splendid piano music by Miss McCabe and Miss Hurley. The committee in charge of the banquet, and to whom the credit is due for its great success, was composed of Ald. H. Phelan, chairman, and Messrs. Fred. McFadden, R. Sheehy, Fred. Shannon, and J. Foley.

TWO OF THE DUMP CARS UPSET

Accident on Tracks Where Dredgings Are Being Dumped

There was another accident at the tracks on the dumping ground for the dredgings east of Charlotte street this morning, when two cars of mud upset on account of the softness of the ground. One rail sank in the mud, causing the trouble. Contractor Mahoney was busily engaged for some time with a block and tackle getting the cars back to the rails.

BRAKEMAN ON G. T. R. ARRESTED

Brakeman Charged With Non-support—Case Will be Heard on Friday

As he stepped from the train on Tuesday evening a G.T.R. brakeman was arrested by a local constable on a charge of non-support. The train arrived in Peterborough shortly after 5 o'clock, and the young brakeman stepped off the back of his car, and was assisting the passengers on and off.

The trainman was very much surprised as he assisted the last passenger on to be confronted with one of the "big four." He was permitted to change his clothes in the baggage car, and soon afterwards found himself in the police station. Magistrate Dumble was sitting in the office when the prisoner arrived, and allowed him to go on bail of $1,000.

The case will be heard on Friday.

KING EDWARD OVERCOAT

New Designs are Shown This Year in The Semi-ready Wardrobe

Crearmen's have received a new lot of the famous "King Edward" overcoat, together with a lot of the "Imperial" overcoats. These are shown in their Semi-ready Wardrobes. They have that distinctive touch and style which is a marked attribute of all the Semi-ready garments, and they are made of the warmth-giving British woollens which give the wearer better service and more comfort.

A Semi-ready Overcoat looks as well the second year as the ordinary overcoat does the first few weeks of its wear. That is the proof of good tailoring.

WEDDING BELLS

HUFFMAN-FISHER

A quiet wedding took place at the George street Methodist church parsonage last night at six o'clock, when Miss Josephine Fisher of Cavanville, was united in marriage to Mr. James Huffman of Millbrook. The ceremony was performed by Rev E. A. Pearson. Mr. and Mrs. Huffman will reside in Millbrook.

THE FILLING IN OF THE CREEK

Mr. Fitzgerald Will be Held Responsible in the Event of Danger

At the meeting of the Board of Works last night the City Engineer made a report in regard to the conditions at the creek at Murray street, where J E A Fitzgerald is making ground by filling in the south side of the stream. The Engineer stated that a channel thirty feet wide had been left on the right of way of Murray street. Mr. Hay recommended that Mr. Fitzgerald be notified that he will be held responsible for any damage that may occur in the spring freshet by the channel being confined as it is to the north side.

On motion of Ald. Wilson and Johnston it was decided to carry out the recommendation of the City Engineer.

Will Investigate The Romaine Street Sewer Problem

Special Meeting of The Committee Of The Whole Council is Called For That Purpose To-night—Those Interested Will Be Heard

TROUBLE FOR SOME ONE

The Committee of the Whole Council will meet to-night to go into the whole question of the Romaine street sewer, and indications point to an interesting session, and trouble for some one as a result. All those interested in the matter are requested to be present, and it is probable that the majority of those who have been concerned in the construction of the sewer will be heard. The council say that last year's Board of Works is responsible for the sewer, as it was constructed under their supervision, and ex-Ald. Hicks, chairman of last year's Board, has been asked to be present. Street Commissioner Evans, who was asked by the Board of Works to make a report will do so to-night, and the council will conduct a thorough investigation with a view of ascertaining upon whose shoulders the blame for the faulty construction of the sewer must be laid.

LARGEST BUCK OF THE SEASON

Shot Near Parry Sound by a Local Party

One of the largest bucks that has been shot by local hunters was that which is on display in front of Mr. Ken. Denoon's butcher shop, George street. Messrs. S. Ray, H. Neill, Jos. Gibson and Chas. Gladman composed the party that had the honour of capturing this forest king. Mr. Neill hit him but did not bring him down, and some time later Mr. Gladman came across a trail of blood which he decided to follow. He had no difficulty in keeping it in sight, and finally came within sight of his quarry which had started across the lake, but went through the thin ice and was resting. Mr. Gladman dispatched him, but owing to its weight the party had some trouble in getting him to camp.

The men had a good time, and although they did not get their full complement owing to the difficulty in following the chase from the crispness of the ground underfoot, still they were satisfied with what they did get.

Cavendish Farmer Charged With House Breaking

Four Boys Fined For Setting Fire To Farmer's Property

COUNTY POLICE COURT

At the county police court yesterday two cases were brought before Magistrate Edmison. The first case was taken up in the morning, and the second case was brought forward in the afternoon court.

The first charge was against four boys for tearing down and destroying by fire a fence belonging to a farmer, Mr. Garret, who lives about a mile east of the city on the C.P.R. line. His Worship heard the evidence against the boys, and decided to fine them $2.80 each to be paid forthwith.

The next was a charge against Wm. Haines for having in the township of Cavendish unlawfully entered by day a dwelling house owned by Richard Bell and occupied by Parry Vickers, and carrying away several chattels from the house. Mr. Goodwill appeared for the prisoner, W. Haines, and Messrs. W. H. Moore and R. E. Wood appeared for the Crown.

The prisoner, through his counsel, pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury. The case, however, was continued before the magistrate.

Mr. Bell was the first witness in the box and told the court that Haines had upon leaving the house left some goods behind him which he decided to buy for $27; this Haines agreed to. The witness gave a Mrs. Windover the money to keep for him. Shortly afterwards witness received money from Mr. Windover and paid Haines the money he owed him, the men shook hands and said they would be good friends. Certain chattels in the house Haines did not agree to sell, and witness told him he could have them any time he wished.

The next witness of importance was Percy Vickers, the present tenant of Bell's house. He told his story, saying that he saw Haines on Saturday standing in front of his door, accompanied by his brother, and he had a horse and rig with him also. Witness saw Haines' brother tearing down the fence, and Haines himself was piling lumber on the rig. Vickers said he asked Haines to leave the lumber alone. Haines turned around and told witness he wanted the key to the house, and also wanted him to get off the property. Haines told witness that he wanted four sealers, a pair of snow shoes, a box of tools, a trunk, and several other things, and if witness did not give him the key he would take the stuff out, anyhow. Witness returned to the house on Sunday and found that the goods which Haines had threatened to take were missing. Witness then took a look around the house to see how the person had got in, and found that the window sash was out, the upper part of the window being held up by a piece of a file.

His Worship decided to lay the case over until the December sittings, and allowed Haines to go on bail of $7.50.

True Dog Story

A day or two ago a fine black cocker spaniel, writhing in convulsions, on Water street, attracted a small crowd of spectators, who, generally regarded the animal as in throes of death. Dr. Poole, V.S., happened along and picked up the dog, and carried him to his surgery. A bystander remarked that it was lost labour, as the dog was "sure to croak—if the doctor does anything for him he'll be a crack-a-jack." He did do something; he found the dog suffering from epileptic convulsions, applied the proper remedies, with the result that the animal is now himself again.

STORY OF THE HARVEY MINERALS

Old Man Said to Have Made Discovery Two Years Ago

In connection with the report in last night's paper of the discovery of gold on Mr. Fred. Pleurd's farm in Harvey, Mr. J. Johnston, who brought down some samples of the ore, has an interesting story about a former find.

Several years ago an old man, whose name is now forgotten, was prospecting in Harvey township, and made a find which he believed to be a valuable one. He marked the locality and cut a path to the very spot, and then went to Toronto to have his sample assayed.

The old man passed through Peterborough and refreed to Harvey as being rich in minerals. He never returned to the field of his labour, and it was reported that he died shortly after while in Toronto, and whatever was his secret, it was buried with him.

Mr. Johnston states that during the past summer strangers have been working in the rocky uplands seeking for minerals, and it is readily believed that Harvey has a future in mining. The experience of the old man is an interesting story and only strengthens the opinion that the latest find may be an important one.

NON-JURY SITTINGS ON TO-DAY

Mr. Justice Mabee Presiding at The Autumn Session

The autumn session of the non-jury sittings of the High Court of Justice opened this afternoon at 1 o'clock, with Mr. Justice Maybee of Stratford on the bench. The following members of the bar were present: Messrs. R. E. Wood, L. M. Hayes, A. P. Ponsette, F. D. Kerr, and D. O'Connell.

There are three cases to be heard the first of which is Fowler v. Green and Robson. The statement of the claim is as follows:

The plaintiff, Margaret Fowler, is the wife of John Fowler of this city, a nephew of Mary Robson, deceased, and the defendants, William Robson and Joseph T. Green, are the executors of the last will and testament of Joseph Green, deceased. The plaintiff claims that there was an agreement entered into between herself and the deceased that the former should board and lodge the said Mary Robson and that she should be paid $700 out of the estate of the deceased, as well as small weekly sums as deceased could afford, and that the deceased signed a cheque for $700 on July 29th, 1905. The plaintiff alleges that she was no paid the $700 either in the lifetime of the deceased or by his executors, and claims that amount from the defendant. Dennistoun, Peak and Kerr for the plaintiff, and R. E. Wood for the defendants.

The Other Cases

The trouble about the Royal Hotel will also be settled. Messrs. Clunis, Kelly and Fisherty are concerned in it, and the circumstances are well known. The other case is that of Robertson v. Robertson.

A NORTH MONAGHAM ASSAULT CASE

Two Prisoners Were Remanded Until Saturday

One of the cases that was on the docket at the county police court yesterday was a charge that George Sidey has preferred against Charles Coleman and William Watt. They are alleged to have assaulted the complainant and done actual bodily harm on November 18. Both were arrested. Magistrate Edmison enlarged the case until Saturday morning at 10 o'clock. Coleman received this liberty by forwarding sufficient bail, but Watt will pass the time in jail.

The assault is supposed to have taken place in North Monaghan.

THE ENGINEER BLAMED FOR ACCIDENT

Phoenix Co. Officials Throw Responsibility on Engineer.

QUEBEC BRIDGE DISASTER

Increased the Span—But Neglected to Make Adequate Changes In Supports — Evidence Before Royal Commission — Whole Design Outside Field of Experience—Had Absolute Authority.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 21.—The collapse of the great cantilever bridge over the Quebec River on Aug. 29, with the incident heavy loss of life, was put squarely up to modifications in the original design of the bridge, made by the consulting engineer, Theodore Cooper, in the testimony of the principal officers and engineers of the Phoenix Bridge Co., made public here yesterday by the Canadian Royal Commission, after four weeks of careful examination of the records and works of the Phoenixville Co.

The officials examined were David Reeves, president of the Phoenixville Iron Co. and the Phoenix Bridge Co.; John Sterling Deans, chief engineer; Peter Szalpka, designing manager, and Ellsworth L. Edwards, inspector of the Quebec Bridge Co. at Phoenixville. In effect, their testimony was unanimous that the fault of the bridge could be directly traced to changes in the original plan made by Mr. Cooper, who, a short time before actual construction began, changed the length of the principal span from 1,600 to 1,800 feet without making adequate changes in the supports to the main span to compensate for the increased length.

"The fall of the bridge is to be laid directly to the change in the unit stresses as made by Mr. Cooper," said David Reeves, in his sworn testimony, "and," he continued, "he made modifications in the unit stresses to be employed by the various members, which very much increased them beyond precedent, and by so doing placed the whole design in a field outside the benefit of experience. Such high stresses had never before been used and by using them he acted on the authority of the Quebec Bridge Co. and the Dominion of Canada, invested in him.

FARMER'S AWFUL DEATH.

Blew Top of His Head Off Near Red Deer, Alta.

Brockville, Nov. 21.—The news has reached here of the terrible end of George Beatty, a native of Leeds County, and for many years a resident of Lansdowne, where he was born and raised. At Red Deer, Alta., while shooting rats in the cellar of his hotel, the gun discharged in taking it down from the wall, and the contents, entering over the right eye, took an upward course, blowing off the top of his head.

Deceased left these parts 25 years ago, after serving with the Canadian troops in the first Riel rebellion, and engaged in farming, near Red Deer, subsequently purchasing an hotel. He leaves a widow and family. Walter Beatty, ex-M. P. P., Delta, is a brother.

Kaiser Is Resting.

London, Nov. 21—Emperor William, concerning whose health there has been circulated various rumors of late, is pursuing a rather strenuous "rest cure" at Highcliffe Castle, on the Isle of Wight.

Tuesday he was at his desk at 7 a. m., and was engaged two hours with state affairs before breakfast. Then both in the morning and the afternoon he took long drives in a powerful motor car through the surrounding country, in company with members of his suite. The machine ran mostly at a pace not exceeding forty miles an hour, but in some places where there was no danger the speed reached sixty miles an hour.

Accident on Grand Trunk.

Hamilton, Nov. 21.—An accident on the Grand Trunk near the "Y" at the extreme westerly limit of the city yards occurred shortly after 5 o'clock yesterday morning, when two freight trains had a pitch-in. The impact was terrific, and one of the engines and several cars were badly damaged, the wreckage being scattered over the tracks for a considerable distance. Traffic from the west was blocked for several hours, and the Toronto trains were sent east over the old Beach line. The auxiliaries managed to clear the line by noon. No one was seriously injured, the crew jumping before the crash. The damage to the rolling stock was considerable.

One of the freights was from Toronto, the other from the west.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 21.—A despatch from Bokhara, Central Asia, says that two officials of the Bokhara treasury were attacked in that city, mortally wounded and robbed of $60,000 yesterday.

The robbers were captured, but the money was not recovered.

STRIKE IS REPORTED IN INDIA

Traffic on Second Largest Railway Is Paralyzed.

FAMINE MORE WIDESPREAD

Trouble Originated With Engineers—Six Thousand Passengers Stranded at One Important Junction—Jute Mills Seriously Affected—Shipping Delayed—Work Stops for Want of Coal—Want Increase.

Calcutta, Nov. 21.—Traffic on the East Indian Railway, 2,163 miles long, and the second largest line in India, is rapidly becoming paralyzed by a strike.

The trouble originated with the engineers, who are almost entirely European, and Tuesday and yesterday great numbers of natives belonging to the traffic staff joined in the movement.

The most important section of the road, from Calcutta to Allahabad, is practically tied up and already 6,000 passengers are stranded at Asansol, Bengal, the junction of the East Indian and Bengal-Nagpur Railroad, where the strikers are threatening violence. Reports are constantly coming in of engineers leaving their trains at remote stations, and in some cases driving off with their locomotives and leaving the cars.

The jute mills are seriously affected by the strike. They have been obliged to stop work in consequence of the shortage of coal, and it is feared that the tie-up will delay loading outward-bound ships. The strikers complain of overwork and poor pay.

The strike at the present time is specially serious, in view of the famine conditions, which are becoming daily more widespread, necessitating the speedy transportation of relief supplies.

Rebellion In India.

St. Catharines, Nov. 21.—"There is no disguising the fact that India is disturbed, and you can scarcely pick up a paper these days without seeing something in that connection. If India should one day wake up to what she could do, what would Britain do? what could she do? I am no prophet, but I tell you this: One of these fine days there will be an upheaval in India and perhaps 50,000 men will have to be slaughtered to bring about a result which easily could be accomplished if we went about the thing in the right way now."

Rev. Dr. D. V. Lucas, an extensive traveler throughout the world, and who has made India a close study, gave expression to the above sentiments here at a large meeting, presided over by Mayor Riddell. Dr. Lucas advocated the formation of a British Imperial Parliament. To this Parliament India should send 20 representatives, half of them natives.

VIGILANT USED CANNON.

Sent Shot Across Bows of Yankee Poaching Vessel.

Put-In-Bay, O., Nov. 21.—The Canadian patrol Vigilant fired a shot at American fishermen Tuesday afternoon and captured them and their boats after a lively chase.

The Vigilant came upon two fishing boats containing four men, and a gasoline launch near Old Hen Island. The fishermen, when ordered to surrender, hurried aboard the launch and set out for American waters.

The men were taken aboard the Vigilant and kept prisoners for some time, but were finally taken to other boats fishing on the American side, and given their liberty.

Five Workmen Killed.

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 21.—Five workmen were killed, one fatally, and a number seriously injured by the explosion of a boiler in a planing mill at the John L. Roper lumber mills, Gilmerton, Norfolk County, yesterday afternoon.

Bloemfontein Elections.

London, Nov. 21.—(C. A. P.)—In the Bloemfontein (South Africa) elections yesterday the Constructionalists carried Bloemfontein, winning four seats easily and losing the fifth by two votes. Other results unknown.

MORE EVIDENCE IN THE LONDON CASE

Dollar Bills Were Much in Evidence During Election Time.

LONDON BRIBERY STORY

Crown Counsel Ashamed of His Own Witness — O'Gorman Was Busy—Evidence Given at Police Court Is Contradicted — Mysterious Payments In Hyman-Gray Election—Continues To-day.

Toronto, Nov. 21—A dozen witnesses from London, including George Ardy, the defendant, who was discharged to be used as a crown witness, gave evidence in the London conspiracy trial yesterday. Crown Prosecutor Staunton expects to close the crown's case to-day. E. I. Sifton and Tom Lewis will be the new crown witnesses.

At the afternoon session Mr. Staunton asked permission to read the evidence of two witnesses who were absent. Mr. Judd then read the evidence of John Cox and Andrew Robinson, voters in the bye-election of 1905, relating to the receipt of envelopes containing money from W. J. Mulloy.

Hamilton Ramsay, for many years a resident of London, said that a polling booth was held in his house in the Beck-Rumble election of 1904. In the Hyman-Gray election he tried to let it for a similar purpose, but was too late in his application. After the election was over her was handed two five-dollar bills, but he could not swear who gave him the money.

Edward Jeffray, at one time secretary of the London Liberal Club, said that he had made up the list of deputy returning officers at the Gray-Hyman election. He appointed John Collins because he was an active worker.

Mr. Jeffray wanted to explain his answer, but was stopped by Mr. Staunton.

"Lawyers are the rottenest witnesses," said the prosecutor. "They talk too much."

Mr. O'Gorman had asked the witness to look after certain people "because the Tories were after him."

There was a bedroom in the Liberal building and Mr. Staunton tried to get the witness to say that O'Gorman occupied this room, but Jeffray would not admit that he knew the occupant of the room, although he had been told O'Gorman had slept there.

Witness knew that the Conservatives had protested against Jerry Collins and Bradwin as deputy returning officers.

"Did you ever know an election in London during the past ten years that O'Gorman did not work?"

"He was there."

"What did he do?"

"I don't know."

"What did Reid do?"

"He did most of the ordering."

"Was he the boss?"

"I don't think so."

"Did you ever get any money from him?"

"Yes. Liberal Club expenses, maybe $100 to pay for a reception to Mr. Hyman."

"Where did O'Gorman live during the last two elections?"

"I don't know exactly."

Mr. McEvoy cross-examined the witness briefly.

George B. Cooper, for several elections a deputy returning officer in London elections, was supplanted. He went to Collins Hall, where a man sitting near him gave him $15.

"I have been looking for the man since I came into court," said the witness. "The only man who looks like him is that man there," and he pointed to Harry Fowler, reporter for The London Advertiser, who was sitting in the press box busy with his "copy."

Amid general amusement Fowler disclaimed the idea that he had ever given anyone that much money.

Oscar Woonton contradicted his previous evidence at the Police Court. He claimed that the $10 he got was his wages from the tannery. He admitted taking Sifton to see some voters.

"This money was paid by Mr. Hyman in spite of the fact that you had been away canvassing votes?" asked Mr. Johnston.

"Yes," replied the witness.

George Ardy, who was discharged on the conspiracy charge and subpoenaed as a crown witness, deposed to finding six voters who were "all for the coin." Witness saw three alone and the others were interviewed in company with Sifton. Sifton gave them the money for voting for Hyman.

George Stephenson was seen and bought up by Jerry Collins. Collins was with Milly Malloy.

"What was doing?"

"A $10-spot."

"Where did you get it?"

"At Lewis' Hotel, shortly after the election."

"What did you do with it?"

"I took it home." (Laughter.)

To Mr. Johnston witness said he was half drunk.

"Were you sober when you sold your vote?"

"A dam site soberer than I am to-day!" (Laughter.)

William Spence and William Servias gave evidence at the morning session. Servias was sleepy and his evidence —the same story as he told in the Police Court—did not please the crown.

Francis Jones said that he had paid out $9 in the Hyman-Gray election and only got $41 back. He was questioned about an envelope he sent to a Mr. White.

"When did you give the envelope to White?" asked Mr. Staunton.

"I didn't give it to him. I sent it to him by my little boy."

"The day after the election?"

"Possibly, but not probably."

"What was in it?"

"I don't know."

"Tell the truth," thundered Mr. Staunton. "You're horrified at the whisky seller. I want to find out what you think of the truth. You have been posing here as a virtuous citizen."

Witness persisted that he didn't know what was in the envelope.

"Don't make a further spectacle of him," said Mr. Staunton when Mr. Johnston rose to cross-examine the witness.

"He's your witness, returned Mr. Johnston.

"Yes, and I'm ashamed of him."

JAPS COULD NOT ACCEPT.

Consul Returns Check For $1,600 Granted by Government.

Vancouver, B. C., Nov. 21.—The Japanese Government, through its representative, Hon. K. Morikawa, has returned to Commissioner W. L. King, Deputy Minister of Labor, the check for $1,600 which was recommended by the commissioner and authorized by order-in-council to be paid to the consul, being an allowance on account of expenses in the preparation and presentation of estimates and claims of losses and damages sustained by the Jap population in the recent riots.

Of the $1,600 payment, $1,600 was for legal expenses and the remainder for amounts expended by the Japanese consulate in the preparation of estimates and losses. Hon. K. Morikawa states that while appreciating the high and honorable motives, he regretted that it was impossible for the Government of Japan to accept a reward for protecting the interests and property of the subjects of Japan.

NOT MUCH OF A BOON.

Roosevelt Wants Canada to Give Free Export for Wood.

Washington, Nov. 21.—It was learned yesterday that the recommendation which President Roosevelt will make in his message in favor of free paper and free pulp to satisfy the publishers will not be the splendid boon which the publishers expect, because it will be conditional.

The conditions under which the President would be willing to have free paper and free pulp are that there shall be no export tax maintained on wood by Canada, so that papermakers can get free raw materials also.

There is now no duty on wood. As there is said to be no likelihood of Canada refraining from maintaining stumpage tax, there is also little likelihood of publishers getting the tariff revised for their purposes.

WOMAN MURDERED.

Chinaman Arrested on Suspicion of Killing Mollie Lewis.

Frank, Alta., Nov. 21.—The mounted police from Frank were called to Blairmore yesterday morning on the discovery of one of the foulest murders in the history of Alberta.

Mollie Lewis, a woman of ill-repute, was found dead in her home near Blairmore at an early hour yesterday, and there are ample signs of murder. The police have arrested a Chinaman named Sam Sing on suspicion. There is as yet very little against him.

Revising the Vulgate.

Rome, Nov. 21.—Abbott Gasquet, president of the English Benedictines, has arrived in Rome to undertake the revision of the vulgate, or St. Jerome's version of the Bible. This matter has been entrusted to the Benedictines by the Vatican.

The abbot will select his assistants next week, and it is his desire to have among them an American. He is not restricted to Catholics in his selection. The Pope insists that the work be done in the most scientific way, to convince Catholics as well as non-Catholics, that this is a genuine attempt to discover the true basis of the text of St. Jerome.

This attitude will prove, it is believed, that the Vatican does not fear scientific discussion of the vulgate.

Injured by Explosion.

Listowel, Nov. 21.—Peter Nicholson, a sub-contractor on the Guelph-Goderich Railway, was badly injured yesterday by an explosion of dynamite. After setting the charge he returned to see why it did not explode. The explosion took place, blowing off his hand and injuring his eyesight, which the doctors are now trying to save.

Pope Postponed Consistory.

Rome, Nov. 21.—The Pope has expressed his intention to postpone until January the consistory which, it seemed to be established, was to take place in the middle of December. Nothing definite is known regarding the creation of new cardinals, but it would seem that only a few Italians will be created.

Shoots Husband and Self.

New York, Nov. 21.—Half-crazed by jealousy because of her husband's attentions to another woman, Mrs. Lottie Hitchcock shot and instantly killed her husband Robert, as he lay sleeping in bed. She then shot herself.

They were married about a year ago.

Japan Cutting Rates.

Madrid, Nov. 21.—The Liberal yesterday published a statement to the effect that Japan, through the Japanese Minister at Madrid, had made an offer to the Spanish Government to construct the new war vessels planned for the Spanish navy, at a price much below the estimates already submitted.

Washington, Nov. 21.—The State Department has received information that the revenue cutter Gresham, which has been in Newfoundland waters in the interest of American fishing smacks, has started home. There have been no difficulties encountered by the American fishing fleet.

Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1907 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

Any person contemplating taking out Life Insurance will find it to his advantage to secure our rates before placing the risk.

W. G. MORROW,

Bury Private Interests For The Sake of The Nation

Col. Hanbury William's Advice To Canadians—Let United States Athletes Take Care of Themselves—To Settle The Fight Between Two Bodies

SOME SENSIBLE ADVICE

The Montreal Star of yesterday published an interview with Col. Hanbury Williams, military secretary to the Governor-General, and the gentleman who is in charge of Canadian athletic affairs for the Olympic Games in England, which makes it clear that no mistake has been made in the selection of the man for that important position. The keynote of his remarks are "Unity of Purpose," "Consider Canada Only," and "Bury Private Differences for the Sake of the Nation." Col. Williams says that the washing of dirty linen before the eyes of the world should be stopped at once and that the United States should not be taken into consideration at all as they can take care of themselves.

"Suppose we had a serious difficulty with another country," remarks Col. Williams, "and there were two parties in Canada fighting one another bitterly, would not those two parties combine and smooth over the personal difficulties in view of the big thing that would be before them?

"Well, it is somewhat the same in this case, and if Canada wants to make a showing before the entire world, at those Olympic Games, of which Canada can be proud, there is only one thing to do, and that is to stand united of purpose."

Col. Williams is devoting his best efforts to settle the fight between the C.A.A.U. and the American Athletic Federation. It is sincerely hoped for the sake of Canada that he can do so, and if he achieves what many believe to be impossible he will have earned the heartfelt gratitude of those who have the interest of the country at heart. Speaking of the Longboat matter, Col. Williams remarks, "Well, he is certainly a great runner, and if he should not be a professional, why should divided camps, fighting against one another, prevent him from going? But it would be a most undesirable thing to send a man, and then have one of these associations or bodies send a protest afterwards from his native country."

Hartley To Walk From Toronto To Montreal

Will Make The Attempt In May Next Year—Six Days The Allotted Time

PLANS FOR THE JOURNEY

David Hartley will, next year, according to Mr. Geo. Stevens, make a record for long distance walking in Canada by footing it from Toronto to Montreal. Hartley will start his lengthy jaunt some time during the month of May and will attempt to make the distance of 360 miles in 6 days.

Mr. Stevens has already made plans for this big event which if accomplished will advertise Peterborough in all the towns and villages between the two big cities. He proposes to secure an automobile for the occasion and secure a staff of four or five young gils to sell pamphlets containing a history of Hartley and facts about Peterborough at every stopping place These will be sold for a small coin each to defray expenses all along the route. He also intends to provide special attire for the girls as well as for the walking wonder. "Peterborough will be written on all their outer garments and the emblems of Canada will also be conspicuous.

Mr. Stevens expects that the people along the road between Toronto and Montreal will assist the walker financially and he sees no difficulty in Hartley performing the feat inside the six days.

Rugby Club Will Decide About Final Game To-night

Special Meeting is Being Called To Decide Whether or Not The Team Shall Go To Montreal To Play for the Dominion Championship

THE PLAYERS ARE INVITED

A special and important meeting of the executive and players of the Peterborough rugby club will be held to-night at the Oriental Hotel at 7.30, when the question of whether or not the team will play Montreal will be discussed. As this is a question that concerns the players, just as much as the management, it is of the greatest importance that every member of the team should attend this meeting when one action of the club in the matter will be definitely decided upon.

There are several things to be considered in arriving at a conclusion of the question. In the first place the locals are face to face with the fact that by playing Montreal they are liable to be suspended by the C.A.A.U. In the second they are throwing down the Ontario Rugby Football Union and might find themselves in difficulties next year, if they wanted to enter the union again. This difficulty is being met with the argument that they will be admitted into the Inter-Provincial Union. That cannot be counted on for a moment. The Big Four, as it is called this season, was formed for the primary purpose of making money, and Peterborough could not help them in that aim. They would be a poor drawing card inasmuch as they cannot get a good gate, even at home; and it doesn't look as if they would get a chance in the Inter-Provincial, certainly not in the senior series at least. If it were certain that they would win the game there would be some reason for deciding to go, but the most ardent supporter is not confident of a victory, although it is believed that the locals could give Chaucer Elliott's Pets a good argument.

Under these conditions it is hard to see any other cause but to allow the championship to go to Montreal. To bar the players from taking part in any games under the C.A.A.U. auspices for the sake of a trip to Montreal, would be absurd, and although the club might benefit itself financially by doing so the gain would not be worth the sacrifice of the players.

MONTREAL KEEPS IN SHAPE

Inter-provincial Champions Want to Play Peterboro' and Ottawa College

Montreal, Nov. 20.—The Montreal seniors will turn out to football practice this evening at the grounds and the reason given for this practice by Dr. Irvine, the president of the Montreal club, is that the team may play off for the Dominion championship before long. Last night the doctor was anxiously awaiting news from Toronto where a meeting of the Canadian Rugby Football Union was being held, and at which the application of the Inter-provincial League for affiliation to the C.R.F.U. was being considered. "If," says Dr. Irvine, "the C.R.F.U. decides to accept our affiliation, I don't see how the Inter-collegiate champions or the Ontario champions can fail to play us for the championship of the Dominion since both the teams are under the jurisdiction of the C.R.F.U. Anyway, whatever the result is at the meeting we will keep in trim, ready to meet either Ottawa College or Peterborough."

It was intimated that the Montrealers have opened negotiations with both teams for a series of games, but no answers has been received as yet. In the meantime, a practice for the seniors as called for this evening, when all the men are requested to turn out.

REYNOLDS MADE GOOD TIME

Walked 12 Miles in Two Hours in Trial Trip Yesterday

Mr. Geo. Stevens was in Port Hope yesterday and states that Jimmy Reynolds who is training for the 12-hour match on Saturday, made pretty good time in a trial trip in the drill shed. He went the first 6 miles in 1 hour and 30 seconds, the next 6 in 59 min. 30 sec., making the 12 miles in 2 hours flat. The next 2 miles was made in 18 minutes.

Mr. Stevens while at Port Hope went out to meet Longford the Oshawa man, and paced him in to Port Hope.

COLLEGE NOTHING TO GAIN

Ottawa Free Press Says There Will Be No Game Saturday

There will be no game between Ottawa College and Peterborough at Varsity Oval next Saturday.

Peterborough won the championship of the O.R.F.U., which rates with the Intermediate O.R.F.U., and last night telephoned a challenge to Ottawa College to play for the amateur Rugby championship, a mythical title coined this fall.

The matter was discussed by the football authorities at Ottawa College this morning and the consensus of opinion was that College had absolutely nothing to gain by playing Peterborough and everything to lose. They therefore declined to accept the challenge.

"Another thing to be taken into consideration," said Father Stanton to the Free Press this morning, "the ground will be very much against football and half our team are more or less injured. Any team we could place on the field would be a very much patched up affair and not by any means representative."

The players themselves would like to have a try at the Peterborough team, but also agree there would be little or nothing to be gained by playing the westerners.

The Dominion Rugby championship is held by Montreal. Any other Dominion football titles are spurious.

THE GLOBE'S CONCENSUS ON RUGBY SITUATION

The Globe sizes up the rugby situation well when it says: Only a lapse of memory as to recent occurrences can account for the provision by Dr. Wright and Messrs. McKeand and Griffiths, acting as the Canadian Rugby Union, for games in which Ottawa College or Peterborough shall meet Montreal, and Varsity or Tammany Tigers play Hamilton II. No Intercollegiate or Ontario Union club will play Montreal, and it requires no great effort to recall that even Argonauts refused to play Hamilton II. Evidently it will be necessary to decide the amateur rugby championship without regard to the Canadian Union, and neither Hamilton provincial club, will be concerned in the play.

When I had taken that bottle I was so much better I got three more, and I am now completely cured."

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out that may leave him in doubt, that he can easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own hand writing.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card menus—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and space any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 30% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 30% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

30% easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "humouring"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Than machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

Write us now for our booklet on the simplified features of the Oliver. The Oliver Typewriter Building, Chicago, Illinois.

OTTAWA DEFAULTED TO PETERBORO'

Will Not Play Unless Saturday's Contest Means Definite Dominion Championship—Peterboro' Scheduled to Play Montreal Next Week

GAME OFF ON SATURDAY

There will be no game with Ottawa here on Saturday, and thus Peterborough wins the first round in the Dominion championship series by default. Whether they will go on and play Montreal for the honours a week from Saturday or not has not yet been decided. Peterborough has done its best to secure a game with Ottawa. Yesterday afternoon the locals telephoned the Collegians to the effect that they would offer them their expenses to come here or would go to the capital on the same terms. Ottawa, however, is evidently not willing to pay Peterborough because they realize that the faculty of the college would not permit them to play Montreal afterwards in the event of their winning. Last night Secretary McDonough received the following telegram from Father Fortier, manager of the Ottawa College team: "If game means definite Dominion championship, yes; if we have to play Interprovincial afterwards, we refuse." This was in answer to Peterborough's offer to pay all expenses of the Collegians. Of course, the game will not mean the Canadian championship, since the C.R.U. has decided that the winner will have to play Montreal, so that the telegram is tantamount to default.

Upon the receipt of this telegram the local management called up President McKeand of the O.R.U., who now resides in Mitchell, Ont., who informed the locals that if Ottawa did not come here on Saturday it would be taken as a default, and that Peterborough and Montreal would play off a week from Saturday in Montreal.

Whether or not Peterborough will go to Montreal will be decided by the executive at once. Just now the matter is unsettled, and how it will terminate will not be known until after the executive meets to-night.

RUBEN MAY, MAY GO TO ENGLAND.

Reuben May, a man who is out of work and wants to return to his home in England, applied to the proprietor of a certain boot store this morning for help. While talking the matter over with the shoe merchant, an organist in one of our city churches stepped into the store and joined the conversation. The musical artist assured the man that he would help him and asked him to come. The stranger followed this gentleman until he landed in the police station and will appear to-morrow, charged with being a vagrant.

TWO FACTORIES WERE IDLE

With a flash that outrivalled nature's worst, the coil in one of the switch boards at the power house of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant, was put out of commission at twenty-five minutes to seven this morning. As a result the Shovel Works and Brinton Carpet Factory were without power during the morning but by 1 o'clock everything was in working order again.

Examiner Special.

Toronto, Nov. 21st. — John Boyd the coloured porter, who on July 17th last, shot and killed Edward Wandle, a coloured restaurant keeper, in the latter's place on York street, was found guilty of murder this morning and was sentenced by Mr. Justice McMahon to be hanged on Jan. 8. The murder was a most cold blooded and premeditated one. Boyd called at Wandle's residence to look for a woman with whom he had been living and was put out of the place by Wandle. He returned in the afternoon armed with a revolver, and deliberately shot Wandle dead.

THE WHITE MAN'S LAST OPPORTUNITY

So Ernest Thomson Seaton Styles Canada's Great North West

Examiner Special.

New York, Nov. 22.—Ernest Thomson Seton, the author, who has returned to the United States from his exploration trip of seven months through Northwest Canada into the great plains of the Arctic region, is enthusiastic over that part of Canada below the Arctic zone, calling it the "White man's last opportunity." Settlers by the thousands, he says, are pouring into the enormous area of high class agricultural land which has been lying there for so many centuries, and the rapidity with which it is now being developed is marvellous. Mr. Thomson canoed in this and the Arctic region two thousand miles, during his seven months trip, having one narrow escape from losing not only his diary and all his drawings and maps, but his life as well. He also discovered a number of lakes and rivers in the Arctic region, which he is now naming in conjunction with the geographical survey of Canada. Among the animals which he studied, especially during his trip and obtained pictures of were the barren ground caribou, the lynx, the musk-ox, wolverine, white wolf, Arctic fox, and wild buffalo.

WINDPIPE PARTS WITH THE PIN

Lindsay Girl is Relieved of Her Pain—Had Swallowed a Pin

Lindsay, Nov. 22.—Miss Ethel Graham, who went to Toronto last Friday to have a steel pin extracted from her throat, was relieved of the obstruction on Saturday without an operation. The young lady is now very much better, but not altogether relieved of the result of her unfortunate accident.

THE INDIAN GOT THE DEER

Secured It With an Old Muzzle-Loading Shot Gun

One day near the end of last week an Indian from Rossneath way, walked into a local shop and requested the loan of a gun for an hour to shoot a fox which he said he had noticed in driving in to town. The party who was asked for the gun demurred at lending his good rifle, but dug up an old muzzle loader which was lying around the shop and let the Indian have it. In about an hour the gun was returned by the now happy redskin who announced that what he had really seen was a deer on the Fowlds farm just outside of the town, and had gone out and shot it. The Indian did not produce the deer, but it is known that there was another deer in this vicinity besides the one shot last week, so it is quite probable that he told the truth.—Hastings Star.

The receipt is one ounce of compound Vimosa, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, four ounces syrup of rhubarb. A few doses will relieve the most severe backache. Legal Action Is To Be Taken Against Mr. Bogue

Mr. Eastwood Waited Upon The Council Last Night In Reference To The Matter—Asked That The Culvert be Left Where It Is

WILL BE LEFT TILL DEC. 3

At the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night Mr. V. Eastwood was present to ask the council not to replace the culvert at Edinburgh street in its former position. It will be recalled that Mr. Bogue was blamed for the trouble by filling in the drain running along his property near the railway track. The stream formerly ran through the centre of the property but at Mr. Bogue's desire this was filled up and the stream diverted to the edge of the lot. Now he has filled that up and as both drains are now blocked there will be a flood in the spring unless something is done to remedy the conditions before that time. The city not long ago determined to place a culvert on Edinburgh street where it was originally, on the advice of the City Solicitor who said that in doing so the city would be cleared of all responsibility in the matter. This Mr. Eastwood objected to. He stated that to put another culvert there would be a useless expenditure of money. It would be unwise to consider the diversion of the drain. "It looks to me as child's play." The water, he said, might take care of itself along the railway line; nothing could be gained by spending money on another culvert which would spread the water over the area. He asked that the conditions be left as they are at present.

Ald. Elliott asked if the ratepayers to the north would suffer.

"Yes," replied Mr. Eastwood, "but a second culvert would not help matters any. It would be much better to sit back and leave the matter as it is."

The Mayor said that the decision of the council to put another culvert there was based on the advice of the City Solicitor to make the city's legal position stronger.

The city solicitor stated that if the city put the culvert back in its original position it would not be liable for damage. It seemed to him that the people who had entered into the agreement with Mr. Bogue could compel him to have the drain opened.

Mr. Eastwood—"I am prepared to say that I will take action on the part of the property holders against Mr. Bogue at once."

Ald. Stevenson moved that the matter of opening up the culvert be left in abeyance until the city solicitor notifies the engineer to go ahead with the work.

"Oh, no, you don't," said Mr. Hall, "I am not going to take the responsibility; I have given you my advice, and you will have to take all responsibility."

Ald. Stevenson changed his motion to read that if Mr. Eastwood agreed to take action against Mr. Bogue to force the opening of the drain through Mr. Bogues property, the matter of putting a culvert be left until December. This was seconded by Ald. Wilson, and carried.

Ottawa College Will Stick By The C. A. A. U.

Students Will Not Play Peterboro' Because They Realize That They Would Not Be Able To Play Montreal In The Event of a Win

THE SITUATION DESCRIBED

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—There is another dreadful tangle in the football situation, and as the result the match for the Canadian championship, which the Ottawa College and Peterborough teams were to have played at Varsity Oval Saturday is altogether likely to be called off. The Canadian Amateur Athletic Union has refused to sanction the game because the Canadian Rugby Union has recognized an "outlaw" organization, the Inter-Provincial Football Union, and College, while not refusing Peterborough's challenge, have notified the Ontario Union champions that they will not play them at all unless the game carries with it the Dominion honours. Consequently, the chances that College and Peterborough will meet are decidedly slim, but Montreal and Peterborough may arrange home and home games or a sudden death engagement, at Montreal. If Peterborough play Montreal, they will be protectionalized by the C.A.A.U., and probably expelled by the Ontario Union.

Mr. Gibson, speaking as vice-president of the C.A.A.U., informed Father Fortier that the C. A. A. U. would never allow any of the clubs under its jurisdiction to play with or against Inter-Provincial League teams. If College or Peterborough did so, the C.A.A.U. would place them in the same box as Hamilton Tigers, Ottawas, Montreals and Argonauts. The matter was threshed out at a meeting last evening, and finally the College people unanimously decided to stand by the Inter-Collegiate Union and the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union. Consequently Father Fortier telegraphed Manager McDonough, of the Peterborough team, as follows:—

"Ottawa College will play Peterborough if it be for the Canada championship, but we will not play Montreal under any conditions. We abide by the decision of the C.A.A.U. and Inter-Collegiate Union."

Peterborough answered to the effect that they would arrange to play Montreal if Ottawa College would not meet them.

That settled it as far as Ottawa College was concerned, and there the matter rested last night.

THE DEATH OF PRO. BEANE

"University Courier" of the University of Southern California Refers To Former Citizen

HIS SUCCESSFUL WORK

The University Courier, the official organ of the University of Southern California contains the following reference to the death of a gentleman who was once a resident of Peterborough and who was well known and respected in this city. The older residents of the city and pupils of the Collegiate Institute of from fifteen to twenty years ago will remember the subject of the sketch. The article in question is as follows:

"Last Thursday morning a feeling of profound sorrow was cast over the faculty and student body of the university and many other friends in the city as well, by the announcement of the death of Prof. Geo. M. Beane which occurred on a street car in which he had started from his home to his usual daily task. A brisk run had been made to catch the car and and almost immediately after Prof. Beane fainted, dying soon afterward without regaining consciousness.

Dr. Beane was born in Toronto, Canada on May 14th, 1869. His boyhood days were spent in the vicinity of his birth place where he early learned to know and love nature and her laws. He received his early scholastic training in the grade schools of Toronto, in the Western Training School and the London and Brantford Collegiate Institutes. At the age of twenty-one he entered the Victoria College at Toronto from which he graduated after four years' study of classics, received the degree of Bachelor of Arts. His professional life began two years after as instructor of French and German in the Bradford High School. From 1887 to 1892 he successfully filled the chair of mathematics and physics in the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

Prof. Beane moved to Minneapolis in 1894 and became a citizen of the United States. In 1898 he obtained the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy. During the last three years of this time he had been the head of the department of chemistry and physics in the Minneapolis High School.

Two years ago upon the recommendation of prominent men, both pastors and scientists he was chosen to take charge of the then small and poorly equipped department of physics in our University. His work among us has ever spoken praises of his ability. By untiring labour, wise foresight and loving, and he has interested so many students in the science he loved, that the capacity of new and spacious quarters has been taxed to its utmost."

It doesn't, therefore, like some drug cures
Affect the stomach, nerves or heart.

Dorothy ceased reading for a moment.

"Metgurne, Metgurne," she said to herself. "Surely I know that name."

She laid down the letter, pressed the electric button and unlocked the door. When the servant came, she said:

"Will you ask at the office if they have any biographical book of reference relating to Great Britain and, if so, please bring it to me?"

The servant appeared shortly after with a red book which proved to be an English "Who's Who" dated two years back. Turning the pages, she came to Metgurne.

"Metgurne, twelfth Duke of, created 1631, Herbert George Alan." Here followed a number of other titles, the information that the son and heir was Marquis of Thaxted and belonged to the diplomatic service; that Lord Metgurne was H. M. secretary of state for royal dependencies; finally a list of residences and clubs. She put down the book and resumed the letter.

"I think I ought to have told you that when I reach St. Petershurg I shall be as anxious to avoid my cousin Thaxted as I am to steer clear of his father in London. So I sat in my club and read the papers. Dear me, this is evidently going to be a very long letter. I hope you won't mind. I think perhaps you may be interested in learning how they do things over here.

"After two or three days of anxious waiting there came a crushing communication from the admiralty which confirmed my worst fears and set me at crossing the bridge again. I was ordered to report next morning at 11 at committee room 5 in the admiralty and bring with me full particulars pertaining to the firing of gun number so-and-so of the Consternation's equipment on such a date. I wonder since that I did not take to drink. We have every facility for that sort of thing in this club.

"However, at 11 next day I presented myself at the committee room and found in session the grimmest looking five men I have ever yet been called upon to face. Collectively they were about ten times worse in appearance than the courtmartial I had previously encountered. Four of the men I did not know, but the fifth I recognized at once, having often seen his portrait. He is Admiral Sir John Pendergest, popularly known in the service as 'Old Grouch,' a blue terror who knows absolutely nothing of mercy. The lads in the service say he looks so disagreeable because he is sorry he was not born a hanging judge. Picture a face as cleanly cut as that of some severe old Roman senator, a face as hard as marble, quite as cold and nearly as white, rescued from the appearance of a death mask by a pair of piercing eyes that glitter like steel. When looking at him it is quite impossible to believe that such a personage has ever been a boy who played pranks on his masters. Indeed, Admiral Sir John Pendergest seems to have sprung, fully uniformed and forbidding, from the earth, like those soldiers of mythology. I was so taken aback at confronting such a man that I never noticed my old friend, Billy Richardson, seated at the table as one of the minor officials of the committee. Billy tells me I looked rather white about the lips when I realized what was ahead of me, and I dare say he was right. My consolation is that I didn't get red, as is my disconcerting habit. I was accommodated with a chair, and then a ferrety faced little man began asking me questions, consulting every now and then a foolscap sheet of paper which was before him. Others were ready to note down the answers.

"'When did you fire the new gun from the Consternation in the Baltic?'

"Dear Miss Amhurst, I have confessed to you that I am not brilliant, and, indeed, such confession was quite unnecessary, for you must speedily have recognised the fact, but here let me boast for a line or two of my one accomplishment, which is mathematical accuracy. When I make experiments I don't note the result by rule of thumb. My answer to the ferret faced man was prompt and complete.

"'At twenty-three minutes, seventeen seconds past 10 a. m., on May the 3d of this year,' was my reply.

"The five high officials remained perfectly impassive, but the two stenographers seemed somewhat taken by surprise, and one of them whispered, 'Did you say fifteen seconds, sir?'

"'He said seventeen,' growled Sir John Pendergest in a voice that seemed to come out of a sepulcher.

"'Who sighted the gun?'

"'I did, sir.'

"'Why did not the regular gunner do that?'

"'He did, sir, but I also took observations and raised the muzzle .000827 of an inch.'

"'Was your gunner inaccurate, then, to that extent?'

"'No, sir; but I had weighed the ammunition and found it short by two ounces and thirty-seven grains.'

"I must not bore you with all the questions and answers. I merely give these as samples. They questioned me about the recoil, the action of the gun, the state of this, that and the other after firing, and luckily I was able to answer to a dot every query put to me. At the finish one of the judges asked me to give in my own words my opinion of the gun. Admiral Sir John glared at him as he put this question, for of course to any expert the answers I had furnished, all taken together, gave an accurate verdict on the gun, assuming my statements to have been correct, which I maintained they were. However, as Sir John made no verbal comment I offered my opinion as tersely as I could.

"'Thank you, Lieutenant Drummond,' rumbled Sir John in his deep voice, as if he were pronouncing sentence, and, my testimony completed, the committee rose.

"I was out in the street before Billy Richardson overtook me, and then he called himself to my attention by a resounding slap on the shoulder.

"'Alan, my boy,' he cried, 'you have done yourself proud. Your fortune's made.'

"'As how?' I asked, shaking him by the hand.

"'Why, we've been for weeks holding an inquiry on this blessed gun, and the question is whether or not a lot more of them are to be made. You know what an opinionated beast Old Grouch is. Well, my boy, you have corroborated his opinion of the gun in every detail. He is such a brow beating, tyrannical brute that the rest of the committee would rather like to go against him if they dared, but you have put a spoke in their wheel. Why, Sir John never said "thank you" to a human being since he was born until twenty-seven minutes and fifteen seconds after 11 this morning, as you would put it,' and at the time of writing this letter this surmise of Billy's appears to be justified, for the tape in the club just now announced that the committee has unanimously decided in favor of the gun, and adds that this is regarded as a triumph for the chairman, Admiral Sir John Pendergest, with various letters after his name.

"Dear Miss Amhurst, this letter, as I feared, has turned out intolerably long, and, like our first conversation, it is all about myself. But then, you see, you are the only one on the other side of the water to whom I have confided my selfish worries, and I believe you to be so kind hearted that I am sure you will not censure me for this once exceeding the limits of friendly correspondence. Having been deeply depressed during all the previous long days, the sudden reaction urges me to go out into Pall Mall, fling my cap in the air and whoop, which action is quite evidently a remnant of my former cowboy aspirations. Truth to tell, the Russian business seems already forgotten except by my stout old captain on the Consternation or my uncle. The strenuous Sir John has had me haled across the ocean merely to give testimony, lasting about thirty-five minutes, when, with a little patience, he might have waited till the Consternation herself arrived or else have cabled for us to try the gun at Bar Harbor. I suppose, however, that after my unfortunate contretemps with Russia our government was afraid I'd chip a corner off the United States and that they'd have to pay for it. So perhaps, after all, it was greater economy to bring me across on the liner Enthusiana.

"By the way, I learned yesterday that the Consternation has been ordered home, and so I expect to see Jack Lamont before many days are past. The ship will be paid off at Portsmouth, and then I suppose he and I will have our freedom for six months. I am rather looking forward to Jack's cooking me some weird but tasteful Russian dishes when we reach his blacksmith's shop in St. Petersburg. If I get on in Russia, as I hope and expect, I shall spend the rest of my leave over in the States. I saw very little indeed of that great country and am extremely anxious to see more. When one is on duty aboard ship one can only take very short excursions ashore. I should like to visit Niagara. It seems ridiculous that one should have been all along the American coast from Canada to New York and never have got far enough inland to view the great falls.

"Russia is rather dilatory in her methods, but I surely should know within two or three weeks whether I am going to succeed, or not. If not, then there is no use in waiting there. I shall try to persuade the prince to accompany me to America. During the weeks I am waiting in St. Petersburg I shall continually impress upon him the utter futility of a life which has not investigated the great electrical power plant at Niagara Falls. And then he is interested in the educational system of the United States. While we were going to the station early that morning he told me that the United States educational system must be the most wonderful in the world, because he found that your friend, Miss Katherine Kempt, knew more about electricity, metallurgy, natural philosophy and a great number of other things he is interested in than all the ladies he has met in Europe put together. He thinks that's the right sort of education for girls, and all this rather astonished me, because, although your friend was most charming, she said nothing during my very short acquaintance with her to lead me to suspect that she had received a scientific training.

"Dear Miss Amhurst, I am looking every day for a letter from you, but none has yet been received by the admiralty, who when they get one will forward it to whatever part of the world I happen to be in."

CHAPTER VIII.

A SUMMER hotel that boasts a thousand acres of forest, more or less, which serve the purposes of a back yard, affords its guests, even if all its multitude of rooms are occupied, at least one spot for each visitor to regard as his or her favorite nook. So large an extent of woodland successfully defies landscape gardening. It insists on being left alone, and its very immensity raises a financial barrier against trimly kept gravel walks. There were plenty of landscape garden walks in the immediate vicinity of the hotel, and some of them ambitiously penetrated into the woods, relapsing from the civilization of beaten gravel into a primitive thicket trail, which, however, always led to some celebrated bit of picturesqueness—a waterfall, or a pulpit rock outstanding like a tower, or the fancied resemblance of a human face carved by nature from the cliff, or a viewpoint jutting out over the deep chasm of the valley, which usually supported a rustic summer house or pavilion where unknown names were carved on the woodwork—the last resort of the undistinguished to achieve immortality by means of a jackknife.

Dorothy discovered a little Eden of her own, to which no discernible covert way led, for it was not conspicuous enough to obtain mention in the little gratis guide which the hotel furnished, a pamphlet on coated paper filled with half tone engravings and half extravagant eulogies of what it proclaimed to be, an earthly paradise, with the rates by the day or week given on the cover page to show on what terms this paradise might be enjoyed.

Dorothy's bower was green and cool and crystal, the ruggedness of the rocks softened by the wealth of foliage. A very limpid spring, high up and out of sight among the leaves, sent its waters tinkling down the face of the cliff, ever filling a crystal clear lakelet at the foot, which yet was never full. Velvety and beautiful as was the moss surrounding this pond it was nevertheless too damp to form an acceptable couch for a human being unless that human being were brave enough to risk the rheumatic inconveniences which followed Rip Van Winkle's long sleep in these very regions, so Dorothy always carried with her from the hotel a featherweight, spider's web hammock, which she deftly slung between two saplings, their light suppleness giving an almost pneumatic effect to this fairy net spread in a fairy glen, and here the young woman swayed luxuriously in the relaxing delights of an indolence still too new to have become commonplace or wearisome.

She always expected to read a great deal in the hammock, but often the book slipped unnoticed to the moss and she lay looking upward at the little disks of blue sky visible through the checkering maze of green leaves. One afternoon, deserted by the latest piece of fictional literature, marked in plain figures on the paper cover that protected the cloth binding one dollar and a half, but sold at the department store for $1.08, Dorothy lay half hypnotised by the twinkling of the green leaves above her, when she heard a sweet voice singing a rollicking song of the civil war and so knew that Katherine was thus heralding her approach.

"When Johnny comes marching home again,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
We'll give him a hearty welcome then,
Hurrah! Hurrah!
The men will cheer, the boys will shout,
The ladies they will all turn out,
And we'll all feel gay
When Johnny comes marching home."

Dorothy went still further back into the history of her country and gave a faint imitation of an Indian war whoop to let the oncomer know she was welcome, and presently Katherine burst impetuously through the dense undergrowth.

"So here you are, Miss Laziness," she cried.

"Here I am, Miss Energy, or shall I call you Miss-applied Energy? Katherine, you have walked so fast that you are quite red in the face."

"It isn't exertion; it's vexation. Dorothy, I've had a perfectly terrible time. It is the anxiety regarding the proper discipline or parents that is spoiling the nervous system of American children. Train them up in the way they should go, and when they are old they do depart from it. There is nothing more awful than to own parents who think they possess a sense of humor. Thank goodness, mother has none!"

"Then it is your father who has been misbehaving?"

"Of course it is. He treats the most important problem of a woman's life as if it were the latest thing in Life."

Dorothy sat up in the hammock.

"The most important problem? That means a corpoosal. Goodness gracious, Kate, is that insurance man back here again?"

"What insurance man?"

"Oh, heartless and heartbreaking Katherine, is there another? Sit here in the hammock beside me, and tell me all about it."

"No, thank you," refused Katherine. "I weigh more than you, and I cannot risk my neck through the collapse of that bit of gossamer. I must take care of myself for his sake."

"Then it is the life insurance man whose interests you are consulting? Have you taken out a policy with him?"

"Dear me, you are nearly as bad as father, but not quite so funny. You are referring to Mr. Henderson, I presume. A most delightful companion for a dance; but, my dear Dorothy, life is not all glided out to the measures of a Strauss waltz."

"True. Quite indisputable, Kate, and those sentiments do you credit. Who is the man?"

"The human soul," continued Katherine seriously, "aspires to higher things than the society columns of the New York Sunday papers and the frivolous chatter of an overheated ballroom."

"Again you score, Kate, and are rising higher and higher in my estimation. I see it all now. Those solemn utterances of yours point directly toward Hugh Miller's 'Old Red Sandstone' and works of that sort, and now I remember your singing 'When Johnny Comes Marching Home.' I therefore take it that Jack Lamont has arrived."

"So here you are, Miss Laziness," she cried.

"He has not."

"Then he has written to you?"

"He has not."

"Oh, well, I give it up. Tell me the tragedy in your own way."

For answer Katherine withdrew her hands from behind her and offered to her friend a sheet of paper she had been holding. Dorothy saw blazoned on the top of it a coat-of-arms and underneath it written in words of the most formal nature was the information that Prince Ivan Lermontoff presented his warmest regards to Captain Kempt, U. S. N., retired, and begged permission to pay his addresses to the captain's daughter Katherine. Dorothy looked up from the document, and her friend said calmly:

"You see, they need another Katherine in Russia."

"I hope she won't be like a former one, if all I've read of her is true. This letter was sent to your father, then?"

"It was, and he seems to regard it as a huge joke. Said he was going to cable his consent, and as the Consternation has sailed away he would try to pick her up by wireless telegraphy and secure the young man that way. Suggests that I shall have a lot of new photographs taken, so that he can hand

Here's the Cure for Sick Kidneys

TEST THEM FREE

Perhaps you are skeptical about GIN PILLS. So was Mr. Brown. He had tried so many things for his kidneys, without getting any better, that he had just about made up his mind that he couldn't get well.

When he first read about GIN PILLS he laughed. The second time, he thought. The third time, he said "he would write for a sample just to see if there was any chance of getting well."

He was pretty nearly tickled to death over that box of GIN PILLS. They did him so much good that he would have paid $5 a box for the second, if necessary. The dizziness, headaches and backaches stopped. Those shooting pains in hips and legs died away. Urine lost its high color. He slept through the night without being disturbed by bladder trouble. His appetite began to pick up and he felt better than he had been for years.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1907 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

Marvelous case of Leo Corrigan which shows that skin diseases heretofore considered hopeless can be cured.

Since childhood, Leo Corrigan had been tortured with the burning, agony and itching of Eczema. His parents had spent a great deal of money in consulting physicians and buying medicines—but all to no purpose.

As he grew older he sought other doctors—some of them specialists. He was eleven weeks in a Toronto hospital—eight weeks in bed. At times the irritation and pain caused by the Eczema were so severe, life was a burden. He would get so bad he could not walk. Several winters he could do no work.

He wrote, on February 20, 1906:

"In November, 1905, I had another attack, and was advised to use Mira Ointment. (I thought this would be like the other remedies I had tried, and of no use to me). But, to my great delight, a few hours after the first application, I felt great relief.

I have used it, now, two and a-half months, and unhesitatingly state that it is the best remedy I ever used. It has worked wonders for me. Since using Mira Ointment I have been able to work every day—without irritation or pain—so stiffness of the limbs or soreness. I feel a new person.

"From a state of great irritation and sometimes excruciating pains to freedom from all such, being capable of doing hard work every day, is a marvelous change. Mira Ointment has effected it.

"I strongly recommend any person afflicted with this terrible complaint—Eczema—to use Mira Ointment."

What this wonderfully effective Ointment has done in this extreme chronic case, it can do in other seemingly incurable conditions. If you suffer from any form of skin-disease, don't delay. Certain relief and cure is waiting you in Mira Ointment. Get a box to-day. 50c. —6 for $2.50. At drug-stores—or from The Chemists' Co. of Canada, Ltd., Hamilton—Toronto. 15 them out to the reporters when they call for particulars. Soon in his mind's eye, he says, a huge black lettered heading in the evening papers, 'A Russian Prince Captures One of Our Fairest Daughters,' and then insultingly hinted that perhaps, after all, it was better not to use my picture, as it might not bear out the 'fair daughter' fiction of the heading."

"Yes, Kate, I can see that such treatment of a vital subject must have been very provoking."

"Provoking? I should say it was! He pretended he was going to tack this letter up on the notice board in the hall of the hotel, so that every one might know what guests of distinction the Matterhorn House held. But the most exasperating feature of the situation is that this letter has been lying for days and days at our cottage in Bar Harbor. I am quite certain that I left instructions for letters to be forwarded, but, as nothing came, I telegraphed yesterday to the people who have taken our house, and now a whole heap of belated correspondence has arrived, with a note from our tenant saying he did not know our address. You will see at the bottom of the note that the prince asks my father to communicate with him by sending a reply to the Consternation at New York, but now the Consternation has sailed for England, and poor John must have waited and waited in vain."

"Write care of the Consternation in England."

"But Jack told me that the Consternation paid off as soon as she arrived, and probably he will have gone to Russia."

"If you address him at the admiralty in London, the letter will be forwarded wherever he happens to be."

"How do you know?"

"I have heard that such is the case."

"But you're not sure, and I want to be certain."

"Are you really in love with him, Kate?"

"Of course I am. You know that very well, and I don't want any stupid misapprehension to arise at the beginning, such as allows a silly author to carry on his story to the four hundredth page of such trash as this." And she gently touched with her toe the unoffending volume which lay on the ground beneath the hammock.

"Then why not adopt your father's suggestion and cable? It isn't you who are cabling, you know."

"I couldn't consent to that. It would look as if we were in a hurry, wouldn't it?"

"Then let me cable."

"You? To whom?"

"Hand me up that despised book, Kate, and I'll write my cablegram on the fly leaf. If you approve of the message, I'll go to the hotel and send it at once."

Katherine gave her the book and lent the little silver pencil which hung jingling with other trinkets on the chain at her belt. Dorothy scribbled a note, tore out the fly leaf and presented it to Katherine, who read:

Alan Drummond, Bluewater Club, Pall Mall, London:

Tell Lamont that his letter to Captain Kempt was delayed and did not reach the captain until today. Captain Kempt's reply will be sent under cover to you at your club. Arrange for forwarding if you leave England.

DOROTHY AMHURST.

When Katherine finished reading she looked up at her friend and exclaimed, "Well!" giving that one word a meaning deep as the clear pool on whose borders she stood.

Dorothy's face reddened as if the sinking western sun was shining full upon it.

"You write to one another, then?"

"Yes."

"And is it a case of"—

"No; friendship."

"Sure it is nothing more than that?" Dorothy shook her head.

"Dorothy, you are a brick; that's what you are. You will do anything to help a friend in trouble."

Dorothy smiled.

"I have so few friends that whatever I can do for them will not greatly tax any capabilities I may possess."

"Nevertheless, Dorothy, I thoroughly appreciate what you have done. You did not wish any one to know you were corresponding with him, and yet you never hesitated a moment when you saw I was anxious."

"Indeed, Kate, there was nothing to conceal. Ours is a very ordinary exchange of letters. I have only had two—one at Bar Harbor a few days after he left and another longer one since we came to the hotel, written from England."

"Did the last one go to Bar Harbor too? How came you to receive it when we did not get ours?"

"It did not go to Bar Harbor. I gave him the address of my lawyers in New York, and they forwarded it to me here. Lieutenant Drummond was ordered home by some one who had authority to do so and received the message while he was sitting with me on the night of the ball. He had got into trouble with Russia. There had been an investigation, and he was acquitted. I saw that he was rather worried over the order home, and I expressed my sympathy as well as I could, hoping everything would turn out for the best. He asked if he might write and let me know the outcome, and, being interested, I quite willingly gave him permission and my address. The letter I received was all about a committee meeting at the admiralty in which he took part. He wrote to me from the club in Pall Mall, to which I have addressed this cablegram."

There was a sly dimple in Katherine's cheeks as she listened to this straightforward explanation, and the faintest possible suspicion of a smile flickered at the corner of her mouth. She murmured rather than sang:

"A pair of lovesick maidens we."

"One, if you please," interrupted Dorothy.

"Lovesick all against our will."

"Only one."

"Twenty years hence we shan't be
A pair of lovesick maidens still."

"I am pleased to note," said Dorothy demurely, "that the letter written by the prince to your father has brought you back to the Gilbert and Sullivan plane again, although in this fairy glen you should quote from 'Iolanthe' rather than from 'Patience.'"

"Yes, Dot, this spot might do for a cove in the 'Pirates of Penzance,' only we're too far from the sea. But, to return to the matter in hand, I don't think there will be any need to send that cablegram. I don't like the idea of a cablegram, anyhow. I will return to the hotel and dictate to my frivolous father a serious composition quite as stately and formal as that received from the prince. He will address it and seal it, and then if you are kind enough to inclose it in the next letter you send to Lieutenant Drummond it will be sure to reach Jack Lamont ultimately."

"Well?"

Dorothy sprang from the hammock to the ground.

"Oh," she cried eagerly, "I'll go into the hotel with you and write my letter at once."

Katherine smiled, took her by the arm and said:

"You're a dear girl, Dorothy. I'll race you to the hotel as soon as we are through this thicket."

CHAPTER IX.

THE next letter Dorothy received bore Russian stamps and was dated at the blacksmith's shop, Bolshoi Prospect, St. Petersburg. After a few preliminaries which need not be set down here Drummond continued:

"The day after Jack arrived in London, there being nothing whatever to detain him in England, we set off together for St. Petersburg and are now domiciled above his blacksmith shop. We are not on the fashionable side of the river, but our street is wide, and a very short walk brings us to a bridge which, being crossed, allows us to wander among palaces if we are so disposed. We have been here only four days, yet a good deal has already been accomplished. The influence of the prince has smoothed my path for me. Yesterday I had an audience with a very important personage in the foreign office, and today I have seen an officer of high rank in the navy.

"The prince warns me to mention no names, because letters, even to a young lady, are sometimes opened before they reach the person to whom they are addressed. These officials who have been kind enough to receive me are gentlemen so polished that I feel quite uncouth in their presence. I am a little shaky in my French and feared that my knowledge of that language might not carry me through, but both of these officials speak English much better than I do, and they seemed rather pleased I had voluntarily visited St. Petersburg to explain that no discourtesy was meant in the action I had so unfortunately taken on the Baltic, and they gave me their warmest assurances they would do what they could to ease the tension between our respective countries. It seems that my business here will be finished much sooner than I expected, and then I am off on the quickest steamer for New York in the hope of seeing Niagara falls. I have met with one disappointment, however. Jack says he cannot possibly accompany me to the United States. I have failed to arouse in him the faintest interest about the electric works at Niagara. He insists that he is on the verge of a most important discovery, the nature of which he does not confide in me. I think he is working too hard, for he is looking quite haggard and overdone, but that is always the way with him. He throws himself heart and soul into any difficulty that confronts him and works practically night and day until he has solved it.

"Yesterday he gave the whole street a fright. I had just returned from the foreign office and had gone upstairs to my room when there occurred an explosion that shook the building from cellar to roof and sent the windows of our blacksmith's shop rattling into the street. Jack had a most narrow escape, but is unhurt, although that fine beard of his was badly singed. He has now it shaved off and now sports merely a mustache, looking quite like a man from New York. You wouldn't recognize him if you met him on Broadway. The carpenters and glaziers are at work today repairing the damage.

"I told Jack that if this sort of thing kept on I'd be compelled to patronize another hotel, but he says it won't happen again. It seems he was trying to combine two substances by adding a third, and, as I understood him, the mixing took place with unexpected suddenness. He has endeavored to explain to me the reaction, as he calls it, which occurred, but I seem to have no head for chemistry, and, besides, if I am to be blown through the roof some of these days it will be no consolation to me when I come down upon the pavement outside to know accurately the different elements which contributed to my elevation. Jack is very patient in trying to instruct me, but he could not resist the temptation of making me ashamed by saying that your friend, Miss Katherine Kempt, would have known at once the full particulars of the reaction. Indeed, he says she warned him of the disaster by marking a passage in a book she gave him which foreshadowed this very thing. She must be a most remarkable young woman, and it shows how stupid I am that I did not in the least appreciate this fact when in her company."

The next letter was received a week later. He was getting on swimmingly, both at the foreign office and at the Russian admiralty. All the officials he had met were most courteous and anxious to advance his interests. He wrote about the misapprehensions held in England regarding Russia and expressed his resolve to do what he could when he returned to remove these false impressions.

"Of course," he went on, "no American or Englishman can support or justify the repressive measures so often carried out ruthlessly by the Russian police. Still even these may be exaggerated, for the police have to deal with a people very much different from our own. It is rather curious that at this moment I am in vague trouble concerning the police. I am sure this place is watched, and I am also certain that my friend Jack is being shadowed. He dresses like a workman. His grimy blouse would delight the heart of his friend Tolstoi, but he is known to be a prince, and I think the authorities imagine he is playing up to the laboring class, whom they despise. I lay it all to that unfortunate explosion, which gathered the police about us as if they had sprung from the ground. There was an official examination, of course, and Jack explained, apparently to everybody's satisfaction, exactly how he came to make the mistake that resulted in the loss of his beard and his windows. I don't know exactly how to describe the feeling of uneasiness which has come over me.

"At first sight this city did not strike me as so very much different from New York or London, and, meeting, as I did, so many refined gentlemen in high places, I had come to think St. Petersburg was, after all, very much like Paris or Berlin or Rome. But it is different, and the difference makes itself subtly felt, just as the air in some coast towns of Britain is relaxing and in others bracing. In these towns a man doesn't notice the effect at first, but later on he begins to feel it, and so it is here in St. Petersburg. Great numbers of workmen pass down our street. They all seem to know who the prince is, and the first days we were here they saluted him with a deference which I supposed was due to his rank, in spite of the greasy clothes he wore. Since the explosion an indefinable change has come over these workmen. They salute the prince still when we meet them on the street, but there is in their attitude a certain sly sympathy, if I may so term it, a bond of camaraderie, which is implied in their manner rather than expressed. Jack says this is all fancy on my part, but I don't think it is. These men imagine that Prince Ivan Lermontoff, who lives among them and dresses like them, is concocting some explosive which may yet rid them of the tyrants who make their lives so unsafe. All this would not matter, but what does matter is the chemical reaction, as I believe Jack would term it, which has taken place among the authorities. The authorities undoubtedly have their spies among the workingmen and know well what they are thinking about and talking about. I do not believe they were satisfied with the explanations Jack gave regarding the disaster. I have tried to impress upon Jack that he must be more careful in walking about the town, and I have tried to persuade him after work to dress like the gentleman he is, but he laughs at my fears and assures me that I have gone from one extreme to the other in my opinion of St. Petersburg. First I thought it was like all other capitals; now I have swung too far in the other direction. He says the police of St. Petersburg would not dare arrest him, but I'm not so sure of that. A number of things occur to me, as usual, too late. Russia, with her perfect secret service system, must know that Prince Lermontoff has been serving in the British navy. They know he returned to St. Petersburg, avoids all his old friends and is brought to their notice by an inexplicable explosion, and they must be well aware also that he is in the company of the man who fired the shell at the Rock in the Baltic and that he himself served on the offending cruiser.

"As to my own affairs, I must say they are progressing slowly, but satisfactorily. Nevertheless if Jack would leave St. Petersburg and come with me to London or New York, where he could carry on his experiments quite as well, or even better than here, I should depart at once, even if I jeopardized my own prospects."

The next letter, some time later, began:

"Your two charming notes to me arrived here together. It is very kind of you to write to a poor exile and cheer him in his banishment. I should like to see that doll where you have swung your hammock. Reason of Rhodes not Hudnut's note, so delightfully written of by Washington Irving. If they offer you anything to drink, don't you take it. Think how disastrous it would be to all your friends if you went to sleep in that hammock for twenty years. It's the Catskills I want to see now rather than Niagara falls. Your second letter containing the note from Captain Kempt to Jack was at once delivered to him. What on earth has the genial captain written to effect such a transformation in my friend? He came to me that evening clothed in his right mind in evening rig out, with his decorations upon it, commanded me to get into my dinner togs, took me in a carriage across the river to the best restaurant St. Petersburg affords, and there we had a champagne dinner in which he drank to America and all things American. Whether it was the enthusiasm produced by Captain Kempt's communication or the effect of the champagne, I do not know, but he has reconsidered his determination not to return to the United States, and very soon we set out together for the west.

"I shall be glad to get out of this place. We were followed to the restaurant, I am certain, and I am equally certain that at the next table two police spies were seated, and these two shadowed us in a cab until we reached our blacksmith's shop. It is a humiliating confession to make, but somehow the atmosphere of this place has got on my nerves, and I shall be glad to turn my back on it. Jack pooh poohs the idea that he is in any danger. Even the governor of St. Petersburg, he says, dare not lay a finger on him, and as for the chief of police, he pours scorn on that powerful official. He scouts the idea that he is being watched, and, all in all, is quite humorous at my expense, saying that my state of mind is more fitting for a schoolgirl than for a stalwart man over six feet in height. One consolation is that Jack now has become as keen for America as I am. I expect that the interview arranged for me tomorrow with a great government official will settle my own business finally one way or another. Awhile ago I was confident of success, but the repeated delays have made me less optimistic now, although the gentle courtesy of those in high places remains undiminished.

"Dear Miss Amhurst, I cannot afford to fall lower in your estimation than perhaps I deserve, so I must say that this fear which has overcome me is all on account of my friend and not on my own behalf at all. I am perfectly safe in Russia, being a British subject. My cold and formal Cousin Thaxted is a member of the British embassy here, and my cold and formal uncle is a cabinet minister in England, facts which must be well known to these spy informed people of St. Petersburg. So I am immune. The worst they could do would be to order me out of the country, but even that is unthinkable. If any one attempted to interfere with me, I have only to act the hero of the penny novelette, draw myself up to my full height, which, as you know, is not that of a pygmy, fold my arms across my manly chest, cry, 'Ha, ha!' and sing 'Rule Britannia,' whereupon the villains would wilt and withdraw. But Jack has no such security. He is a Russian subject, and, prince or commoner, the authorities here could do what they liked with him. I always think of things when it is too late to act. I wish I had urged Jack ashore at Bar Harbor and induced him to take the oath of allegiance to the United States. I spoke to him about that coming home in the carriage, and, to my amazement, he said he wished he had thought of it himself at the time we were over there.

"Whereupon the villains would wilt and withdraw."

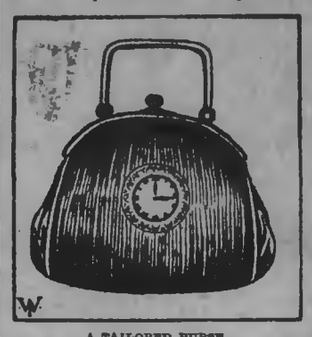
IN FASHION'S REALM.

Leather Novelties That Are Smart For Young Girls.

PURSES FROM GAY PAREE.

Sweet Sixteen May Carry Small Silver Coin Purses and Vanity Boxes—A Fad For Bags to Match or Harmonize With Costumes.

Bags and purses for young girls differ in several features from those intended to be carried by women. They must suggest youth in line as well as in material, so the limitations in choice are more rigid than one would think. Girls who are not too young—that is, after they have reached the age of sixteen—are permitted to carry small silver coin purses and vanity boxes.



A TAILORED PURSE.

These are rather plain or else of an engraved pattern in which there is no striking design. Gold purses are not suitable for girls who are not yet out in society.

Among the leather novelties which have just reached us from Paris is a bag the shape of which is decidedly youthful, while the coloring is wonderfully fresh and attractive. It is of reseda suede, and, though the bag itself is not very deep, it holds all that a young girl need carry. The trimmings are plain silver gilt, and the handle is a narrow stitched strap of the suede. When the bag is opened the mouth forms a perfect circle. The inside is divided permanently by the coin purse, which has an outside covering of reseda moire and a lining of white suede. This is roomy without suggesting bulk.

The bag proper is lined throughout with watered silk, and on one side is a shirred pocket which holds a tiny oblong mirror faced with silk and a green suede powder puff envelope, in which reposes an infinitesimal bit of eiderdown, while between these two cases is a tiny glass salt bottle with a silver gilt top. These purses come in other shades, too, in the fashionable purple and lavender, in gray, brown ranging from tan to seal and in blue. It is the fad to have the purse match or at least shade into the color of the costume. Even young girls adhere strictly to this one tone effect or to the one of harmony in coloring.

Another smart bag of soft suede in a lovely shade of brown was oblong in shape and had the outside smocked near the top. There were two or three rows of smocking below the narrow silver gilt rim, which provided considerable fullness at the bottom. This purse held the usual coin compartment and the three essential beauty accessories—the puff case, the mirror and the powder box.

AMY VARNUM.

Wash Your Face With Salt.

"If women who spend so much time over their complexions and so much money at facial beautifiers would simply wash their faces at night with salt or apply a salt and milk solution they would not only have better skins, but save their money besides," was the remark of a woman with a roseleaf complexion.

"That sounds absurd to you, no doubt," she continued as she noted the look of skepticism in her companion's eyes, "but you try it. At night wash your face in very hot water, using salt as you would soap. Then rinse in cold water. Your face will feel like ivory. The salt not only whitens the skin, but renders the flesh firm and solid. Then as a cosmetic take a teaspoonful of salt and add it to two tablespoonfuls of milk. Apply to the face, leaving it on overnight. The effect is magical."

To Suffer From Headaches Makes Life Miserable. . .

It takes a person that has had and is subject to headaches to describe the suffering which attends them.

The majority of cases are caused by constipation and dyspepsia. The dull throbbings, the intense pain, sometimes in one part, sometimes in another, and then over the whole head, varying in its severity by the cause which brings it on, purely indicates that there is something the matter with the stomach or bowels. To the fact that Burdock Blood Bitters reaches every part of the system is due its success in relieving and permanently curing headache. It has proven a specific for the malady in all its forms.

Mr. Wm. R. Gilchrist, New Mills, N.B., writes: "I was troubled for years with constipation and headaches, but after using four bottles of Burdock Blood Bitters I am completely cured."

Mr. John T. Kidner, Red Deer, Alta., writes: "I was troubled for several years with headache. I tried a number of remedies but they did me no good. I tried a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters and it cured me completely."

LINGERIE WAISTS.

How to Launder Thin Waists With Best Results.

As the laundering must be such a delicate piece of work it is well to let the waist stand all night in clear water, for then it practically cleans itself. After thoroughly soaking for ten or twelve hours remove it carefully and put into another basin of soapsuds and squeeze again. This should be done three times and then rinsed in clear water, always squeezing and always keeping the material under water, says an expert laundress.

If the blouse is white I would put a little bluing in the last water.

To stiffen a lingerie waist I consider a great mistake, as it detracts from the delicacy of the fabric. Yet a little dressing is required and may be had by ironing when damp, as handkerchiefs should be.

If the blouse is a fine quality it will take not more than half an hour to dry sufficiently to iron. Ironing is the difficult part of the work and if properly done should leave the waist without a crease when completed.

To do this pressing so there will be no wrinkles a small ironing board and a smooth roll of brown paper just large enough to go through the wristband are necessary. Begin the work by spreading out one sleeve quite flat, smoothing so there will be practically no creases. Over this run the iron, taking care not to let it go to the very outside edge of the sleeve, because if you do it will make a sharp crease there, showing that it has been ironed. Leave that edge unironed. Turn the sleeve and press the other side in the same way, still keeping away from the edge. You then have both sides done smooth.

Run your hand through the sleeve and spread it the other way—that is to say, so that the unpressed edges will not be in the middle where the iron may go over this wrinkled or unfinished portion. Smooth it and finish that part of the sleeve so that it is quite without a crease.

In the gathers comes the fussiest part of the work, and here the paper roll will be found a help. The effort must be to run the iron over without pressing any of these flat, and this is only accomplished by going slowly and spreading almost every inch over the roll that is thrust through the sleeves and serves as a foundation. Should the material dry too much during the process a blouse should be dampened with a soft cloth. When the sleeve is finished it should be crisp and entirely without a crease.

The same operation is completed on the other sleeve, and then the body is ironed, spreading the front flat and doing that before the backs. The pressing should be done on the right side to give a little gloss, but if there is heavy embroidery it must be done first on the wrong side to make it stand out and then finished on the right side. Remove any belt before washing, for the laundering can be better done without it.

If the blouse is the right dampness it will have a slight stiffness after ironing. If too damp the iron will stick to it, and if too dry the iron will go over without leaving any stiffness.

After the ironing is completed put the blouse on a coat hanger for several hours to be quite dry before laying away.

NOT GOOD PATIENTS.

Doctors Are Hard to Manage, Says a Trained Nurse.

"I suppose it is treason to my superior officer to say so, but doctors are certainly not easy patients to manage," remarked the trained nurse. "At least, this has always been my experience, and most nurses, you will find, agree with me in the matter. I have recently been nursing a physician through typhoid, and my experience with him was typical of the cases of the profession in general.

"Doctors know altogether too much for their own peace of mind, you see. Each new symptom is recognized, and if it is an unfavorable one, why, the patient's weakened condition usually leads him to lay great stress upon it. Then, since he has always been in a position to issue orders to the nurse, he cannot easily bring himself to take orders from her, and he is disposed to criticise and take exception to treatment which the ordinary patient receives as a matter of course.

"But perhaps the most troublesome thing of all is the mania which the doctor has for taking his temperature. If he has a moderately high fever and is allowed to use the thermometer as often as he wishes he can fret and worry over the result enough to send his temperature up materially. More than once rather than exasperate a physician patient by a refusal to let him have the thermometer and rather at the same time than let him know just how high his fever was I have dropped the instrument just as I was in the act of handing it to him. Of course I apologize for my carelessness at such times, and the regret really does not have to be all assumed, for I am at the expense of buying myself a new thermometer.

"At one time I had an inaccurate instrument, which never registered high enough, and I used to call it my doctor's thermometer. By a little dexterity I could substitute this for the one I actually used myself, and the encouragingly low temperature it would show would greatly please the patient."

Can You Figure It Out?

Here is a new problem for the high brows, but perhaps even you, with a little study, can solve it:

Fifteen girl members of a walking club start out to walk for seven days. The rule of the club is that they shall walk three abreast each day, and on no two days shall any three or two walk together in the same row. The problem is to show how they were arranged each day of the seven and how they arranged on the seventh day.—New York World.

AN ARISTOCRATIC ARCH

"One of the 14"

THE ORDINARY HOMELY ARCH

The foundation of shoe beauty lies in a skillfully modeled arch.

Nearly all, we might say all, shoe manufacturers utterly disregard this vital beauty point and instruct their lastmakers to supply them with nothing but flat-arched lasts because flat arches save expensive hand work in the making.

But the Dolly Varden Shoe is made without regard to saving paltry pennies on arch construction. Its arches are exact reproductions of perfect feminine feet at whatever the cost.

This is why ninety out of every hundred feminine shoes have the dull, gloomy appearance of Fig A, shown here, instead of the sharp, lively lines of the Dolly Varden, as shown in Fig B.

SOO FISHERMEN RAIDED ON

Dominion Inspector Makes Important Capture Near the Soo.

BIGGEST SEIZURE IN YEARS

Close Season Law Being Entirely Disregarded—Tugs and Nets Taken Away — Two Gasoline Launches Also Seized—Fish Confiscated—Wholesale Prosecutions to Be Instituted—Were Liberated.

Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 22.—Capt. A. G. Duncan, Dominion inspector of fisheries, passed through the Canadian Soo on his way west, after inspecting the fisheries under his jurisdiction in the eastern division. During his operations in the neighborhood of Killarney, just below the Soo, Capt. Duncan was accompanied by a number of fishers from the Soo, and a flotilla under his charge consisted of a tug, sailboat and a gasoline launch.

In nearly every instance Duncan found the fishery laws being violated, the result being a large number of seizures, some of them considered of a most important nature. The largest number of infractions of the law consisted in catching white fish and trout out of season and having them in possession.

One of the tugs belonging to Purvis Bros. was seized, as well as a large number of pounds of nets and two gasoline launches belonging to Gauthier, French River.

James Noble, Dominion fish commissioner, it is alleged, was caught with freshly caught whitefish and trout in his possession. Noble claimed the fish were caught in the open season and had been kept over, but the officers claim they were fresh, and even providing they had been caught in the manner described, the offence is none the less flagrant in the eyes of the law, which distinctly states that none of the fish mentioned shall be in the possession of any parties after the closing of the season, Nov. 1.

James Rock, a fisherman of Killarney, was caught with whitefish and trout in his possession. The fish were all confiscated by the officers, and the boats, which were seized, were liberated after the officers obtained a receipt from the owners for them, which practically means they are still in the hands of the Government.

Capt. Duncan did not feel inclined to deal offhand with the case, considering the extent of the seizures and their importance in the eyes of the Government. He accordingly referred the matter to the Government, which will take action in the near future, and wholesale prosecutions are expected.

The seizures are considered the largest made by the Dominion Government in years, the property confiscated reaching into the thousands.

STRATHCONA HONORED.

Lord Strathcona Receives Gift From Anglo-Canadians In London.

London, Nov. 22.—The Duke of Argyle, who was Governor-General of Canada from 1878 to 1883, yesterday, on behalf of the Anglo-Canadians in London, presented Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, the Canadian High Commissioner, with a large silver centrepiece, illustrative of the various phases of Lord Strathcona's life.

Replying to the presentation address the High Commissioner said he hoped soon to resign his office into younger hands, but before so doing he desired to see the proposed all-red route by way of Canada to the far east an accomplished fact.

German Imperial Budget.

Berlin, Nov. 22.—The imperial budget, which was presented yesterday, provides authority to raise $65,125,000 by borrowing, while the credit of former budgets has not yet been realized to the amount of $33,525,000. The new budget thus sanctions borrowing $98,690,000. It further authorizes the chancellor to raise temporarily a maximum of $87,500,000 at the Imperial Bank upon treasury bills, as his needs may require.

Owing to the unfavorable state of the Imperial finances, the Government has decided to postpone the operation of the sinking fund measure till a different arrangement can be made.

The report accompanying the budget emphasized the necessity for the imposition of new taxes in order to bring the expenditures and revenue in harmony.

To Stop Theft of Nets.

Leamington, Nov. 22.—Provincial Detective Campeau of Windsor is at work on the theft of about $600 worth of pounds nets from Marsh & Hemming, fishermen of this place, and has orders from the crown attorney not to stop until the offender is captured. It is the intention of the provincial Government to put a stop to the practice that has been growing at a discomforting rate during the past year. Recently the complaints have been increasing from the fishermen, and this last and largest theft has determined the Government to act in a decisive manner.

MORE EVIDENCE IN THE LONDON CASE

Farr on Stand Says He Was Offered This to "Split."

CORRUPTION ON BOTH SIDES

Sensational Statements by Witnesses In London Bribery Trial—Conservative Whip Had Money at Brockville Election — Jerry Collins Tells a Story of Having Been Promised Government Job.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—James Farr of Goderich, the man who took so important a part in the Holmes-MacLean bye-election in West Huron that he had to skip to Dakota took the stand at the London conspiracy trial yesterday afternoon, and said that he understood, when he came back to Canada, that he would receive $500 from the Conservative party if he would give the whole game away. As yet he had not received the money.

Jerry Collins, the crown's chief witness, was in the box nearly all day. He told his Police Court story with a few new points, which tended to draw Reid and Mulloy deeper into the game in London.

Farr was very amusing in his evidence. Led by Mr. Staunton, Farr identified Pritchett as the man who taught him to switch ballots in Goderich. He could not tell to whom he gave the good ballots after the election.

The statement that was printed in The Globe shortly after the election, which was purported to be sworn to by Farr, was read over clause by clause by Mr. Johnston. The witness said that he saw the article, but that although the greater part of it, dealing with his action when deputy returning officer, was true, he had not made the statement. It was hatched up by Jim Vance, who also got him the money to get out of the country.

The cross-examination of Collins was not finished. It is expected that the crown's case will be finished today, when an adjournment will probably be made until Monday.

Raphael MacNab, a lineman living in Brockville, testified that during the White-Comstock election he was furnished with $60 to buy votes. O'Gorman gave him the money. He was told that George Taylor, the Conservative whip, had sent letters out with money enclosed.

"Bribery on both sides," was Mr. Johnston's comment.

John Stevely said he received $20 from Reid for election expenses. He also got $150 in envelopes from some parties unknown. He swore that he did not know where the money came from, how many envelopes he got, or who made up the list of doubtful voters. The money was left on his desk, that's all he knew.

"This happened two years and a half ago," said the witness as an excuse for his poor memory.

"The money, like the list, must have dropped through the chimney," remarked Mr. Staunton.

Stevely's testimony yesterday morning differed from that given in the Police Court, and as a reason he said, "he knew more now."

Jerry Collins was the next witness. He told of his part in bringing up London voters in several elections, and of his crooked work as deputy returning officer. He went into details as to the instructions given him by Mulloy and Lewis.

Collins said that he was told by Mulloy that the money was furnished by O'Gorman. Over this point the lawyers had a long argument as to whether it should be admitted as evidence or not. Judge Winchester finally allowed it as evidence.

Collins went on to tell of how money was spent with a lavish hand during the Hyman-Gray elections. He said that in one sub-division $10 bills were put in envelopes in the presence of Chairman Jones and given to him to keep for the bought voters. Wednesday Jones swore he didn't know what was in the envelopes.

He also told of Jones' antipathy to the buying of Gatecliffe, and that Mulloy said it was what he wanted. "Buy him all up," he said.

Here Mr. Staunton endeavored to have one of Mr. Mulloy's statements to the witness put in as evidence. To this Mr. Johnston strenuously objected, and started to talk to Collins.

"Don't try to bulldose him now," interjected Mr. Staunton, "Wait till he's out of my hands."

"The witness is telling a lot more to-day than he ever did before," broke in Mr. Johnston.

The examination of Jerry Collins was continued at the afternoon session. He explained the folding of the ballot to show the deputy returning officer which way the voter had voted.

The scheme was developed in O'Gorman's room at the central committee rooms. Witness told of the instructions given by the defendant, Wiley, to the deputy returning officers. Mulloy had given the witness ten $5 bills the Sunday before the election to buy a man called Hodgins, who wanted his money in advance.

At the election Collins could not carry out the ballot-folding idea, because a man named Price, from St. Thomas, insisted that the ballots be folded lengthwise. The book showing the list of voters who had been bought, with the names of the men who did the buying, Service, Sifton, witness, etc., was identified and put in as an exhibit.

Witness held $1,000 in the bye-election, and $600 in the general election. The men were paid off at Lewis' hotel. It was decided by witness, Lewis and Mulloy to take a rake-off for expenses. Wiley assisted Collins to pay the voters.

After the "boys" were paid off, Collins gave Tom Lewis and Wiley their share of the rake-off. He offered Mulloy $6. Mulloy wouldn't take it. He asked witness: "Did them dirty rats take the money? I won't." Sifton gave witness $250.

LITTLE LINDSAY GIRL ABDUCTED BY MONTREAL WOMAN SUPPOSED TO BE MOTHER WHO GAVE HER UP

Dorothy Marion Taken Away From Lindsay School Yesterday—Local Police on Look Out But Find no Trace of The Abductress

ADOPTED MOTHER HERE

Woman Registered As Mrs. L. A. Henry of Montreal—Enticed the Child With Promises of Candy And Nice Things

Yesterday afternoon the local police were notified by 'phone from Lindsay to watch the trains for a woman with a child which had been abducted from its adoptive mother, Mrs. J. B. Marion, of Lindsay. Acting on this message, the police were at the station when every train came through, but failed to detect anyone who looked like the party wanted in Lindsay. At 9 o'clock Mrs. Marion herself arrived from Lindsay in the hope that she might be able to get some trace of the missing child here, but her efforts were fruitless as the police were unable to give her any information in the matter, as it was evident that the abductress, who is supposed to be the real mother of the child, had not passed through Peterborough. Mrs. Marion was distracted over the loss of the little girl, but the police here were unable to help her any in the matter. She spent the night at the Snowden House and left this morning for Port Hope, where she hopes to get some information of the child's whereabouts.

A despatch from Lindsay has the following to say of the abduction, which has caused a sensation in Lindsay:

This morning little Dorothy Marion, daughter of Mr. J B Marion, went as usual to school at 9 o'clock with a little girl friend. At recess at 10.30 a woman walked up to the school, and called her aside, and talk ed with her. Dorothy was seen to cry, and one of the children overheard the woman telling her, "I'm your mother, and if you come with me I'll give you all sorts of candies and nice things, and you'll have a fine time all the time." Dorothy went back into school at 11 o'clock, but when the noon hour came the woman was waiting outside the school with a cab not very far off. The child and woman got in and drove off immediately.

A Vacant Chair

When the child did not turn up for dinner her foster mother started inquiries, and almost immediately learned the truth. The police were notified, and it was learned from the cab driver that the pair had left on the 12, train. Mrs. Marion at once telephoned to Blackwater for the woman's arrest, but was just two minutes late, Uxbridge was next tried, but at the time of going to press it was not learned whether or not the arrest was effected.

Dorothy is a bright little auburn-haired girl about 7 years old. She is tall for her age, and has pretty blue eyes. The women, who is registered at the Simpson House as Mrs. L A Conroy, of Montreal, is stout and not very tall, but good looking. Her hair is the same colour as Dorothy's. Her dress was black with a long drab jacket. Dorothy is the adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J B Marion, and it is suppested that Mrs. L A Conroy, as she signs herself, is the mother who once gave her up.

Lindsay, Nov. 22. — Special. — The police at Uxbridge attempted to arrest the vanishing woman with the child. Conductor Thompson, who was on board the train, and several of the passengers, sympathized with her and prevented the police officer from doing his duty.

The woman escaped from Agincourt across to the C. P. R., and took the train towards Montreal. Efforts are being made to cause her arrest.

Thompson, the conductor, who resides here, has got into difficulty. A warrant was issued for his arrest which has already been executed and he will be tried in Uxbridge for preventing the police from doing their duty.

PAPER MONEY GERMS CAUSE THE DEATH OF A NEW YORK FINANCIER

New York, Nov. 22.—Myxedema, a rare disease, which was brought on in his case by continual contact with paper money, caused the death on Wednesday night of Edward H. Hall, a life long resident of New York. Twenty years spent in counting currency infected Mr. Hall with the deadly germs that lurk in the ordinary bank note and for ten years prior to his death he had been a sufferer from the strange malady that baffled medical skill. Mr. Hall was 56 years old.

According to his son, it was Mr. Hall's custom to moisten his thumbs in counting bills as cashier for a large drygoods firm, and years of practice so affected his hands that the skin became hard and dry and cracked open in the cold weather. A general thickening of the tissues set in which was followed by complications involving the kidneys and circulatory system, later developing into Bright's disease.

HUDSON, THE PETERBORO' MAN NOW CHARGED WITH BURGLARY

Examiner Special.

Montreal, Nov. 22. — Brown and Hudson, the two men from Berlin and Peterborough respectively, who were arrested at St. Lambert by Detectives Le Huquet, Labarge and Connors on Sunday night after a scuffle in which the detectives exchanged shots with six men who had been encamped near the town, four of the men subsequently escaping, are now up against further trouble.

In addition to being suspected of being safe blowers, and having to face charges of vagrancy and carrying weapons, Brown and Hudson are now further charged with burglary.

To-day J. P. Brown, general dealer and W. H. Lefebvre, hotelkeeper, both of Saint Chrysostome, lodged complaints against Brown and Hudson, charging them with burglarizing their residences early on Friday morning last.

Mr. Brown's place was broken into by the rear window, the cash register was cleaned of $5, and three suits of clothes, two pairs of shoes and a watch were also carried off.

The general dealer appeared at headquarters and identified upon Hudson a gray coat and vest, part of a suit which he had had in his store, and of which only the trousers had been left by the burglars. Hudson was also wearing a pair of shoes, brand new, size eight, that correspond in size and stock number to a pair that had been taken from a box in the store. Hudson declares that he bought the coat and vest and shoes.

Mr. Lefebvre's hotel was broken into the same morning also by the rear window. A tobacco pouch, $45 in cash, a watch with a gold-filled case and two sealed bottles of whisky were carried away.

Brown, the elder of the two men arrested at St. Lambert, when arrested had the tobacco pouch, an old and primitive favourite with the hotelkeeper, in his pocket, when taken into custody.

Mr. Lefebvre positively identifies Hudson as a man who bought a drink in his hotel the day before the burglary. At that time Hudson is said to have been with a friend. Mr. Lefebvre cannot identify Brown as the friend, but the detectives believe that doubtless one of the four men who escaped at St. Lambert was with Hudson when he paid the treat.

A NEW INDUSTRY GOES TO THE CAPITAL OF DUMMER

Examiner Special.

Warsaw, Nov. 22.—This village is to have a new industry. In the near future Warsaw will have a modern planing mill for dressing lumber, which will require a large number of labourers, and which will be an important industry for the village. The new sawmill will be erected on the property belonging to Mr. Jno. Payne, who resides a few hundred yards north of here, the site chosen being the five acres of land bordering on the pond and will be an excellent location for such a factory.

The promoter of the scheme is Mr. A. Selkirk, father of Mrs. (Dr.) Munro, of Warsaw, and the man who is interested in the Selkirk Mine near Apsley. Mr. Selkirk already owns the sawmill machinery which is now being brought here to be installed. A large quantity of lumber is in the village ready to be manufactured as soon as the machinery is put in position. The dressing of lumber and the planing of material will be the important work to be carried on in the new establishment.

COMMITTEES APPOINTED FOR THE PRIMARY WORK ON NEW CHURCH

The proposed new church for the Methodist people, in the south end of the city, met with hearty approval by the large number of those interested in the project, who gathered at the King Edward school last night to discuss the question. Everyone was of the opinion that a new church was greatly needed, and a resolution was passed approving of the proposal and promising it their loyal support.

The first business was the discussion of a site, and some very suitable were mentioned. A committee, composed of Messrs. Wilson, Stabler and Brown was appointed to secure options on properties which would serve as sites, and when the report is returned at a subsequent meeting the most favourable will likely be chosen.

The architecture of the new church will also receive careful attention and a committee was selected to consider the style of the church and other things in connection with its erection. The following are on the committee: Rev. H. M. Manning, Rev. E. A. Pearson and Messrs Cressman, Dumble, Robertson and Ackerman.

Before the meeting was adjourned it was decided to increase the number of those who comprise the committee representing the other Methodist churches in the city, in the new proposal. The following were therefore added: Messrs. Hicks, Robertson, Dunford, Wilson, Mann and Saunders.

OGEMAH PASSED THROUGH LOVESICK LOCK 164 TIMES

Mr. Wm. McFarlane, lockmaster and caretaker of the dam at Lovesick was in town to-day on his way to Bobcaygeon where he will spend the winter.

Mr. McFarlane has just finished the busiest season in connection with the Lovesick Lock. The detailed account of the traffic through his lock will, along with other reports, be given out from the superintendent's office in the course of a few days. However, Mr. McFarlane states that this season's lockages totalled more than the previous year, and that the steamer Ogemah, passed through Lovesick Lock 164 times.

Considerable repairs were done to Lovesick dam this autumn. The dam was rebuilt from the water line up, the old timber in the piers was taken out and replaced with new timber. The dam is now as good as ever. An excellent job has been done.

HATS MAY BE WORN AT THE THEATRES IF THE WOMEN DESIRE

Montreal, Nov. 22. — That Canadian theatre managements have no right under the general law to require patrons, either men or women, to remove their hats, is the gist of the opinion of Judge Piche, given in the police court to-day in connection with a charge of assault laid against the constable of a moving picture theatre by Miss Robertine Barry, a well known authoress, who was ejected from the National Theatre because she refused to remove her hat. Judge Piche said the only remedy for theatrical managers was to secure passage of a bylaw by the city council making it an offense to wear a hat in a theatre.

MAN OF A HUNDRED YEARS OF AGE PASSES AWAY AT HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE

Joseph Cadotte Was a Century Old at His Death And of French Descent

OLDEST IN PETERBOROUGH

There are few citizens of Peterborough who know that for the past two or three years a man of a hundred years of age lived within the city limits. Death, however, has revealed this to the public. On Wednesday evening at the House of Providence there passed away Joseph Cadotte, a century old, apart from all his relations, though in the midst of kind friends.

A whole century has passed since this aged man was born, but none know anything of the pleasures or trials of his lengthy life. Cadotte was of French descent and it is supposed that he came to Peterborough from the Lower Provinces about two or three years ago. Whether he was born there or in France is not known as he was a man more reticent than the ordinary.

The deceased had been ill for over a year and had been an inmate of the House of Providence for over two years.

The funeral took place this morning to St. Peter's cemetery.

The Proposed New Church

Mr. D. W. Dumble is an energetic advocate of the erection of the new Methodist church in the south end of the city. It is proposed to erect a church in that section of the city and to have it affiliated with the George street Methodist church when an assistant minister will be appointed. A committee was appointed at the meeting held in the King Edward School last night to obtain options on lots so that new developments are soon expected.

DRIVER HURLED FROM SEAT WHEN STREET CAR STRUCK WAGGON

A farmer named Dunbar who lives about seven miles from Peterborough on the Lakefield road, had a narrow escape from serious injury or death in an accident to-day. He was struck by a street car at the corner of Simcoe and George streets and thrown from his wagon into the middle of the street, and his team of horses broke into flight and ran away with part of the wagon.

Mr. Dunbar was driving east on Simcoe street at ten minutes after one, o'clock with a spirited team hitched to a wood-rack. Apparently he did not see or hear the car which was going north. He drove on across the street and noticed the car only when it was too late. His horses were over the tracks in safety, but the wagon was struck fairly in the middle and turned up on one side besides being thrown towards the Ormond and Walsh corner. Mr. Dunbar was hurled from his seat and fell on his back in the muddy street.

The Runaway

The horses which had been badly frightened by the car began to run away with the wagon, but minus the reach which the car had detached in the collision. The animals dashed east on Simcoe street, and on the way the reach or coupling between the front and rear axles snapped and the horses had then only the front wheels. Coming to Queen street they turned north, but were stopped by several boys before they had gone further.

Driver Thankful

Although Mr. Dunbar suffered a severe shaking up from his fall after a flight through the air, still he was thankful that it was not worse. His horses were uninjured the only real damage being the broken reach.

LAKEFIELD FIRM MISS HORSE AND BUGGY

Two Men Hire Buggy, but Have Not Returned—Seen Towards Peterboro'

About 9.30 o'clock this morning two rough-looking men hired a rig from a livery firm in Lakefield. They told the proprietor that they were only going for a short drive and would be back in an hour.

The outfit has not been returned yet and the firm fear that the horse and buggy have been stolen. A farmer driving into the village noticed those two men and claims that they were lashing the horse and driving at a fast rate. It is believed that the couple were making towards Peterborough.

Liverpool, Nov. 22. — The Cunarder Lusitania arrived to-day, making a new record for the eastern trip from New York. Time of voyage, 4 days, 22 hours, 50 minutes. A remarkable showing in view of the heavy gales she encountered.

ROMAINE STREET SEWER INQUIRY SHOWS THAT CONDITIONS THERE ARE DECIDEDLY NOT RIGHT

Committee of Whole Hold a Four Hour Session to Investigate The Matter — Many Joints Found Pulled Apart

MUCH EVIDENCE HEARD

Engineer And Foreman Were Both Before The Committee—Were Conditions Such as to Prevent Good Work Being Done?

That out of thirty-five joints in the pipe inspected, nearly all were defective, and that three of them were totally disconnected.

That in opening twenty-eight feet of sewer it was necessary to put in a piece of pipe fifteen inches long to fill up the gaps in the sewer.

That the foreman, and the pipe layer under him, as well as Mr. Evans, state that the conditions were such as to prevent good work from being done.

That the city engineer states that he thought the work could be done in a satisfactory manner, until the last section had been reached, and that he had decided to take chances in the matter, because the Board of Works and the Board of Education were urging upon him the necessity of completing the work at once.

That the reason the mouth of the Romaine street sewer is below the level of the water in the Lock street sewer, his because the engineer had to take his choice of two evils, as by altering the mouth of the sewer he would have had to reduce the grade, and that he was placed in such a position because the King Edward school was practically built when he began work on the sewer.

That reports received from the engineer during the summer indicated that at that time he thought the sewer was all right.

That the pipes were pulled apart by the drawing through of a plug, and that this was not noticed at the time.

That the men doing the work had to contend for the greater part of the time with at least seven inches of water, which made it difficult to make good connections.

That the pipe layer made no complaint to the foreman about the conditions, or lack of appliances, nor did the foreman lay the matter before the engineer.

These were the salient features of the evidence heard at the special meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night, for the purpose of investigating the conditions of the Romaine street sewer, and the conditions under which it was built. The matter was gone into at considerable length, and the Street Commissioner, Harry Evans, the City Engineer, Foreman White, Louis Anthony, the man who laid the pipe, and who was dismissed by the Board of Works last week, and J. Cupile, who took his place, and is now engaged in relaying the Aylmer street section, were all heard in regard to the matter. The result seemed to be that there was a diversity of opinion between Mr. Hay and the other witnesses. The latter gave it as their opinion that the conditions were such as to prevent good work from being done, while the Engineer stated that he was of the opinion that although the conditions were not favourable, that satisfactory work could be carried out.

After hearing the evidence the opinion was vented by several members of the council that the City Engineer and the Foreman were as much to blame in the matter as was pipelayer, and that they had been negligent in their duty. Some wanted to go so far as to dismiss both Mr. Hay and Mr. White, but that was not entertained seriously, at least until more complete information as to the condition of the whole sewer is at hand.

The course decided upon by the council was to allow the work of relaying pipes, which is being done now, to continue under the supervision of Mr. Evans and Mr. White, until the Aylmer street section has been completed. This was ordered to be done by the Board of Works last week, and the council upheld them in the matter, although a number of members thought that two inspectors were not needed, and that, in view of this, Mr. White's services should be dispensed with.

The Aylmer street section of the sewer is being opened out, and the pipes relaid properly where ever it is found necessary.

The members of the council present were the Mayor, Ald. Stevenson, Phelan, Tovey, Bradburn, Leary, Morrow, Morgan, McIntyre, Wilson, Elliott, and Duncan.

Several ratepayers from the south end, who are interested in the question, were on hand to hear the discussion but the Mayor informed them that it was not customary to have any one but the members of the council, and the press, present, and accordingly they withdrew.

Mr. Hay who was present when the meeting was called, was also asked to retire while the matter was be-

BAD QUARTERS ARE IN CIRCULATION

The counterfeit quarter-dollar pieces are still on the move in the city. Yesterday a George street merchant was the victim, securing a piece of money which looked very much like a 25-cent piece, and which sounded much like one. However, the composition was found to be of little value, and could be easily broken in two with the fingers. The citizens who handle coin every day might save money by watching their change.

AN ORONO WALKER OUT FOR A JAUNT

There is a Dark Horse in That Village—Practises in the Byways

Orono, Nov. 22. — The pedestrian fame is not all going to our rivals, Toronto, Peterborough and Port Hope, etc., on account of their comparative much talking to our silence. But we might just as well give the outside world notice that we have a walker destined to achieve Marathonian fame with whom all those one reads about in the sporting columns of our big dailies must reckon sooner or later. His trial trips, or frequent jaunts for exercise, have been so far confined to those across the country in the direction of Garden Hill thus keeping from the front as much as possible, which accounts for his lack of notoriety up to the present.

CENTRAL Y.M.C.A. MAN TO COME

Will Take Part in Special Three Mile Race in Big Athletic Meet

President Best of the Y. M. C. A. Harriers received word this morning from the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, to the effect that one of the club's best men would be on hand for the big athletic meet to be held in the Brock street rink on December 3, and that he would be accompanied by Mr. Fred. Smith, the assistant physical director. The Central man will take part in the special three-mile race, in which there will be entries from the Irish-Canadians, The Central and West End Y.M.C.A.'s, of Toronto, the Hamilton Y.M.C.A. and the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Harriers. The meet promises to be one of the greatest athletic events in the history of Peterborough and will no doubt be attended by an enormous crowd.

NEW PROPRIETOR FOR ROYAL HOTEL

Mr. Flaherty Succeeds Mr. Kelly—Case Settled Out of Court

The case of Clunan versus Kelly and Flaherty, which was to have been heard by Mr. Justice Mabee at the autumn sittings of the High Court of Justice yesterday, was settled out of court. The case concerned the Royal Hotel, of which Mr. Kelly was the proprietor. He has been succeeded by Mr. Flaherty, and the agreement made was apparently satisfactory to all parties concerned.

A LONG LIFE

How to Conserve Energy and Prolong Life

The time comes to everyone when the life forces begin to fail. It is a little harder to climb a hill or walk up stairs. Exercise is taken less vigourously or abandoned, and we feel that the end of active service is drawing near.

It is more than probable that we have been over-driving the machine of the body which will give out like any machine if over-taxed, and we should immediately take steps to change the gear, build up the strength and restore the life forces. To this end nothing equals our delicious cod liver oil and iron preparation, Vinol, which is far superior to other tonics and cod liver preparations because it is made by a scientific, extractive, concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron all the medicinal, healing, body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil.

As a body-builder and strength creator for old people, delicate children, weak, run-down persons, after sickness, and for chronic coughs, colds, bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles, Vinol is unexcelled.

REPRESENTATIVES AND REPRESENTED

Representative institutions do not receive justice nor achieve the largest measure of their usefulness by reason of the failure of elected representatives to discharge their full responsibility towards those whom they assume to represent. Representative institutions depend for their fullest success upon an enlightened electorate, and the latter should look to those whom they select to keep them informed at first hand of what is done in parliament or legislature. In Great Britain the electorate are regarded as the best informed of any civilized country. This fact is due to the practice of British representative parliamentarians delivering annual addresses to their constituents and the general public, in which these are given the most authentic political information at first hand. The consequence is that years of this practice have resulted in a well-informed electorate, and the result is seen in the generally high character of British members of Parliament. This practice is not at all common in Canada; in fact, it is an exception. At one time a West Peterborough representative made it a practice to deliver a series of annual addresses explaining in detail the legislation of the past session. Such a concession to the right of the electors to be taken into the confidence of their representatives must increase the popularity and usefulness of the latter. Hon. Sidney Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, in the series of addresses he is delivering, or has delivered, is acting similarly. Apart from the educative effect of these addresses, the importance of the adjustment of the attitude and relations of members to constituents, and vice versa, is emphasized, and conditions created making for the best results. It shows the proper attitude on the part of a member to recognize his responsibility, and the right of the electors to be given an accounting. Too frequently representatives assume an attitude of hostility, or if not of hostility, resentment, in relation to their constituents. This is most to be noted in smaller circles. For instance, an aldermanic representative is inclined to characterize the natural desire, and right, of a ratepayer to comment upon the action of a member of a council, whom he has created, and who spends his money, as "knocking," or faultfinding. This is an improper feeling to harbour, or manifest. The more a member of a council takes the ratepayers into his confidence, and consults and courts their good opinion, the more likely he is to take a course the least open to objection, or criticism; but the member of a council, who takes a high and mighty attitude, resents criticism, and deprecates inquiry, lays himself open to the reproach, or, at least, suspicion, of having performed his duties inefficiently, or improperly. When ratepayers see the money they contribute, wasted—expended in a way to fail to provide the public conveniences, for whose provision money is theoretically contributed, they have a right to complain. Refuge is sometimes taken in the argument that councillors or aldermen receive nothing for their services. That may be the case, but the fact is that the responsibility was accepted, and, not only accepted, but, in many cases, eagerly sought and struggled for, with a full knowledge of the conditions, and the representative is in honour bound to recognize the duty of honourable observance of the responsibility he assumed, and undertook to discharge.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. George E. Foster is said to have made a stirring speech at Lindsay on Wednesday night. It would, remarks the Toronto Star, have to be something out of the ordinary to stir Lindsay, accustomed, as it is, to the trumpet tones of Colonel Sam Hughes.

The Galt Reporter says: "Editor Sawle of Preston, captured an umbrella in a drawing at the Roman Catholic Bazaar, at Preston, on Saturday. Here's one editor, at all events, who is putting away something for a rainy day." As the conscienceless punster of the Toronto Star might say, he is only a Sawletary example.

Hon. Mr Foster spoke on Wednesday night at Lindsay, and the report says that he "appealed for high standards in public affairs." It's not made clear that he meant a high standard of profit, such as that achieved by a certain trustee who made high profits in land speculation with trust money of widows and orphans, or merely a high standard of political morality — for the "other fellows" to practice.

A despatch states that the quantity of wheat in the elevators of Port Arthur and Fort William, is one hundred per cent. greater than the quantity on hand at this time last year. If the Trent Canal had been in operation lines of laden barges, bearing wheat to Montreal, would now be plying, and helping to relieve the congestion. These conditions justify the activity of the Government in pushing the completion of this important waterway. In an open autumn season, such as this promises to be, an immense movement of wheat marketward could be effected through its medium.

A recent legal decision makes a pair of executors liable for action taken upon the advice of a lawyer in regard to the meaning of a will. The lawyer who gave the advice escaped, and the men who paid for his advice, as a genuine article, and followed it, are punished. Is this fair? We put the screws of the law upon a milkman who sells us milk diluted with water—or sweetened with corpse-embalming fluid. Then, why not make a lawyer liable for the advice he gives, especially when it is bad, both in law and practice. If a printer receives pay for doing a job of printing—and it turns out to be a "job," in a double sense—the printer will refund the price like a man, or make his work good. Is the lawyer, as an embodiment of the law, to be placed above the law?

Itching Eczema's Cause and Cure

THIS DREADFULLY TORTURING AND OBSTINATE DISEASE IS ENTIRELY OVERCOME BY

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Eczema is common to rich and poor, old and young, and is neither contagious nor an indication of uncleanness, as some suppose.

Teething, improper food, indigestion, vaccination, poisoning by clothing or from ivy, etc., are named among the causes.

There is inflammation, redness, heat, swelling, discharge, formation of crust and all the time annoying, troublesome itching and burning, which often becomes so torturing as to be almost unendurable.

This ever present itching is what makes eczema so dreaded, and it is this feature to which Dr. Chase's Ointment gives relief from almost the first application.

Dr. Chase's Ointment is not only delightfully soothing, but is a wonder as a means of healing the skin. It is not long before the raw, itching sores are thoroughly cleansed, the itching subdued and the process of healing begun. Persistent treatment will then bring about a thorough cure.

This great ointment is always beneficial to the skin, making it soft, smooth and velvety, and, besides being the most effective treatment known for the cure of eczema, is useful in every home in a score of ways.

Mr. Hiram Frey, Norwood, Ont., states: "I was troubled for ten years with eczema on one leg. The itching was terrible, and when scratched the blood would come. The doctors could not cure me. Fortunately I heard of Dr. Chase's Ointment and its persistent use has completely cured me. There is now no trace of the disease left.

"My little daughter two years old has also been cured of eczema by Dr. Chase's Ointment. Her face was a mass of sores and we had to bandage her hands to keep her from scratching it. To-day her face is clear of even the scars which the ugly sores made, and she is thoroughly cured. I am glad of an opportunity to let people know what a blessing Dr. Chase's Ointment has proved itself to us."

Mothers use Dr. Chase's Ointment for the chafing and skin troubles of their babies in preference to unsanitary pore-clogging powders; 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

THE NEGRO SENTENCED TO BE HANGED

Will Hang on January 8th For Murder at Toronto.

MAY APPEAL FOR CLEMENCY

But Judge Offers No Hope of Mercy —Says It Was Cruel and Premeditated Murder—Followed His Victim With Unrelenting Ruth— Shot Wandle Down In Cold Blood—Boyd Unconcerned.

Toronto, Nov. 22.—John Boyd was yesterday sentenced by Justice MacMahon "to be hanged by the neck until dead" in the jail yard on Jan. 8 next for the murder by shooting of Edward Wandle on June 11 last. Boyd showed no signs of emotion.

The judge in his charge to the jury emphasized that there had been no justification for the shooting. Wandle was master in his own house and had the right to refuse Boyd permission to go to the kitchen.

"If," said the judge, "in your opinion Boyd went to Wandle's premises with the intention of killing him, or of doing him grievous bodily harm, then you must find him guilty of murder, and it is your duty to bring in a verdict to that effect. It is only in the event of you believing what the prisoner says when he swears that he was attacked by Wandle, and that he fired in self-defence, that a verdict of manslaughter will be justifiable."

The jury, after one and one-half hours deliberation, rendered their verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to mercy, but on what grounds Judge MacMahon could not determine. "For," he said, "in all my experience of twenty years on the bench I have never heard of a more cruel or more premeditated murder."

Addressing the prisoner, he said: "Boyd, a higher law than human has said: 'Who sheds man's blood, by man shall his blood he shed.'

"Did you give your poor victim one moment in which to supplicate the Almighty to have mercy on his soul?

"The law is more merciful than you were. I give you a long delay in which to make your peace with Heaven, and I advise you to use every moment between that time and the day I shall set for your execution in seeking pardon from God."

CHRISTIAN HYMNS BANNED.

Are Barred From New York Public Schools—Many Protests.

New York, Nov. 22.—The Herald yesterday says: Orders that no hymn or carol containing mention of Christ or Christmas shall henceforth be sung in the public schools of New York were given yesterday by the board of education. Following the announcement, protests were uttered in every section of the city.

Emphatic instructions were given by Frank R. Rix, general musical director, to all the teachers under him, that in no circumstances during the approaching Christmastide particularly, are they to permit pupils to sing any song that shall contain any word or phrase which would accentuate religious significance.

That all sectarian references which include the name Christ and mention of Christmas are being eliminated from the song books in use in the public schools of the city was a surprising bit of information which was disclosed with the announcement of Mr. Rix's action of yesterday. All the books are now in the hands of printers for revision.

Mauretania's Great Run.

New York, Nov. 22.—The new Cunard liner Mauretania broke one of her sister ship's, Lusitania, records yesterday, when at noon she completed a day's run of 624 knots. The Lusitania's best record for a day was 616 knots. As the day on a westbound voyage of this ship is about 24 hours and 50 minutes long, the Mauretania is coming west at a rate of about 26 knots.

News of the Mauretania's record day's run was contained both in a news despatch received by the Associated Press, and in a wireless message from Captain Pritchard, adding that the ship was 529 miles east of Sandy Hook at noon yesterday, and that he expected to reach the Hook about 8 a. m. Friday. This would make the Mauretania's time for the passage about five days and two hours, or about seven hours lower than the Lusitania's fastest westbound passage.

DYNAMITE DISASTER.

Seven Men Killed In Explosion at G. T. Pacific Camp.

Kenora, Nov. 22.—The explosion Wednesday on the eastern construction works of the G. T. P. near Dryden, Ont., resulting in the death of seven men and injury to four was caused by a premature explosion at the works. Three holes were being dug, when in some unaccountable manner the man in charge caused the blast which resulted so fatally to himself and the others working around him. The victims were of foreign extraction, several being Austrians. The names cannot be ascertained at present.

Ottawa, Nov. 22.—No particulars have so far been received here as to the killing of seven men employed by the McDougall Construction Co., contractors for a 50-mile section of the G. T. P., by an explosion of dynamite near Dryden. Mr. Alex. McDougall of the company received word here yesterday of the catastrophe, but as yet has been unable to obtain any details or the names of the killed.

BREAKS IN BOTH PARTIES.

Regrouping In Russian Douma Is Now In Progress.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 22.—The anticipated regrouping of the parties in the Lower House of Parliament is already in progress, breaks appearing in both the Octoberist and Conservative ranks, pointing to the ultimate strengthening of the Constitutional Centre against the Extreme Right.

Count Bobrinsky, president of the Constitutional Conservative party, yesterday formally proposed the exclusion from the Conservative Club of all deputies connected with the Reactionary League of the Russian people, because they are opposed to constitutional government. This action was inspired by the attitude of the progressive wing of the Octoberists, who, at a meeting Wednesday night, threatened to bolt the party unless it severed all relations with the Reactionists.

BOMBS SEIZED IN LISBON.

Several Newspapers Suppressed—Intense Excitement In Portugal.

Lisbon, Nov. 22.—The investigation of the explosion of an infernal machine here Nov. 18 when two anarchists who were manufacturing bombs were killed, and a third man arrested has revealed the existence of a far-reaching plot against the dictatorship. Over seven hundred bombs have been seized, and the police have made eighty arrests. The machine, which exploded, was intended for use in the Sansarles Threatre here.

Popular excitement is growing as a result of the revelations, the censorship is most strict, and several newspapers have been entirely suppressed.

Airship Appropriation.

Berlin, Nov. 22.—It was announced yesterday that the Imperial Government will ask for a supplementary credit of $100,000 for the construction of a new airship, which Count Von Zeppelin has built in the greatest haste in order to have it ready to begin experimenting in the first favorable weather next summer.

This amount is in addition to the $400,000 collected in the budget of the Interior Department. Paymept of the latter sum will depend upon results attained with the new airship. It is intended to, in part, remunerate Von Zepphelin for the expenditure of his private fortune on airship experiments.

Whole Family Cremated.

Marietta, Ohio, Nov. 22.—Edgar Grubb, his wife and one-year-old baby, were cremated in their home near Beverley yesterday. It was reported that the family had been murdered, and to cover up the crime the home was fired.

ARCHBISHOP'S APPEAL TO DIOCESE

An Especial Effort To Be Made To Collect Funds

His Grace the Archbishop of Toronto has issued a letter to be read in all churches in the diocese on the first Sunday after Epiphany, January 12, 1908. It reviews the work of the Church of England generally in the foreign mission field, and also points out the triumphs of the present day, showing the great growth of Christian missions in different foreign countries, including India and Ungava especially. It also speaks of the wonderful progress of the last decade in Corea, Japan and China.

The Archbishop urges all communicants to help in the cause of foreign missions and urges a house to house canvass for subscriptions.

The Board of Management o fthe Missionary Society of the Church of England in Canada has passed a resolution that in future Epiphany and Ascension appeals will be made as well as house to house canvasses.

The New York Stock Market

(Furnished by J. R. Heintz & Co.)

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Wheat opened about 1-2 cent lower this morning. December liquidation being the principal feature. The general news is bullish, but the financial situation and approach of delivery day prevents purchases.

On the decline this morning there was considerable covering and prices advanced a cent. When the offerings were so large and no support, every minute seemed to bring a fresh wave of liquidation.

December sold down to 89 7-8; May 99 1-8; July 94 3-4.

Clearances 562,000. Primary receipts 787,000 ,year ago 814,000.

Market closed from 7-8 to 1 3-8 under last night.

Corn falledf to show any strength; there was heavy liquidation by the large interests each corn heavy. Receipts 223 cars.

Like wheat we cannot look for much improvement until commercial conditions mend. On any material break would buy May.

Market weak at close 1 1-4 to 2 3/4 below last night.

Oats firm at start, but the heavy selling by the prime long caused 1 3-8 cent drop in prices.

Receipts 116 cars. Market off 7-8 to 1 3-8 from last night.

Provisions weak, packers selling whole list. The only buying was by local shorts, 21,000 hogs, 5 .o 10 cents lower.

Market looks rather sick, but we cannot advise sales.

NOTABLE MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Of Special Value to Many People Here in Peterborough

One of the most notable discoverks and one that undoubtedly appeals more than anything else to many people here in Peterborough is the combination of stomach remedies in the Mi-o-na treatment. This prescription has worked wonders, and there is now no excuse for anyone suffering with indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts specifically upon the muscles of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten. It also increases the flow of gastric jouices, thus getting from the food the nourishment that is necessary for health and energy.

The symptoms of indigestion are numerous, such as distress after eating, flatulence, heart-burn, sick headaches, dizziness and irritability. These are all dispelled by a few doses of Mi-o-na when the trouble is recent, but just as surely in long-standing and chronic cases if the treatment is followed for a reasonable length of time.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by Wm. Madill under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it should fail to cure.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder,

LAPLAND FACES FAMINE.

Milch Cows Being Slaughtered to Keep People From Death.

Stockholm, Sweden, Nov. 22.—Famine conditions are threatening the Vesternerland and Vesterbotten districts of Lapland, where deluging rains have had disastrous effects on the crops. Official advices say that the threshed barley only weighs 54 kilograms per barrel, instead of the usual 112, that bread baked therefrom is black and almost worthless as food, and that the milch cows must be slaughtered to prevent the people from dying of starvation.

The Swedish Cabinet has petitioned to remove the duty on grain, and taken other steps in order to alleviate the threatened starvation.

Lapland is an extensive territory, in the northern part of Europe, shared between Russia, Sweden and Norway.

Vesternesland borders on the Gulf of Bothnia, and has a population of about 240,000. Vesterbotten extends from the Gulf of Bothnia to the border of Norway. The population numbers about 145,000. Both are within the Swedish sphere.

HELD-UP OPERATOR.

Jackson Goes For Trial on Charge of Daring Robbery.

Woodstock, Nov. 22.—Arthur Jackson received a preliminary hearing yesterday morning before Police Magistrate Ball. He was represented by John Soper McKay, while R. N. Ball, K. C., prosecuted.

The charges were that of holding-up Operator Walcott and stealing a revolver. Evidence of both charges worked in well and the quadroon will come up before a jury at the sittings of the County Court next month.

It was disclosed who Jackson's alleged partner in the hold-up was—Alexander Green, colored, who came in on a freight from London a few days prior to the committing of the crime.

Detective Robson of the C. P. R. and Welch of the Canadian Detective Agency, Toronto, are in the city. The actions of Green and Jackson have been traced up till 12.30 on the night of Oct. 9 and the man and [illegible] that bound Walcott have been sworn to as having been seen on the two men previous to the committing of the crime.

A BENIGHTED JUDGE.

Says Women Need Not Remove Hats In the Theatre.

Montreal, Nov. 22.—That Canadian theatre managements have no right under the general law to require patrons, either men or women, to remove their hats, is the gist of the opinion of Judge Piche, given in police court yesterday. Judgment was given in connection with a charge of assault laid against the constable of a moving picture theatre by Miss Robertine Barry, a well-known authoress, who was ejected from the National Theatre because she refused to remove her hat. Judge Piche said the only remedy for theatrical managers was to secure passage of a by-law by the city council making it an offence to wear a hat in theatres.

MOTHER'S AWFUL CRIME.

Killed Herself and Sons While Husband Was Away.

Newton, Mass., Nov. 22.—Mrs. Jessie T. Hedges, wife of William T. Hedges, killed herself and her two sons, William, aged 11, and Butler, aged 8, by asphyxiation, at her home in Newtonville some time during the night. All cracks in the doors and windows had been plugged and the gas turned on. Mr. Hedges was away on a business trip.

Mrs. Hartje Vindicated.

Philadelphia, Nov. 22.—Mrs. Mary Scott Hartje, who was sued for divorce by her husband, E. Augustus Hartje, the Pittsburg millionaire, won a complete victory in the Pennsylvania Superior Court here yesterday, when that tribunal affirmed in its entirety the decision of the Allegheny County Court, which refused to grant Hartje a divorce. The petitions filed by Hartje's attorneys, asking the Superior Court to re-open the case on the ground of newly-discovered evidence were denied. The petitions to re-open the case were based on letters alleged to have been written by Mrs. Hartje and Thomas Madine, the family coachman, who was named as a co-respondent by Hartje.

Two Forgers Sentenced.

Detective Acquitted.

Winnipeg, Nov. 23.—After several hours' deliberation the jury acquitted Detective Geo. Smith yesterday afternoon on the charge of manslaughter. Smith shot and killed Oscar Gans while he was endeavoring to evade arrest.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 21.—Receipts of live stock at the city yards since Tuesday, as reported by the railways, were 151 carloads, composed of 2116 cattle, 2630 hogs, 4253 sheep and lambs, and 120 calves.

Exporters.

There was nothing doing in the export trade excepting for a few bulls, which sold from $3.12½ to $4 per cwt.

Butchers.

George Rowntree, who bought 21 carloads for the Harris Abattoir Company, reports the following prices: A few good cattle at $4.25 to $4.40; fair to good loads, $3.70 to $4.15; some heavy cattle, 1200 to 1300 lbs., at $4.10 to $4.20; good cows, $3.40 to $3.85; light cows, $2.85 to $3.25; common cows and common butchers' cattle, $2.25 to $2.60; canners at 75c to $1.75 per cwt.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report more activity in the stocker and feeder trade this week than for some time, altho prices didn't advance to any extent. The common and medium light stockers are still hard to cash; the farmers don't feel inclined to buy them at any price. Good heavy feeders around 1100 pounds were in demand and sold considerably higher. More of this class would have sold.

Messrs. Murby bought 250 head this week at the following quotations: Best feeders, 1000 to 1100 pounds, at $3.25 to $3.30; best feeders, 900 to 1000 lbs., at $3.20 to $3.25; best stockers, 750 to 800 lbs., at $3.05 to $3; best stockers, 650 to 800 lbs., at $2.75 to $3.75; medium stockers, 600 to 700 lbs., at $3 to $3.25; common stockers, 500 to 700 lbs., at $1.50 to $1.75.

Milkers and Springers.

The number of milkers and springers offered on Wednesday and Thursday was the largest of the year thus far, the result being that prices declined in the medium to good kinds fully $10 per head. The extra choice sold did not suffer so much, but prices were easier all round. During the two days prices ranged from $30 to $60 each, but on Thursday they had to be extra good if they went over $50 each.

Veal Calves.

Trade in veal calves remains about steady at $3 to $6 per cwt.

Sheep and Lambs.

Over 4000 sheep and lambs were on the market during Wednesday and Thursday, which caused prices to be easy all round. Export sheep sold at $3.75 to $4; lambs, $4 to $5.25 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts during the two days were large, 2630. Mr. Harris quotes the market easy at $5.75 for selects; unfinished hogs, $5; with market weak, and prospects lower this coming week.

East Buffalo Cattle Market.

Veals—Receipts, 200 head; slow and steady, $5 to $9.

Hogs—Receipts, 4200 head; fairly active and 10c to 15c lower; heavy and mixed, $5.15 to $5.25; yorkers, $5.10 to $5.25; pigs, $5.20 to $5.30; roughs, $4.80 to $4.85; stags, $4.70 to $5.10.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 2800 head; slow and steady; Canada lambs, $5.25 to $5.60.

Chicago Live Stock.

Sheep—Receipts, estimated at 15,000. Market steady to strong. Sheep, $3.50; lambs, $5.25 to $6; yearlings, $4.25 to $5.10.

Cheese Markets.

A Picture Hint.

A pretty fancy is the use of shadow boxes in the framing of small prints. Photographic views, carefully colored with Japanese paints, are set in boxes one to one and a half inches deep. Some of the prettiest of these are set in gray wood, the tint of weather exposed shingles. The colorings of the photographs are not difficult to learn. The amateur photographer will find this a suggestion for utilizing summer vacation "takes" for the decoration of a special room or for charming and inexpensive Christmas gifts.

ROMAINE STREET SEWER INQUIRY SHOWS THAT CONDITIONS WERE WRONG

ing discussed and he withdrew to the ante-room where the other witnesses were waiting to be heard.

The Mayor in opening the discussion stated that the Board of Works had taken some action in the matter, but as the work was done last year the Board did not think that they were responsible for the trouble and had decided to ask the council to take up the question. He called upon Ald. Duncan to state the position of the Board of Works.

Chairman's Views

Ald Duncan stated that he had visited the sewer several times in the spring and had seen the men under Mr. White pulling chains through the pipes. They did not seem to be doing any good whatever. He (the chairman had wanted to see the sewer opened up, and had expressed that wish, but in June the sewer was opened without the Board of Works being notified. The speaker told Foreman White that he wanted to examine the sewer the next time it was dug up. Two weeks ago the sewer had been opened again but nothing had been said about it to the Board of Works. He had decided to investigate the conditions and found that in the section examined the joints were open, and that there was nothing to keep the sand out. The Board of Education were complaining that the sewer was backing up, and he had decided that it was time to call a halt. It was on this account that the meeting of the whole council had been arranged.

Ald. Phelan thought that the council should have before them the reports made by the engineer during the summer in regard to the sewer. These were produced and read. They stated that the sewer was all right at the time they were written, and one of the reports said that the joints were tight.

The Mayor said that the action of the Board of Works during the season had been to give the City Engineer and the foreman every facility in their work, and to back them up. The opening up of the sewer had developed pretty poor conditions.

Ald. Duncan remarked that Mr. White had asked the City Engineer three times during the summer to stop the work.

The Mayor explained that the City Engineer was supposed to be responsible that the work was done properly.

Ald. Leary criticized the council's appointments in the matter of inspectors. "When the council puts on a man as inspector on sewer work," he asked, 'why do they select a man who does not know the conditions; instead, they take a man out of a foundry, or a carpenter, who doesn't know anything about sewers.".

Mr. Evans' Report.

Street Commissioner Evans, who had been requested by the Board of Works to investigate the sewer, and to make a report, handed in the following:

As requested by you I hereby report that we have opened up Aylmer street sewer from the man hole on Romaine street going toward the school.

We uncovered the pipe for 40 feet and found the joints were not properly cemented. We sealed joints as we went along. Three joints were entirely disconnected; we had to begin to raise and relay the pipes. Those which we uncovered this afternoon we found the joints were very well made.

The above joints being apart the balance of the pipes will have to be patched up and relaid to next manhole. The sewer on Romaine street, which I examined through the manhole, I found clogged, and got the fire hose to flush it out; it is running well at the present time.

Street Commissioner's Views

Mr. Evans was heard in reference to the matter. In answer to a question from Ald Wilson, he said that if the pipes had been properly laid, the connections would not have been broken away by the action of water. It was impossible to cement the pipes all around because they were laid in water. It was hard to get the bement around the pipe when the lower portion was covered by water. A tight joint couldn't be made under these conditions, and the joints were left as they were and the work gone on with.

In answer to Ald. Elliott, he said that he could not say whether or not the sewer could be made right, or whether a new sewer would have to be built. Even if the joints had been made tight it would require occasional flushing to make it work right.

Workmanship not to Blame

Mr. Evans said that he believed the sand was coming in all along the sewer. He said the pipes had come apart, because the man in laying them could not see that the pipes were disconnected by dragging a plug through, because the joints were covered with sand and water. It was not because of poor workmanship, but rather because the conditions were very difficult for doing the work. He thought that the men did the best they could under the circumstances. Out of thirty-five joints he had seen uncovered most of them were defective. The conditions for laying pipe now were better than last year. There was hemp on every joint, but in some cases it had loosened out. The pipes they were laying now he believed would be all right. Some water might get in but not enough to do any harm.

Mr. Cupoli who is now engaged in laying the pipes, was next heard, and told of the way in which the work was being done. He corroborated Mr. Evans' evidence concerning the conditions in which the pipes were found, saying that some of them were totally disconnected.

The City Engineer

The City Engineer was next called in, and the Mayor pointed out that Mr. Hay's reports during the summer had stated that the sewer was all right, and that now it had been discovered in the sixty feet examined that the connections were faulty and that some of the joints were separated altogether.

"Inasmuch as my reports are concerned," remarked Mr. Hay, "my statements were right as far as I could judge them." He had not seen all the joints that were defective, but had seen some of them. The cause of their being in that condition was the drawing of the plug through at the time of construction. It was not noticed at the time, and precautions were taken to prevent the pipes being pulled apart by holding a crow-bar against the pipe. As far as he could judge, the pipes were properly cemented all round. He had always made it a point to see a joint made whenever he was down there. He had seen the greater number of the joints made, as he was there once a day all the time that the sewer was being laid. He had not replied to the Board of Works of last year that the work could not be done.

Ald. Duncan asked the engineer if Mr. White had asked him to stop the work.

Mr. White Discouraged

The engineer replied that Mr. White had been discouraged several times, and he had encouraged him to go on because he knew that the School Board wanted the sewer to reach the King Edward School as soon as possible.

In answer to a question from the Mayor, Mr. Hay said that the reason that the mouth of the Romaine street sewer was under water at Lock street was because he had been forced to choose the lesser of two evils, because he thought it would be better to have the mouth of the sewer under water than to reduce the grade. This had been rendered necessary by the fact that the King Edward School had been practically built before he had begun work on the sewer.

Had to Take Chances

He had been of the opinion that the conditions were all right until they had almost reached the end of the sewer, when he began to have doubts as to whether the pipe-laying could be properly done, but had decided to take chances, because the Board of Education and the Board of Works were clamouring for the sewer to be completed.

Ald. Elliott asked if it was the opinion of the engineer that the city should tear up the sewer and build it again, or whether it would be better to build a new sewer.

Mr. Hay said that a new sewer was out of the question, until a new outfall sewer was constructed.

Foreman Heard

Mr. W. H. White, the foreman of the sewer, was next heard. His explanation of the joints being opened was the same as that given by Mr. Hay, that it was caused by the pulling through of the bag or plug. He said that the cement used was not good. He had been satisfied that the joints were all right, but they had to contend against the difficulty of water without proper appliances. At the time the work was being done the joints were made as well as they could be, but it was impossible to do a proper job.

"I was doubtful about it," remarked Mr. White, "because the water was not getting away. I wanted to shut the work down because we had not the proper things to do it with. To-day it's a picnic to what it was then. If the Board of Works did not see it last year they must have been blind. I asked the engineer two or three times to shut the work down. I did not say that a satisfactory job could not be done, for I thought that the work was going to be satisfactory."

Fifteen Inches of Pipe

Speaking of the disconnected joints the foreman said that it had been done at the time they were being laid. Two joints had pulled apart while they were working. When 28 feet of the sewer had been opened two weeks ago it had been found necessary to put in a piece of pipe fifteen inches in length to fill up the gaps. The piece on Aylmer was the worst section of the whole sewer. He could not say whether he had reported to the city engineer before he mentioned the matter to the chairman of the Board of Works or not. He had not mentioned to the chairman that he had put in a piece of pipe fifteen inches in length.

The Man who Suffered

Louis Anthony, the pipe-layer who was discharged by the Board, said that the pipes were put in right. He gave the same explanation as the others that he had used a bag and that in drawing that through the pipes might have been drawn apart, but it had not been noticed at the time. He had never seen the joints drawn apart, mentioned by Mr. White. He had seven or eight inches of water to contend with all the time, but used to put the cement around the pipes as well as possible.

The Officials Blamed

This concluded the evidence, and a short discussion followed upon the subject of what action the Council should take in the matter. It was agreed that the action of the Board of Works in ordering the sewer to be opened and to have the pipes relaid properly was the only wise thing to do under the circumstances, but there was a difference of opinion as to whether Mr. White's services were needed or not. Mr. Evans is employed at the work now, and the Council desired to keep him there so that he may be able to make a report as to the condition in which he finds the sewer. Some of the members did not think that two inspectors were needed there, and wanted to dispense with Mr. White's services. Ald. Morgan remarked, "It looks foolish to have two inspectors and four men digging," and Ald. Phelan and other members agreed with that statement. It was, however, felt that it would be throwing the whole responsibility of the trouble on Mr. White's shoulders, which the Council did not think was right. Ald. Morgan thought that the engineer and Mr. White were as responsible as the pipe-layer in the matter, and as they had dismissed the latter they should do the same with the foreman and Mr. Hay. Ald. Stevenson remarked that he thought that all three were equally culpable, and that both the city engineer and the foreman had been negligent in the matter.

Finally, Ald. Leary moved, seconded by Ald. Morrow, that the work of opening the sewer and re-laying the pipe continue, as ordered by the Board of Works, with Mr. Evans and Mr. White in charge until the Aylmer street section is completed.

Ald. McIntyre moved in amendment, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that in view of the fact that two inspectors were not needed in the work, that Mr. White's services be dispensed with.

The amendment was defeated, however, and the original motion carried.

Ald. Morrow advanced the opinion that the city should secure the services of one or two experts on sewer construction to investigate the sewer conditions of the city and to give a report on the Romaine street sewer. This was favourably received by the Council, but no action was taken last night.

The session was a lengthy one, it being almost midnight when the city fathers filed out of the committee room.

Splendid Work Accomplished By All Y.M.C.A. Committees

Progress Told of at The Meeting Last Night—A Social Evening Spent—More Games For The Boys

THE BIBLE STUDY CLUBS

A meeting of all the committees of the Y.M.C.A. was held last night in the club room of the Association, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Dr. J. Middleton occupied the chair and in his opening remarks referred to the Junior Department, of which he is the chairman. Rooms down stairs are being fitted up for the boys with new games, and each of the rooms is being overhauled and put in shape. Bible Study Clubs will be organized in the near future, and it is expected that the boys work will boom.

Mr. Bruce Walton rendered a piano solo, and Mr. Charles Coleman a vocal solo, in a pleasing manner.

Mr. J. D. Thornton, chairman of the Religious Work Committee, gave an account of the work of this committee which was quite encouraging. The meetings on Sunday afternoon are continuing in interest and fine programmes are being arranged for future meetings. Messrs. C. E. Sisson and W. Shiner gave good reports for the Educational Department, the Debating Club being especially successful and showing greater interest at each meeting. Their schedule of meetings will probably have to be changed to get in more meetings on account of the growing interest in the club.

Mr. Shiner also reported re the Bible Study Department. It is hoped that more of the men will become interested in this work, and that new classes may be formed.

Mr. H. Cooke gave an encouraging report for the Visiting Committee, and work of the Strangers' Fellowship Club.

Mr. Charles Coleman, chairman of the Social Committee gave an outline of the social events planned for the winter and stated the Social Committee was to be increased to 21 members to make the work of this department larger and more comprehensive.

Mr. G. L. Galley reported for the Physical Committee, which showed the work in this department to be aggressive and encouraging.

Mr. Richard Baker reported favourably for the Membership Committee, and also gave a word or two in the interests of the Harriers' Club.

Others present who spoke were: Messrs. W. S. McKee, Fred Hall, N. Perry, J. Evans, and George Martin.

The secretary, Mr. H. C. Wright, stated he was pleased to see the interest taken in each department by the men on the different committees, and was sure the work was going to grow in every way. Refreshments were then served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

It has been decided by the Social Committee to open the Y. M. C. A. reception room and parlour for an hour on Sunday evening from 8.30 to 9.30 p.m., for an hour of sacred music in which every member, or stranger, or any man is invited to join. Old hymns will be sung, which will be familiar to all.

There was a large Intermediate Class of employed boys in the Gymnasium last night, showing more interest in this department.

"Not a Loafing Place For Corporation Labourers"

Foreman Pakenham's Remark To Street Commissioner In Regard To The Fire Hall—Refused To Allow Sand to be Placed In The Cellar

IT WILL BE INVESTIGATED

A little argument between Foreman Pakenham of the Fire Department, and Street Commissioner Evans, was aired at the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night. Mr. Evans' explanation of the matter was that he had gone down to the fire hall for the purpose of putting a quantity of sand in the cellar for use on the streets in the winter, but that Mr. Pakenham had refused to allow him to place any sand in the fire hall and had stated that "the fire hall was not going to be a loafing place for corporation labourers."

Ald. Bradburn stated that Mr. Pakenham had called upon him as to regard to the matter and had stated that the reason for his refusal had been that the door being open constantly in order that the sand might be reached would have a harmful effect upon the batteries.

The matter was left in the hands of Ald. Bradburn of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Ald. Duncan, of the Board of Works, to settle.

Husband Accused Of Non Support of Wife And Child

Case in Court This Morning—Boy Raises Row in Front of Theatre

IN POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Among the cases in the police court this morning, was that of a man formally charged with vagrancy. A local society, it appears, has had this man in their charge for several months. They helped him to get work, but through physical inability or incapacity, he was unable to hold a position. As a last resort deportation was decided upon. Application was made to Mr. Miller, relief officer, who stated that the only course was to have the man arrested as a vagrant and thereby have him deported.

The man pleaded guilty this morning and His Worship decided to have him imprisoned pending the completion of arrangements for sending him back to England.

For being disorderly and swearing in front of the Grand Opera House Fred Sullivan, a boy of about 16 years of age appeared before the Magistrate. To the charge the boy pleaded guilty.

Disorderly Conduct.

The opera house constable appeared against the boy and told of how he had been begging the price to get in and see "Dangers of a Great City" from the people who passed by the opera house. The lad at last secured the price and made a dive for the door. The constable tried to prevent him from getting in, and was told by the boy that no one could keep him out. The constable said he got stubborn also and refused to let the boy in. This of course caused the row.

The Magistrate rebuked the opera house official for trying to keep a boy out who had a ticket. "I think that you are to blame more than the boy," was His Worship's remark and the latter was allowed to go.

Waste Separators

William McCrea of Toronto, the G.T.R. brakeman who was arrested on Tuesday evening by P. C. Adams, as he was passing through the city on his way to Toronto, appeared in court this morning, on a charge of non-support of his wife and child. Mr. G. Gordon appeared for the husband.

The brakeman told of how his wife had left him alone so many times. The last time he parted with her not to go, but if she did he would not take her back under any circumstances.

The young wife was next on the stand and told a different story. She said after her recent illness she left for her father's home with her child. Upon her return to her own home she was refused admittance by the husband, and now she wanted some support for herself and child.

Mr. Gordon was of the opinion that a separation of the young couple was the only thing to be done, as the husband refuses to live with his wife. He then began to untie a bundle of letters written by the wife, but His Worship decided to continue the case at 4 o'clock, behind closed doors.

WEDDING BELLS.

JAYES-ROBINSON

At Toronto, at 6.30 a.m., on Nov. 20th, a very pretty wedding took place at the Holy Family Church, when Miss Ethel Robinson, daughter of the late Jas. Robinson and Mrs Robinson, was united in marriage to Mr. William Jayes, formerly of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Coyle. The bride was attired in a cream voile with a picture hat to match. She was assisted by Miss May Warrington who was attired in white organdie, with silk trimmings, while Mr. Raymond Robinson, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride, 1160 Queen street, where a wedding breakfast was served. Many costly and handsome presents were received by the bride and groom, a number of which came from the groom's Peterborough friends. Among the gifts received was a cheque presented to the groom by the establishment where Mr. Jayes was employed. Mr and Mrs. Jayes left on the 11.15 train for Buffalo for their honeymoon and on their return they will reside in Parkdale. The bride's travelling suit of grey Indian cloth.

WAS GIVEN JUDGMENT FOR $30

Conclusion of Case Before Justice Mabee Yesterday At High Court

In the case of Fowler v. Green and Robson, which came up before Mr. Justice Mayhew at the High Court of Justice yesterday, the plaintiff, Margaret Fowler, was given judgment for $30 without costs. Mr. F. D. Kerr acted for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. E. Wood for the defendant.

The second case considered was that of Robertson v. Robertson, in which judgment was reserved. In it the plaintiffs, Sarah Jane Robertson and Mary Jane Robertson, are executrixes of the will of the late John Robertson, deceased, and the defendant, Mabel Hannah Robertson, is a widow residing in North Monaghan, and the administratrix of the estate of the late William Henry Robertson, deceased. The plaintiffs alleged that the said John Robertson was the tenant for life of certain lands in South Monaghan and that the said William Henry Robertson leased the land from the former on May 2, 1898, and occupied them until his death in September, 1905. The plaintiffs claimed that at the time of his death William Henry Robertson was indebted to John Robertson in the sum of $2,400. The plaintiffs claimed this sum as arrears of rent due the estate of the late John Robertson, bequeathed the plaintiff by his last will and testament. Hall and Hayes for the plaintiffs. Donnelson, Peck and Kerr for the defendants.

FISHING SAID TO BE GOOD

Lovers of the Sport Say That Lunge And Bass are Biting

A number of lovers of the sport of fishing were talking this morning of prospects at this time of the year, and all of them were certain that the fish bite now as well as ever. In fact, one of them was down the river recently and had a good sport. The lunge and bass are [illegible], and the Indians at Rice Lake said to be making sound of [illegible] catches of the year since the [illegible] has changed.

[illegible] reverted to the [illegible] at this time of the year, and it was said that those which spawn in the spring are as frisky and game as in the summer. One of the men stated that the bass and lunge frequent the shallow places until the winter comes, when they bie themselves to the deep. He was at Bucklorn last week with his son, and the boy, who went out on the ice near the shore, said that he saw many large fish under the ice in a foot or more of water.

Another of the men said that he has seen them come up to the very shore in only a few inches of water, and remain there for hours with the upper fin out of the water. It was suggested that when a fish is an actual trespasser on a man's property an inspector would be powerless to prosecute anyone who caught it.

Splendid Work Accomplished By All Y.M.C.A. Committees

Progress Told of at The Meeting Last Night—A Social Evening Spent—More Games For The Boys

THE BIBLE STUDY CLUBS

A meeting of all the committees of the Y.M.C.A. was held last night in the club room of the Association, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Dr. J. Middleton occupied the chair and in his opening remarks referred to the Junior Department, of which he is the chairman. Rooms down stairs are being fitted up for the boys with new games, and each of the rooms is being overhauled and put in shape. Bible Study Clubs will be organized in the near future, and it is expected that the boys work will boom.

Mr. Bruce Walton rendered a piano solo, and Mr. Charles Coleman a vocal solo, in a pleasing manner.

Mr. J. D. Thornton, chairman of the Religious Work Committee, gave an account of the work of this committee which was quite encouraging. The meetings on Sunday afternoon are continuing in interest and fine programmes are being arranged for future meetings. Messrs. C. E. Sisson and W. Shiner gave good reports for the Educational Department, the Debating Club being especially successful and showing greater interest at each meeting. Their schedule of meetings will probably have to be changed to get in more meetings on account of the growing interest in the club.

Mr. Shiner also reported re the Bible Study Department. It is hoped that more of the men will become interested in this work, and that new classes may be formed.

Mr. H. Cooke gave an encouraging report for the Visiting Committee, and work of the Strangers' Fellowship Club.

Mr. Charles Coleman, chairman of the Social Committee gave an outline of the social events planned for the winter and stated the Social Committee was to be increased to 21 members to make the work of this department larger and more comprehensive.

Mr. G. L. Galley reported for the Physical Committee, which showed the work in this department to be aggressive and encouraging.

Mr. Richard Baker reported favourably for the Membership Committee, and aslo gave a word or two in the interests of the Harriers' Club.

Others present who spoke were: Messrs. W. S. McKee, Fred Hall, N. Perry, J. Evans, and George Martin.

The secretary, Mr. H. C. Wright, stated he was pleased to see the interest taken in each department by the men on the different committees, and was sure the work was going to grow in every way. Refreshments were then served and a social half-hour enjoyed.

It has been decided by the Social Committee to open the Y. M. C. A. reception room and parlour for an hour on Sunday evening from 8.30 to 9.30 p.m., for an hour of sacred music in which every member, or stranger, or any man, is invited to join. Old hymns will be sung, which will be familiar to all.

There was a large Intermediate Class of employed boys in the Gymnasium last night, showing more interest in this department.

"Not a Loafing Place For Corporation Labourers"

Foreman Pakenham's Remark To Street Commissioner in Regard To The Fire Hall—Refused To Allow Sand to be Placed in The Cellar

IT WILL BE INVESTIGATED

A little argument between Foreman Pakenham of the Fire Department, and Street Commissioner Evans, was aired at the meeting of the Committee of the Whole Council last night. Mr. Evans' explanation of the matter was that he had gone down to the fire hall for the purpose of putting a quantity of sand in the cellar for use on the streets in the winter, but that Mr. Pakenham had refused to allow him to place any sand in the fire hall and had stated that "the fire hall was not going to be a loafing place for corporation labourers."

Ald. Bradburn stated that Mr. Pakenham had called upon him as in regard to the matter and had stated that the reason for his refusal had been that the door being open constantly in order that the sand might be reached would have a harmful effect upon the batteries.

The matter was left in the hands of Ald. Bradburn of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, and Ald. Duncan, of the Board of Works, to settle.

Husband Accused Of Non Support of Wife And Child

IN POLICE COURT TO-DAY

Among the cases in the police court this morning, was that of a man formally charged with vagrancy. A local society, it appears, has had this man in their charge for several months. They helped him to get work, but through physical inability or incapacity, he was unable to hold a position. As a last resort deportation was decided upon. Application was made to Mr. Miller, relief officer, who stated that the only course was to have the man arrested as a vagrant and thereby have him deported.

The man pleaded guilty this morning and His Worship decided to have him imprisoned pending the completion of arrangements for sending him back to England.

For being disorderly and swearing in front of the Grand Opera House Fred Sullivan, a boy of about 16 years of age appeared before the Magistrate. To the charge the boy pleaded guilty.

Disorderly Conduct.

The opera house constable appeared against the boy and told of how he had been begging the price to get in and see "Dangers of a Great City" from the people who passed by the opera house. The lad at last secured the price and made a dive for the door. The constable tried to prevent him from getting in, and was told by the boy that no one could keep him out. The constable said he got stubborn also and refused to let the boy in. This of course caused the row.

The Magistrate rebuked the opera house official for trying to keep a boy out who had a ticket. "I think that you are to blame more than the boy," was His Worship's remark and the latter was allowed to go.

Wants Separation

William McCrea of Toronto, the G.T.R. brakeman who was arrested on Tuesday evening by P. C. Adams, as he was passing through the city on his way to Toronto, appeared in court this morning, on a charge of non-support of his wife and child. Mr. G. Gordon appeared for the husband.

The brakeman told of how his wife had left him alone so many times. The last time he pleaded with her not to go, but if she did he would not take her back under any circumstances.

The young wife was next on the stand and told a different story. She said after her recent illness she left for her father's home with her child. Upon her return to her own home she was refused admittance by the husband, and now she wanted some support for herself and child.

Mr. Gordon was of the opinion that a separation of the young couple was the only thing to be done, as the husband refuses to live with his wife. He then began to untie a bundle of letters written by the wife, but His Worship decided to continue the case at 4 o'clock, behind closed doors.

WEDDING BELLS.

JAYES-ROBINSON

At Toronto, at 6.30 a.m., on Nov. 20th, a very pretty wedding took place at the Holy Family Church, when Miss Ethel Robinson, daughter of the late Jas. Robinson and Mrs Robinson, was united in marriage to Mr. William Jayes, formerly of Peterborough. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Coyle. The bride was attired in a cream voile with a picture hat to match. She was assisted by Miss May Warrington who was attired in white organdie, with silk trimmings, while Mr. Raymond Robinson, brother of the bride, supported the groom.

After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride, 1160 Queen street, where a wedding breakfast was served. Many costly and handsome presents were received by the bride and groom, a number of which came from the groom's Peterborough friends. Among the gifts received was a cheque presented to the groom by the establishment where Mr. Jayes was employed. Mr and Mrs. Jayes left on the 11.15 train for Buffalo for their honeymoon and on their return they will reside in Parkdale. The bride's travelling suit of grey ladies cloth.

WAS GIVEN JUDGMENT FOR $30

Conclusion of Case Before Justice Mabee Yesterday At High Court

In the case of Fowler v. Green and Robson, which came up before Mr. Justice Maybee at the High Court of Justice yesterday, the plaintiff, Margaret Fowler, was given judgment for $30 without costs. Mr. F. D. Kerr acted for the plaintiff, and Mr. R. E. Wood for the defence.

The second case considered was that of Robertson v. Robertson, in which judgment was reserved. In it the plaintiffs, Sarah Jane Robertson and Mary Jane Robertson, are executrices of the will of the late John Robertson, deceased, and the defendant, Mabel Hannah Robertson, is a widow residing in North Monaghan, and the administratrix of the estate of the late William Henry Robertson, deceased. The plaintiffs alleged that the said John Robertson was the tenant for life of certain lands in South Monaghan and that the said William Henry Robertson leased the land from the former on May 2, 1898, and occupied them until his death in September, 1906. MUST PLAY MONTREAL TO WIPE OUT DEBTS UNLESS CITIZENS WILL SUBSCRIBE THE AMOUNT

Position of The Peterboro' Rugby Club is Explained to The Public —Have Liabilities of $170 To Meet

A FINANCIAL FAILURE

During the past few days the members and executive of the Peterborough Rugby Club have been subject to some severe criticism by the sport-loving citizens of Peterborough on account of the rumour that they were to play the professional Montreal team for the Canadian championship. The following is an explanation of the situation:

Sporting Editor Examiner,—

On Wednesday last we were ordered by the Canadian Rugby Football Union, the governing body for rugby football in Canada, to play Ottawa College, the winners of the Intercollegiate Union, the victors in this game. Ottawa defaulted to Peterborough, and our club is now brought face to face with the question—shall we play Montreal and be professionalized, or shall we refuse and stay amateur?

The members of the Peterborough Rugby Club have no desire to turn professional, but find themselves in a situation out of which there are only two avenues of escape. This season has been a horrible failure financially for the club. There was only one home game from which any money was realized, that with the Victorias, and the amount taken then over expenses was only $15. The game with Westmount was handled by the Ontario Rugby Football Union, and they took all the money to pay Westmount's expenses, Peterborough receiving not a single cent. Membership tickets were issued, but only some $60 or $70 was realized from this source.

The club now finds itself with liabilities amounting $170.00 and assets of only $30.00? What are we to do? We are in honour bound to pay our debts and must find the money. The game with Montreal would secure the necessary funds, but leave the players professionals. The only other way is for the citizens of Peterborough to subscribe the amount. We think the Club deserves this at the hands of the people. They have carried the name of Peterborough to victory in three out of the four games played and brought a Senior O.R.F.U. Championship to this city.

The members of the team are in the game for the love of the sport and they have no desire whatever to become professionals, but do not want to finish the season with a stigma of debt attached to their name. They will do everything in their power to liquidate it but feel without the people's assistance it would be a hopeless task. We trust this help will not be withheld and will be pleased to receive suggestions from any person on the subject.

T. McDONOUGH,
Secretary, P.R.C.

MILLER WANTED IN PITTSBURG

Ex-Peterboro' Player Offered a Good Place in Smoky City

The Examiner was shown a letter received by Walter Miller last year with the Peterborough hockey team, and now living in Toronto, in which the ex-Peterborough player was offered $15 to play in the Western Pennsylvania League, which has just been formed. The letter was from F. L. Denahey of the Duquesne Gardens, Pittsburg, and shows that Peterborough hockey players are widely known and their worth recognized everywhere. Miller is a young player who should develop into a star with a little more experience, and should easily make good across the line. He has not yet decided whether or not he will accept the offer.

Peterboro' Junior Roller Hockey Club To Meet Lindsay Team on Monday

The boys who assist the patrons of the Peterborough Roller Rink to put on their skates have formed a roller hockey club. The boys are very enthusiastic over the game and practice every afternoon and evening after the skaters are off the floor. The company has supplied the boys with sticks and are aiding them in every way. The team has arranged a game with a roller hockey club in Lindsay and will meet their opponents next Monday on their own rink. The game is creating a great sensation in Lindsay and it is likely that there will be a large crowd out to see the game.

"ROUGH RIDERS" HAVE ORGANIZED

Hockey Team To Enter Junior City League Series

Last night another hockey club was organized, known as the "Rough Riders of Peterborough," and it will enter a team in the Junior City League in case one is formed in the city. There will be some good material on the line-up and the team will be a good proposition should the proposed league be formed. The colors of the Rough Riders will be brown, white and blue. The meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A., and the officers elected were:

Manager—W. F. Cahill.
Hon. Pres.—W. G. Morrow.
Pres.—John Crane.
Sec.-Treas.—E. J. Pugh.
Capt.—F. L. Giroux.
Executive Committee—A. H. Cameron, E. J. Pugh, and W. F. Cahill.

THEY REACHED NO DECISION

Rugby Club Discussed The Montreal Trip Last Night

The meeting of the executive and players of the Peterborough Rugby Club held last night for the purpose of discussing the rugby situation did not come to any definite conclusion in the matter. Their position is indicated in a letter from Secretary McDonough in another column. The members of the team do not want to meet Montreal and thereby be suspended by the C.A.A.U., and would not entertain the proposition for a minute if it was not that they were facing a deficit of $170, which will have to be made up in some way. If the citizens could subscribe this amount they would not go to Montreal, but unless they are assured that this will be done they will meet the Interprovincial winners in the belief that by doing so they can wipe out the deficit by their share of the gate at Montreal. This seemed to be the unanimous opinion of both the officers and players, and thus the matter was left last night.

METROPOLITANS HAVE ORGANIZED FOR SEASON

The Metropolitans have organized for the season of 1907-8 and intend to trim everything in sight this season. The team is the finest junior team that can be had in the city and and will represent the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. The list of officers and players will be published later.

Here is a little problem to puzzle out: The Canadian Rugby Football Union is affiliated with the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union. (At the beginning of the season the Registration Committee of the C.A.A.U. suspended the different teams of the Inter-Provincial Rugby Union after Montreal had refused to drop Ernie Reynolds. Now the Canadian Rugby Union one of the chief supports of the C.A.A.U., has taken the Inter-Provincial Union back into the fold and ordered Montreal the champions of the Union, to play off with the winners of the Peterborough-Ottawa game. Did you ever see such a mix-up? What is the C.A.A.U. going to do about it? Are they going to suspend and cast off the Canadian Rugby Union, or will they take the ban off the Inter-Provincial Union and swallow themselves, as it were? Its easy, figure it out for yourself.

Dave Hartley is reported to be making good time in his training at the Woodbine, Toronto, and will be in the best of shape when he meets Jimmy Reynolds on Saturday. The greatest interest is being taken in the match not only in Port Hope and Peterborough but also in Toronto and indications point to one of the biggest crowds that ever saw an athletic event in the Mutual street rink. A good band has been secured for the occasion and will help to make things lively. Both men are confident of winning and it is likely that a large sum will be wagered on on the event. Hartley seems to be the favourite from the news paper reports but Reynolds has been making some wonderful time in training.

The following from the Ottawa Free Press is untrue in certain particulars inasmuch as Peterborough offered the Collegians their expenses to come here:—

"Peterborough wanted Ottawa College to guarantee them $300 to come to Ottawa next Saturday, but would not guarantee College anything to play in Peterborough. With absolutely nothing to gain by defeating Peterborough, College did not feel justified in taking the chance with an added possibility of leaving themselves in the hole financially. Peterborough will probably play Montreal."

The ice races in Ottawa this winter, according to the Journal, promise to be the best on record. They will be held from February 1 to 8, and a most attractive programme has been arranged by the Central Canada Racing Association. The prize list is a dandy, over $11,500 being offered in purses, which is sure to attract the fastest horses in America. The officers are already busy on the details of the meet.

The Peterborough club wired the Ottawa College team at noon to-day as follows: "Understand that you have defaulted. Peterborough team guarantees that if you will play here Saturday you will not need to play Montreal."

A full practice of the Peterborough rugby team is called for to-morrow afternoon at Riverside Park, and every member of the team is expected to be out in uniform.

A HIAWATHA ROMANCE

On the picturesque banks of Rice Lake is situated the Indian Village of Hiawatha. In 1860 it consisted of a few cabins built by the Government for the civilisation of that small tribe of Ojibways who hunted in the northern woods and fished in the waters of the lake.

They were a contented band, nurtured and fostered by the Missionary, whom they called the Meens'ter. Only one disturbing element entered into the life of the little village, and when it appeared, it came like the bursting of a bomb, causing dismay and trouble.

Paul Gondeau, a French half-breed, who was as reckless as he was evil, came periodically to the village with his fiddle and a keg of liquor and proceeded to lure away the youth of the settlement. He took delight in undoing the work of the Meens'ter and laughed at the victims who fell an easy prey to his wiles—for he was a handsome as well as a cunning devil, and drew the young men and maidens by his evil magnetism until their will was not their own and (even as it was in olden time) he cast them into the life or the water as it pleased him.

The Meens'ter prayed against him and the older Indians lay in wait with guns and clubs to punish him, but he was too wily and always slipped away. He knew his danger and like the wild beasts he stayed in the woods which lay west of the village, by day—only coming out at night to capture his prey. One morning an old Indian named Jim Crow ran to the Mission House, his black hair straggling over his eyes and his features distorted by grief.

"Oh, Meens'ter," he cried, "dat devil Gondeau, he run away with my girl!—gone away—not come back — my heart sore—I too old to go—pray Manitou."

The Meens'ter drew the old man into his little sitting room and prayed as the prophets of old must have prayed—when the heavens opened and an answer came, swift as the lightning flash. Then he put on his hat and went down the lane, through the gate into the village street. The women were gathered around their doors, while the Indians howled their rage.

"What is this I hear?" he asked Tobias Smith, who was one of the pillars of thee little church.

"Oh, Gondeau he cam' las' night —tak' girls and boys to woods, haf whiskey plenty—they dance an' dance all night in ole barn. Gondeau, he tak' Nita—Jim Crow's girl—he go away—not come back."

"Why," said the Meens'ter, "she was to be married to John Bearfoot. Is that so?"

"Yah, yah—and John, he'll kill Gondeau — he like Nita much — he'll kill him."

The Meens'ter looked as if he would make no objection to such an action and turned to Jim Crow.

"Go home," he said; "Manitou hears—He will speak to John and he will obey."

That night a loud rap on the door of the Mission House brought the Meens'ter down stairs, candle in hand. To his surprise he saw John Bearfoot standing in the porch, while Nita crouched behind him, pale and trembling.

"Come in," he cried; "I'm glad the girl is safe."

"You marry us quick," said the Indian, a fierce tension in his voice. "I got license."

The book was brought from the study and at midnight the two were made man and wife. John took her to old Jim's cabin, while the Meens'ter spent the night wondering what had befallen Paul Gondeau. Many surmises were indulged in, and many questions asked of Nita and John but they were not answered. Paul came no more to the village, either by day or by night—he was like an evil dream which had fled, but had left a malodorous breath.

When three months had passed, however, and the snow began to pile its white banks in the fence corners and around the cabins, Nita's face wore a troubled look which puzzled the Meens'ter. He was not prised to see her one day coming up the lane, glancing furtively around lest she should be seen. Her red shawl was wrapped closely around her head and shoulders for it was November and a cold north wind was blowing. When the Meens'ter had taken her to the study and shut the door she burst into passionate cries:

"Paul in the ole barn. I take him milk and fish. Now he cold—he freeze—very sick—he die you not come quick."

"How long has he been there?"

"Oh, he go way off—he get sick, very—he come back to ole barn last week, but he die. Meens'ter—go quick—please, an' don't tell John I come here."

"I shall see to him, Nita, but go to Tobias Smith and tell him to come."

He saw her go down the garden path and across the meadow, which was a short cut to the cabin of Tobias Smith. Then he went to the stable and gave the old pony a feed of oats. When Tobias arrived breathless (for the Meens'ter's call was thought divine) he found him ready for a journey.

"Get in, Tobias, we're going to the old barn. You must show me the way. I got a lantern for it may be dark when we return."

After twenty minutes' ride over fallen branches and stumps and through snow drifts they arrived at the old barn. The crazy door hung by one hinge and the wind whistled and wailed through its broken rafters and crevices. They found Paul Gondeau lying on a pile of straw and covered by blankets which Nita had smartly conveyed to him. He was wasted and worn by disease and it was evident that he would commit no more depredations on either the law or the morals of the village.

The Meens'ter bent over him. "I have come to take you home with me."

"Me? To the Mission House?" his strained and wheezy voice whispered.

"Yes. Here, Tobias, lend a hand. Let us get him out of this. It is not fit for a dog here."

"No dog," grunted the Indian, "let him die."

They lifted the limp figure and put him in the sleigh. The Meens'ter held him while Tobias drove the pony, and in another hour he was lying in a warm bed in the Mission House and had sunk into the deep sleep of exhaustion.

When morning came a doctor was brought from Keene, who said it was only a question of days, as his lungs were almost gone. He also discovered an unhealed wound in his side that was enough of itself to kill him. So the Meens'ter and his wife nursed and waited, and the third night, as the clock struck 12, a timid rap was heard on the kitchen door.

When the bolt was drawn, Nita, white and stricken, came in.

"Where is he?" she asked; "I go to ole barn—he gone."

"Come in, Nita," said the Meens'ter, "Paul is here."

He led her to the room where the dying man lay gasping out his last breath.

"John kill you, too," he moaned, then suddenly raising himself he cried in a loud voice.

"The devil went away when I was lying in the barn. I'm sorry—sorry for all I've done. I wanted Nita—to marry her—but John, he follow and shoot. I am not afraid to die—but I'm sorry. Pray Manitou."

They knelt around the bed, while Nita flung herself on its side and put her arms around his neck.

When the Meens'ter rose to his feet after long wrestling with an angry God, Nita said quietly: "See! Manitou come—take him!" The laboured breath had ceased, and on the wasted but still handsome face was a smile of emancipation.

The Indians would not allow the Meens'ter to bury him in the graveyard by the church, so he and Tobias dug a grave on the edge of the wood that skirted the meadow.

Every week during many summers a bunch of flowers was laid on the lonely grave by Nita. No one knew of her secret visits to the wood save the Meens'ter — and he never told.—Mangha, in Canadian Courier.

MEETING LORD'S DAY ALLIANCE

Series Held in Toronto Last Week in November—Provincial Delegates

ALL WILL BE WELCOME

A series of meetings of more than passing interest in connection with the Lord's Day Alliance, will be held in Toronto during the last week in November.

The annual meeting of the Toronto Branch will convene on Thursday, November 28th, at 3.00 p. m., in St. James' Square Presbyterian Church, Toronto. Addresses will be delivered by His Grace Archbishop Sweatman, D.D., D.C.L., of Toronto, the honourary president of the alliance, who also will preside; by Ralph Smith, Esq., M.P., of Nanaimo, B.C., a leader in the labour movement in Canada. Other prominent citizens such as Rev. L. Norman Tucker, D.C.L., and John A. Paterson, K.C., will also deliver brief addresses.

In the afternoon of the same day the annual meeting of the Ontario Provincial Alliance will convene in the same place, St. James' Square Presbyterian Lecture Hall, at 2.00 o'clock.

The reports will cover the work accomplished during the past year, and outlining an aggressive campaign for the coming months. As this is the first year the new Lord's Day Act is in force much interest will centre in this meeting.

On Friday, the sessions being held at 10.00 a. m. and 2.00 p. m., the Triennial Convention of the Lord's Day Alliance of Canada will be held in St. James' Cathedral Parish Hall, Church street. Delegates are expected from all the provinces. The report of Rev. Dr. Shearer will contain the intensely interesting story of the steps taken to secure the Federal Lord's Day Act; the intense struggle against mighty odds when the bill was before Parliament; the account of how the act has been received in the various provinces, and point out how it has brought freedom to tens of thousands of Canadians, who, otherwise would still be slaves to seven-day-in-the-week toil. There will also be plans made for the future.

The vacant chair of the president, (Rev. Dr. Potts) will be filled at the morning session by His Grace, Most Rev. A. Sweatman, D.D., D.C.L., the honourary president.

In view of these meetings the ministers of the city churches will probably preach on this question the previous Lord's Day, or at the midweek service of that week. Every person who is interested in the preservation of the Lord's Day is assured a hearty welcome to any or all of these meetings.

REV. J.A.G. STERLING IS INDUCTED

Services Held in Havelock Presbyterian Church Yesterday Afternoon

AN IMPRESSIVE SERVICE

Examiner Special.

Havelock, Nov. 23.—An induction service, when Rev. J. A. G. Stirling was inducted as pastor, took place in the Presbyterian Church yesterday afternoon, commencing at 2.30 o'clock. A large number were present from town and surrounding country, as well as a number from Norwood, who take an interest in all church matters. Rev. G. A. McLennan, of Norwood, presided. A meeting of the Presbytery was first called and matters talked over. Service was opened in the usual way with a hymn, followed by prayer by the presiding minister. Rev. P. W. Currie, of Warsaw, was then called upon and delivered an eloquent as well as helpful sermon, taking as his text "Fail ye not by the wayside," from the Old Testament. He carried the minds of the people back to the life of Joseph, touching on the most interesting events during that age. He spoke to the people of what their duty was as church people and Christian God-like people. He told them that they should work together, and in so doing further God's Holy work. The sermon was followed by that most appropriate hymn "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," after which an anthem, "Oh, That I Had Wings Like a Dove," was rendered by the choir.

Rev. D. A. Thompson, of Hastings, having been informed that three resident ministers, namely, Rev. Mr. Balfour of the Methodist Church and Rev. Mr. Caplan of the Anglican Church and a student, Mr. Frederick, were in the congregation that they be invited to sit with the Presbytery, which was sanctioned, and the reverend gentlemen were invited to the front. Rev. Mr. Stirling was then called to the front, where he took upon him the sacred duties as a pastor of his church and people, after which he received the hand of one and all the clergymen present.

Rev. Mr. Keith, of Peterborough, was next called upon to deliver an address to the newly-inducted pastor. This was followed by the singing of the hymn, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Rev. Mr. Thompson, of Hastings, then delivered the address to the people. He referred back about twenty years, when the Presbyterian Church was first opened in the old school house at Old Havelock and the many pleasant hours he has spent there, where many people had been converted and entered into close fellowship with God. How that he always felt so happy to think of that place, although it was only a shabby school house and not like the beautifully built churches of to-day. Yet God was there and where God is happiness shall always be found. He believed that the people could help their minister in many different ways. One would be to encourage and not discourage, to work with him and not against him.

The closing hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," was then sung, followed by the benediction, pronounced by Rev. Mr. McLennan, of Norwood.

Rev. Mr. Stirling was introduced to the people as they passed out by the elder of the church, Mr. Jas. Thompson, assisted by Rev. Mr. Currie, of Warsaw.

The Father of his Country concealed a luxuriant suit of hair beneath his queue wig. Many now wish the old fashion were in vogue, to conceal thin hair or baldness. Yet no one need have thin hair nor be bald, if he cure the dandruff that causes both. Dandruff cannot be cured by scouring the scalp, because it is a germ disease, and the germ has to be killed. QUALIFIED SPEAKERS AT MEETINGS

Farmers Will Make no Mistake in Attending Institute Gatherings

Institute meetings will be held in Ontario from November 29 to December 20. An effort has been made this year to select speakers who are especially qualified to take up those subjects which are of greatest interest in the localities concerned. Institute members and others who are interested will find full announcements as to the subjects to be taken up at the different places by referring to posters and hand-bills which will be distributed in each locality. It will be understood, of course, that the speakers will not attempt to deal with all the subjects given herewith. The local Institute officers will make selections therefrom, and a definite programme will be prepared for each place. It is to be clearly understood that all farmers and others interested in agricultural topics are invited to be present at these meetings.

At the evening sessions there will usually be a limited amount of music and addresses by local men. The delegates will be furnished with illustrative material, and will be able to make their addresses even more practical and instructive than heretofore.

The speakers and their subjects for this section will be the following:

E. C. Drury, Crown Hill—"Rotation of Crops, including Cultivation;" "Weeds, and How to Combat Them;" "Soil Moisture, and Its Control;" "The Farmer's Flock of Sheep," "The Breeding and Feeding of Beef Animals," "The Dual Purpose Cow;" Evening, "The Social Side of Farming."

Dr. Annie Baskus, Aylmer — "Hygiene of the Home, and Aids in Nursing," "Consumption, and Its Prevention," "The Importance and Meaning of Women's Work," "Training in the Home," "Education of Girls," "Poultry Raising," "The Horse—Its Use and Abuse."

CANADIAN PICTORIAL FOR NOVEMBER MONTH

The November issue closes the second volume of this popular national illustrated monthly. It contains the usual delightful selection of pictures—many of them the full-page ones—making up in all about one thousand square inches of illustrations.

Worth Consideration

When buying from a Jewelry Store, wouldn't you consider it very important to feel there is absolutely no question about quality.

When you buy here, in the house of Frost, you don't pay any more, perhaps less, than in our indifferent store, but you are certain about quality.

That point alone is more important in choosing Diamonds, Jewelry, Watches and Silverware than any other merchandise.

MARTIN-ORME PIANOS

A recognized authority, Mr. Puddicombe, director of the Ottawa Conservatory of Music, says in part:

June 30, 1906.
I was greatly surprised and delighted with the Martin-Orme Piano I played on last night. I found it to be one of the most grateful of all the upright pianos I have ever tried.

That was two years ago. Mr. Puddicombe writes now:

I have had ample opportunity of testing the Martin-Orme wearing quality in the Conservatory here, and it is perfectly satisfactory.

SAYS THIS IS BEST

A leading health journal in answering the question, "What is the best prescription to clean and purify the blood?" prints in a recent issue the following:

Fluid Extract Dandelion one ounce;
Compound Salatone, one ounce;
Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, four ounces.

Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.

A well-known physician states that these are harmless vegetable ingredients, which can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy.

This mixture will clean the blood of all impurities. In just a few days the skin begins to clear of sores, boils and pimples. It puts vigor and energy into run-down debilitated men and women. For many years Sarsaparilla alone has been considered a good blood medicine. But while it built up and made new blood, the impurities remained within and the good accomplished was only temporary. Sarsaparilla, however, when used in combination with Compound Salatone and Extract Dandelion, works wonders. This combination puts the kidneys to work to filter and sift out the waste matter, uric acid, and other impurities that cause disease. It makes new blood and relieves rheumatism and lame back and bladder troubles.

THE SECRET OF PERFECT HEALTH.

It used to be the general idea that there was some mystery about getting well and staying well. Sellers of quack nostrums took advantage of this fact and grew rich. We are growing wiser, however, and know that good food, fresh air and cleanliness are all that are required. Cleanliness, however, means that you must be clean inside as well as outside. If your kidneys, liver and bowels are not properly performing their functions, they are accumulating a mass of filth, as a result of your violation of some natural law, and you must assist nature in nature's way to cleanse the system. No necessity, however, to risk using some secret preparation. You can obtain a perfect compound of vegetable remedies, everyone of which is endorsed by your physician. The formula of King Palmetto Compound is printed plainly on the wrapper. No secret, no mystery, just plain common sense. King Palmetto Compound will regulate the liver, bowels and kidneys, tone the system and prevent serious results which might arise from neglect. Give it a trial. Write for a free sample bottle to the King Palmetto Company, Bridgeburg, Ontario.

A STORY OF LOVE AND ADVENTURE

BY BERTHA RUNKLE.

Copyright by The Century Co.

"Mordieu! I am ashamed of myself. I might be better occupied than in blaming the dead — the brave and faithful dead. Belike he could not run, they set on us so suddenly. When he could he did go, and he went to his death. They were my charge, the papers. I had no right to put the responsibility on any other. I should have kept them myself. I should have gone to Tarigny. I should never have ventured myself through these black lanes. Fool! traitorous fool!"

"Nay, monsieur, the mischance might have befallen any one."

"It would not have befallen Villeroi! It would not have befallen Rosny!" monsieur exclaimed bitterly. "It befalls me because I am a lack-wit who rushes into affairs for which he is not fit. I can handle a sword, but I have no business to meddle in statecraft."

"Then have those wiseheads out at St. Denis no business to employ you," M. Etienne said. "He is not unknown to fame, this Duke of St. Quetin; everybody knows how he goes about things. Monsieur, they gave you the papers because no one else would carry them into Paris. They knew you had no fear in you; and it is because of that that the papers are lacking. But take heart, monsieur. We'll get them back."

"When? How?"

"Soon," M. Etienne answered, "and easily, if you will tell me what they are like. Are they open?"

"I fear by now they may be. There are three sheets of names, and a fourth sheet, a letter—all in cipher."

"Ah, but in that case"——

"But—Lucas."

"Of course—I forgot him. He knows your ciphers, then?"

"Dolt than I was, he knows everything."

"Then must we lay hands on the papers before they reach Mayenne and all is saved," M. Etienne declared cheerfully. "These fellows can't read a cipher. If the packet be not open, monsieur?"

"It was a span long and half as wide; for all address the letters St. Q. in the corner. It was tied with red cord and bore the seal of a flying falcon and the motto Je reviendrai."

"What! the king's seal? That's serious. Expect, then, monsieur, to see the papers in an hour's time."

"Etienne, Etienne," monsieur cried, "are you mad?"

"No madder than is proper for a St. Quentin. It's simple enough. I told you I recognized that worthy back there for one Bernet, who lodged at an inn I wot of over beyond the markets. Do we betake ourselves thither we may easily fall in with some comrades of his bosom who have not the misfortune to be lying dead in a back lane, who will know something of your loss. Bernet's sons are no bigots; while they work for the League, they will lend a kindly ear to the chink of Kingsmen's florins."

"Ah," cried monsieur, "then let us go." But M. Etienne laid a restraining hand on his shoulder.

"Not you. I. They will kill you in the Halles just as cheerfully as in the Quartier Marais. This is my affair."

He looked at monsieur with kindling eyes, seeing his chance to prove his devotion. The duke yielded to his eagerness.

"But," M. Etienne added generously, "you may have the honor of paying the piper."

"I give you carte-blanche, my son. Etienne, if you put that packet into my hand it is more than if you brought the sceptre of France."

"Then go practice, monsieur, at feeling more than king."

He embraced his father and we turned off down the street.

The sun was well up by this time and the city rousing to the labors of the day. Half was I glad of the lateness of the hour, for we ran no risk now of cutthroats; and half was I sorry, for it behooves not a man supposed to be in the Bastille to show himself too liberally to the broad eye of the streets. Every time—and it was often—that we approached a person who to my nervous imagination looked official I shook in my shoes. The way seemed fairly to bristle with soldiers, officers, judges; for all I knew, members of the Sixteen, Gov. Belin himself. It was a great surprise to me when at length we arrived without let or hindrance before the door of a mean little drinking place, our goal.

We went in and M. Etienne ordered wine, much to my satisfaction. My stomach was beginning to remind me that I had given it nothing for twelve hours or so, while I had worked my legs hard.

"Does M. Bernet lodge with you?" my master asked of the landlord. We were his only patrons at the moment.

"M. Bernet? Him with the—eye out?"

"The same."

"Why, no, monsieur. I don't let lodgings. The building is not mine. I but rent the ground floor for my purposes."

"But M. Bernet lodges in the house, then?"

"No, he doesn't. He lodges round the corner, in the court off the Rue Clichet."

"But he comes here often?"

"Oh, aye. Every morning for his glass. And most evenings, too."

M. Etienne laid down the drink money and something more.

"Sometimes he has a friend with him, eh?"

The man laughed.

"No, monsieur; he comes in there alone. Many's the time I'll be standing in my door when he'll come by with some gallant, and he never chances to see me or my shop. While if he's alone it's 'Good morning, Jean. Anything in the casks to-day?' He can no more get by my door than he'll get by Death's when the time comes."

"No," agreed M. Etienne; "we'll all stop there, soon or late. Those friends of M. Bernet, then—there is none you could put a name to?"

"Why, no, monsieur, more's the pity. He has none lives in this quarter. M. Bernet's in low water, you understand, monsieur. If he lives here it is because he can't help it. But he goes elsewhere for his friends."

"Then you can tell us, my man, where he lodges?"

"Aye, that can I," mine host answered, bustling out from behind the bar, eager in the interest of the pleasant-spoken, open-handed gallant. "Just round the corner of the Rue Clichet, in the court. The first house on the left, that is his. I would go with monsieur, only I cannot leave the shop alone, and the wife not back from market. But monsieur cannot miss it. The first house in the court. Thank you, monsieur. Au revoir, monsieur."

In the doorway of the first house on the left in the little court stood an old man with a wooden leg sweeping heaps of refuse out of the passage.

"It appears that every one on this stair lacks something," M. Etienne murmured to me. "It is the livery of the house. Can you tell me, friend, where I may find M. Bernet?"

The concierge regarded us without cordiality, while by no means ceasing his endeavors to cover our shoes with his sweepings.

"Third story back," he said.

"Does M. Bernet lodge alone?"

"One of him's enough," the old fellow growled, whacking out his dirty broom on the door post, powdering us with dust. M. Etienne, coughing, pursued his inquiries:

"Ah, I understand he shared his lodgings with a comrade. He has a friend, then, in the building?"

"Aye, I suppose so," the old chap grinned, "when monsieur walks in."

"But he has another friend besides me, has he not?" M. Etienne persisted. "One who, if he does not live here, comes often to see M. Bernet?"

"You seem to know all about it. Better see Bernet himself instead of chattering here all day."

"Good advice, and I'll take it," said M. Etienne, lightly setting foot on the stair, muttering to himself as he mounted, "and come back to break your head, mon vieillard."

We went up the three flights and along the passage to the door at the back, whereon M. Etienne pounded loudly. I could not see his reason, and heartily I wished he would not. It seemed to me a creepy thing to be knocking on a man's door when we knew very well he would never open it again. We knocked as if we fully thought him within, when all the while we knew he was lying a stone on the stones under M. de Mirabeau's garden wall. Perhaps by this time he had been found; perhaps one of the marquis's liveried lackeys or a passing idler or a woman with a market basket had come upon him; perhaps even now he was being borne away on a plank to be identified. And here were we, knocking, knocking, as if we innocently expected him to open to us. I had a chill dread that suddenly he would open to us. The door would swing wide and show him pale and bloody, with the broken sword in his heart. At the real creaking of a hinge I could scarce swallow a cry.

It was not Bernet's door, but the door at the front, which opened, letting a stream of sunlight into the dark passage. In the doorway stood a woman, with two bare-legged babies clinging to her skirts.

"Madame," M. Etienne addressed her, with the courtesy due to a duchess, "I have been knocking at M. Bernet's door without result. Perhaps you could give me some hint as to his whereabouts?"

"Ah, I am sorry. I know nothing to tell monsieur," she cried regretfully, impressed, as the concierge had not been, by his look and manner. "But this I can say: he went out last night, and I do not believe he has been in since. He went out about 9—or it may have been later than that. Because I did not put the children to bed till after dark; they enjoy running about in the cool of the evening as much as anybody else, the little dears. And they were cross last night, the day was so hot, and I was a long time hushing them to sleep. Yes, it must have been after 10, because they were asleep, and the man stumbling on the stairs woke Pierre. And he cried for an hour. Didn't you, my angel?"

She picked one of the brats up in her arms to display him to us. M. Etienne asked:

"What man?"

"Why, the one that came for him. The one he went out with."

"And what sort of person was this?"

"Nay, how was I to see? Would I be out walking the common passage with a child to hush? I was rocking the cradle."

"But who does come here to visit M. Bernet?"

"I've never seen any one, monsieur. I've never laid eyes on M. Bernet but twice. I keep in my apartment. And, besides, we have only been here a week."

"I thank you, madame," M. Etienne said, turning to the stairs.

She ran out to the rail, babies and all.

"But I could take a message for him, monsieur. I will make a point of seeing him when he comes in."

"I will not burden you, madame," M. Etienne answered from the story below. But she was loath to stop talking, and hung over the railing to call:

"Beware of your footing, monsieur. Those second-floor people are not so tidy as they might be; one stumbles over all sorts of their rubbish out in the public way."

The door in front of us opened with a startling suddenness, and a big, brawny wench bounced out to demand of us:

"What is that she says? What are you saying of us, you slut?"

We had no mind to be mixed in the quarrel. We fled for our lives down the stair.

The old carl, though his sweeping was done, leaned on his broom on the outer step.

"So you didn't find M. Bernet at home? I could have told you as much had you been civil enough to ask."

I would have kicked the old curmudgeon, but M. Etienne drew two gold pieces from his pouch.

"Perchance if I ask you civilly you will tell me with whom M. Bernet went out last night?"

"Who says he went out with anybody?"

"I do," and M. Etienne made a motion to return the coins to their place.

"Since you know so much it's strange you don't know a little more," the old chap growled. "Well, Lord knows if it is really his, but he goes by the name of Peyrot."

"And where does he lodge?"

"How should I know? I have trouble enough keeping track of my own lodgers without bothering my head about other people's."

"Now rack your brains, my friend, over this fellow," M. Etienne said patiently, with a persuasive chink of his pouch. "Recollect now; you have been sent to this monsieur with a message."

"Well, Rue des Tournelles, sign of the Gilded Shears," the old carl spat out at last."

"You are sure?"

"Hang me else."

"If you are lying to me I will come back and beat you to a jelly with your broom."

"It's the truth, monsieur," he said with some proper show of respect at last. "Peyrot, at the Gilded Shears, Rue des Tournelles. You may beat me to a jelly if I lie."

"It would do you good in any event," M. Etienne told him, but flinging him his pistoles nevertheless. The old fellow swooped upon them, gathered them up and was behind the closed door all in one movement. But as we walked away he opened a little wicket in the upper panel and stuck out his ugly head to yell after us:

"If M. Bernet's not at home yet neither will his friend be. I've told you what will profit you none."

"You mistake, Sir Gargoyle," M. Etienne called over his shoulder. "our information is entirely to my needs."

CHAPTER XXIII.

It was a long walk to the Rue des Tournelles, which lay in our own quarter, not a dozen streets from the Hotel St. Quentin itself. We found the Gilded Shears hung before a tailor's shop in the cellar of a tall, cramped structure, only one window wide. Its narrow door was inhospitably shut, but at our summons the concierge appeared to inform us that M. Peyrot did truly live here, and, moreover, was at home, having arrived but half an hour earlier than we. He would go up and find out whether monsieur could see us.

But M. Etienne thought that formality unnecessary, and was able, at small expense, to convince the concierge of it. We went alone up the stairs and crept very quietly along the passage toward the door of M. Peyrot. But our shoes made some noise on the flags; had he been listening he might have heard us as easily as we heard him. Peyrot had not yet gone to bed after the night's exertion; a certain clatter and gurgle convinced us that he was refreshing himself with supper or breakfast before reposing.

M. Etienne stood still, his hand on the doorknob, eager, hesitating. Here was the man; were the papers here? If they were should we secure them? A single false step, a single wrong word might foil us.

The sound of a chair pushed back came from within, and a young man's quick, firm step passed across to the far side of the room. We heard a box shut and locked. M. Etienne nipped my arm; we thought we knew what went in. Then came steps again and a loud yawn and presents two whacks on the floor. We knew as well as if we could see that Peyrot had thrown his boots across the room. Next a crash and jangle of metal, that meant his sword-belt with accoutrements flung on the table. M. Etienne, with the rapid murmur, "If I look at you, nab him," turned the door handle.

But M. Peyrot had prepared against surprise by the simple expedient of locking his door. He heard us too, for he stopped in the very middle of a prolonged yawn and held himself absolutely still. M. Etienne called out softly:

"Peyrot!"

"Who is it?"

"I want to speak with you about something important."

"Who are you, then?"

"I'll tell you when you let me in."

"I'll let you in when you tell me."

"My name's Martin. I'm a friend of Bernet. I want to speak to you quietly about a matter of importance."

"A friend of Bernet. Hmm! Well, friend of Bernet, it appears to me you speak very well through the door."

"I want to speak with you about the affair of to-night."

"What affair?"

"To-night's affair."

"To-night? I go to a supper party at St. Germain. What have you to say about that?"

"Last night, then," M. Etienne amended, with rising temper. "If you want me to shout it out on your stairs, the St. Quentin affair."

"Now, what may you mean by that?" called the voice from within. If Peyrot was startled by the name he carried it off well.

"You know what I mean. Shall I take the house into our confidence?"

"The house knows as much of your meaning as I. See here, friend of Bernet, if you are that gentleman's mate perhaps you have a password about you."

"Aye," said M. Etienne readily. "This is it: twenty pistoles."

No answer came immediately. I could guess Peyrot puzzled. Presently he called to us:

"By the bones of St. Anne, I don't believe a word you've been saying. But I'll have you in and see what you look like."

W. H. HILL, Esq., Manager Central Ontario SUN LIFE OF CANADA,
Peterborough, Ont.

Dear Sir,—I have much pleasure in acknowledging the receipt of the cheque for $1,244 being the amount paid me on the maturity of my endowment policy, 35,190, in your Company, which matured on the 1st inst.

I find I have received almost 4 per cent. compound interest on every dollar paid in to the Company, and in addition have had free insurance for the past fifteen years.

Such a result speaks volumes for the management of your Company, and far exceeds my expectations, and I would be ungrateful indeed were I not to acknowledge it.

I was also offered a paid-up policy of $2,070, or an annuity for life of $111.56, both of which I consider excellent.

I thank you very much indeed and wish your Company the continued success and confidence it so richly deserves.

Yours very truly,

(Signed) REV. H. C. GARBUTT

Peterborough, Nov. 1st, 1907.

W. G. MORROW, Esq.,
Agent Imperial Life Assurance Co.,
Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $5000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

J. R. STRATTON.

Xmas Ideas For Santa Claus Helpers

THE illustration shows a well fitting and prettily shaped apron of lawn with decoration in Brabant braids. The braids are wide and easy to handle and may be worked rapidly. The lawn is pinned into place and basted to braids before removing lace from pattern, after which the lace is hemmed down to lawn. In some places the lawn is cut from the design. The raw edges of lawn may either be turned under and hemmed to the braids on wrong side or just carefully whipped. A few plaits are laid to make a perfect fit at waist line and a band about one inch wide put on. Then five rosettes are made of the wide braids by gathering around a small ring. These rosettes are tacked securely on the band in even spaces and in such manner as to permit the soft, wide messaline ribbon to be drawn through. The illustration hardly does justice to this very pretty belt effect.

A stocking bag is by no means a new idea, but it is so practical and useful that it always makes an acceptable gift. A pretty one may be made with a yard of blue silesia or any pretty material, two yards of ribbon an inch wide, a small piece of white flannel, some stiff pasteboard and a spool of silk. Of the pasteboard cut four circular pieces, each one measuring seven inches across. Cover these four pieces smoothly with the cloth and overhand the edges of two together with silk, the remaining two to be done in the same way for the opposite side. The puff should be a straight piece measuring sixty inches long and twelve inches wide. This is to be gathered each side to fit round the edge of the circular pieces, leaving a space at the top of the circle three inches for the opening, thus forming the bag. Make for the outside of one of the circles a piece of the same size and shape and embroider or applique some little design upon it.

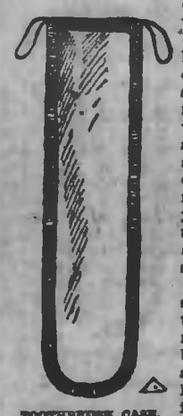
Then cut from the flannel several leaves the same shape, but smaller, buttonhole stitch or pink the edges and fasten them to the top of the circle on the bag, as the leaves in any needlebook are fastened, then sew the embroidered cover outside of this at the top. Where it is fastened place a bow of ribbon. This is for holding the darning needles. On the circle for the opposite side a piece of cloth is gathered top and bottom, to cover a little more than half the circle, for a pocket. In the casing at the top run an elastic, and in the pocket is kept the yarn for darning. The ribbon is used to draw the puff together at the top, and the interior is the receptacle for the stockings.

The corset cover shown in the illustration may be made to slip on over the head or it may open down the center front. The embroidered pieces are made separately from the cover and are fastened at the top only so that the cover may be as full as one chooses. The embroidered pieces are edged with valenciennes insertion and edge. Featherstitching may be used to fasten the insertion in place, and French knots may also be added if desired.

A Toothbrush Case.

A toothbrush case is indispensable for traveling, as doing away with the damp paper which generally enwraps the brush at the end of a journey, and is a Christmas gift that will be appreciated. To make a toothbrush case you will require half a yard of the waterproof material used for sponge bags.



TOOTHBRUSH CASE.

Cut this the shape shown in the design, the measurements being eight and a half inches long and two inches across. The two halves are joined together, and the edges are hidden by a neat tape or ribbon binding, which also finishes off the top when a drawstring of thin colored cord runs through it. The little case slips into the sponge bag and effectually prevents the toothbrush getting in contact with the damp sponge.

Christmas Baskets.

Charming effects can be obtained from old baskets (provided they are sound) by treating them about two weeks in advance of Christmas with two coats of common white paint, supplemented, when thoroughly dry, by a coat of delicate green enamel and tinting the rims and handles a cream ivory white. A bow of white satin ribbon should be fastened securely to the handles, through which is thrust a spray of mistletoe. Equally pleasing results may be obtained by using dark green and white enamel, with a vivid scarlet ribbon and cluster of holly, a festive touch being given to the contents of homemade candy by wrappings of crape paper printed in holly design. A delicate paper napkin laid neatly over the top and a card bearing the season's greeting and your own personal good wishes complete the hamper.

File Cases.

One of the paper file cases that may be had at any store where commercial stationery is sold can be quickly converted into a thing of beauty that will appeal to any one, man or woman, who likes to keep memoranda or clippings in a tabulated form. The cover may be a strip of any pretty, suitable material from cretonne to tapestry.

PANDORA RANGE

PANDORA FLUES
Arrows show direction of heat.

The Pandora Flue System is an Immense Improvement

While we don't desire to say that the usual flue construction is not good, for it is considered good, still we do say that the Pandora flue system is an immense improvement.

In the ordinary range the flues conduct the smoke and heat by the shortest route to the chimney (as shown by illustration in lower corner). The heat does not pass directly under all pot holes, nor around all surfaces of the oven.

In the Pandora (illustrated in upper left hand corner) when the draft is set for baking, the heat, by means of a curved flange, is made to pass under and heat every pot hole except the back inner one, before it is drawn down the outer half of the back end flue and under the oven—a dividing flange under oven bottom prevents the heat from short cutting, and forces it to travel, first under the outer half of oven, then under the inner half.

The result is that the heat is spread uniformly over the oven. And every loaf of a whole batch of bread will be done equally well on all sides.

From under the oven bottom the heat travels up the inner half of back end flue, and passes under the back inner pot hole before disappearing up the chimney.

Thus it will be seen that all the heat circulates around the oven twice and under every pot hole before it goes up the chimney—that the draft for baking is also the best for cooking.

And, as the heat is made to perform a double duty by this improved system, the fuel bill is greatly reduced.

Mr. H. A. Thurston, of 238 Vermont St. E., Indianapolis, Restored by Ferrozone.

"A year ago I took the grippe. I was as weak as a child. I was no longer able to eat. My blood was thin. My cheeks were white and hollow. Doctors gave me all kinds of medicine, but none of them brought me strength. My friends said I was wasting away with some slow disease, and I bade them good-bye. Then I heard of the wonderful Ferrozone. After three days it gave me an appetite. I gained strength and became cheerful. Under Ferrozone I improved steadily. I am well to-day. NOVEL THEATER BAG.

Attractive Christmas Present and How It Is Made.

A theater bag of one sort or another is an absolute necessity for the theater goer in these days, when dress pockets are forbidden luxuries and when it is impossible without risk of loss to hold in one hand a purse, a pocket handkerchief and an opera glass, possibly a powder puff and probably some chocolates and at the same time to gather up one's skirt with the other hand and in the case of a matinee on a wet afternoon perhaps struggle also to carry an umbrella.

Such a useful little bag as the one shown in our sketch will help us out of most of these difficulties and will leave us with one hand free for our skirt and the other for our umbrella, as by means of the ribbon handle the bag can easily be slung over one's arm. It could be made from a remnant of strong satin or a short length of brocade, and it should be lined with silk in some contrasting color.

For a modest sum a small piece of looking glass can be purchased in the street. This should be slipped between the lining and the outer cover of the bag and arranged so that the opening in the silk is rather smaller than the glass itself. A little seccotine, very lightly applied, will hold the mirror firmly in its place, and it should be concealed from view on ordinary occasions by a flap of cloth embroidered with a floral design and tied with ribbon bows.

A Novel Hatpin Holder.

To make a pretty hatpin cushion take an old coffee tin, remove lid and stuff tightly with wool or rags. Then cut out two rounds of pretty colored sateen (lined) for top and bottom of the tin. Place the sateen in position and tack with long stitches down tin from one to the other. After this put a piece of the material neatly round and make pretty muslin or lace cover in a similar way, with the addition of frills to go over top and bottom of sateen. Tie round with ribbon, top and bottom.

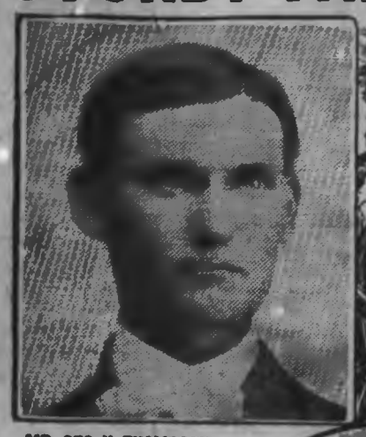
STURDY FARMERS KEEP OFF ALL CATARRHAL ILLS BY TAKING PE-RU-NA.



MR. GEO. H. THOMPSON.

At Work On the Farm and Feeling Well All the Time.

Geo. H. Thompson, Craft, Miss., writes:

"I have been cured of catarrh by your medicines, Peruna and Manalin. I had been affected with catarrh of the stomach about all my life, and was taken bad every Spring and Summer.

"I used several kinds of patent medicines, but they did me no good. I then took a treatment under an M. D., which did me but little good. By this time I had come to where I could eat nothing but a little soup. I had severe pains, had lost in weight and could not do anything. I began taking your medicines, Peruna and Manalin. I then weighed 128 pounds, but after taking several bottles of Peruna and one bottle of Manalin, I weighed 168 pounds.

"I am now at work on the farm and feel well all of the time. I eat all I want to and my friends say that I look better than ever before. I will ever praise Peruna for its healing power."

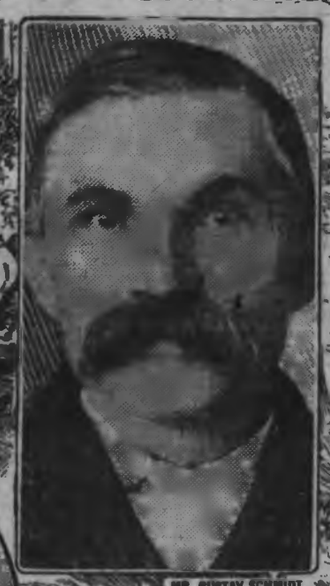
Pe-ru-na is a Systemic Remedy.

If Peruna proves efficient for catarrh in one place, it will be equally potent in any other place, because it is a systemic remedy.

The people generally are very much misinformed as to the nature of catarrh.

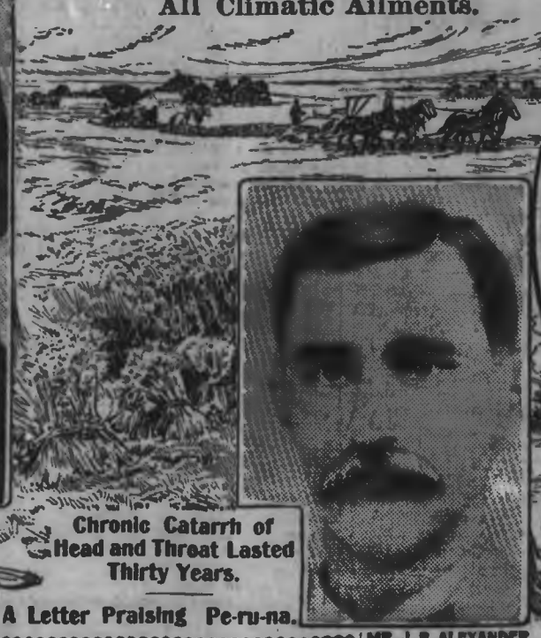
Catarrh is usually believed to be confined to the head, nose and throat. Lately we sometimes hear of catarrh of the stomach and catarrh of the bowels. Seldom if ever, do we hear of catarrh of any other organs.

It is not because these organs are not subject to catarrh, nor that catarrh of these organs is not a very common disease, but simply because it is not generally known that affections of these organs may be due to catarrh.



MR. GUSTAV SCHMIDT.

Pe-ru-na, a Most Reliable Remedy For All Climatic Ailments.



Chronic Catarrh of Head and Throat Lasted Thirty Years.

A Letter Praising Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Gustav Schmidt, Spring Valley, Ill., writes:

"I had catarrh of the head and throat for over thirty years. It became worse every year. About three months ago I commenced to take Peruna and Manalin, and now I am entirely cured of that troublesome sickness. Your medicine is surely a blessing to mankind. You can truly say that you have not lived in vain, Doctor, and I thank you for the good you have done me. May you enjoy a long life to help suffering humanity."

MR. HENRY SCHROEDER

MR. W. J. TEMPLE.

Climatic Ailments Overcome By Pe-ru-na.

Mr. W. J. Temple, R. F. D. 2, Delaware, Ohio, writes:

"I am a farmer and so necessarily must be exposed to all kinds of weather. About three years ago last winter, I was taken sick with bowel and stomach trouble.

"One doctor called it ulceration of the bowels, another called it colitis. Another doctor helped me temporarily.

"Then a druggist recommended Peruna and I followed his advice. I took altogether five bottles and I consider myself a well man.

"Before using Peruna, it was utterly impossible for me to do a day's work, but now I can do farm work without the least trouble or fatigue. I consider Peruna the best medicine and tonic on the market.

"I had not eaten a meal for five years without distress until I took Peruna. I have recommended it to several friends with good results."

DR. HARTMAN, THE FARMER.

Dr. S. B. Hartman, the inventor and original manufacturer of Peruna, is one of the best farmers in the Middle West.

His farm comprises several thousand acres of the best land in the State of Ohio, located near the City of Columbus.

As an importer of French Percheron and German Coach horses, the Doctor has not an equal in this country.

The fowl-raising department is a marvel of ingenuity and perfection; but, perhaps the dairy department is where the Doctor shows his greatest sense of order and sanitary science.

His milk cows, of the purest Jersey stock, have all been subjected to the tuberculin tests, and he gives to the City of Columbus a pure milk, certified by the Board of Health.

The milk stables, the milk men and the whole process of milking are absolutely faultless and clean.

The Doctor himself, past 70 years of age, is the managing head of the farm.

He himself supervises the working details of every department.

He is a model of strength and vitality, and since Peruna is the only remedy he ever makes personal use of, his physical condition is a testimonial to the efficacy of Peruna of greater value than could be framed in words.

Dr. Hartman is one of the few doctors who take their own medicine and his splendid physique and strength in his old age are an eloquent argument for Peruna very difficult to gainsay.

Dr. Hartman, being a farmer himself, knows what the farmer needs and in speaking of Peruna to the farmer he speaks to his own kind of people.

Pe-ru-na For Bowel Trouble.

Mr. Stanly Bell, Ashley, Ohio, writes: "I was afflicted with rheumatism so badly that it was painful for me to move. I took two or three bottles of Peruna when I began to feel better. It also gave me relief from bowel trouble."

MR. J. B. ALEXANDER.

A Necessity in the Home.

J. B. Alexander, publisher of the "Fruit and Floral Guide, a Magazine of Horticulture," published in Hartford City, Ind., says of Peruna:

"I was afflicted with catarrh of the throat and head for over ten years. I was treated by many physicians, but grew worse until I was seldom able to go out in cold weather.

"About one year ago I was advised to try Peruna, which I did, and I am now entirely well of the catarrh.

"Peruna is a necessity in our home. With the first symptoms of a cold we use it, and are never afflicted with catarrh.

"I advise all who are afflicted with catarrh to try Peruna. There is certainly nothing equal to it as a catarrh medicine."

71 Years Old and Able to Work.

Mr. John G. Hirdler, Garfield, Kas., writes:

"I was injured by a fall on the railroad and my entire nervous system was impaired by the same. The help of a physician was useless.

"I then tried Peruna and after using it for three months was entirely well. I am 71 years old and my work on the railroad is hard and tedious, but I can work like a young man in all kinds of weather, heat, cold, rain, snow or storm alike."

Pe-ru-na, a Household Remedy.

Mr. Henry Schroeder, Estey, Mich., writes:

"I suffered for almost ten years with catarrh of the stomach and all doctoring was of no avail. I took nine bottles of Peruna and two of Manalin and am now entirely cured.

"I recommend the medicine to all who are afflicted with this disease. It is my household friend."

One of Dr. Hartman's Grateful Correspondents.

Mr. W. R. Callahan, proprietor of Big Hill Farm, and prominent fruit grower and stock raiser, Glenvar, Va., writes:

"I write to express my kindness toward you and your good medicine, Peruna.

"I had a very bad spell of sickness and could not eat anything at all. My head, stomach, in fact, my whole body ached, and it looked as though nothing would do me any good. I had almost given up.

"I decided to try a bottle of your Peruna and before I had taken half the bottle my appetite came to me and my head became all right. In fact, I was all right all over. Peruna cured me."

While Peruna is not confined to any one class of people, yet it is probably true that the farming class more than any other, rely upon Peruna for the prevention and cure of all climatic diseases.

TOM HOOD'S OLD HOME.

Old House Typical of Poet's Sad Life Story.

The disappearance of the house in which Tom Hood lived at, Wanstead, near London, England, one of the most picturesque of country dwellings, is now only a matter of days. The building lies in the midst of charming surroundings. The approach to it from the nearest station, Snaresbrook, lies through the well-wooded commons peculiar to Essex, and the house itself lies back, nestling in a garden of elms and planes and variegated hollies. The design of the garden is quaint and old-fashioned. A broad carriage road divides on either side of a circular flower bed, and admits one to the main entrance, a high wooden door.

To the right of the main block of the building are outhouses with floors lower than the level of the ground, which at one time served as kennels, while to the left is a conservatory, still tenanted by a few half-forgotten plants. The house has an air of desolation and of gloom. In recent times it has been used as a meeting place for local clubs, and over the door is an untidy notice advertising refreshments. All the old paintings and the fine carved mantelpieces have been long removed. The old oak floors are soiled and grained with dirt, and the light wood hoarding which replaces the grand old mantels adds to the melancholy and sadness of the building. Sprigs of ivy are growing through the chinks and crannies of the walls.

The evil days on which the house has fallen are typical of Hood's later life and of his sad story. Time took from him all that he held dear, and the inspired writer of "The Bridge of Sighs," "Eugene Aram," and many another masterpiece was left to mourn the loss of friends, of children, and of health, before death came to him as a merciful relief to end his sufferings.

The parents of the present baby were captured in Kordofan when quite young, some five or six years ago, by Colonel Mahon, and were presented by him to the society.

DESECRATE KRUGER'S GRAVE

Statue of Famous Old Boer President Badly Mutilated.

A most painful sensation has been created in Johannesburg by the discovery of the desecration of the grave of ex-President Kruger, in Pretoria cemetery.

The white marble bust of the ex-President had been torn from its granite base and was lying on its face a yard away from the foot of the grave. The shoulders are chipped and the nose is broken.

The tombstone of the grandchild of the ex-President, which was in the same plot, was slightly damaged, a statuette of an angel, which stood at the head of the grave, being knocked from its pedestal. The two adjoining graves were also disturbed.

It is not believed that the act was one of racial vindictiveness. The circumstances seem to point to an attempted theft of the bust, which it was probably intended to retain pending the offer of a reward for its recovery. It is conjectured that the figure on the child's tomb was knocked over while the desecrator or desecrators were endeavoring to remove the bust of Mr. Kruger, which is very heavy.

Since the desecration of the grave of Prince Christian Victor, in September, 1904, the police have been accustomed to pay a visit nightly to the graves of the ex-President and the prince. The whole machinery of the police force has been set in motion to discover the culprits of the outrage.

ENGLAND

A story, unusually fantastic in character, was told recently at the Worcestershire Quarter Sessions of a naval pensioner's daughter who humbugged credulous tradesmen by masquerading as an Itali an prince, with a pedigree dating from 800 B.C. and though temporarily embarrassed possessed of an enormous fortune. The girl's name was Alexandra Fanny Maud Mary Douglas. It was alleged that she and her parents lived for a year on goods obtained from tradesmen on the pretence that payment would be made by the girl's husband, who was said to be in Italy and was said to be an immeasurably wealthy Italian prince. They said that he had vast estates and properties in all parts of the world, and that the income from them had been accumulating ever since 563 B. C., at which remote date his title was created. All his wealth would soon be at his disposal, but temporarily he was embarrassed because the earthquakes in Jamaica necessitated the remeasurement of his estates, and caused a delay in the payment of his rents. But even now his wealth was so enormous that he did not know what to do with it, and he gave no less than a million a year to the Vatican. In obtaining vegetbales to the value of a few shillings from another tradesman they promised him 9,000 pounds, and also 5,000 pounds for each of his two sons, 4,000 pounds each for the two daughters, and a chateau of 2,000 a year rental for each of the two daughters. On account they gave the tradesman a sewn and sealed bag, which was said to contain ten pound notes, and directed that it should not be opened for two months, but when it was opeend they found it contained only three blank pieces of paper and some orris root. The girl had masqueraded on several occasions as "The Prince" in ueation. Sentence of imprisonment for three months was imposed on the girl and her mother, while the father was sentenced to prisonment for one day.

A peculiar matrimonial puzzle known as the Ogden case, is at present occupying the Court of Appeal in London. A novel point in marriage law is involved. Mr. Justice Bargrave Deane holds that no State within whose territory a marriage has been celebrated can be called upon to give effect to a foreign decree annulling the marriage which is based upon restrictions unknown to the law of the place where the marriage was contracted. The marriage had been celebrated in 1838, at Prestwich, Lancashire, between a Mrs. Williams, an Englishwoman, and a domiciled Frenchman, named Leon Phillip, who represented himself to be 22 years of age, but was in fact only 19. In 1900 the French court declared the marriage void, in proceedings in which the wife was awarded an allowance for the child of the marriage. Subsequently the wife sued in the London divorce court for divorce, but Sir Francis Jeune dismissed the suit holding that he had no jurisdiction to interferre, as neither party was domiciled in England. In 1904 Mr. W. H. Ogden, the present respondent, married Mrs. Williams, and there was one child. After a time the husband deserted the wife, and an order was made against him to contribute to maintenance. Thereupon he brought a suit to establish nullity of the marriage on the ground that Mrs. Ogden was already married when she became his wife, and Mr. Justice Deane gave the decision in his favour. From this Mrs. Ogden has now appealed.

During the recent manoeuvres in the North Sea, officers and men of the Channel and Atlantic Fleets, the Nore Division of the Home Fleet, and the First, Second and Fifth Cruiser Squadron, with four flotillas of torpedo crafts were exercised in the stern routine of war, and, unhappily the weather for the most part was exceptionally bad. This made the test of efficiency all the more real but did not conduce to the comfort of the many thousands of officers and men who were engaged in the operations. During the manoeuvres Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, who was in supreme command, with his other admirals flying their flags had introduced a new system of war routine. In effect this is that at dark the ship is put into a thorough state of defence against attacks by torpedo boats during the nights, the guns and search-lights being manned by watches until daylight. At day-light all night appliances are stowed away and searchlights put behind armour protection. The ship is then brought forward to a state of readiness for a day action, big guns are tried and tested, control platforms rigged and torpedo tubes charged to war pressure. The captains then inspect, and see that everything is in readiness for battle and at 9.30 an hour and a half is allowed for scrubbing decks and cleaning quarters, followed by an hour's gunnery practice, during which any necessary special drill is carried out to put the finishing touches to the men's preparedness for meeting an enemy.

SCOTLAND

One of the oldest passenger engine drivers on the Caledonian Railway—if not, indeed, in Scotland—is Mr. Robt. Houston, who has been stationed at Lockerbie for many years, and who has just retired from active service. Mr. Houston—a native of Lesmahagow—joined the service of the Caledonian Company in 1853 at Holytown, which was at that time the principal locomotive centre. He passed through the grades of fakesman, fireman, and engine driver. About thirty-seven years ago Mr. Houston was promoted to be a passenger engine driver at Garthberrie, and ran the express train between Coatbridge and Aberdeen. Subsequently he was located at Glasgow, and also at Carlisle. Mr. Houston served under seven locomotive superintendents, and under six general managers. During his long service Mr. Houston has been driving trains over the entire Caledonian system, and no accident ever happened to any train of which he was in charge, a record which falls to very few engine drivers. When located at Carlisle Mr. Houston was on several occasions chosen to take charge of the royal train. Mr. Houston, who is now seventy-two years of age, and is in excellent health, has resided in Lockerbie for about ten years.

At a recent meeting of Stirling town council it was reported that the Government would favour a scheme for enclosing the tower and remains of the Abbey Church and Charter House with an ornamental railing, the foundations of the walls of the ruins, and bases of pillars being uncovered so far as possible, and the interiors of the buildings marked by being laid with gravel. The whole expense of the work and the annual cost of keeping the place in order would be borne by the Office of Works provided the patrons arranged with the farm tenant to give up the grazing of the portion enclosed, while the public would be admitted to the enclosed portion as well as to the tower for the present payment of 2d each. It was also stated that at some future date the remaining portion of the ruins might be somilarly dealt with Information has reached Dundee of a disaster to the Windward, the most famous of the local whaling fleet. At the most northerly points in Arctic regions reached by whalers, the Windward, owned by favourable ice conditions, was dashed north between Greenland and Carey Island at the point where Lieutenant Peary left her on his 1891 overland expedition when the ice closed in, crushing the vessel to pieces. The crew were picked up in boats by other whalers. The scene of the disaster is only a few hundred miles from the unknown Arctic regions. The Windward was a vessel which carried the Harmsworth-Jackson expedition, and brought home Dr. Nansen after his farthest north trip.

Detailed accounts have come to hand of the losses occasioned by the heavy rains and violent gales in the United Kingdom during the past few weeks. The loss which Scottish agriculturists have sustained in the destruction of their grain crops by the incessant rainfall is estimated at nearly £2,500,000. This figure is based on the total acreage, which is 1,209,924 acres, the damage being estimated as not falling far short of £2 per acre. The damage wrought by the rainfall is greater than in 1855 and 1902.

A scheme has been drawn up by the Scotch Steelmakers' Association, under which it is expected that contracts will be pooled and better prices obtained. The object is to put an end to indiscriminate competition for oversea business, and to ring export prices to the level of those named for the home trade.

IRELAND

A dastardly attempt at train-wrecking took place one night recently on the Queenstown branch of the Great Southern and Western Railway. As the train reached Little Island Station it was discovered that a long heavy iron casting had been placed lengthwise along the line. The train was going at a great speed and the casting was broken, but none of the cars were derailed. When the same train was nearing Queenstown Station a heavy stone was sent crashing through one of the windows. Nobody was hurt. About an hour afterwards the engine which conveyed another train to Queenstown bore towards the junction, but acting on a danger warning given at the signal-box, the engine driver slowed down. As he did so he found several iron plates placed across the track on the line at one position, and a little further on he saw a wheelbarrow also placed on the line, and a large bag of iron bolts on the top of it. On the down line also there was a number of iron plates weighing several pounds. A number of policeman stationed at Little Island were on the scene, and they made an inspection of the line, and found several obstacles so dexterously placed that if a train came incontact with them with any degree of speed it could not possibly escape being detailed. The police have discovered no clue.

One of the most serious outrages in Clare for some time past was perpetrated recently at Durra, about four miles from Ennis. The victim was a young man named Fred Pierce, employed as caretaker on an evicted farm at Sugrash. Pierce was returning from the Ennis races when shots were fired at him and he was terribly wounded. The shots killed him through the right shoulder, the right side, on the back, and the right arm. The gun was apparently fired at a close range, as the pellets were deeply imbedded in his flesh, and some penetrated the lung. Pierce was three hours lying on the road before he managed to get to a neighbouring house which was some distances from the scene of the occurrence. The police were informed of the affair, and the wounded man was removed to the Ennis infirmary, where his recovery is doubtful. No arrests have been made.

A statement has just been made in a Belfast paper that the world-famous Giant's Causeway, or part of it, at least, is to be shipped to the United States. There seems to be little ground for believing the story, but a great amount of indignation has been caused by it. The Giant's Causeway is a formation of prismatic basaltic columns, 16 miles from Portrush, with which it is connected by an electric railway. It is a platform projecting into the sea from the base of a stratified cliff of about 500 feet in height, and resembles a pier 700 feet long, 350 feet broad, rising to 30 feet in height above the strand. In all there are 40,000 perfectly formed hexagonal columns, each consisting of many pieces, the joints of which are articulated with the greatest nicety.

Protected by two district inspectors and 50 police, a process server named Ryan recently endeavoured to serve processes for rent due on Captain Chevers' estate at Killyan, Co. Galway. On his arrival in the village the blowing of horns and the beating of a drum produced a crowd of several hundred people who placed every obstacle in his way, and in the end their demeanour became so threatening that he had to abandon his attempt to effect service. In some cases the women guarded the doors of their dwellings with buckets of dirty water and defied him to enter. Eventually, in spite of the police, they set upon him and pelted him with mud, and it was only with difficulty that he escaped serious injury.

A few nights ago the famous county Antrim coast road was entirely blocked near Glenarm by a great landslide. A passing automobile containing four passengers was stayed by a boulder weighing 20 tons, but nobody was injured. All the traffic was suspended, and gangs of men were occupied for two days clearing away the debris.

TWO QUEER ANIMALS

The Marabou and the Hyena of Central Africa.

BOTH VULTURES IN NATURE.

Each Gorges Itself on Carrion, and the Bird and Beast Often Battle For Their Food—Fairylike Plumes That Are as Light as Air.

The ugliest storks in the world are found in southern Asia and central Africa. Their flesh colored heads are only partially covered with stiff, wiry feathers, and hanging on the breast they bear a disgusting pouch, which answers the purpose of a crop. One of the largest of these storks is the marabou. It stalks about the great sandy plains of central Africa with composure and a lordly grandeur, as if it were the most beautiful bird in the world. Its body feathers are of a dull metallic green color, and its wings and tail are dingy black. Looking at the awkward creature, no one would suspect that under its ungainly wings it carried the most exquisite and fairy-like little plumes, so airy that it takes basketfuls of them to weigh an ounce. They are pure white and so much desired for trimming that the bird is vigorously hunted by the natives, who sell these dainty feathers to traders for a very large price.

The marabou feeds on carrion, like the vulture. Its throat is very large, and it will greedily eat everything that comes in its way. In the swamps and plains around Khartum, on the Nile, are immense flocks of marabous, and they are so daring as to come to the slaughter houses on the outskirts of the city in search of food, and whole ox ears and shin bones with hoof attached have been found in the crops of specimens which have been killed.

These birds are skillful fishers. They haunt the low marshy islands in the rivers and lakes of central Africa, with elephants, monkeys, flamingoes and many varieties of birds for companions, and gain their principal food from the water. They often go in companies of ten or twelve to fish. Wading in the water, the birds form a circle, which they gradually draw together, gathering the frightened fish in the center of the net, when with their long bills and quick movements they speedily provide themselves with a hearty meal.

Although marabou mammas have been seen proudly parading around with a brood of diminutive downy young ones, so shy and retiring is this bird in its domestic habits that naturalists have been unable to determine when and how it builds its nest. The natives assert that it nests in high trees, but their statement is not confirmed.

In captivity the marabou is lord of the inclosure, and in zoological gardens, where specimens have been confined, no other birds or even small beasts dare approach the feeding trough until the hunger of this impudent bird is satisfied and it has retired to the warmest corner for a nap. The immense strength of its bill makes it a formidable enemy, and when fighting for food it will often overcome the largest vultures and wage successful battles with beasts of prey.

The hyena inhabits the same portions of Asia and Africa as the marabou, and travelers give accounts of terrible contests between these two singular members of the animal kingdom. The hyena is called the vulture among beasts, as it prefers carrion for its food, and as long as it can find dead animals to devour it leaves the flocks and herds in peace. Cowardly by nature, it rarely attacks man or beast unless driven to desperation by hunger.

The striped hyena inhabits the northern latitudes of Africa, Persia and Syria, while the spotted species, which is easily tamed and is sometimes called hyena dog, is found in large numbers in the vast plains of South Africa.

The hyena is a strange looking beast. It has a big head and a heavy, shaggy mane. The hind part of its body is much lower than its shoulders, and its hind legs are short. This odd formation gives it an awkward, shambling manner of walking, which is both ludicrous and hideous.

This creature rarely shows itself by day, but when the shadows of night fall on the plains and forests it comes out from its home among the rocks and caverns in search of food. African travelers are much annoyed by it. When the camp is silent and all are sleeping the hyena comes prowling round, uttering hoarse human cries, and should it fail to find sufficient camp refuse to satisfy its hunger some poor donkey is sure to be torn in pieces by its terribly strong jaws.

Few animals have been the subject of so much superstition. In ancient times it was believed that a dog went mad if a hyena turned its evil eye upon it, and the beast was believed by many to be a wicked sorcerer, who went about in human form by day and at night assumed the shape of a hyena. The poor and ignorant peasantry of Arabia even at the present day believe in the evil eye of this beast and are afraid to shoot it lest they should incur the wrath of the wicked spirit which they imagine walks the earth in this ugly form.

The poor hyena, however, far from being an evil spirit, is a real blessing to the regions it inhabits, as it is a natural scavenger, provided by the kind wisdom of nature to clear the ground of much loathsome and decaying matter, thereby rendering the air sweeter and purer and more healthful.

Furnishing the Home.

If you have not much money to spend, first put down the necessities.

These are floor coverings, window curtains, furnishings for dining room, kitchen, parlor and bedroom.

They include also kitchen utensils, china and glassware, bed and table linens.

Get all these of the best, most durable, most beautiful you can afford, but do not mistake gorgeousness for artistic beauty.

As a rule, the plainer, quieter and simpler your furniture is the better it will look in a simple home.

Select articles with strong, plain lines, and religiously avoid "fancy" pieces that you will have to wear your life out dusting.

Beware of vivid silk and plush, that will cry aloud your bad taste to every one who comes into your home.

It is much better to get the bare necessities first, and accumulate the extras by degrees, as you can afford to get really good things.

A rug, a picture or an extra chair now and then, a few books, pretty linen pieces, cushions, etc., can all come gradually.

The home may look a little bare for awhile, but in the end it will contain only what you will really enjoy having in it.

This is One Way to Woo Sleep.

Avoid stimulants. Nothing more exciting than chocolate or weakest tea should be indulged in near bedtime, strong tea, coffee, wine—never.

Drink plenty of pure distilled water. Drink often—first thing in the morning and last at night.

Eat salads of lettuce and young onions, with a plentiful dressing of pure olive oil and lemon juice—never vinegar. Chew every mouthful of food you eat at least thirty times.

Exercise abundantly and always breathe fresh air. Many people lie awake because of a bedroom's insufficient ventilation. You can have good circulation of air in your room and still keep out of a draft.

A glass of hot milk sipped slowly at bedtime has given many a good night's sleep.

A lukewarm sponge bath before sleeping and a vigorous rub afterward (remembering that you must be your own rubber to get results) work magic.

For Household Purposes.

There is nothing more useful in the kitchen than a board covered with emery paper. It is splendid for sharpening knives and scissors and very useful in removing rust from steel knives and forks—in fact, it removes the deepest rust marks. Get a small board about six inches long, two inches wide and one inch thick and cover it with emery cloth No. 1-0. This puts a smooth edge on carving knives by carefully grinding the blade edge the same as on a stone.

Poor Molly!

Not long ago a woman appeared at the office of the claims agent of an Arkansas railroad.

"Yo' steam kars is done kilt my mule Molly!" she announced tragically.

"Well, madam, if it was the fault of the company you will be recompensed, you may rest assured," the agent said soothingly. "What were the circumstances, and what was the mule worth?"

"Molly war the best mule Ah ever seed," the woman said, wiping her eyes with a bonnet string. "Ah done plowed that mule for seven years, an' thar warn't nothin' the matter with her, 'ceptin' she was kinder lame in her nigh hind laig an' blind in one eye. Ah give $40 an' two bedquilts an' three pecks of dried peaches for her, an' she was as good as the day Ah got her."

"Where was the mule killed?" the agent asked.

"Hit war at the crossin', an' yo' fast mail train jest knocked her plumb over the fence an' inter a gully."

"The mule strayed upon the track, I presume?"

The woman looked at him indignantly.

"Oh, no! Molly never would 'a' been fool enough to walk in front of a train. My old man was ridin' her," she said. "Do yo' think yo' kin 'low me $40 for her?"—Harper's Weekly.

Cover the Telephone.

The telephone is a fine receptacle for germs of every kind, and little attention is paid to sterilizing this much used machine. It should be washed out with alcohol as often as required and to keep the dust out of it make a small round cover of soft leather or heavy cloth and stitch a broad ribbon around the edge, through which can be run a drawing string or elastic. Put this over the transmitter.

The EDISON PHONOGRAPH

THE secret of a happy home is entertainment. Home should be the most entertaining spot on earth for the family, and it can be for the very small amount of money which an investment in the Edison Phonograph would mean. Mr. Edison's Phonograph supplies the entire entertainment. It will sing, render any kind of instrumental music or talk. It is a marvelous reproducer of every kind of sound and especially of the sort of sounds which, combined, produce music.

If you haven't seen the new Edison model with the big horn, by all means go to the nearest Edison store and see, and more especially hear, it. It's a wonder in its way. Descriptive booklet on request.

December Records Out Monday

WHILE it has been hard to make a Record of just the right consistency to be durable enough to stand lots of wear and at the same time delicate enough to give the most perfect rendition of sound, yet Mr. Edison has produced by his secret processes the most perfect Record for Phonographic use that has yet been made. Go over the list of December Records, check off those you would like to hear and than go to the nearest Edison store and hear them. This is the way to get all the pleasure out of your Edison Phonograph.

A GHOST PARTY.

Some Exciting Games and Tests For Halloween Night.

There can be no jollier way to celebrate Halloween than by giving a veritable ghost party, as on that particular night spirits are supposed to walk the earth. The invitations should be decorated with pen and ink sketches of things uncanny, as witches, bats, owls, skull and cross bones, and sent out a week before the event. After stating the date and hour add the request that all "come in the garb of the spirit kind." It will help in carrying out the illusion if a strong cord is tied to the door handle, so that as the guests are about to ring the bell the door will fly open. Have just inside a dignified jack-o'-lantern, with portly anatomy clothed in somber clawhammer coat and patent leathers, point the way upstairs, and a lady of the same ilk in flowing white garments, with coiffure of curls made from the shavings of wood, point the way to the dressing room.

Have the drawing room hung with white, decorated with hideous lizards, bats, owls, cats and frogs cut from black calico, and let the only lights be from the open wood fire that has been treated with chemicals which cause it to burn green, red or purple (alcohol and common salt will make it burn a very ghastly green) and plenty of grotesque jack-o'-lanterns, some grinning and some gnashing their teeth, and if one can procure two or three large stuffed owls to place on the mantel and about the room they will aid in making the effect weird.

The hostess should greet one guest at a time, having the others detained in the dressing room—this in order to give them the following grewsome handshake: Take an old elbow length glove and stuff with wet sawdust. The hostess draws her own hand well up into her sleeve and holds the stuffed hand with her fingers. The guest unsuspectingly takes the gloved hand held out to him and is horrified when it comes off in his grasp. The first frolic of the evening is the hunting for the wedding ring. A ring, a thimble and a coin should be hidden somewhere in the room.

Of course the one who finds the ring is heartily congratulated, the one who finds the thimble will never wed, and the one who finds the coin will have great riches. Then all gather around the fire and hold "nuts" to burn, corn to pop and marshmallows to toast while listening to the stories. Hand a big ball of many colored yarns to one of the guests with the instructions to begin a ghost story and wind off the yarn slowly until he comes to a little parcel. Keep the parcel, but toss the ball to some one else, who must continue the story. Have the little gifts all through the ball to herald the fate of the one who finds them.

A HANDY TABLE.

Combination of Fern Table and Bookstand.

Somewhat out of the ordinary is the artistic handy table here pictured, its gracefulness of outline commending it from the aesthetic as well as utilitarian point of view.

The original was of mahogany, highly polished, and, as the illustration shows, this style of table may be utilised as a combination fern stand and bookcase, making it available either for the sitting room or den.

USEFUL AND ARTISTIC TABLE.

Usually stands on this order are lacking in attractiveness and noticeable only for their commonplace character. This design, however, combines beauty and utility most effectively.

Shirring.

A good and easy way to shirr a thin dress on the sewing machine is to take the cloth after getting it ready for the shirring and stitch with a loose stitch on the cloth plain, with silk on top and cotton in the bobbin. Then pull the cotton thread and you will have the shirring all done. Care must be taken not to use silk on top and in the bottom, as it will not shirr.

THE MODEL HUSBAND.

Many Different Ideas of This Interesting Species.

There are as many ideas, and very different ones at that, about what an ideal husband ought to be as there are women in the world.

One woman will tell you: "Oh, John is such a dear. He's so very careful with his money. He brings home his sealed pay envelope every Saturday night and never spends more than 50 cents a day."

Another woman will say: "I certainly have the model husband. He's no grouch. Talk about spend! Say, if Jimmie and me don't make the coin fly. There's nothing cheap about Jimmie. He's a dead game sport."

So you see the difficulty in finding a regulation model husband. There would be plenty of model husbands in the world if women had the ideal pattern stamped out which their spouses might copy after.

Here is another woman's idea on the subject: I have never thought much about it before. I will just shut my eyes for a moment and try to picture what in my opinion is an ideal husband.

He is neat, plainly dressed and rather common looking. He has sober habits, with honesty and good will shining out of a clear, frank face.

His business occupies half his time. The rest he spends with his wife and children.

He is fond of his home, and he is curious to know how it is run.

He insists on his wife sharing fully half of all marital responsibilities and duties by keeping his house in order and his meals prepared for him.

He insists that his wife be acquainted with his exact financial status and that not a cent above what he can afford shall be spent.

You will have noticed that this model husband of mine is a bit of a master. Although she hates to admit it, womankind loves to be mastered.

I am picturing a rather middle aged man, who, with his wife, long ago left the calm waters of the honeymoon sea, who has passed through a few storms and stood the weather well. So this husband is no longer sentimental, but is very kind and loving in looking after his wife the best he can, that she does not suffer.

There is positively no use in laying down rules for a model husband to a young bride. He would never qualify.

HONEY GUIDES.

African Birds That Lead Men to the Nests of Bees.

"For many ages," says a writer, "the small birds which are known in Africa as honey guides have been in the habit of leading human beings to the nests of bees. The first notice of the kind of which I have knowledge is in 'Lobo's Travels In Abyssinia,' published by Le Grand in 1728. 'The moroc or honey bird,' says this author, 'is endued with a peculiar instinct or faculty of discovering honey. When the moroc has discovered any honey he repairs immediately to the roadside and when he sees a traveler sings and claps his wings, making many motions to invite him to follow him, and when he perceives his coming flies before him from tree to tree till he comes to the place where the bees have stored their treasure and then begins to sing melodiously. The Abyssinian takes the honey without failing to leave part of it for the bird to reward him for his information.' Sparrman, who traveled at the Cape in 1775-76, gives also a very good description of the bird as observed in the southern part of the continent.

"The honey guides lead human beings to the nests of wild bees not so much for the honey as for the grubs or larvae found within the comb. The natives are for the most part well aware of this fact, and if they reward the honey guide, which they usually do to some grudging extent, break off for it a piece of the comb in which the grubs are hatching. Sparrman has a curious note upon this detail. He says, 'I was informed by my boshiesmen (bushmen), as well as by the colonists, that a man who makes it his constant business to go after the bees should not at first be too grateful and generous to this officious bird, but leave for it only just as much as will serve to stimulate its appetite, by which means it will be induced in hopes of obtaining a more liberal reward to discover another swarm of bees.'

"When it desires to feed upon some comb which it has discovered it makes its way to a human being, flutters about restlessly and hops from branch to branch or from bush to bush or from one ant hill to another until it succeeds in attracting the man's attention. During this time it utters a shrill cry of 'cherr, cherr!' frequently repeated. If the man is a native who understands its habits and is willing to follow it he often gives a soft, soothing whistle and, taking with him a hatchet, accepts the restless little creature's guidance. The honey guide now goes on ahead, never keeping very far away and always jealously noticing whether the man is really following. At length the honey nest is reached and the bird's object accomplished. While the native or natives attack the nest and rifle the comb the bird still flutters about, chirping. When the business is concluded and the men depart the honey guide descends from its perch and helps itself to as much of the larvae as it can find.

"When thus following a honey guide the native goes, as a rule, very quietly, taking care not to frighten his small adviser. If the man by reason of bush or other obstacle travels, in the bird's opinion, too slowly it will repeatedly come back to him, fly closely and angrily about him and with restless twitters and evident impatience urge upon him the necessity of hurrying up."

What Does Your Mirror Say?

Does it cheerfully report an abundance of beautiful, well kept hair or does it regretfully tell the story of hair neglect?

Your mirror may be anxious to please, but if you permit your friends to see dull, brittle and lustreless hair, with possibly dandruff and falling hair, your mirror will have to reflect the same condition.

All of these unfortunate EFFECTS can be overcome by destroying their CAUSE with

NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

The ORIGINAL Remedy that "Kills the Dandruff Germ"

Dandruff, with its consequent hair injury and hair loss, is now known to be a highly contagious germ disease. It is caused by an invisible growth of vegetable character that finds lodgement in the sebaceous glands of the scalp. This growth disturbs the functions of the sebaceous glands causing excessive oiliness or extreme dryness of the hair. It also sets up an inflammatory process that extends down the follicle to the papilla, where the adhesions are loosened and the hair slips out. The value of Newbro's Herpicide in such cases is quite extraordinary. Its intelligent use will correct every condition short of chronic baldness and thus permit the hair to resume its natural lustre and abundance.

PRE-SHRUNK GARMENTS

Those of us who have worn PRE-SHRUNK Suits or Overcoats made up to our own measure by a practical tailor, know what lasting satisfaction we get in Shape-holding, Style-permanence qualities.

The trouble with a lot of the patent branded clothing is: that after a good rain has taken a crack at them they become wrinkled, bagged and all puckered up.

We take the shrink out of the cloth before making up your garments.

TWO FATALLY HURT IN A FIRE

Sawtell's Hotel in Buffalo Entirely Gutted by Fire.

GUESTS HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Eighty Persons Rushed Half-Clothed Into the Streets—One Man Burned to Death—English Cook Dying of Suffocation — Proprietor Had a Very Close Call — Had to Climb Over the Roofs.

Buffalo, Nov. 23.—One man is dying, another is dead, a third is at the hospital in a serious condition, and a score of persons had narrow and exciting escapes, as the result of a fire which broke out in Sawtell's Hotel, No. 110 Exchange street, early yesterday.

The name of the dead man is unknown to the authorities. His body is at the morgue.

The seriously injured are:

Fred Banks, 25 years old, cook at the hotel; suffering from effects of suffocation; he cannot live. His home is in England.

Emile Grattan, Italian, lately elevator boy at Proezel House here. His home is in Ottawa, Ont.

Nearly eighty persons sleeping in Sawtell's, McLeod's and Lawrence's hotels were rushed into the street half clothed when the smoke and flames from the fire began to get into their rooms. Three men, one of whom was the dead man, were carried unconscious from the Sawtell Hotel by firemen.

Herbert Sawtell, the proprietor of the gutted hotel, awoke the sleeping inmates, and on returning to the second floor found that his escape was cut off by way of the stairs. He ran to the roof. The flames rapidly approached him and he jumped to the adjoining roof unhurt.

JAKE SUNFIELD REPRIEVED.

Court of Appeal Orders Stated Case to Be Made.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—Jake Sunfield, the man convicted some time ago at Hamilton by Chief Justice Falconbridge, of the murder of Andy Radzyk, and sentenced to be executed on Friday, the 29th instant, has been granted a reprieve.

The Court of Appeal gave its decision yesterday morning on the appeal of Mr. Farmer, of Hamilton, prisoner's counsel, from the refusal of the trial judges to state a case. Chief Justice Moss said that the court had been hampered by having only one copy of the evidence furnished to it, and that to this was due the delay in giving judgment. His lordship said that the court had concluded that the arguments of counsel for the prisoner and the evidence disclosed points that should be elucidated further. A stated case was therefore directed, to be argued at the present sittings.

Chief Justice Falconbridge shortly after issued the following order: "The King against Jacob Sunfield, alias Tamillo. The Court of Appeal, having decided a case to be stated herein, I hereby, for the purpose thereof, reprieve the prisoner for four weeks, and order his execution to be delayed until Tuesday, Dec. 27, 1907."

Street Cars In Fatal Crash.

Sandusky, Ohio, Nov. 23.—In a head-on collision early yesterday between an Inter-urban Lake Shore Electric Railway motor and a city car, a dozen men were injured, five so seriously that they were taken to the hospital, and two may die. The police arrested the motorman and conductor of the Inter-urban car and attempted to arrest William Jakes, conductor of the city car, but Jakes, although injured, escaped.

A heavy fog hung over the city when the collision occurred.

AN ADJOURNMENT OF THE CASE

Crown Not Sure of His Story—Might Tell Too Much.

LONDON CASE ADJOURNED

Ottawa Men Visited London But Did Nothing Crooked — Money Was Handed Over For Legitimate Expenses—Contractor Gave $300 to Election Fund—Had Frequently Helped Both Parties.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—The London bribery case went on for a short time yesterday, but nothing new was developed. An adjournment was made until Monday.

It is very unlikely, although Tom Lewis, now famous in elections, has been subpoenaed, that he will be called. The defence believe that the crown is afraid to put Tom in the box, for fear he will tell too much.

Alex. Milne, who acted as deputy returning officer in the bye-election of 1905, was examined by Mr. Staunton. He admitted that Jerry Collins showed him how to fold the ballots. He had, witness admitted, been drinking.

Ernest A. Larmouth, secretary of the Reform Association in Ottawa, said that he accompanied a Mr. White to London. He had no money, nor had he acted as a mysterious stranger.

James Corry, the Ottawa contractor, had been in London during the election while on his way to St. Joseph. He had seen Reid and given him $300 "for legitimate expenses."

"Wasn't it $1,000 you gave Mr. Reid?" he was asked, and replied, "I do not think so." It was not an uncommon thing to contribute in this way; in fact, he had done so frequently to both parties.

Asked if he was a Conservative, he replied: "I would not like to say what I am."

SUFFRAGETTES GET BUSY.

British Liberal Leaders Disturbed By Shrieking Sisterhood.

London, Nov. 23.—With the resumption of the political campaign which is now in full swing, "the shrieking sisterhood," as the women suffragists have come to be commonly known, are actively pursuing their threatened plan of upsetting all Liberal meetings.

Gatherings at which members of the Cabinet are to speak are especially selected by them. The victims last week were Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the Premier, and Herbert H. Asquith, Chancellor of the Exchequer. Both these speakers had difficulty in getting a hearing.

Thursday night Herbert Gladstone, Secretary of State for Home Affairs, and David Lloyd-George, President of the Board of Trade, speaking respectively at Leeds and Glasgow, were similarly treated, and a number of the suffragists had to be ejected from the meetings.

Where Is It?

Hamburg, Nov. 23.—The instruments of the seismological station here recorded an earthquake at 9.15 yesterday morning. The disturbance lasted two hours, and was at an estimated distance of 5,600 miles.

No Cars For Petersburg.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 23.—The opening of the electric street railroad lines in this city has been delayed indefinitely owing to the suspension of the credit of the Russian Westinghouse concern.

CAN'T STOP INFLUX.

No Law Against Unemployed From U. S. Coming Here.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—The attention of the officials of the Provincial Immigration Department has been drawn to the reported influx of unemployed from the United States. The difficulty is admitted, reports having been received from London; but no clear way of dealing with it can yet be seen. It has been suggested that a Dominion immigration inspector should be placed at Niagara Falls, but under the present conditions of the immigration law even the presence of such an officer could have little effect in restraining the influx of unemployed from south of the line. As the law stands, only the physically or mentally unfit can be prevented from entering Canada, or deported, no financial qualification being necessary.

Hon. Nelson Monteith regards the problem of dealing with the indigent immigrant as being one of the most serious which the country will have to face this winter. Already the number of unemployed is considerably in excess of what it has been in former years. The lumber business, which usually absorbs a number of men who are prevented by the cold weather from following their usual avocations, will not afford such relief this winter. Owing to the stringency of money there are indications that the lumber cut will be much smaller this year. Already men who are not usually laid off until April are being sent out of the woods.

DEMAND HIGHER WAGES.

Dock Laborers Strike But C. P. R. Refuses Their Terms.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 23.—Shortly after the winter port season opened yesterday morning by the arrival of the Empress of Ireland, the longshoremen of the port struck. They refused to go to work unless the schedule of pay was raised from 30 cents to 40 cents an hour.

This the steamship companies emphatically declare they will never pay.

For some hours work on the big liner was suspended, but when the C. P. R. found the men would not work they put white men of their own to work.

The longshoremen last night met and resolved to stay out unless the increase is granted. As soon as this decision was learned the C. P. R. officials communicated with the head office in Montreal and the reply came to pay all 30 cents and no more.

Capt. Walsh, marine superintendent of the C. P. R., said that there will be no more nonsense with St. John ship laborers who give trouble every year and are never satisfied.

The C. P. R. will bring men direct from England, who will do all their work in future. Feeling in this city is strongly against the men, who, it is evident, are being led by a few disgruntled leaders.

Lemieux Still Waiting.

Tokio, Nov. 23.—Minister of Foreign Affairs Hayashie has been indisposed and unable to meet and confer with Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, the Canadian Minister of Labor, and American Ambassador O'Brien, on the occasion of his regular weekly reception. Pending his recovery and the arrival of Baron Ishii, chief of the bureau of commerce of the Japanese Foreign Office, who is on his way back home from a visit to America, negotiations on the immigration proposition are at a standstill.

Workman Killed on M. C. R.

St. Thomas, Nov. 23.—At 9.20 o'clock Thursday night, Engineer Smith of the M. C. R. found the body of a man lying on the eastbound track about three-quarters of a mile east of Montrose. The body was cut in two, one-half lying outside and the other inside of the rails.

The man was unknown and there was nothing on his person to identify him. The body was given in charge of Dr. Wilson, coroner, of Niagara Falls.

Death List Now Nine.

Kenora, Nov. 23.—But few new details of the terrible dynamite explosion Wednesday in Webster's construction camp, G. T. P. works, near Dryden, are known here. The list of dead is now placed at nine, two having succumbed Thursday afternoon to injuries received in the explosion. Four of the dead men are brothers, by the name of Johnson.

Knocked Down by Horse.

Kingston, Nov. 23—A runaway horse with a portion of a runabout behind him struck an elderly man named Corrigan yesterday afternoon, knocking him down, breaking his collarbone and otherwise injuring him.

Fell From High Windmill.

Forest, Nov. 23.—Daniel Dunham, a highly respected resident of Plympton Township, living on the 12th con., about a mile from Forest, fell from the top of a windmill yesterday morning and died almost instantly.

Burlington, N. J., Nov. 23.—E. B.

Jefferson, a well-to-do grocer, was murdered shortly before midnight on Thursday night, near his home. He was strangled, his body stripped of all valuables, and then placed on the railroad tracks.

HAND SLOWLY BURNED.

Manager of Tripolite Co. Has Terrible Experience.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 23.—After having suffered most excruciating agony since Tuesday morning last, when his hand was burned to a crisp in an accident, John I. Everson, manager of the St. John & Boston Tripolite Co., had the member amputated at the General Public Hospital here yesterday afternoon. Everson's company has leased a lake, seven miles out, a deposit of which is used in making stove lead and other polishes. He has been experimenting there and lived in a shack alone. He got his hand caught in the door of a stove while trying to put some water on a fire, and, before he could withdraw it it was cooked through. His sufferings were agonizing beyond expression, and, becoming dazed with pain, he has not a clear idea of what took place after that. He remembered, however, that just as soon as he got outside the house the flames were shooting through the roof and in very short time the building was in ruins. Everson started to walk to the city, and had actually proceeded two miles on the journey in that condition when he was overtaken by a milkman, who drove him to the hospital. He stood the shock of the operation well, but is now in a serious condition.

ALLEGED FORGED LETTER.

Fire Chief Raymond to Face Still Another Serious Charge.

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Nov. 23.—George Raymond, the blind River fire chief confined in the Soo jail, charged with incendiarism, will have still another charge, a very serious one, to answer when he appears at the Criminal Assizes in December.

Thursday he appeared before Magistrate Elliott on a charge of forgery in connection with the letter which he himself received, dated in October. The letter was signed Thomas and Adelard Oullette, Blind River, who appeared on the charge recently and were dismissed. The letter was in the nature of a suggestion from them, offering Raymond $500 to fire the Terrier building.

The authorities claim Raymond wrote the letter himself, but for what reason is not yet apparent, other than that he wished to divert suspicion from himself upon the Oullette brothers.

Great Foreign Exodus.

New York, Nov. 23.—The exodus of foreign laborers returning to Europe, owing to the shutting down of industries since the financial stringency has reached such proportion that the steamship companies are hard pressed to furnish accommodation for them.

Hundreds of foreigners have been obliged to wait until next week because berths could not be found for them. This week all the big transatlantic lines raised the steerage rate from $21 to $22, but still the demand for tickets has increased. A representative of the steerage department of the Hamburg-American line said that from New York alone the number of foreigners departing weekly was 25,000, and that $5,000,000 was being taken away weekly by these returning immigrants, either in cash or in drafts on foreign countries.

Outgoing steamers are carrying thousands of steerage passengers, and the President Grant, which will sail for Hamburg next Wednesday, will have aboard 3,200 foreigners. They will be largely Russians, Poles and Hungarians.

In the Criminal Assizes.

Toronto, Nov. 23.—William Eccles, a young married man, was convicted in the Criminal Assize Court yesterday of attempting a criminal assault upon a five-year-old girl with whose mother he had been boarding.

Robert Spinks and Hayden O'Brien were discharged by Judge MacMahon yesterday morning. They were charged with assault upon a girl about their own age, 15 years. The judge commented strongly on the evil of parents allowing their children to roam the streets after dark.

Cutting Costs of Radium.

Vienna, Nov. 23.—Great success has attended the experiments to cheapen the cost of the production of radium, which have been made at the imperial academy of sciences of Vienna.

Nearly three grains of radium have been extracted from ten thousand kilos of pitchblend at one-third the cost of previous production.

It was estimated not long ago that an ounce would cost not less than $3,000,000.

Indian Strike Ended.

Calcutta, Nov. 23.—The strike of the employes of the East Indian Railway at Asansol, Bengal, at the junction of the East Indian and Bengal-Nagpur Railway, collapsed yesterday with the summary dismissal of some of the European leaders of the movement.

A number of the engineers promptly resumed work, and traffic which had been at a standstill for a week was re-started.

Terribly Scalded.

Kingston, Nov. 23.—Wade Smith was horribly scalded at the Cotton Mill at noon. He went to the boiler room to eat lunch, and had just seated himself when a pipe broke and boiling steam enveloped him. He was pulled away. His clothes had to be cut off, and with them came steamed flesh. He is now in the hospital in a critical condition. Smith is an Englishman.

Ice-Crusher Damaged.

Quebec, Nov. 23.—The Canadian Government steamship Montcalm, which grounded Thursday at the new Marconi station on the north shore, is now at anchor at Point Amour. She is making water badly.

Kept a Gambling House.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—Denis Charlebois, a Broad street merchant who has a contract for supplies to immigrants, was fined $50 and costs yesterday for keeping a gambling house in connection with his premises.

Forming the Cabinet.

Bloemfontein, Nov. 23.—(C. A. P.)—Fischer is forming a Cabinet, which will probably include Messrs. Dewitt and Herteog.

POSSIBILITY FOR SHIPPING PETERBOROUGH FLOUR TO THE ORIENTAL COUNTRIES

Commissioner to Japan Says The Canadian Flour is The Best—Freight Lowered Between East And West

MANUFACTURE IT CHEAPER

Advantages For The Peterborough Mills—The Japan And China Situation

In the latest issue of the Trade and Commerce Journal, there is an interesting report from Alex. MacLean, Trade Commissioner to Japan, in which he refers to the increasing demand for Canadian flour, and points out the superior quality of our product compared with that of California, Oregon and Washington varieties produced from the wheat grown on the Pacific Coast. Large quantities of Canadian flour has been shipped across to the Orient during the past year, and from present prospects the trade between Canada and the East will develop.

Looking forward, it may be pointed out that with the new freight rates from Ontario to the West, by which the eastern shipper is given a distinct advantage over the shipper in the west, there is a great possibility of a development in the flour trade between Eastern Canada and the Orient.

Local Advantages

The advantages to Peterborough in having such a trade with the east are apparent. The Quaker Oats Company, the Peterborough Cereal Company, and the Central Milling Company, can make flour cheaper than the western mills, by reason of cheaper power and labour. Why should they not take advantage of the cheaper freight rates to the West, which go into effect on Nov. 25th, and ship flour to China and Japan via Vancouver, when there is such a great demand?

The superior quality of Ontario flour, by reason of the fact that it is the product of the blending of Western and Ontario wheat would be much in favour of the desirability of obtaining it in the Orient by the easterners, who are particular in obtaining the best possible brand. Peterborough, being situated in the corner of so many fine farming townships, where the finest of wheat is grown, would be able to ship out from the above mentioned mills large quantities of the best quality of flour.

Good Prospects

The freights being lowered as well as the cost of manufacture, compared to that in Western Canada, Peterborough mills, as well as others in Ontario, should be able to work up a splendid trade with China and Japan, where immense quantities are consumed.

The following is a portion of the report of Mr. MacLean, Trade Commissioner to Japan, dealing with the eastern situation:—

An Australian journalist travelling in China and Japan, points out that 'In a Hong Kong paper it is stated that the steamer 'Empress of Japan' had arrived with a cargo of Manitoba flour for Hong Kong, and that a five-million-dollar order had been placed by a Japanese concern with the Hong Kong Milling Company. It is stated that the reason for the shipment of flour from Canada was not altogether famine conditions in China, but that supplies of wheat from Pacific coast states had been reduced to a minimum, and there was practically no more available for export. With reference to the five-million-dollar order from Japan, Japanese papers indicated that the state of the flour market in Kobe underwent a change last year. When flour milling was in prospect in Japan during the latter part of 1906, importers of flour postponed issuing orders except for pressing demands. Since then the importation of American flour had been affected by the Chinese boycott. The crops in China Owere last year largely a failure, and this created a demand for flour, and further affected stocks in Japan.

Rich Flour Wanted

'Several Australian merchants have been trying to introduce their flour. It is alleged that Australian flour is not sufficiently strong in gluten. The Chinese want a flour rich in gluten rather than rich in starch. Strength is the test for the Chinese purchaser. He does not care for whiteness; in fact, a darker flour more readily suggests strength than does a white, starchy flour. The Chinese trade uses the bulk of its flour for manufacture into flour strings, a sort of macaroni. I have seen these strings, thirty and forty feet long, suspended upon racks for drying. Naturally, a flour rich in starch would not produce a good string. The merchant here buys what in California is known as superfine flour. The flour produced by the Washington mills seems to be better adapted to this market than any other at present coming here. There is some Japanese-made flour being imported into Formosa. It seems to be the product of the Nagasaki roller mills, from American imported wheat. Owing to the increased duty upon foreign manufactured flour, the Japanese product may extend its trade very materially. It may not be many years until the Japanese mills draw upon Manchuria for their wheat.

'As the Manchuria wheat is raised under conditions similar to those of the State of Washington, and is strong in gluten, it is well adapted to the Chinese trade. But, even after the much-talked-of Harbin flour mills are in full operation and after the fields of Manchuria are producing all the wheat they can, there will still be demand for American-made flour. The increasing consumption will certainly allow for enormous increase in the production.

Our Flour the Best

There is a tendency in the Orient, not quite unknown elsewhere, when talking of quantities, to unduly magnify. Such statements as that of the five-million-dollar order from Japan to the Hong Kong mills, as well as the frequently met with reports of shiploads away up in the thousands of tons, from Vancouver, experience teaches, should always be turned over and looked through before using. In other respects, the foregoing newspaper report is interesting and credible. The fact is that California, Oregon and Washington flours, however described, are practically on a level as to quality, all deficient in gluten compared with Canadian flour. Every dealer of any note knows that Canadian flour has the quality that would make its sale easy in this market and on the Asiatic mainland. But unfortunately it has the price that counteracts the going effect of the quality.'

$20 GOLD COIN SAID TO BE CLIPPED BY FOREIGNER IN CITY

A peculiar case has been reported in the city regarding the defacement of a gold coin of the $20 demonination whice is said to have been clipped by some person in Peterborough and within the past few days. The gold coin was first given out by one of the local banks to a foreigner who paid over the twenty dollars in bills required. The coin next showed up, according to report, in one of the express offices which paid out bills in return for it.

The next chapter in the travelling of the gold money-piece shows the coin in another of the banks where it was noticed that a corner of it had been shaved off. The money was traced to the first bank in question, the teller of which remembered giving it in good condition to the same foreigner who took it to the express office. The express office teller took the coin to the other bank in the same condition in which it was received there to find that there was about 30 cents worth of gold missing. There may be an investigation made to see through whose hands the money piece passed after it left the bank and before it reached the express office when it was found to be defaced.

BOY KILLS A HORSE WITH AN AXE

Strikes It On the Head In a Local Livery Barn and Watches The Blood Ebb Away

HE CONFESSES HIS GUILT

A horse belonging to a man named Craig, which was entrusted to the care of a local boarding stable, was killed last week while the owner of the stable was at lunch. When the proprietor returned he found the horse lying down in its stall and its head was a mass of blood. An axe that belonged to the barn was found beside the horse, the blade all smeared with blood, and it was very evident that the horse had been killed by someone.

The stable hands were all questioned on their return from dinner, but no information could be obtained except that one of the liverymen left a young lad in charge of the stable when he went away.

After school the boy came back to the stable and immediately made

"EATING HIM RIGHT UP"

Examiner Special

Toronto, Nov. 23.—Reports from the big walking contest, now in full swing, show that David Hartley, the walking wonder of Peterborough, is ahead of the Port Hope barber, Jimmie Reynolds, by — laps at 4 o'clock. The first bulletin message was received from Mr. Geo. Stevens, who is spending the day at the Mutual street rink with Hartley, at 12 o'clock, which stated that the Peterough man had walked six miles and one lap in the first hour. At the same time Reynolds was two laps behind, having gone five miles and fourteen laps. Mr. Stevens' exact words were, "Our man is eating him right up." The judges were very much taken up with Hartley's stride stating that he was capable of walking before a New York or London, Eng., audience.

On the other hand, they were inclined to consider Reynolds' step not exactly on the square. He used his toe some times instead of the heel and toe, and the judges, Mr. Stevens said, were talking about straightening out matters.

The message at 1.30 o'clock showed Hartley in advance by three laps, and that he had travelled nine and a half

The next chapter in the travelling of the gold money-piece shows the coin in another of the banks where it was noticed that a corner of it had been shaved off. The money was traced to the first bank in question, the teller of which remembered giving it in good condition to the same foreigner who took it to the express office. The express office teller took the coin to the other bank in the same condition in which it was received there to find that there was about 30 cents worth of gold missing. There may be an investigation made to see through whose hands the money piece passed after it left the bank and before it reached the express office when it was found to be defaced.

DOMESTIC INFELICITIES AIRED IN THE POLICE COURT; CARES OF A HUSBAND AND WIFE

Sorrowful Tale of Troubles of a Family — Magistrate Urges a Reconciliation

LITTLE CHILD 6 MOS. OLD

Troubles Appear To Be Caused by a Boy—Some Of The Evidence Was Peculiar

The case of William McCrea, the brakesman, who was charged with the non-support of his wife and child, was heard behind closed doors yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock, before Magistrate Dumble. The case was a sad one. The Magistrate urged the couple before he put either of them in the witness box, to go home and try and get along together for the sake of the little child, which is scarcely six months old. His Worship said that every family had its little rackets but if the young couple would only look at things in a Christian-like way he felt sure that this disagreeable charge could be avoided. The wife was quite willing to live with her husband for the baby's sake alone, but McCrea said he would not live the life he led before for anything. His Worship then went on with the case.

Mrs. McCrea was the first on the stand and told the story of the life she had been living since her marriage. Tears were seen stealing their way down her care-worn face as she related some of her experiences. She told the court that she was married to McCrea in Lindsay, on the 27th of April, 1901. Her husband moved to Toronto to take a position on the Toronto-Port Hope run, and of course she also moved there. She said that she left home three or four times on account of the abuse administered by her husband. The last time she left him was five months ago, a month after the child was born. Her reason for leaving was that she desired a little fresh air and wanted to come home to her people in Peterborough. She said she was away a week when she went down to meet her husband's train, and he refused to have anything to do with her, but said he would take care of the child, which she refused. Another time he said that he would have her arrested. The witness told of another time she went to see him and he hid in the train. She then went to Toronto to the boarding house where she was staying, but was refused an interview. She told the court that she was in poor health and that the child and she were depending on her father for a living. Her father, according to her statement is a poor man, and had told her that she would have to leave. He objected to her coming in the first place.

To Mr. Gordon the woman said the clothes on her were borrowed. She said she had given money to a John Christie and he had stayed with her in Lindsay for a week. She bought him an overcoat last winter. She confessed that on parting she had told her husband that she would not be bossed by the best man that ever walked. She also stated that while here the last time she received $15 a month in advance, $10 of which she paid for board. Mr. Gordon produced a bill with two $1 men's shirts on it; these went to Christie.

Husband's Evidence

Mr. Crea was next on the stand. He said his life was not as good as that of a dog's, and he told the story of his married life from beginning to end. "I married her as she stated," he began. "My first run was between Lindsay and Toronto, and as soon as her people left Lindsay she wanted to come to Peterborough. At the time of our marriage she brought to live with us a John Christie, whom she says was her brother. I left him alone, until one day the truant officer came and wanted me to send him to school, but I decided to send him home. We went down to see him off, and as the train started the lad jumped off. While down at the station I heard some remarks that changed my mind about John Christie. He proved to be a son of my wife, and not her brother. I never knew this before I was married.

"When my run was changed to the Toronto-Port Hope line we removed to Toronto. While there, she accused me of frequenting houses of ill-fame and of going with a woman on Sackville street, keeping a wife in Port Hope besides, saying I flirted with women up and down on the train. My wife told me in the presence of witnesses that she would provoke me until I hit her, and that then she would get support money from me. I remember carrying a letter to her mother here. I opened it on the road and it contained ten dollars, four for her mother and six for John Christie. I went all last winter without an overcoat, while Christie was wearing an overcoat my wife bought for me.

"While my wife was sick we had a nurse for five weeks and a doctor when needed. She told me that if I did not hand her over the money she would make the cost of living the amount I earned, which is $14 a month. One day she went into hysterics, and I had to get a doctor for her. I have done everything in my power to make her happy."

Once again the magistrate tried to unite the couple in a friendly way, but this failed.

He next asked the husband if he would give $3 a week for the keep of the child. This he refused to do, but would place the child in a good home.

The decision was left over for another week.

Woman Sharpening Knife on a Wall Meets With Accident

An accident was reported from the south end of the city this afternoon. From the meagre story that was told it happened just across the city's boundary in North Monaghan. A woman was sharpening a knife on the cement wall at the back of a house, and while so engaged turned towards one of the children. In doing so the knife slipped and struck one of her legs above the knee, resulting in an ugly flesh wound.

REPRESENTATIVE RESPONSIBILITY

At the Board of Trade banquet on Wednesday night, the Mayor, in responding to the toast of "Our Municipal Institutions" is reported as saying, in reference to representation, that "there were too many "knockers" with the result that the best men were sometimes not found on the City Council." In the correctness of the latter part of this statement there will be, perhaps, some acquiescence; but the remark taken as a whole is an excellent sample of the post hoc, propter hoc form of argument—of putting the cart before the horse. Is it not the fact that the "knocking" comes as a legitimate consequence of inefficient service? If good men occupied positions in a city, as other council, and did their duty with efficiency there would be no dissatisfaction except from "crank" quarters which will always exist, under the best conditions, and can well be ignored. There would at least be no justifiable "knocking." True councillors and aldermen, even the best of them, might make occasional mistakes, such as could be over-looked. But aldermen who make blunders not sporadic, but epidemic, in character, should be prepared for criticism, which cannot be forestalled or discounted by appeals for leniency in banquet oratory. The people elect representatives to do their business and such representatives cannot ignore their accountability; if they do well they are open to approbation and if they neglect their trust they should not resent adverse criticism. A similar responsibility, attaches to a civic representative and to an employee in a private capacity. The circumstance of a civic representative receiving no remuneration does not alter the situation; he seeks the position, even strives for it, with full knowledge of the conditions. In accepting the responsibility he binds himself in honour to do his duty faithfully.

It is the duty of a civic representation to spend the money of the people to the best advantage, to the highest benefit of the people. In proportion as he does this is he to be commended, and in proportion as he fails, is he to be condemned. Every good citizen pays his taxes willingly or unwillingly — will loyally, as a rule, if he has a prospect of receiving reasonable value and reasonably good civic service in return; unwillingly if he feels that the public money to which he contributes a share is being, or will be, wasted.

And an immense amount of money is wasted in Peterborough from lack of system and through an indifference which sometimes assumes an almost criminal intensity. Yet aldermen cry "knocking" if attention is called to their short-comings, which cannot be palliated on the score of ignorance, but which are to be regarded as the result of sheer neglect or incapacity.

Aldermen are prone to complain when they are held to their responsibility, but the Board of Works, of which the Mayor is the head, and regarded as the ruling spirit, is an example of exacting the pound of flesh in the way of responsibility. The Romaine street sewer muddle, is due to the fault of one man or several men; and who is to blame is still a matter of investigation. Until the responsibility is fixed there can probably be no just punishment inflicted. But the Board of Works has administered Jedburg justice—hanging a man and trying him afterwards. The Board of Works visited the sewer; inspected the sewer through seven or eight feet of earth; decided that there was something wrong with the laying of the pipes, and discharged the pipe-layer on the spot. Mr. Anthony, the pipe-layer, may be as innocent of wrong doing in the laying of pipes as his saintly prototype was in the matter of moral turpitude. British law assumes the innocence of an accused till he is proven guilty. Now we have the Board of Works inflicting the severest penalty in its power, and then gravely setting to work to find out who is really guilty of the crime for which Louis Anthony has been punished.

The Romaine street sewer is not the only specimen of incapacity exhibited by the Board of Works, which does not temper punishment with mercy, or even knowledge of guilt. Evidence of incapacity is distributed broad-cast throughout nearly every street of the city, and only a concrete example need be cited to illustrate a general condition. At a meeting of the city council, the Board of Works was ordered to repair and grade—not degrade, as has been done — Gilmour street from Park to St. Joseph street; and with what result? The order of the council has been ignored, and only half of the stretch of street to have been improved, has been touched. After spending a large amount of ratepayers' money, the street has been left in a worse condition that it was before the work of bungle was undertaken. Before the Board of Works laid its destroying hand on this stretch of street, there was some show for the surface water oozing its way into the Park street drain. Now the street has been covered with gravel, so disposed as to form a most effective dam on both sides of the street, with the result that the coating of gravel put on at a large expense, is an absolute injury, as it holds back the water, and is full of mudholes, after the lapse of only a month or two. Here is an example of absolute waste of public money, and positive injury to the property holders, and the public, who use the street. It would have been a greater benefit if the money spent had been, rather, sunk in the deepest depths of the Romaine street sewer, in company with a lot of other public money sunk there. City streets are for the use of the ratepayers, with comfort, safety and satisfaction, and any money spent that does not produce such results, or any disturbance or digging up with improper filling of excavations, is absolutely and literally wasted.

But, the instance mentioned is not all—not the only way that public money has been wasted on this street. The city has adopted the principle of doing its own work, to show contractors that they will not be allowed to rob the city, with exorbitant charges and bad work. Among other things the city has undertaken to put in sewer services, and no contractor since the days of Noah, has ever shown a greater disregard of the interests of the city, or of economy. Within the week the city has put in a sewer service at 470 Gilmour street. The street was dug up, and the trench filled in, without the slightest attempt at tamping, so that there is a heap of mud a foot high, left to develop into a slough with wet weather, and constitute a still higher dam to hold back the water, and ruin the adjacent road-bed. There is no excuse for such extravagant waste of public money. If, as the result of the expenditure of money the street had been placed in a good condition last October, the city would have destroyed it at this point by the sloppy condition it was left in by the sewer service staff. Alongside the sewer is a mud heap left from a gas service, not quite so bad, but bad enough. And what could be expected? If the city leaves its trenches in such a condition, is it to be expected that a private corporation will do any better? The Gas Company is not responsible for the waste of public money. There is no excuse for either ignorance of the conditions on the street, or from difficulty of doing the work properly. Both the Mayor and the Chairman of the Board of Works are known to have passed over this stretch of street, and must, if they had not shut their eyes, have seen how the work was—not done. The Machine Telephone Company, and the Bell Telephone Company have shown that trenches can be opened and filled level with a street surface. The latter, within a month or so, have laid long stretches of conduit, and now one cannot distinguish the line of trenches, so well was the work done? Why can't the city do as well, and compel others to do as well? Simply because it is not done, either through neglect, or contempt for public opinion, or disregard of public interests, or indifference to the expenditure of the people's money.

This street, and these conditions, are cited as types of similar streets and conditions throughout the city. And yet the authorities, for the time being, after such an exhibition of incapacity, complain if the ratepayers, who are only anxious to receive reasonable value from the expenditure of their money, in turn voice their complaints—and demand a proper fulfilment of the contract aldermen virtually enter into when they accept the position of civic representatives, and membership of civic committees.

Are the people unreasonable in holding representatives to their responsibility? If they do so, should they be accused of "knocking?"

NEW RINK FOR NORTH END OF CITY

Boys of Grace Church Will Build One This Season

Peterborough is to have another open-air skating rink this year. The boys of the Grace Church Sunday School on Barnardo avenue are busy at work now constructing a rink in front of the church and will have everything in shape by the time Jack Frost begins to get in his fine work. The sidewalk running through the property has been moved to one side in order to leave plenty of room for the ice. Mr. J. J. Hartley is assisting the boys in the enterprise, and his aid is being much appreciated. He has supplied the youngsters with the poles for the instaling of electric lights, and in other ways is assisting them. The rink will no doubt be well patronized this winter.

MAKE NEW BLOOD

This is What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do—That is why They Cure so Many Diseases

When persons have not enough blood, or when their blood is weak and watery, the doctors name the trouble anaemia. Bloodlessness is the direct cause of many common diseases, such as indigestion, palpitation of the heart, debility, decline, neuralgia, nervousness, rheumatism and consumption. The surest signs of poor blood are paleness, bluish lips, cold hands and feet, general weakness, low spirits and headaches and backaches. If anaemia is not checked in time it will probably develop into consumption. There is one certain cure for anaemia—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills actually make new, rich, red blood, which fills the veins and brings new life, new energy and good health to bloodless people. In proof of this Miss Mabel Clendenning, Niagara Falls, Ont., says: "For two years I suffered from anaemia, I was weak thin, had no appetite; I sometimes had distressing headaches and felt low spirited. My heart would palpitate violently; I could do no work around the house; I became very pale and my nerves got unstrung. The efforts of two good doctors failed to help me. I was in such a pitiful state. One day a friend urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I did so. Soon I saw the pills were helping me and by the time I had taken five boxes I was completely cured. I had a good appetite; gained in weight, I hadn't an ache or pain, could sleep well and I am in far better health now than I ever was. I cannot speak too highly of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for Miss Clendenning they have done for thousands—they will do for you. But you must get the genuine with the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. If your dealer has not got the genuine pills you can get them at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

Piles Make Life Wretched

It is a mistake to imagine that the effects of piles are only local, for, as a matter of fact they sap the vitality of mind and body, and slowly lead to the ruination of health. Dr. Chase's Ointment brings almost instant relief from the itching, burning, and stinging sensations of piles, and is a thorough and positive cure for every form of this wretched, torturing and oftentimes, stubborn disease.

BABY SMILES

One mother happily expressed her opinion of Baby's Own Tablets when she said, "There's a smile in every dose." In homes where the Tablets are used, there are no cross, fretful sickly children. The Tablets make children well and keep them well. They cure indigestion, colic, constipation, diarrhoea, teething troubles and all the other minor ailments of childhood. They can be given with absolute safety to the new born child, for the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that the Tablets do not contain one particle of opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Is not such a guarantee worth something to you mother? The Tablets are sold by all medicine dealers or may be had from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., at 25 cents a box.

New Justice of the Peace Had Method of His Own.

He was a farmer who had been elected a justice of the peace, and his first case was that of a man charged with stealing a hog.

"Your honor," began the lawyer for the plaintiff, "what we are going to prove is that a hog belonging to Farmer Brown got out of the pen and wandered on to the lands of the defendant and there got hung in a fence, and the defendant seized him and converted him to his own use."

"Was it a still night?" asked his honor.

"I think it was."

"How long was the hog hang in the fence?"

"Probably fifteen minutes."

"And who heard him squealing?"

"We have no evidence as to that."

"Then the case is dismissed. If that 'ere hog had been caught in that 'ere fence and held fast, even I would have heard his squealing, and I live seven miles away. You may know all about law, sir, but you can't convince this court that you know the first durn thing about hogs."—Chicago News.

BEER IS GOOD TO ENRICH THE BLOOD

PEOPLE who drink good beer with their meals can't be anaemic—thin-blooded.

Because beer, so drank, actually supplies the food elements that make the blood rich. Also beer assists the stomach in getting all the good possible out of all the food that enters it.

Put aside prejudice and leave just how good for almost every adult good beer really is.

YOU CAN EASILY OPERATE THIS TYPEWRITER YOURSELF

Don't worry your correspondent.

Don't write him anything by hand that takes him time to make out—that may leave him in doubt, that he can't easily read.

And don't fill out legal papers or card memos—or make out accounts or hotel menus in your own handwriting.

It looks bad, reflects on your standing, makes people think you can't afford a stenographer, and is sometimes ambiguous.

You can write out your letters—make out an abstract—fill in an insurance policy—enter your card memo—make out your accounts, or hotel menus—or do any kind of writing you need, on any kind, size or thickness of paper, and spa any way you want on

The OLIVER Typewriter

The Standard Visible Writer

You can write any of these things yourself if you do not happen to have a stenographer.

For you can easily learn with a little practice to write just as rapidly, and as perfectly as an expert operator on the Oliver. Because the Oliver is the simplified typewriter. And you can see every word you write. About 50% more durable than any other typewriter, because it has about 50% less wearing points than most other typewriters.

50% easier to write with than these other complicated, intricate machines that require "humoring"—technical knowledge—long practice and special skill to operate.

Then machines which cannot be adjusted to any special space—with which it is impossible to write abstracts, insurance policies, or odd-size documents except you buy expensive special attachments requiring expert to operate.

You can adjust the Oliver to any reasonable space—you can write on any reasonable size and thickness of paper, right out to the very edge, without the aid of any expensive attachment or special skill, and your work will be neat appearing, legible and clear.

For the Oliver is the typewriter for the doctor the lawyer, the insurance agent, the merchant the hotel proprietor—or any man that does his own writing.

The Town Clock.

[Original.]

A group of citizens stood in the market place of Schramberg, in the Black forest, looking up at the clock in the church tower.

"It has stopped," said one.

"No, but the hands move at a snail's pace," said another.

"I have been standing here fully ten minutes," said a third, "and can't detect the slightest change."

"And I have watched it for an hour," said a fourth. "The long hand shows a gain of two and a half minutes."

"When was the change noticed?"

"At 12 o'clock midnight. It has not struck the hour since."

"Let me see—two and a half minutes to the hour. At that rate the minute hand would sweep the dial in twenty-four hours. The clock registers but an hour a day."

From a little shop near by old Rothbols, the watchmaker, glanced out of his window at the group, shook his head at them, then turned and resumed his work. The day before his son had come to him, wringing his hands.

"Oh, father," he exclaimed, "Cicily has been condemned! Old Mother Gault swore that she had seen her with her own eyes vomiting crooked pins."

"What! That innocent girl condemned for witchcraft on the testimony of that hag?"

"Yes, and she is to be burned at the stake in three days. Oh, father, help! We are betrothed!"

The youngster, still in his teens, had not ceased to rely on his father for everything. The old man scratched his head and gave himself up to deep thought. Presently he said, "I cannot prevent this tragedy, but I may delay it."

"How?" asked the boy eagerly.

"You know, my son, that the clock in the church tower, which I made and about which no one except myself knows anything, is the legal time in the village—that I, the town clerk as well as watchmaker, keep the legal calendar and keep it by the clock. If I stop the clock I stop the village time, but in that case they would adopt another standard. I will make the hands go very slowly. This will delay the execution, and something may happen to save the girl."

In the middle of the night the old man went up into the tower and changed the clock's rate to one hour in twenty-four. Cicily could not be legally burned for more than two months.

The group standing in the market place after further discussion moved together to old Rothbols's shop, told him that the clock had nearly stopped and he must fix it. "Don't bother your heads about the clock," he said; "it will go well enough in time." "When?" "After the girl who was condemned yesterday has been burned." "What has that to do with it?" "I don't know. I only know that the clock, which has kept perfect time ever since it was set up in the tower, has suddenly gone wrong." "Nonsense!" exclaimed most of the party, and they went away.

The old man insisted that he could not fix the clock, though, to satisfy the authorities, he pretended to try. In a few days the burghers, finding a new subject of interest, ceased to talk about the clock. A week later Antoine Hecker presented a note that was due to Karl Becker for payment. Becker declared that he would pay it when the town clock should say the time for payment had expired. Hecker went to Rothbols and asked for a certificate to that effect. Hecker declared that by the village time the note was not due. The result was a quarrel between the debtor and the creditor. Then came a widow who wished to marry again. By the terms of her late husband's will she would lose everything he had left her if she married before a certain date. The date had expired, but the legal town time said that it had not. The clerk said it was his duty to keep the calendar by the clock. He could do nothing. The judge ordered him before the court and to fix the clock or keep the calendar by another timepiece. The town clerk refused to break the law, and the judge had no power to compel him to do so.

As the days and weeks elapsed the condition of the people of the village became more irritating. They quarreled about the time to go to bed, to get up, for meals. The children would not go to school till the clock struck the hour. Nobody would go to church because there was no knowing when they should go. Those who had watches tyrranized over those who had not and quarreled among themselves as to whose watch was right. At last the hubbub was so great that it became intolerable. A committee waited on the town clerk and begged him to fix the clock or break the law, promising him immunity.

"Not I," he said. "I believe that heaven shows its displeasure through the clock for the condemnation of a pure young girl for witchcraft."

When this was repeated to the judge he called the court together and reopened the trial of the condemned Cicily. Antoine Hecker, who was anxious to get his money from his creditor, having heard that the clock would not go properly till Cicily was acquitted, swore that the night before he had seen her accuser sailing by moonlight on the river in a sieve. All the dissatisfied people in the village supported his testimony. Cicily was acquitted, and the old woman was condemned to be burned in her stead.

That night at midnight the old clock struck the hour and thenceforth recorded the time correctly.

CHARLOTTE BOND HILL.

The Baby in the Sieve.

Among the fellahin of Egypt, mystic land of pyramid and mummy, no man, not even Philip my king's own daddy, may look upon the new little arrival until the seventh day. Upon that morning the baby is placed in a sieve and carried through the house in a procession twinkling with smiles and lighted tapers, the wicked spirits whose curiosity may have been excited by his lordship's advent pushed into the background of life by discreet graft of grain and salt scattered along the triumphant route. Twice the procession passes in solemn purpose, first to shake the sieve, thus insuring—with lusty wails no doubt—that the wee rider shall prove a fearless man, and, second, to hold the blinking cherub up to the sun to sharpen his eyes. After this he makes his first bow to the paternal presence. He is christened by the cadi sucking a stick of sugar candy and allowing the drawn out sweetness to trickle from his mouth into the open sesame of the surprised youngster, after which the cadi pronounces the given name.

SHORN LAMBS.

Ways of the Men Who Lose Their All in Wall Street.

What becomes of the men who lose in Wall street. They are seldom heard of. The visitor to New York gets the notion that the gay crowd of men at the Waldorf—the "uptown 'street'"—comprises them all. But this crowd is altogether misrepresentative and has no true sign value, says a writer on Wall street in the New Broadway Magazine.

You can retain your equilibrium easily in watching them by remembering that Runner of New Britain is hiding somewhere, a fugitive from justice; that Jumper of Milwaukee is in prison; that there are many other men who went down hard with big crashes, and that for every one of the big men there are 10,000 little men whose losses are smaller, but not a whit less fatal.

You would find some of them tonight in New York, if you knew in what window to look, figuring anxiously and endlessly, looking over insurance papers to see if further loans are admissible.

Their wives are sewing; their daughters are studying stenography. You will find others hanging about hotel lobbies, and the moment you catch their eye or grip their hands you know that they are nervous, distraught, broke, restless—typical Wall street victims.

The others, professionals, parasites, satellites, winners, you will find in the cafes and hotel restaurants, making up a large part of the crowds at Sherry's and Delmonico's; Martin's and Rector's, the Waldorf, Manhattan, Astor, St. Regis and Holland House. Wall street by day demands the Great White Way at night. From the moment the market opens till its close the game is a fast and furious one of sharp trickery, clever dodging, raillery, bluffing, hypocrisy, lying.

Nerves are constantly tense; the brain must be clear and quick at every move. Successful lying uses up gray matter, and the flash and festivity of the Tenderloin at night are just unnatural enough to fit in and offer the kind of recreation desired.

Shooting Fish.

The shooting fish is a native of the East Indies. It has a hollow cylindrical beak. When it spies a fly sitting on the plants that grow in shallow water, with remarkable dexterity it ejects out of a tubular mouth a single drop of water, which seldom misses its aim, and, striking the fly into the water, the fish makes it its prey.

No Ability To Digest Food

NERVOUS SYSTEM SO EXHAUSTED THAT THE VITAL ORGANS ARE FEEBLE IN ACTION

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food

The digestive system is a wonderful piece of machinery, but power is necessary to make it effective.

In this case the power is the nerve force contained in the body, and if the nerve force is lacking the digestive system becomes crippled and there is suffering from indigestion nervous headaches, neuralgic pains, dizzy spells, weakness and discouragement.

Strength cannot be regained from the food you eat so long as digestion is so imperfect, but you can be restored by Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, which contains in condensed pill form the very elements of nature which go to form new nerve force.

Overwork, worry, anxiety and excessive mental effort exhaust the nervous system at a tremendous rate, and repair must be made before some dreadful form of nervous disease sets in. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food invigorates the nerves which control the digestive fluids, sharpens the appetite, is slightly laxative, so as to encourage the action of the bowels and strengthens every organ of the body.

You can see this treatment feeling certain that every dose is doing you at least some good, and can prove it by noting your increase in weight.

Mrs. M A Sharp, 346 Dublin street, Peterborough, Ont., states: "For some years I was troubled with indigestion which developed into nervous dyspepsia and besides suffering from nervousness, dizzy spells would come over me. Hearing of the good results obtained from Dr. Chase's Nerve Food I decided to try it. After a pretty thorough test of this medicine I can say that I never used anything that did me so much good. It seemed to be the very treatment that I needed and as a result of the use I am quite restored to health."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 boxes for $2.50, at all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Toronto.

UNIQUE AND RARE ANIMAL.

The Okapi, Only Once Seen Alive by a White Man.

An illustration is here given of a remarkable animal called the okapi, which was first discovered by Sir Harry Johnston on the eastern border of the Congo Forest. It had never been observed and studied by a white man in its living state until five months ago, when a young calf okapi about a month old was obtained by Signor Ribotti at Bambilli, on the Evelle River. The okapi is a hybrid of the zebra, being observable coming out in the stripes on his legs, while it has the head and hoofs of the antelope.

Sir Ray Lankester, the eminent naturalist, commenting on this strange animal in The Illustrated London News, from a photograph in which our illustration is taken, says that "the skins and bones of the okapi which have been sent home have invariably been obtained by travelers from natives. No sportsman or naturalist has shot an okapi, or even seen one alive. The half-breed servant of Lieut. Boyd Alexander saw and tracked for two days with natives an okapi on the Ewelle River, near the spot from which the photograph comes.

The natives dug a pit-trap for it and speared it. Boyd Alexander did not see it until it was dead. The skin is mounted in the Natural History Museum side by side with Sir Harry Johnston's specimen, and with another fine specimen obtained by Major Powell-Cotton from natives, but not seen by him in the living state. The timidity of the okapi, its rarity, and the remoteness of the Congo forest, the fringes of which it inhabits, are the reasons why the white men have hitherto not seen the okapi alive.

Special interest therefore attaches to Signor Ribotti's photograph. This young calf was brought in by natives to the stockaded and well-provided settlement at Bambilli last April. It was about a month old, and between two and three feet high. After living a few weeks in captivity it died, but it is not at all improbable that a live specimen will before long be sucessfully managed, and make its appearance in the London Zoological Gardens. The difficulty will be to find vegetable food which will suit the peculiar taste of this forest-dwelling ruminant, with its small, delicate front teeth, suited only to cropping young and soft vegetation." The name which has been conferred upon the animal by Mr. Ray Lankester is Okapia Johnstone, Sir Henry Johnston having sent home the first specimen in 1901.

Baboon on a Wreck.

A remarkable story comes from Quilty, County Clare, Ireland, concerning the wreck of the Leon XIII. The inhabitants of the neighborhood for some nights were thrown into a state of the wildest alarm by unearthly howls and shrieks heard from the direction of the wreck of the French ship. Some ten days had elapsed since the crew were rescued from the ship, and, though it seemed incredible, yet it was thought that somebody had been left behind on the wreck. Eventually a courageous fisherman named Michael O'Dowd determined to probe the mystery and find the cause of the disturbance. He launched his "coracle" and started for the wreck. Nearing the place where the remains of the Leon XIII. lay half-submerged, O'Dowd perceived what he thought was a wild-looking man making frantic gestures. O'Dowd, nothing daunted, pulled for the wreck and brought his boat alongside, when, to his astonishment, he discovered a fully-developed baboon, which at once jumped into his boat to escape from the wreck that had held it prisoner. He took the baboon ashore, and it was well cared for by Mr. George Casey, of Quilty. It is believed that the baboon was a pet of the French crew, and was forgotten in the confusion of escaping, and it had managed to sustain life for the past week on the wreck.

Perpetual Motion.

No man has ever made and never will make a machine that will go perpetually. The "going" of the machine implies a steady loss (to the particular machine) of stored up power, and it is only a question of time for the power to run out, when the machine will of necessity have to stop. But in a deeper sense there is nothing but perpetual motion. The motion of the thing that stops is imparted to something else, and so on ad infinitum. By the law of the conservation of force motion is indestructible and must therefore be perpetual.

Physiology Up to Date.

After a lesson on digestion the teacher, anxious to know just how much her instruction had been understood, questioned the class. The first answer was rather discouraging, as the girl called upon made this startling statement:

"Digestion begins in the mouth and ends in the big and little testament."

It was the same teacher who received the following note:

"Pleas teacher do not tel Mary any more about her incides it makes her so proud."

Roaring Wags.

Specialists modern scientists are bound to be. But they are not the shriveled specimens so often pictured by the man in the street, all cold intellect and devotion to the pursuit of an abstract idea. They know how to play. Like other men, they are gregarious and play together.

The Red Lion club was composed of great Englishmen, and Huxley was one of the members. The club used to meet during the session of the British association. To a certain meeting at Ipswich, England, which Huxley described in his "Letters," some foreigners were invited, the Prince of Canino, Bonaparte's nephew, among them, and greatly astonished they were at the exceedingly human behavior of the learned professors. The Red Lion men had a custom of roaring instead of cheering and of wagging one coat tail—the lion's tail—when applauding. The prince was much impressed by these proceedings, and when he stood up to respond to the toast of his health instead of making a speech he gave three mighty roars and three wags.—Youth's Companion.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES.

Brooms which are regularly scalded and dipped will last much longer and do cleaner work. They should be kept in a bag when not in use.

To keep your favorite cookbook open at the right page use a band of elastic an inch wide. When not in use you may strap it around the closed book.

A quick and simple way to mend tinware is to paste a thick piece of brown paper over the hole with a flour paste. Hot water poured upon this will harden it. When burned off it can easily be replaced.

To save the great toe of the foot wearing through the hose too quickly cut a piece of chamois and shape it to fit over the toe by sewing two pieces together in a manner similar to a child's moccasin.

A window shade which has become cracked or soiled at the lower end should be removed from the roller and turned upside down. Tack the lower end to the roller, run a hem in the upper end and replace the stick.

General careful treatment of the hair will soon restore its life and luster. When the hair becomes dry and dead looking it is usually suffering from too frequent shampooing or an improper manner of renovating. Brushing for ten or fifteen minutes every night will act as a splendid stimulant.

A homemade variation of the popular tea ball is a small cheesecloth bag about an inch and a half square. When the tea is put in, the open end is sewed or gathered with a drawstring and the bag placed in the cup. Boiling water is poured in and the bag removed when the tea is of the required strength. Each bag is emptied and dried before being again used.

Saving the Boiler.

When the boiler is dried and ready to put away after the week's wash set it on the stove and while hot rub it all over the inside and around the seams with laundry soap. It prevents rusting, and the boiler will keep new and last very much longer. All the soap is not lost, either, as it is dissolved in the water for the next week's wash.—Harper's Bazar.

CLEVER LOCAL COMPOSER AND VOCAL TEACHER

The Toronto Globe contains the following appreciative notice of a vocal recital given in that city, by Mr. Henry J. Lautz, principal teacher of the vocal department of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music, at which the programme consisted entirely of Mr. Lautzs own compositions.

It might be considered almost a daring innovation for a local artist to give a recital wholly devoted to his own compositions, but Mr. Henry J. Lautz on Saturday evening at the Conservatory of Music justified the experiment. His programme of songs for tenor, contralto and soprano, and solos for piano, was full of interest, and it is a matter of congratulation that Toronto possesses so accomplished a creative musician. Mr. Lautz's music is always refined; it reveals imagination and taste; the accompaniment work is suggestive and sparkling, often Chopinesque. In his love songs, Mr. Lautz is often engagingly tender. Mr. Lautz opened the programme with settings of six Heine songs, which, while varied in style, all showed features of distinction. They were rendered by Mr. Lautz with effective contrast and with genuine musical style and expression. He closed the recital with three songs, entitled,—"In Church," "Ne'er do well," and "Dance Song," which so greatly took the fancy of the audience that the singer-composer was recalled and responded with 'Darling, with Thy lips so tender." Miss Caldwell, solo pianist played with brilliant technic, Mr. Lautz's "Valse Caprice," and his Etude in G flat major. The former of these she had to repeat, so insistent was the applause, the composer himself being called to the stage. Mme. Bessie Bonsall, contralto and Miss Caldwell, soprano, sang attractively several numbers with sympathetic appreciation of the music, and were given a most cordial recognition of their efforts. Mr. W. H. Hewlett accompanied the singers with great skill and judgment.

The honour of moving the adoption of the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne has been conferred on Mr. R. R. Hall, M.P., for West Peterborough. SERVICES AT THE ARMY BARRACKS

Mrs. Major Simcoe, Toronto, Will Speak This Evening and To-morrow

An interesting feature of the services in connection with the Salvation Army Barracks, to-night and to-morrow, will be the presence of Mrs. Major Simcoe, a member of the editorial staff of the War Cry. Major Simcoe, thirteen years ago, was the pioneer Salvation Army officer in Quebec, and she will, at one of the services to-morrow, deal with her experiences in the sister province. The subject of her three addresses to-morrow will be, morning, "Higher Level Life"; in the afternoon, "Memories of Quebec," and in the evening, "The Last Speaker." By virtue of her ability, zeal and services to the cause the Army has at heart, Major Simcoe occupies a very prominent position. She is an excellent, earnest and effective speaker, and no doubt an unusually large number will accept the opportunity of hearing her to-night and to-morrow.

First City Dance of Chemong Yacht Club a Great Success

About Seventy-five Couples Were Present at The Assembly in The Conservatory Hall Last Night—A Most Enjoyable Function

PERFECT ARRANGEMENTS

The dance under the auspices of the Chemong Yacht Club, last night in the Conservatory of Music Hall, was a most successful affair in every way, indicating that the members of the club are as good entertainers in the winter months, as they are in their summer quarters. The arrangements were so perfect that the affair was one of the most enjoyable of its kind in years, and great credit is reflected upon the committee which had the function in hand. It was the first dance of the yacht club in the city, and it is hoped by those who were present last night that it may be made a periodical event.

The Hall was decorated for the occasion with the flags of the Yacht Club and with the pennants won at the different regattas, and, as the club has been very successful in sailing events, there was no lack of material for decorative effects. The Kawartha Lakes challenge cup, won by Mr. A. A. Hollingshead, in the sensational race last summer, was on exhibition and attracted much attention.

The floor was in excellent condition and the seventy-five couple present were a unit in praising the arrangements. The orchestra of the Grand Opera House supplied the music for the occasion and their playing was much enjoyed. Delightful refreshments were supplied by Coleman Bros.

The committee which had charge of the arrangements, and to whom the credit for the success of the affair is due, was as follows: Messrs. T. F. Matthews, commodore, chairman; W. S. Davidson, secretary; C. Barber, F. Sawers, Howard Hopwood and Milne Hamilton.

The patronesses for the affair were Mrs. T. H. G. Denne, Mrs. Alex Elliott, Mrs. W. R. Hartshorn, Mrs. T. A. S. Hay, Mrs. L. M. Hayes, Mrs W. J. Hopwood, Mrs. D. Hughes Charles, Mrs. T. F. Matthews and Mrs. (Dr.) Young.

DEPARTING ENGLISHMAN IS GIVEN A MUSICAL FAREWELL

Lawrence Halcrow, a young Englishman who is returning to his native home on a visit, was bid an unusual farewell last night after midnight at the C.P.R. station. At the station he was met by a section of the Salvation Army Band, of which he was a member. The music sounded throughout the stillness of the night, and there were many rose from their downy beds of ease to listen to the strains as they floated by.

Among the band selections played were "Let Auld Acquaintence Be Forgot," "God Be With You," and a popular march as the train pulled out from the station with the departing young man.

Mr. Halcrow was a prominent member of the band, having played a solo cornet while here. He leaves to visit his home at South Shields, Durham County, England, but will not come back to Peterborough. Mr. Halcrow will be greatly missed in Peterborough.

LITERATURE AND IT'S VALUE

Splendid Address Read by Miss Alice Moloney at T.A.S. Literary Meeting

MUSICAL ENTERTAINMENT

A large and appreciative audience was in attendance at the regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T. A. S. in the assembly hall last evening, when a most interesting essay on "Literature and Its Value as a Source of Self Cultivation," was read by Miss Alice Moloney, and a bright musical programme was presented by some of the society's local artists.

So popular are the literary entertainments arranged under the supervision of the committee of this society that the assembly hall is almost inadequate to accommodate the audiences present at each meeting.

Last evening's essay was a most instructive one and held the interested attention of the large audience present. Miss Moloney introduced her subject by showing what an important educational element literature has been in the development of the character and intellect of the ancient Greek and Roman. To be convinced of the far-reaching influence of literature as an educational element, one has but to turn back to the pages of history and find that it has been the educator of the most cultured nations. The literature of Greece refined Rome, and the fragments that survived that of Greece and Rome have been the educational influences under which the barbarian was first civilized and by which all modern culture has been propagated.

Turning from the broader view on the subject the writer then referred to the tangible material of books and their influence as a source of self-cultivation. When perusing the pages of beautiful books one becomes deeply impressed by the subject matter and unconsciously becomes lost to the material world. Reason, imagination and all the faculties of man's intellect were given him that he might exercise and develop them to the full compass of their activity and no other subject affords such a field of opportunity as literature. By it the imagination and the reasoning powers are cultivated and the emotions trained.

The method of reading books in order to obtain their full value was then very ably dealt with. Intellectual progress is not measured by the number of volumes one has read but by the benefit derived therefrom. Hurried and superficial reading is hurtful to the mental powers. They become overtaxed with food, and like the body under similar conditions, become languid and incapable of taking in what is read. In order to read a work properly, be it poetry or prose, one must give it the closest attention if one desires to learn the message imparted by it. It must be read with a purpose, taking notes and making mental catalogues of the impressions received. Not only will the memory soon be retentive on all essential points, but the art of forgetting thoughts which are neither instructive or ennobling will soon be acquired. Brother Azarius, that brilliant and talented character of recent years, though gifted with an extraordinary memory, a critical taste and a sound judgment, was a most careful and judicious reader. As he read, he kept his pencil and note book near at hand, not that he always took notes, but the very fact of holding a pencil to him, stimulated thought. When he met a passage that appeared beautiful, or came home to him, he examined it and at once made it his own. In this lay the secret of his varied and profound knowledge. If Shakspere or Dante had no other thought than that which a mere surface gleaning could gather, they could never have become the great influencing agencies in literature that they are to-day. Henry Morley, once told his class in London that it was only after thirty-five readings of Julius Caesar that the central thought of that great masterpiece dawned upon him.

Continuing, the writer stated that through reading good literature one is enabled, as it were, to enjoy friendly converse with the great and wise men of every age. In the printed page is found the most noble thoughts and feelings that ever adorned the human mind. We have at our disposal the whole treasury of the world's experience, which, without books, we would never know.

The duty incumbent upon us with regard to our reading matter was then briefly touched upon. Ours is the duty to develop and make perfect our whole nature, therefore we must look to the development of our character and intellect. The great means of achieving this is good reading and good literature. Many instances of the influence of the reading of good books upon the mind of men were also given. It is a matter of history that the reading of a single passage from the New Testament changed the whole life of St. Augustine.

In conclusion the writer stated that the companionship found in good books is a source of much wholesome pleasure and intellectual profit. They are purifying, elevating and sustaining. They broaden the mind and help to mould a strong and beautiful character. They form a rallying point where different feelings and tempers can meet without discord. They tend to draw each mind out of its petty cares and perplexities. Our thoughts flow in the current we have chosen, in the channels where we have placed them and none are purer or nobler than those suggested by good literature. There is a valley in the soul where bloom the flowers of noble thinking. Pass your life here and you will catch the perfume of eternity.

As a pleasing preliminary to this interesting essay, an exceptionally bright musical programme was presented, each number of which was deservedly applauded. The following was the programme introduced by Miss A. McCarthy, who occupied the chair for the evening:

Mandolin Quartette—Messrs. Theobald, Holland, Brightman and Cranfield.
Vocal Solo—Miss Alice Moloney.
Recitation—Miss Mona Sullivan.

The next meeting of the society will be held on Friday evening, December 6th, when a paper will be read by Miss K. McGrath.

NEW BANK JOURNAL ISSUED

First Number of a Creditable Magazine Has Just Been Issued

ITS PURPOSES ARE GIVEN

The Bank of Nova Scotia in Canada has just issued the first number of journal known as the "Nova Scotian." A copy of this has reached Mr. J. H. Ferguson, manager of the local branch, and is a handsome magazine in every respect. The journal contains articles from the pens of distinguished Canadians including Prof. Goldwin Smith, LL.D., and also a number of handsome half tone cuts printed on beautiful paper.

The purpose of the journal is to promote discussion on bank topics and its utility as a means of keeping a widely scattered staff in touch with one another and of fostering an esprit de corps will be invaluable. This is also the 75th year of the existence of the Bank of Nova Scotia so the appearance of the journal this year is very fitting.

Space will be reserved in the journal for notes on the social life of the staff, and the transfers of officers, particularly of those who, having been only two or three years in the service are not circularized, will be recorded. The magazine will be printed in the Bank's printing establishment in Toronto.

DENIES SELLING THE SAUSAGE

To the Editor of the Examiner,—

Sir, — In connection with the recent report of the poisoning of some members of a local family by eating sausage, I wish to state positively that they were not purchased from my store. Nothing is kept there but the best quality of sausage, and all are guaranteed to be the finest that can be secured. I have been out of the city for the past few days and only heard of the case yesterday on my return, and take this means to inform the public that the meat was not purchased at my store.

Yours, etc.,

H. P. KENNEDY.

A RESTAURANT WINDOW BROKEN

John Caridimo Again Has Window Broken, This Time by Accident

John Caridimo, who is the proprietor of the Olympia restaurant, has had his window broken again. This time it was by accident, and John does not know whether to put in a piece of tin or a pane of glass.

The three boys who shine shoes for M. Pappas were in the restaurant last night having a lunch, after which they had a wrestle. The two younger fellows made a dash for the big lad and he shoved them through the window.

TWO NEW TRAINS ON MONDAY

The C.P.R. Will Run Two Trains Daily Between Toronto and Ottawa

It was announced some time ago that the C. P. R. were about to place two more trains on the Montreal-Toronto Line. This arrangement has been completed and the new trains will run their first trip on Monday next. The first train will pass through Peterborough about 4.30 a.m., and will be followed at 5.13 a. m., by the regular train. The midnight express will also be followed by another train some time after one o'clock.

The new trains will run between Toronto and Ottawa, and not Toronto and Montreal as was at first proposed. This has been a growing need. The travellers have experienced great inconvenience in the past having to change at Smith Fall's from the Montreal train to the Ottawa train.

Cantata Displayed Strength Of The George Street Choir

Large Attendance at George Street Methodist Church Last Night To Hear Concert—Choir Excelled Themselves

ASSISTED BY MISS SMITH

The cantata and concert at the George street Methodist church last night given by the choir under the direction of the organist, Mr. McCann, was, to use that every day phrase, a thorough success. The large assemblage that filled the church showed their appreciation of the excellence of the singing, choral and individual in an appropriate manner. The concert served the purpose of bringing out the true strength of the choir and under the capable leadership of Mr. McCann it has made splendid advancement.

The cantata was given as the second part of the programme and consisted of numbers by the choir interspersed with solos by Miss Reesor, Mr. Miles and Mr. Johnston. The cantata given last night bordered entirely on the oratorio and was arranged in a manner suitable for the occasion.

The programme was as follows:—

Part I.

Hymn, No. 105, "Praise Ye the Lord."
Prayer.....Rev. E A Pearson
Solo, "Jerusalem".....Parker
Mr. H Morphet.
Duet, "In His Hands are all the Corners".....Johnasky
Miss Reesor and Mr. Johnston.
Reading, "In the Children's Hospital".....Tennyson
Miss Smith.
Solo, "Galilee".....
Miss Reesor.
Reading, (a) "De moo Leetle Canadienne".....Drummond
" (b) "The Sleep".....Mrs. Browning
Miss Smith.

Part II.

CANTATA.

"Penitence."—
Choir, "How Long Wilt Thou Forget Me, O Lord,".....
Solo, "O That I Knew Where I Might Find Him."
Miss Reesor.
Hymn "I Heard the Voice of Jesus Say,".....
Reading, "Jean Valjean and the Bishop".....Hugo
Miss Smith.
"Pardon."—
Solo, "O Cast Thy Burden Upon the Lord."
Mr. Miles.
Choir, "Look unto Him and be ye Saved."
Solo, "Fearfulness and Trembling are Come Upon Me,"
Miss Reesor.
Solo, "As One Whom His Mother Comforteth"
Mr. Johnston.
Choir, "Behold Now is the Accepted Time,"
Hymn, "Lord in This Thy Mercy's Day,"
Reading, "Happy in My Lot,"...Ewing
Miss Smith.
"Peace."—
Choir, "When the Son of Man Shall Come,"
Solo, "Come Ye Blessed of My Father,"
Mr. Johnston.
Choir, "These are They Which Came Out of Great Tribulation," Solo, "And There Shall be no More Death,"
Mr. Johnston.
Choir, "Now Therefore Our God We Thank Thee," Solo, "Alleluia,"
Miss Reesor.
Choir, "Now Therefore Our God,"
Hymn, "How Bright These Glorious Spirits Shine."

The burden of the solo work fell to Miss Reesor and Mr. Johnston and the manner in which the rendered their different parts amply justified their selection for the work. In the cantata Mr. Miles was heard in a solo part which he sang in good voice. The choir, as a body, is a credit to the church. The voices are well balanced and carefully trained. In the fortissimo passages they were strong and clear and again in the piano parts were as pleasingly expressive and distinct. Mr. McCann has the choir responding to his every change and the precision with which the singers follow him is most commendable. He has a good field to work in and is thereby accomplishing satisfactory results.

The choir was assisted by Miss Smith, of Toronto, whose readings were tastefully selected and delivered in an artistic and interesting manner. Her numbers were well received and frequent encores were demanded. Her interpretation of the Hugo number was very good.

The concert was one which the choir may well be proud of and as a musical organization they are worthy of a front rank in this city.

ROOTS IN MEDICINE

Every person who knows anything of materia medica is aware that from roots and herbs we get many of our most valuable medicines. The system which is fed on meats and fruits including bread, needs every once in a while a little toning up. This toning is found in roots, and one of the best receipts for a tonic, and which has proved valuable in urinary, kidney and liver troubles, is made up almost wholly of roots. Its ingredients are: Four ounces syrup of rhubarb, one ounce sweet spirits of nitre, and one ounce of compound vinegar, the latter being a compound of root extracts. Buy these at any drug store, mix at home and take a dessert-spoonful in water after meals and at bedtime. A few doses will tone the system and throw off any poisons that may affect the vital organs.—2,

The Queen Of The Ocean Finishes Maiden Voyage

Delayed by Storms The Maurentania Reaches New York Behind The Lusitania's Time---Carried $12,500,000 Worth In Gold---Set New Records---A Full Description Of The Giant Steamer

Examiner special,

New York, Nov. 23.—Poking her nose through a dense fog which hid even her mast tops from the sight of those on deck, the biggest, and most luxurious ship ever launched safely finished her maiden voyage yesterday, when at 11.03 o'clock yesterday the Cunard line turbine steamship Mauretania, anchored off the Sandy Hook lightship, five days, five hours and 10 minutes from Queenstown.

Bearing $12,500,000 in gold from the west she struggled against tempestuous weather to beat the world's transatlantic speed record of four days, 18 hours and 40 minutes, held by her sister ship, the Lusitania. Head winds and heavy cross seas baffled her, but she won the right to one blue ribbon. On Thursday, Nov. 21, Captain Pritchard drove the huge ship 624 knots (677 miles), thanks to a shift in the wind to the north-northeast, which is six knots better than the best day's run of the Lusitania, and leads all marine records.

The Mauretania left Queenstown Nov. 17 at 11 a. m. and arrived at quarantine, New York, at 3.54 p. m. Nov. 22. Her runs were: First day (one hour's run), 30 knots; second day (noon to noon), 571; third day, 464, fourth day, 563; fifth day, 624; sixth day, 528.

The average speed for the passage was 22.21 knots, or 23.89 miles an hour. Her average speed on her record day run of 624 knots was 25.88 miles an hour. Her poorest days average was 20.81 miles an hour, from noon of Nov. 18 to noon of the 19th.

Though the new liner demonstrated a capacity for greater speed by day under favorable conditions than the Lusitania has thus far proved herself capable of an uncommonly stormy passage and fog off this coast, combined to make her time 10 hours and 30 minutes more than that established by her sister ship. But Captain Pritchard believed that with fair weather he can beat the Lusitania from coast to coast.

Length over all... ...790 ft.
Length between perpendiculars 760 ft.
Breadth, moulded... ...88 ft.
Depth, moulded... ...60 ft. 6 in.
Gross tonnage... ...33,200 tons
Net tonnage... ...11,900 tons
Maximum draught... ...37 ft. 6 in.
Displacement at maximum draught... ...45,000 tons

It will be of interest to point out that if the "Mauretania" were placed upon George street she would extend from the north crossing on Simcoe street to the south crossing on Brock street. But, to place her on the street it would be necessary to widen it twenty feet by shoving the buildings aside ten feet on each side of the street, and if placed with her keel on the street railway track her upper works would be above the level of most of the buildings on the street.

The captain's bridge is 100 feet above the keel, and the top-mast 210 feet above the keel, or 35 feet higher than the cross on the spire of St. Peter's Cathedral.

The Hull

The keel of the "Mauretania" consists of three thicknesses of plating, varying in thickness from 1 in. to 1 1-4 in. These plates were clamped together, and the holes through the three thicknesses of plating were drilled by means of portable electric drills, thus securing perfectly fair holes, and avoiding the deterioration due to punching thick steel plates. The hull has been constructed on the cellular double bottom principle, with solid floors on every frame. The double bottom is five feet deep at the centre-line. Its extension well up the sides of the ship will afford great additional protection in the event of the liner grounding, at the same time giving structural strength transversely and longitudinally. For the riveting of the keel, centre keelson, floors, shell plating up to the turn of the bilges, and upper strakes of the shell and stringer plates, hydraulic riveting machines were used throughout, to ensure the soundest workmanship in these parts of the structure, which are subject to the greatest stresses. The framing consists of channel bars and deep web frames closely spaced. The channel bars extend from the margin of the cellular double bottom to the shelter deck, some of these bars having a total length of about 55 feet, and weighing about three-quarters of a ton.

The number and weight of butts and overlaps have been minimized by using plates of very large size. The shell plates and the heavier plates on the decks are in most cases 25 feet long and weigh 2 1-2 to 3 tons each. In some instances, however, the length of the plates is 48 feet, weighing 4 to 5 tons—a record size for ship plates of this description. Another notable feature of the new Cunarder is that in the top part of the structure, which will be subject to great stresses when the vessel is in a seaway, special high-tensile steel has been employed, all holes being drilled, and rivets put in by hydraulic riveters. About 26,000 steel plates were used in the shell, decks, bulkheads, casings, etc., of the vessel. Over 4,000,000 rivets were worked into the ship, weighing about 500 tons.

Arrangement of Decks

In all, the "Mauretania" will have nine decks—the lower orlop, the orlop, the lower, the main, the upper, the shelter, the promenade, the boat and the sun decks. The promenade and boat decks are above the main structure of the vessel. In addition, a tier of deck houses, running for about half the length of the ship, is erected on the boat deck, the whole being surmounted at the fore end by the commander's bridge, which is about 100 feet above the keel. The two pole masts will rise 210 feet above the same level. On the suggestion of Messrs. Swan, Hunter and Wigham Richardson, the Cunard Company adopted in the "Ivernia," "Mauretania" and "Lusitania" an arrangement by which the width of the promenade and boat decks is increased. These decks in the new sister ships extend 21 inches beyond the shelter deck on each side of the vessel. The projection does not extend beyond the greatest width of the hull; hence there is no danger of the promenade or boat decks fouling any landing stage or quay when the vessel is in port.

Subdivision of the Hull

To ensure the safety of the ship in the event of collision, the longitudinal bulkheads forming the side bunkers extend the full length of the boiler spaces and are made watertight, as are also the lower deck throughout the vessel and the main deck in the way of the engine and boiler spaces. The transverse bulkheads between the various compartments are of special strength, equal to sustaining a head of water on one side at the greatest level to which the water could possibly rise in the event of one or two of the compartments being in communication with the sea. All watertight doors fitted to the main bulkheads are so arranged that they can be instantaneously closed in case of accident, the apparatus for performing this operation being controlled from the bridge. Indeed, the subdivision by watertight bulkheads and decks is the most elaborate that could be devised for a passenger vessel, the number of separate watertight compartments—175—rendering the ship practically unsinkable.

The Main Castings

The stern frame and brackets for supporting the propeller shafts are of cast steel. The main piece of the stern frame alone weighed very nearly 50 tons. To the main casting the two brackets for the inner shafts are connected by means of hydraul'c riveting. The brackets for the wing or outer shafts, which terminate a considerable distance forward of the inner shafts, are connected by means of large flanges to the main structure of the ship. The rudder, which is of the balanced type and weighs about 65 tons, is formed of steel castings, bolted together. It consists of three pieces, in addition to the forged ingot steel rudder-head of 25 1-2 inches diameter. An unusual feature of the rudder is the design of the pintle. There being only one gudgeon on the stern frame, the pintle had to be made of very large size, although in double shear its weight being over 1 1-4 tons. By an ingenious arrangement it is possible to withdraw the pintle and replace the bushings without disconnecting any part of the rudder or the steering gear. The rudder and steering gear are entirely below the water-line. The total weight of the main castings, including rudder, stem bar, stern frame and propeller brackets, exceeds 200 tons.

The Chain-cables, etc

The iron links of the chain cables measure 3 3-4 inches diameter at the smallest part, and weigh 176 pounds each. The chain is 1,900 feet long, and weighs in all about 130 tons. Each of the four anchor shackles, used to connect the ten-ton anchor to the cable, weighs 814 pounds. The cables, which were manufactured by Messrs. Brown, Lenox and Co., of Pontypridd, are the largest ever made for the use of a ship. When tested, the links successfully withstood a tension of over 370 tons. It is noteworthy that the cables of H.M.S. "Dreadnought," the largest battleship in the world, are only 2 11-16 inches diameter. The interior surfaces of the steel work of the "Mauretania," to the extent of about 620,000 square feet, are coated with Messrs. Wailes, Dove & Co.'s "Bituminatio" enamels and covering.

passenger accommodation

It would be premature at this stage to attempt to fully describe the passenger accommodation of the "Mauretania" as it will be when completed, but the following table gives the number of passengers, etc., that will be provided for:

First-class... ...560
Second-class... ...500

ENJOYABLE SOCIAL LAST NIGHT

Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Stabler Were At Home to Their Friends

An enjoyable social was that which was held last night at the residence of Mr. Nathan Stabler. Mrs. Stabler and he were at home to a large number of their friends and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed by all the guests. Games and social intercourse served to pass the time until luncheon to which everyone sat down at twelve o'clock. The gathering broke up at an early hour and the guests departed after voting Mr. and Mrs. Stabler most hospitable hosts.

EXPERIMENTS WITH WATER

An Interesting Address by Mr. Russell at Knox Church

There was a large attendance at the meeting of the Boys' Club at Knox Church last night to hear the interesting address by Mr. Frank Russell on the "Wonders of Water." His talk was accompanied by actual experiments of a scientific character, showing what can be done with water, which to any person not a scientist, was certainly wonderful. Mr. Russell is a gold medallist in chemistry and was a demonstrator in a science institution in England before coming to Canada.

Among other things he decomposed water into its two elements, hydrogen and oxygeon, showing how each gas can be made; boiled water with ice; burned it with potassium hydroxide, and performed many other interesting experiments.

Rev. H. J. Keith presided, and during the evening Master Harold Hatcher sang a solo.

SUBJECTS FOR SOCIAL CLASS

Discussion Under The New Movement Plan

The Young Men's Social Adult Bible Class meets at 2.30 o'clock tomorrow, at George Street Methodist Church, the subject being "Temperance," with the following topics suggested for discussion under the new movement plan. The intoxicants of this age, impure literature, amusements, the greed for gold, and should state legislation on the power of the church prohibit a person's liberty? All men are welcome.

BOVRIL

Contains the life-sustaining elements of

BEEF

Beef extracts contain only the flavor and stimulating elements of beef—the nutritive values are lost in the making. Baron Liebig, the inventor of beef extracts, admitted that. He said "It is but a condiment and stimulant, containing no matter capable of sustaining life."

That is where BOVRIL differs from beef extracts.

BOVRIL does contain the nourishment and life-sustaining elements of beef as well as its rich flavor.

BOVRIL gives strength and nourishment to the invalid. With its help you can make left-over scraps into delicious consommes, bouillons and soups with very little trouble.

TROUBLE IN PORTUGAL.

Inhabitants Are Incensed at Dictatorship of Premier Franco.

Lisbon, Nov. 23.—The excitement here, caused by resentment against the dictatorship of Premier Franco, is increasing among the members of the Republican opposition, and is extending to other circles.

The Government threatens to proclaim martial law at the first outbreak, and the troops have been confined to their barracks in readiness to suppress rioting. Four additional newspapers have been suppressed, and the police continue making arrests.

Petition For Stephens.

Ottawa, Nov. 23.—Mayor Lawrence and Thomas Crothers of St. Thomas waited on Solicitor-General Bureau Thursday to ask for the release from prison of Murray Stephens, a Wabash locomotive engineer, now under sentence to six months' imprisonment for criminal negligence in causing the fatal railway wreck at the diamond crossing, near St. Thomas, some time ago. A petition praying for his release, signed by about 1,000 St. Thomas residents, was presented by a deputation, who urged that Stephens had not been wittingly negligent and had been punished with undue severity. The Justice Department will enquire into the facts of the case before a decision is given.

Arrested For Manslaughter.

Brockville, Nov. 23—Anthony Smithers, a farmer residing near Black Lake, across the river from here, has been arrested on a warrant charging him with manslaughter, in being responsible for the death of his son, Wesley, to whom he administered tincture of aconite, believing it to be a good remedy for the boy's illness, but which, it is alleged, caused his death. Mr. Smithers, on being arraigned before a magistrate, waived examination and gave bail for his appearance before the next grand jury.

CONSTABLE SHOOTS FARMER.

Eccentric Man Resisted Arrest and Is Seriously Wounded.

Grenfell, Sask., Nov. 23.—R. Braithwaite, a farmer living a few miles south of here, was shot and seriously, if not fatally, wounded by a mounted policeman named Moses, while resisting arrest Thursday.

Braithwaite is an eccentric who refuses to pay taxes, when compelled by legal process to do so, and last spring shot at a bailiff who was attempting to serve a distress warrant. He was arrested for this offence, but let out on bail. Efforts have been made since to secure him for trial, but he has resisted successfully all attempts until yesterday, when Moses, assisted by another mounted policeman from Regina, decided to take him at any cost. In the scrimmage he was very seriously wounded and is now under a surgeon's care at Wolseley. He has a brother in Vancouver.

Blaze at Hamilton.

Hamilton, Nov. 23.—Fire that did damage to the extent of $15,000 or $20,000, broke out last evening at 6.50 in the Burrow, Stewart & Milne Stove Foundry. The fire started near the corner of John and Cannon streets, and spread both ways. On the west it was blocked by a fire wall, and by clever work Chief TenEyck and his brigade had it under control in half an hour after they were called. When they arrived the whole of the top end of the building was a mass of flames.

The trouble started on the second floor, and the flames shot up the elevator shaft to the third storey, burning about half-way up the block on the top storey. The flames spread eastward on the second storey. The alarm came in when about one-third of the firemen were off for supper, and Chief TenEyck says that the council must give him more men. He has been kicking for months for more help. It was the first time that the new fire engine was used, and it did good work.

Conductor Arrested.

Lindsay, Nov. 23.—George Thompson, conductor on the train on which the abductor of a little girl, Dorothy Marion, left here Thursday, came to town yesterday morning under arrest on the charge of obstructing an officer of the law in the performance of his duty. It seems that when officers came on board the train at Markham to make the arrest of the woman claiming to be the child's mother, he would not allow it, and again did the same at Agincourt, where the police had been telegraphed.

The child had been with the Marions now for about five years, and was adopted out of a home. The mother was a Catholic, and, it is said, has two brothers who are priests. The Marions have all the necessary papers of adoption, and therefore the mother has forfeited all her rights. Whether or not the abductor is the child's real mother cannot be learned definitely.

Cannot Get Bail.

New York, Nov. 23.—Howard Maxwell, the indicted ex-president of the Boro Bank of Brooklyn, being unable to find a bondsman to act as surety for him in the sum of $30,000, on three indictments charging him with grand larceny and forgery, was compelled to remain yesterday in jail. He had his meals sent in from a restaurant instead of eating the ordinary prison fare and he refused to see reporters. Up to last evening the only visitors reported to have called on him at the jail was his counsel.

STATE PAWNSHOPS.

French Rate is 7 Per Cent—Sometimes No Interest is Charged.

With none of the timidity or hesitation or the shamefaced aspect of our user of pawnshops does the Parisian perform his journey to the money lender. Far from feeling, after the door has closed behind him, that he is in the country of the enemy, the Frenchman can have his patriotic ardor at its highest, for over the pawnshop flies the tricolor of France instead of the gilded balls, and the guard at the door is a helmeted, white gloved republican guard. The customary whispering as the borrower exchanges goods for cash is unknown. Borrowing is a business transaction with the government.

It is not out of appreciation of these conditions, of course, that 7,000 people daily visit the municipal pawnshops, but their business trip includes a knowledge of the fact that whatever profits will accrue to the establishments will finally go back to the people.

There is no haggling, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record. On jewelry four-fifths of the value of the object can be secured; on the other articles two-thirds. The interest is 7 per cent per annum. Should a borrower be in the unfortunate position of having paid interest for many years without being able to release the article the authorities will return it. When interest has not been paid the object in question goes to the auction, and then the righteousness of Paris pawnbroking is decidedly in evidence, for after the sale has been consummated and the original loan and interest are deducted from the money secured by the sale the surplus goes to the borrower. Should the money remain unclaimed it is turned over to the Paris hospitals, and, curiously enough, these hospitals profit to the extent of 100,000 francs a year.

When one has made a study of French pawnbroking laws it is easily seen that the first object served by these laws is to protect people who want immediate money advantages. France (and we may say France, for municipal pawnbroking is to be found in every corner of the country) cares little that many transactions are carried on at a loss. In one year of some 2,000,000 pawned articles in Paris 1,000,000 were effected at a loss, since no auction will bring a complete return on small objects. Of course this is offset by the return from loans on the other million articles, but should there be a deficiency the municipality has no hesitation in going down in its pockets and thus has an indirect mode of taxing the well to do to support the needy. Since no country has raised a cry against charity, this, as one form of it, can be passed without criticism. The fact is, money is lost on all loans under 20 francs.

The capital of the pawnshops consists of legacies, gifts and subventions of the state, department or the commune. Occasionally, as at Grenoble and Montpellier, the establishments are so well endowed that no interest is charged. Paris, for no unfathomable reasons, does the largest pawnbroking business on the continent, 34,000,000 francs being the average yearly pledges and 30,000,000 francs redeemed. The total revenue is 4,000,000 francs, the expense of management 1,500,000 francs, the interest on capital about 1,509,000 francs and the net profits 150,000 francs.

Brockville, Nov. 23.—William Richardson, a farmer living on the River road, near Ogdensburg, lost three cows in a mysterious manner. Two were found dead in the pasture and a third sickened and died. An examination disclosed that the cattle had eaten a poisonous weed, presumably along the shore of the river. An ox, owned by Mr. Richardson, is also afflicted, and will probably die.

Too Free With a Gun.

Montreal, Nov. 23.—A man, who gave his name as Anderson, and stated that he came from Nebraska, went up to the telegraph wicket at the Place Viger station and pointed a revolver at the clerk's head, saying he would blow his head off if he did not hand him over $300. He was arrested.

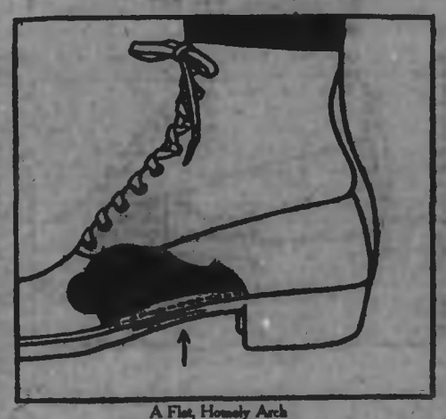
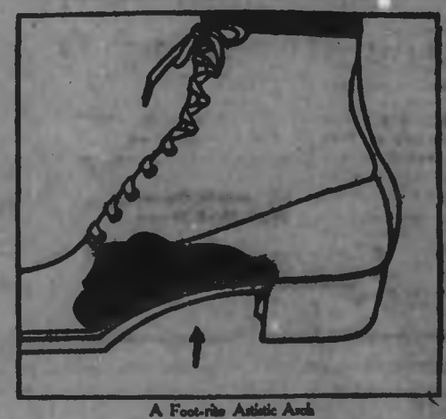
HAS ARTISTIC ARCH

IMPROVEMENT NUMBER SEVEN



A Flat, Homely Arch



A Foot-rite Artistic Arch

Homely thing—a flat arched shoe.

No shoe, whether for man or woman, can be really clever looking without an artistically curved arch.

To make a shoe with a smart arch line costs money. It requires special lasts. The maker can't use stock lasts, ground from a mill by hundreds of thousands, as all stock lasts have flat arches. Ask any last maker. It requires tough heels. He can't use heels made of shoe factory junk. It requires level construction of the heel and sole, and instead of a cheap, weak, wood arch support which falls flat at the first wearing, it requires a stout steel arch.

The Foot-rite Shoe has an artistic arch.

Because it's moulded over lasts sculptured from the handsomely and ideally formed feet of model athletes. If an athlete hasn't a perfect arch he's not an athlete.

Because of its tough heels which slough off slowly at the back, hence doesn't tip up and jam up into and bend or break the sole line of the arch.

Because of its Plumb-Line Level Heel and Sole which always remain level, leaving the arch line to curve artistically, like a tangent from a straight line.

And because of its strong steel arch support sewed between the inner and outer sole which stubbornly sustains its artistic curve line.

KILLED BY A COW'S TAIL.

Binghampton, N.Y.—Wm. A. Wells, of Neward Valley, was milking, when a cow swished her tail, striking him on the forehead with the fleshy part of the appendage. Shortly afterwards, Mr. Wells returned to the house, complaining of a pain in the head, which rapidly grew worse. Physicians pronounced it apoplexy, brought on by the blow from the cow's tail. Mr. Wells died the same night.

Apoplexy is the result of poisoned blood. Bowels become constipated, kidneys get weakened, skin action becomes poor, and the blood is loaded with impurities, which produces weakness in the blood vessels.

Whenever there is headache, backache, neuralgia, rheumatism—it means blood poisoning. "Fruit-a-tives" are a certain cure for all these troubles.

HARRIERS' ATHLETIC MEET PROMISES TO BE GREATEST SPORTING EVENT IN YEARS

Many Entries are Promised For The Different Contests — Mr. Burney of Havelock To Run The Mile

TOM LONGBOAT IS COMING

Irish Canadian's Best Runners To Be Here — Either Tate or Lawson To Represent The West End Y.M.C.A.—The Programme

The programme arranged for the big athletic meet to be held under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers in the Brock street rink on Tuesday, December 3, indicates that the event will be one of the greatest evening's sport ever seen in Peterborough. The programme has been selected with a view of having as much variety as possible, and there will be no monotony in the events, as sprinting will be mixed up with the longer distance contests.

Ray Best, Captain of The Y. M. C. A. Harriers Club

The feature, of course, will be the outside runners who will include Sellen, Coley and Longboat, of the Irish-Canadians, and two of the best men from the West End and Central Y.M.C.A. teams of Toronto, Jack Tait or Harry Lawson, will likely represent the latter. In addition, Tom O'Rourke, one of the greatest shot-putters in the world, will be here and will give an exhibition.

The complete programme is as follows:

50 yards dash—handicap—open.
220 yards dash—handicap—open.
880 yards—handicap—open.
Exhibition of shot-putting, T. O'Rourke, Irish-Canadian Athletic Club, Toronto.
Three-mile handicap—Fred Simpson and Ben Howard of the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, to start at scratch.
Exhibition run—Tom Longboat.
Three-mile special race—One entry each from the Irish-Canadians, Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, West End Y.M.C.A., Toronto, and Peterborough Y.M.C.A.

The handicap sprints are open to everybody and there will be good fields in each event. Fred McGrath will in all probability enter all three of the dashes and will be placed at scratch. Corney Burns, the pitcher of the Peterborough ball team, will start in the 50-yard dash, at least, and any one who has seen Corney getting down to first-base will realize that he will take a lot of beating in a 50-yard dash. Len Dobson will also take part, and other local sprinters have signified their intention of entering, and are already in training, so that the sprinting events will be well filled.

The mile open race should be a corker. Ray Best, the captain of the Harriers, will be a contestant, and is running the distance in great time. Another entry in this event will be W. J. McBurney of Havelock, who ran fourth in the Examiner race last year and who has recently joined the Y.M.C.A. Harriers. McBurney has given up the longer distance for the mile and is making good time. He was in the city last night and did some stunts on the Y.M.C.A. track under the watchful eye of Trainer "Dick" Baker. He will take a lot of beating in the mile event. Several other local men will take part and the event will be worth going miles to see.

A great battle should result in the three-mile handicap, in which Fred Simpson and Ben Howard, the two Mississauga Indian members of the Harriers, will start at scratch. There is much speculation as to which of the two is the better at the short distance, and the race will settle it. It should be a ding-dong struggle between the two red men, and they will not be without opposition, either, as it is likely that Harvey Staunton and Jack Sanderson, who made a good showing in the Examiner road race, will start, and with a handicap they should make things interesting. Another outside entry will be Ernest Moss of Havelock, who was third in the Thanksgiving Day race here, and he is not to be lost sight of in trying to dope out the result.

The piece de resistance of the evening, however, should be the three-mile special race between one representative from the Irish-Canadians, West End and Central Y.M.C.A.'s and the local Harriers, which should furnish enough excitement for a month. Ernie Wilson will represent Peterborough in the event, and after the showing he made in Toronto against Tom Coley, local people at least will favor him for the honours, although he will be up against one of the most classy fields ever got together for such an event. The Irish-Canadians will be represented by either Percy Sellen or Tom Coley, in all probability the latter, as he is anxious for a chance at Wilson to get revenge for his defeat in Toronto. The West End will have either Jack Tait, Harry Lawson or Alf. Sellers, three grand runners, any one of whom will be in the race all the way. Lawson was second to Simpson in the Hamilton Herald race, and was beaten out by the Indian in the last mile, while Tait was right up with the leaders all the time in the Montreal Star's big race, finishing third. West End will be represented either by Goldsboro or W. G. Howard. Two good men who have great records. In addition to all these contests, the fact that the great Tom Longboat, the Bronzed Mercury, the winner of the Hamilton Herald race, the Boston Marathon, twice victor in the Ward Marathon, first man in the Independent Harriers' meet, and the hero of a dozen other big events, will be here and give an exhibition, should bring out a big crowd.

All local athletes are urged to take part in the open events. There is no entry fee, and a cordial invitation is given every one to enter. All entries must be in the hands of the secretary, Mr. R. M. Glover, at the Examiner office, before 6 o'clock on Friday, November 29, in order that the handicaps may be made.

All the Y.M.C.A. Harriers, who intend to take part in the meet are requested by Trainer "Dick" Baker to be at the Y.M.C.A. every night next week for training purposes.

NEGOTIATIONS FOR THE GAME

Montreal and Peterboro' Trying to Come To an Agreement—Locals Want Guarantee

Peterborough and Montreal are negotiating now for the game in Montreal next Saturday for the Dominion championship, although the locals have not yet decided that they will brave the C.A.A.U. and make the trip. Early last evening a telegram was received from President A B Irvine, of the Montreal team, as follows:—"Kindly wire if you club intends playing us on the 30th. If not we will arrange another game."

Secretary McDonough immediately telegraphed as follows:—"If you guarantee our share of the gate to be $500 we will play on the 30th."

In a short time another telegram was received from Montreal, reading "Impossible to guarantee any amount as Canadian Rugby Union takes charge of receipts, but feel sure that after yours and other expenses are paid, your share of gate will exceed $400. Wire your decision at once."

Manager Crowley called up Montreal on the long distance 'phone and informed the Easterners that Peterborough wanted a guarantee of $500 this to include their expenses and that in the event of Peterborough's share of the gate exceeding the difference between their expenses and $500 they would accept their portion of the receipts. President Irvine promised to lay the matter before the M.A.A.A. and thus the matter stood last night.

DAVID HARTLEY THE A WALKING WONDER

miles in an hour and a half. There are 15 laps to the mile.

2 O'clock Bulletin

The bulletin at 2 o'clock stated that the Peterborough man had travelled 15 miles and 13 laps and Reynolds 15 miles and 8 laps, leaving Hartley five laps in the lead. The walking wonder was making good headway, and apparently was not the least fatigued, while Reynolds showed signs of slight distress. The Toronto people look for a victory for Peterborough's painter.

Same Lead at 3.30

At 3.30 o'clock another bulletin was received showing Hartley still five laps ahead. He had then travelled 23 miles while Reynolds had gone 22 miles 10 laps. Hartley has been travelling a little over five miles an hour since 11 o'clock.

Toronto, November 23rd. — The 12-hour walking race at the Mutual street rink, between David Hartley, of Peterborough, and Jimmy Reynolds, Port Hope's walking barber, started at 11 a.m., to-day, and will end at 11 o'clock to-night. The match will be square heel and toe, and Tom Eck, the famous trainer, and an old time walker himself, and who has had many years experience in matches of this kind, has agreed to act as referee.

The men have decided to walk on the bare floor, and have asked the management not to lay the track which they had intended putting down around the sides of the rink.

Invitations have been issued to all who took part in the recent ladies' walking race to witness the event.

The record of the men follows:

Reynold's Record

Last June in his first attempt to walk the round trip from Port Hope to Toronto and return, Reynolds gave out at Newcastle with 5 1-2 hours left to complete the remaining 20 odd miles. On October 21 last he covered the round trip in 26 hours and 19 minutes.

Twenty-five years ago, in a sack race he went 100 yards in 13 1-4 seconds, and followed this by covering ten miles in a sack in two hours.

Several years later he made $800 by going a mile in a sack in 7 minutes.

His best training performance for his race to-day was 13 miles heel and toe, in two hours.

Hartley's Performances

Hartley is also an old-time athlete, being both a long distance runner and walker.

Twenty-six years ago in a go-as-you-please race at twelve hours a day for three days, he covered 155 miles.

A year later he made 165 miles in the same kind of a race at Lindsay against one Pleurd, who quit on the second day, Hartley finishing alone.

On Civic Holiday last he walked from Peterborough to Bailliebord and back, a distance of 34 miles, in 5 hours and 48 minutes. His next performance followed the Reynolds Port Hope to Toronto walk in October, the Peterborough man travelling from Oshawa to Toronto, to Port Hope, and to Peterborough, a distance of 132 miles, in 34 hours and 6 minutes.

If We Could Look at the Heart of a Pale-Faced Person!

Few people ever stop to consider what pallor to the countenance means. In the first place it indicates an absence from the blood of the rich, red, life-giving elements so requisite to health; and in the second place it indicates a weakened heart action. These two things act and re-act. If we could look at the heart of one of these pale-faced people, we would see it flabby, weak and pallid. No wonder they are easily tired, get out of breath quickly, have palpitation, are nervous and downhearted. Their muscles are poor, their stomach disordered, and their lives are seldom free from misery.

Let them take Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills; there is no remedy to equal them for making pale faces rosy, weak hearts and shaky nerves strong, flabby muscles firm, and infusing new hope and ambition into life.

Mr. W. J. Churchill, Lombardy, Ont., writes: "I was troubled for three years with a weak heart and nervousness. I could not sleep and ever so little food would distress me. I also had faint and dizzy spells, and doctored with three doctors but was growing worse. After taking three boxes of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills I feel as well as ever I did. They are the best pills on earth."

BOY KILLS A HORSE WITH AN AXE

for the stall where the horse had been, and, seeing it vacant, asked the proprietor where it was buried. The boy was at once put to a cross-examination, and confessed that he had hit the horse with the axe.

The lad seemed quite proud of his brutal deed as he related the story to the liveryman. He said that Archie, one of the stable hands, met him coming through the lane about 12 o'clock, and asked him to mind the stable while he went to lunch. The boy stated that he played around with one horse and another, and at last he came to Craig's horse. He went into the stall and patted the horse for a while, and then he tickled it. The horse began to jump around in the stall so the lad took a whip to it. This only increased the frantic efforts of the horse to get loose. The boy then went into the office, picked out the axe, and then went for the horse again. He got into the next stall, and leaning over the side, struck the steed between the two eyes with the weapon. The horse fell down like a log and lay on the ground kicking at a terrible rate. He said that he then got frightened at seeing the blood coming so fast from the horse's head, and made off for his home.

According to the time the boy said he struck the horse, and the time it died, the animal must have lived two hours after the blow. The animal was not a young horse, but was in good condition, and doubtless it would have lasted a few more years had its life not been so cruelly terminated. The boy's father will probably have to stand the expense.

On Monday evening a meeting of the Knocker Hockey Club is called for 8 o'clock at the Y.M.C.A. All interested in the club are requested to attend the meeting, when the season's prospects will be considered.

THE EIGHTH WONDER.

Hudson River Bridge to Be an Extraordinary Structure.

The magnitude of the projected Hudson river bridge does not at first strike the unthinking person, but when it does strike it comes with a breathless, aerial significance. It will be the eighth wonder of the world, and the eyes of foreign engineers are turned to New York with expectancy.

The plans of the new structure are practically those of the original North river project. It was a long step from a 1,700 foot span (then and still the longest in the world) to over 3,000 feet; the distance to be covered between the piers on either side of the broad Hudson. To make a bridge almost double the length of the Brooklyn bridge meant building the towers nearly twice as high, and in order to allow for additional roadways and tracks the bridge of double length must be also twice as wide. Thus the proposition involved was really very much more than building a bridge with a double length span, for three dimensions had to be considered, making the entire structure nearly eight times as large as the Brooklyn bridge.

At first other engineers were loath to believe that modern materials made possible so great a bridge. But the entire profession is now agreed that the bridge is possible and practicable, and their estimates of construction cost vary between $35,000,000 and $50,000,000, depending upon the number of tracks and the carrying capacity designated. These figures do not include the cost of approaches or right of way.

It is an astonishing feat that is contemplated, this of suspending between steel towers distant more than half a mile eight great railway tracks and four driveways, says Charles H. Cochrane in the New Broadway Magazine. As a triumph of engineering the work will have no equal. There will be four stupendous towers at the piers, each suggesting in appearance the celebrated Eiffel tower. These four towers will be about 800 feet from the foundation stones to top. They will carry the eight mammoth steel cables that will curve gracefully across the noble Hudson and support the two deck steel truss bridge 140 feet wide, capable of transporting 100,000 persons in one hour without undue crowding.

Materialism in Children.

It is perhaps not unnatural that the growth of fortunes should bring the facts of life early before the minds of children and that as a result there should be a tendency toward materialism in even a child's point of view. Not long ago I heard two girls of six and seven talking on a country road. They were children whose parents were amply able to give them whatever they thought best for them to have. The first child said: "How can we make some money? I tell you what, Mary, we must sell your radishes as soon as they are ripe." Mary answered sadly: "I wish Aunt Susan were here. She buys radishes like the dickens." Now, these children at this early age were discontented with their weekly allowance and, finding that they could not get more from their parents, decided to sell to the neighbors, and their parents, wishing them to develop themselves and to learn by experience, did not prevent their doing so.—Louise McCrady in Atlantic.

Coal Under Water.

Some years ago a fleet of British colliers was sunk during a storm in an English harbor and remained under water for five years before being salved and brought to the surface, says the Scientific American. An examination of the coal showed that it had kept its value for steam purposes, and this led to some experiments by the naval authorities which settled beyond all doubt that coal stored under water did not deteriorate as when stored in the air. Taking heed of this conserving power of water, the Western Electric company is building flooded coal pits at its plant at Hawthorne, Ill. The excavation is 320 by 75 feet and 12 feet deep, built of concrete and divided into twelve pits. The coal is dropped directly from the cars, which pass over the pits, and the fuel is removed when desired by means of a steam shovel.

A Great Blast.

One of the largest blasts ever fired in France was discharged recently at the quartzite quarries at Cherbourg and is said to have displaced 120,000 tons of stone. A tunnel measuring six feet wide and six feet high was driven into the face of the cliff for a distance of seventy feet, and at its end two branch tunnels, each twenty feet long, were driven to the right and left respectively. These branches ended in chambers forty feet apart and seventy feet from the face of the cliff and measuring each 10 feet by 6 feet by 6 feet. The chambers were charged with eight and a half tons of blasting powder and 280 pounds of dynamite, and the blast was fired electrically. The quartzite obtained from this quarry finds much favor in England as a road material.—Engineer.

Charles Beavis, who was remanded last week on a charge of being drunk and disorderly appeared before His Worship this morning. The magistrate was very lenient with Beavis, and allowed him to go. "If you come back again, Beavis," said His Worship, "I will send you to the Central Prison for six months. You are a good mechanic and you ought to let drink alone." Beavis assured His Worship that he wouldn't drink again. Before leaving the court it was discovered that Beavis owed the court a fine of $3 and costs which had been placed on him some time ago. Charles told the court that he had been given ten days to pay the fine but he was in jail all the time; but if the time was extended for ten days longer he would pay the fine. The magistrate held the fine back for ten days longer.

ON ADDRESS TO LIFT LOCK TENT

The regular meeting of Lift Lock, Tent No. 19, Knights of the Maccabees, in the Orange hall, Simcoe street, last night was featured by the presence of S. W. Trussler, provincial commander and G. Townsend, provincial record keeper, who paid an official visit to the new tent last night. A splendid meeting was held and the initiations were put on in good style. Enjoyable addresses upon the aims and growth of the order were given by the visiting officers and their remarks were greatly enjoyed by the members present.

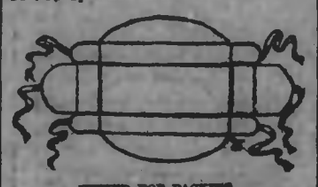
At the conclusion of the meeting the members and visitors adjourned to the Dominion Chinese Cafe where an enjoyable luncheon was partaken of and a social time spent.

The new tent is endeavouring to secure a certain number of members in sixty days and have the end in view now so successful have been their efforts.

A TRAVELING CASE.

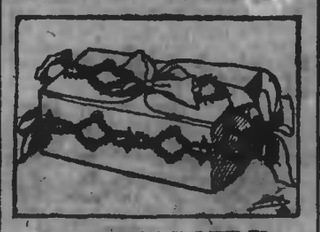
That Can Be Laid Perfectly Flat When Packed.

Here is a design for a traveling case to hold veils, ribbons and such odds and ends taken from a neatly made French pattern. Its charm is that the box is simply held together by bows of ribbon, and when these are untied it can be laid perfectly flat in one's bag or suit case with the veils, etc., folded on the top of it, ready to be tied up when the case is lifted out.



UNTIED FOR PACKING.

The diagram shows the shape of the illustrated box when unfastened for packing. It can of course be made in any size required. To make it cut out two pieces, or, rather, two sets of thirteen pieces each, for the sections of the box must be made separately and must be very accurately cut. Cover the cardboard on one side only with a pretty cretonne or silk (a patterned material may be used for the outside and plain for the inside if preferred or both sides may be covered alike). When both pieces have been covered, the material being either firmly pasted down over the edges of the cardboard or sewed across with large, firm stitches, lay the pieces face to face, the material on the outside, and oversew the edges together with strong silk. Finish with a fine cord all round to hide the joins and add six ribbon strings, three at either end, as shown in the diagram. On setting the box up tie the side ribbons, lay in the veils, etc., and tie the upper ribbons over the flaps which have no strings.



RIBBON OR VEIL CASE TIED UP.

Watch Little Weaknesses.

One of the strangest paradoxes in human nature is that men and women struggling apparently with all their might to succeed are yet constantly doing things, saying things and thinking things which drive the very success they are after away from them.

They are all the time counteracting their efforts by some indiscretion.

Men work like Trojans to get a coveted position and then by getting puffed up with conceit or by some foolish or weak act knock the scaffolding, which they have been years in building, out from under them, and down they go.

Their lives are a series of successive climbs and tumbles, so that they never get anywhere, never accomplish anything worth while.

There are thousands of men who are working in very ordinary salaried positions who might have been employers themselves but for some unfortunate weakness or some peculiarity, something which might have been remedied by a little discipline and self study.

Others are always driving success away from them by their doubts, their fears, their lack of courage, their lack of confidence—driving it away by thoughtless habits which repel success conditions.

Bridal Souvenirs.

Among the newest and prettiest souvenirs for the bride to present her maids is a small brooch of enamel that looks exactly like a bunch of autumn leaves. On one of the leaves a tiny diamond that looks like a drop of dew is set. The enamel gives the rich coloring of the gold and russet and crimson of fall foliage. The little brooch costs about $12 and is very new.

Another is a charming little bangle, a heart shaped locket in gold, left quite plain for the date of the wedding and a place inside for the bride's picture. These are also intended as souvenirs from the bride to her maids.

An African fat used for domestic purposes is the oil of a species of beetle. It is like hardened cocoanut oil.

NO DECISION IN THE DEBATE

Important Matrimonial Question Not Yet Decided

An important subject was debated upon last night at the meeting of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, when Dr. Marshall led the way by claiming that the country girl was known to be physically a much healthier girl, more capable in the culinary department, in the performing of her duties of a wife, and that a husband must be fed with a good loaf of bread.

Mr. Thomas assisted the affirmative side, arguing much along the same line.

Mr. A. Hanna took the negative side and struck out into a new line of thought by asserting that a city girl was a trinity being and that her animal being was not so important as her intellectual and her spiritual being. He advanced the idea that cultivated intellect and moral growth of a city girl was a greater benefit to a young man in sharing the felicities of life.

Owing to Mr. Hanna not having an assistant the debate was closed without a decision so the palpitation of the heart will likely continue with the young men until they decide for themselves.

THE LAND O'CAKES IN SONG AND STORY

Grand Scottish Concert in Conservatory Hall on St. Andrews' Eve, Nov. 29th

The musical observances of the day of the Patron Saint of Scotland this year is represented by a grand concert to be given by world-famed Scottish entertainers in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Friday evening, Nov. 29th. The concert will be given under the auspices of the local camp Sons of Scotland and under the local management of the Peterborough Conservatory of Music. The programme will be presented by what is called the "World-famed Scottish Entertainers" — Maggie Strachan, soprano, "the Modern Jessie Lad," and Gavin Spence, tenor, "prince of entertainers and entertainers of princes." These will be assisted by Miss Enid Newcombe, cellist, a graduate of the London, Eng., Guild Hall Society of Music. Wherever this splendid combination has appeared it has met with instantaneous success and has aroused the greatest enthusiasm. Coming at the season it does, this concert, while it will appeal strongly to the general music-loving public, should from its national tang appeal with especial force to the Scottish element of our citizens, particularly as it is years since St. Andrew's Day was formally observed by banquet or concert. Admission to the concert, which will be held in the Conservatory Hall on Friday, Nov. 29th, is placed at popular figures—25 cents and 50 cents.

VISITORS HAD WHISKY' MADE TROUBLE

At the county police court this morning Magistrate Edmison passed judgment on a case that happened in North Monaghan. The story of the affair is that two men, named Watt and Coleman, went to the residence of a man named Sidney to pay him a visit. The visitors had a large bottle of whisky which they uncorked and began to pass around. Sidney encouraged them, and when they saw the bottom all three men were said to be very drunk. What happened next was not clearly brought out, but suffice to say that Watt and Coleman began to fight with Sidney, and the jubilee ended with a grand finale, in which the owner of the house came out third best.

He preferred a charge of assault against Coleman and Watt, adding that "actual bodily harm was done." To-day, however, the charge was reduced to that of common assault. Both men pleaded guilty and judgment was passed. Coleman was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $16.70, and Watt $5 and costs, amounting to $15.95. Coleman paid his fine on the spot, and Watt had to produce his by 5 o'clock or go to jail for thirty days.

DAVID HARTLEY SHOWS HIS TRUE FORM BY DEFEATING JIMMIE REYNOLDS DECISIVELY

Wonderful Peterboro' Walker Won From The Port Hope Pedestrain in Handy Fashion by One Mile in Mutual Street Rink, Toronto

COVERED NEARLY 58 MILES

Hartley Was in The Lead all The Way Starting Out by Getting Two Laps Ahead in First Hour—Great Excitement in City

David Hartley at once more the hero of Peterborough, and the citizens are united in praising his latest walking feat. On Saturday he settled all doubts as to who was the better man, when he defeated Jimmy Reynolds, the Port Hope barber, hailed as a wonder in Port Hope, and elsewhere, in decisive fashion, in a twelve hour walking contest, in the Mutual street rink, Toronto before one of the largest crowds that has ever packed into that well-known building. At the end of the long grind the local pedestrian was one mile ahead, having travelled 57 miles, 6 laps — 704 yards, or 2-5 of a mile, while the Port Hope man had gone 56 miles 8 laps. Hartley was in splendid shape at the finish, while Reynolds, although he had pluckily continued, was very much fagged, the great burst of speed shown by the Peterborough walker in the early stages, having apparently worn him out. His opponent, on the other hand, had few traces of having walked nearly 60 miles, and was trudging around the rink as if the walk had only begun.

Going out at the start, Mr. Hartley showed his form early by stepping off the first mile in a little over 9 minutes, and in the first hour he set up a lead of two laps which was increased to three at half past twelve, an hour and a half after the race had started. Showing no mercy on his antagonist, who was doggedly trying to make up the ground lost, Hartley kept up the speed with which he had started out, and by 3.39 he had increased his lead, and was then 5 laps, or one-third of a mile, in advance of the barber. Even this did not content him, and at 5 o'clock he was seven laps in the lead and in the next hour gained four more, putting him over two-thirds of a mile ahead. During the next two hours, Reynolds gained, and at 8.25 was seven laps behind. Hartley however came back with another long spurt, which left him a mile ahead at 9.30. This lead he held until the end, Reynolds gaining a lap once in a while, only to lose it again when the local man increased his pace.

No athletic event for years has attracted so much attention in Peterborough. From noon on Saturday until the final bulletin was received here the three phones in the Examiner office were rarely silent, and in nine cases out of ten the question would be, "How is Hartley doing now?" or others to the same effect.

The Examiner had arranged for a bulletin service which gave great satisfaction, reports of the progress of the race being received almost every hour during the contest, and at fifteen minute intervals during the last stages. The result was that there was a big crowd in front of the office all day which kept increasing until the final message came. At 11.15 when the final result was received, several thousand people had assembled, filling up half the block, and the excitement was intense. When the last bulletin was hung out, announcing that Hartley had won by a mile, there was a sigh of relief from the crowd, followed immediately by wild cheers of enthusiasm. The victory was a most popular one, and the crowd showed their interest by the manner in which they waited for the result. Many old men, to whom 11 o'clock seems very late to be out, stood in the muddy streets for hours until it was known at last that the contest was over, and that Hartley had won.

From the time that the first bulletins were displayed the interest began to grow, and the excitement and delight of the citizens increased in proportion to the increase in lead of Hartley. When a bulletin at 6.15 announced that Hartley was eleven laps to the good, there was great joy, which cobered down a little, when a message at 8.25 gave the information that the Port Hope man had gained four laps, and was a little less than half a mile behind. Then the real excitement began, and the crowd could hardly wait for the bulletins, so excited were they. There was a big cheer when the next despatch showed that Hartley had increased his lead and was a mile ahead at 9.30. The race seemed to be over then, but there was always a chance of an accident or a total collapse and so the crowd could not

THE PETERBOROUGH CITIZENS WILL DO HONOUR TO THEIR WALKING WONDER

When David Hartley, the walking wonder of Peterborough, arrives to-night on the 7.47 C.P.R. train from Toronto he will be given a great reception. Arrangements have been made to have the band out, and it is expected that the crowd will rival that which met the hockey boys on their return from Goderich over a year ago. Hartley has performed two remarkable feats within the recollection of every citizen in Peterborough. He has advertised Peterborough and brought fame to his native city, and the citizens can do no better than do honour to him on his arrival home. His famous walk from Oshawa to Toronto and back to Peterborough, and his wonderful achievement on Saturday are sufficient reasons for a reception. Hartley will dine at the Oriental in company with his wife and trainer after the arrival of the local.

Dies Suddenly In Hospital From Lumber Camp Accident

Ralph Lawrence of Douro, a Victim To Spinal Merrigitis As a Result Of An Accident At Pulp Wood Camp at Cartier, Ont.

WAS ONLY A YOUNG MAN

Sad news was that which was conveyed to Mr. David Lawrence, who lives on the old Charlton farm, two miles east of Lakefield, in Douro, township, when, on Saturday, he learned of the very sudden death of his son Ralph, in North Ontario. According to the report the deceased died of spinal meningetis, due to an accident sustained in the woods near Cartier, Ont. He was taken to an hospital in the Parry Sound district, but succumbed, after a brief struggle, to the fatal disease.

Ralph Lawrence was only a young man, about twenty years of age. He went north to work for the Tait pulp-wood company and was engaged at their camp at Cartier, Ont. He has only been absent from his home for several months and his death was therefore all the more unexpected. He was well known in Peterborough and the news of his sudden death will be received with general regret.

Besides his father, David Lawrence, there are left Harold, brother, and Robert, his grandfather. The remains were conveyed through the city to-day to the home near Lakefield, and the funeral will be held to-morrow to the Lakefield cemetery

Monster Reception To David Hartley To-night

The Council and Citizens Generally Will Show Their Appreciation of Wonderful Work of Little Walker —Procession From Station

RECEPTION AT THE PARK

David Hartley will arrive home on the 7.47 C. P. R. train to-night, and will be tendered a monster reception by the council and the citizens generally. The Reception Committee of the council held an emergency meeting this morning, and arranged the details. The committee was unanimous in the opinion that something should be done to show the walking wonder that his great feat, consequent advertising for the city are not unappreciated by the representatives of the citizens, and the preparations for the reception were entered into with an enthusiasm that augurs well for the success of the affair.

At the meeting it was decided that the council should meet Mr. Hartley in a body at the station, and form a procession consisting of the 57th band, the council, and Mr. Hartley, in carriages, the fire brigade, with all their apparatus, except the fire engine, and representatives of whatever athletic bodies wish to take part. The committee decided to purchase fireworks, and the task of using them to the best advantage will be left in the hands of the members of the Fire Brigade.

The procession will proceed by way of George street to the Central Park, where a short reception will take place at the band stand. Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Reception Committee, will preside, and the Mayor will make a short speech of congratulations to Mr. Hartley, and the latter will reply. Afterwards Mr. and Mrs. Hartley, and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Stevens, have been invited to dinner at the Oriental by Mr. George N. Graham.

The council urges that the citizens of Peterborough unite in making the reception a success. The merchants are requested to decorate their premises if possible, and at any rate have them well lit up in honour of the great little walker. Everybody will be welcomed in the reception, and the bigger the crowd the greater the success of the affair. Every citizen of Peterborough should be at teh station to-night to give Mr. Hartley a royal reception, such as his great victory merits. He has done more to advertise Peterborough than any one man in years, and the citizens should not let his magnificent feat go unnoticed. Get out to-night and help to swell the crowd, and the enthusiasm, and bring something with which to make a noise—if it is only a fog horn. Show Mr. Hartley that Peterborough knows how to appreciate good work on the part of her citizens, and make the affair such a big success that this fact will be revealed to the world at large. It will be almost as good an advertisement as was Mr. Hartley's feat.

In Spite Of Opposition Hartley Keeps His Nerve

Mr. Geo. Stevens, His Manager, Throws Interesting Light On The Feat of The Walking Wonder

INCIDENTS OF THE WALK

The story of the great 12-hour walk as told by Mr. Geo. Stevens, the manager of David Hartley is perhaps the most lucid than possibly could fall from the lips of any man. Mr. Stevens arrived home on the C.P.R. midnight train last night and on arriving at the Oriental was surrounded by a group of Hartley admirers, including an Examiner representative and for two long hours he related incidents of the long grind which has proved to all Canada that the Peterborough man is not only a "walking wonder on the highways," but that he is a walking wonder in the interior of a rink amidst the howling opposition of a thousand mouths.

Hartley won. Mr. Stevens did not need to tell that fact to the little group of "night hawks" who waited at the Oriental last night to listen to the story. Everybody in Peterborough knew that he was the victor by a mile. But the circumstances surrounding the event were new and Mr. Stevens was called upon to give the details.

"We won," he said, "in the face of the difficult proposition of having the whole rink against us."

"Come on Jimmy, come on Jimmy, you'll catch him yet;" and "Hartley can't stand it; his legs are playing out," were frequent remarks from the crowd. "They were all howling for Jimmy Reynolds and at one time I was a little afraid that Hartley would get rattled. Once, about 10 o'clock Jimmy caught up to him, but our man no sooner heard him at his heels than he sped away and lapped him in the next half hour."

An Inspiration

Almost the sole inspiration that "Davie" received, said Mr. Stevens, was from his little niece who sat on the front seat. Every time the walking wonder passed, the little girl was heard to say "Go it uncle, and lap him again," and her uncle lapped him again and again.

Mr. Stevens still believes that Reynolds, the barber, is a wonderful walker, but that Hartley is a marvel. He has visions of the long walk between Montreal and Toronto next year, with the prospect of going before a New York audience.

As mentioned in Saturday's Examiner, the judge considered Hartley the prettiest walker he had ever seen on a track. There were about 100 Port Hope supporters in the rink, and only a few from Peterborough.

Neither man stopped any more than a few seconds during the whole 12 hours. Hartley consumed a large quantity of beef tea, soup, beef steak, a quart of milk and a dozen raw eggs as he walked around the rink.

"Was it true there were 4,000 people at the rink?"

"Yes," said Mr. Stevens, "but they were all on the outside."

The gate was disappointingly small owing largely to the high price of admission—50 cents and 75 cents.

An Early Bird

Yesterday morning Hartley arose from his bed at 6 o'clock and awakened Mr. Stevens from a peaceful dream. He was up almost with the sun and taking some outdoor exercise around the Woodbine club house. Mr. Stevens stated that at 11 o'clock Jimmy Reynolds was still in bed at his hotel.

Another match may be arranged in the Peterborough rink between the painter and the barber in the course of a few weeks as Reynolds still believes he can follow Peterborough's walking wonder. A match with Langford is also a possibility.

David Hartley and his trainer, Charles Stevens, will be home on the C.P.R. local to-night.

A COMPARISON

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was right in his retro-vision and his prevision when he declared that, as the Nineteenth Century belonged to the United States, so the Twentieth Century belongs to Canada. That is to say that, as the United States progressed and developed in the century named, so Canada is progressing and will progress in the present century. One is a matter of history and the other is a matter of history in the making. The fulfilment of the prophetic part is gloriously beginning, and Canada's development will be the more rapid since the advantages of the progress of the past century will help. The achievements of science and invention and the general conditions that prevail are more favourable to development. The Toronto Star has been digging up a few statistics that bear upon the subject. The relative position of Canada at the beginning of this present century, as compared with that of the United States in the past century, is much more advanced in other respects than in population. In immigration it was not until 1850 that any considerable inflow into the United States took place, and even so late as 1870 arrivals in that country from abroad were no greater than will be the inflow into Canada during the present year. Our export trade to-day is nearly equal to that enjoyed by the United States in 1860; our bank deposits are greater than were those of our neighbours in the same year; our present coal production is equal to the total of theirs attained in 1850; the figure representing the railway mileage in Canada at present was not surpassed by the United States until near the end of the fifties, and the tonnage of freight carried by Canadian railways last year was equal to that carried by American railways in the eighties. In other respects the position of Canada to-day is identical with that of the United States at the close of the Civil War.

CHURCH UNION

In the light of the fierce denominationalism that blazes so permatently, the idea of church union seems utopian—a beautiful dream—an abstract excellence but a concrete improbability. The Presbyterian, a church journal, tells of a case where one denomination established itself in a place, small, but large enough to sustain in fairly robust life one church, one centre of Christian activity. But soon three other denominations descended upon the devoted spot, with the result that there are now four weak, sickly, struggling religious centres doing little except defeat the prayer of our Lord for unity, instead of one robust Christian power doing effective work. Yet all these three invading superfluous Christian bodies talk Christian unity, and join in conferences to promote church union—union with the very church, which is theoretically considered orthodox enough for church union purposes but unfit to serve a small community with Christian teaching, without being watched, so that it wont do too much good, wont gather too many lost sheep into that particular denominational fold. In the face of such relentless denominational aggressiveness it seems folly to speak of church union. Each of the denominations in question must have felt that its particular brand of dogma, was the only cure for the sin-sick district so numerously invaded. If zeal for souls had been the motive, if there had been at bottom a trace of belief that the doctrine and practices of the pioneer denomination were sufficient to salvation, three invading denominations would have sought new fields and have established new centres of Christian influence. Will organic and corporal union of the churches result in spiritual union, an assimilative combination of compatible doctrinal and other elements, or in mere juxtaposition, with the old heaven of denominationalism cloaked by the visible body of a church organism?

BEER MAKES BLOOD

MALT has certain food-elements which the body can transform into healthy blood quickly and with the least digestive effort.

HOPS contain a medical principle which tones the nerves without reaction, and so supplies nervous energy and saves it as well.

BEER as brewed in Ontario is made from choicest Ontario barley malt, selected hops, and the purest of water, dealt with under conditions which insure purity and quality.

THE better the blood the sounder the health, and the surer the body to combat disease effectively. Beer, by some counted an intoxicant, is not so—it is a blood-maker, with barely enough alcohol in it to help the stomach do its work far better.

Beer with meals is good for 997 people out of every thousand—and is specially good for women. Ask your own doctor about it—beer is probably good for you.

"BEER is a term which covers lager, ales, porter, and stout; and in the practice of Ontario lawyers, hospital managers under local legislative conditions from Ontario barley alone head the world in malt, hops, and pure water.

AD MULTOS ANNOS

Every Canadian, with an interest in the welfare of Canada, and the credit of her statesmanship, will share the wish that Sir Wilfrid Laurier, will be spared many years to continue the great work he has done, and is doing, to build up Canada, not only in a material regard, but in unifying the diverse elements of her citizenship, to make Canada more worthy of her foremost place in the Empire, and even to make the Empire worthy of Canada. The indications are that Sir Wilfrid has many years of usefulness before him, for, as distinguished statesmen go he is comparatively a young man. The St. John, N. B., Sun, has an interesting reference. It points out that so large a place, in so long a span of Canadian history Sir Wilfrid Laurier has filled that the reminder his birthday brings of his comparative youthfulness, comes as an annual surprise. To-day this man, whom his political opponents are telling the people is old, and must soon relinquish his invincible leadership of the Liberal party, is only 66. At that age his former predecessor, Sir John Macdonald, had not yet reached the height of his political strength. After he was 66, Sir John held the Premiership of Canada for ten years, and led his party successfully through three elections. He was still premier, when he died, full of honour, at the age of 76. The present premier of Great Britain is 71 years old. Lord Salisbury held office till he was 72. Gladstone was premier at 85, D'Israeli at 76. To-day Sir Wilfrid is in better health than for many years, and mentally he is as keen and vigourous as at any time in the 36 years of public service, during which his patriotism, and statesmanship and personal integrity, have raised him step by step in the esteem and affection of the people to the unchallenged position of Canada's greatest son.

PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Lemieux Act seems to be doing good work if demand for its services is to be regarded as an indication. The seventh application under the Act for a board of investigation into matters in dispute between Spring Hill, N. S., coal mine employers and employees has been received at Ottawa. A great saving in the way of prevention of loss of wages and loss of profit to capital, with the incidental suffering of families, has been effected by the operation of the Act.

President Elliott, of Harvard College, U. S., in a recent address to the members of the Harvard Canadian Club, in the course of a glowing tribute to the work of Mr. W. L. Mackenzie King, a former member, said that the recent legislation of the Canadian Parliament for the settlement of industrial disputes was "the best in the world." Incidentally Prof. Elliott pointed out that it would be difficult for the United States to follow Canada's lead in such excellent legislation because the initiative could not be taken by the Federal Government, but must proceed from the several States. The United States constitution may be a very admirable document, but it apparently has some defects, which prevent a freedom of desirable action. These defects are not to be found in the more elastic and better ordered national charter of Canada.

The plea of Hon. Mr. McKay, the Liberal Ontario leader, for reform of law procedure in the direction of preventing the big purse from oppressing the poor suitor, receives point from the fact that the Toronto Street Railway Company refuses to pay a widow $2,000 damages, the amount fixed by a judgment of the court as damages for the death of her husband. The company takes refuge in an appeal. Without reference to the merits of the case, this seems to be an instance of Providence being on the side of the big battalions—or big corporations. Mr. McKay points out that a rich corporation, by appeal after appeal, can wear down a poor suitor and compel abandonment of a claim by default—a tragedy in which justice plays no part. The long purse is stronger than the long arm of the law. He advocates a simplification of process which will prevent justice being drowned in the abyss of a deep purse: Law is a good thing, but justice is a better, and equity an improvement on both.

POPULAR OFFICER HAS RESIGNED

Mr. Louis Bolin Presented With Gold Pin Yesterday

At the regular meeting of St. Peter's T.A.S. yesterday Mr. Louis Bolin tendered his resignation to the society as financial secretary. Before the meeting closed a happy event took place when Rev. Dr. O'Brien on behalf of the society presented Mr. Bolin with a gold pin in recognition of his efficient services. For four terms he has filled the position of financial secretary with credit to himself and to the entire satisfaction of the society.

In making the presentation, Rev. Dr. O'Brien paid a tribute to Mr. Bolin's abilities and to his untiring efforts for the welfare of the society. Mr. Bolin replied in a few well-chosen words, thanking the members for their kindness and for their hearty support on all occasions. He assured them that he would always remember his happy relations with St. Peter's T.A.S. Mr. Bolin will leave Peterborough in a short time.

Douma Ask Czar to Have Confidence In the Members.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 25.—The text of the address of the Lower House of Parliament to Emperor Nicholas is as follows:

"Most Gracious Sire,—Your Imperial Majesty has deigned to greet the members of the [illegible] Douma and to invoke the Almighty's blessing on the legislative work before us. We, therefore, take the liberty to express personally to your Imperial Majesty, our feelings of gratitude to the supreme head of Russia, and our thanks for the right of popular representation granted to Russia and secured by the fundamental laws of the empire.

OPERATIONS AVOIDED

Two Grateful Letters from Women Who Avoided Serious Operations.—Many Women Suffering from Like Conditions Will Be Interested.

When a physician tells a woman, suffering from female trouble, that an operation is necessary it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart. As one woman expressed it, when told by her physician that she must undergo an operation she felt that her death knell had sounded.

Our hospitals are full of women who are there for just such operations!

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but such cases are much rarer than is generally supposed, because a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after the doctors had said an operation must be performed. In fact, up to the point where the knife must be used to secure instant relief, this medicine is certain to help.

The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who, by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, have escaped serious operations.

Mrs. Robert Glenn of 434 Marie St., Ottawa, Ont., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so well and widely known that it does not need my recommendation, but I am pleased to add it to the many which you have in its favor. I have suffered untold agonies from a serious female trouble for nearly three years, and the doctors told me that I must undergo an operation, but as I was unwilling to do this, I tried your Vegetable Compound, and I am only too pleased that I did so, for it restored me to perfect health, saving me the pain of an operation and the immense bills attending the same. Pray accept my hearty thanks and best wishes."

Miss Margaret Merkley of 275 3d Street, Milwaukee, Wis., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"Loss of strength, extreme nervousness, severe shooting pains through the pelvis organs, cramps, bearing-down pains, and an irritable disposition compelled me to seek medical advice. The doctor, after making an examination, said that I had a serious female trouble and ulceration, and advised an operation as my only hope. To this I strongly objected—and I decided as a last resort to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"To my surprise the ulceration healed, all the bad symptoms disappeared, and I am once more strong, vigorous and well; and I cannot express my thanks for what it has done for me."

Serious feminine troubles are steadily on the increase among women—and before submitting to an operation every woman should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and write Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., for advice.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been curing the worst forms of female complaints, all functional troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement, weakness, irregularities, indigestion and nervous prostration. Any woman who could read the many grateful letters on file in Mrs. Pinkham's office would be convinced of the efficiency of her advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

WAS SHE POISONED?

Thamesville, Ont.—The wife of a prominent citizen of Thamesville was the heroine of a mysterious case which has just been successfully solved. About a year ago, Mrs. J. W. Dulong began to suffer with headaches. There was no apparent cause for them. After trying the ordinary "headache remedies," and failing to get relief, Mrs. Dulong consulted several physicians, who pooh-hooed the idea of anything out of the ordinary and told her she "would be all right."

Vague hints became rumors. Was Mrs. Dulong being poisoned? Yes, she was—and strangest of all, by herself. Not intentionally—nor with drugs—but nevertheless, she was slowly poisoning herself. Headaches are always a sign of blood poisoning. Bowels, skin and kidneys should rid the system of tissue waste. If one of these organs are weak or not acting properly, this waste stays in the system—is absorbed by the blood—and irritates the nerves and makes the headaches.

"I have tried 'Fruit-a-tives' and found them splendid for headaches,' writes Mrs. Dulong after her recovery. "I feel so much better since I commenced taking them. I think they are a splendid medicine and" (note this) "I am recommending them to my friends." Everybody, who takes Fruit-a-tives, is grateful for the cures they affect. It is wonderful how quickly "Fruit-a-tives" give relief in all cases stomach, liver, kidney and bowel trouble. If you suffer, get a box today: 50c, 6 boxes for $2.50. At your druggist or sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa Ont.

DAVID HARTLEY SHOWS HIS TRUE FORM BY DEFEATING REYNOLDS

go home in peace until the last word was received, although every telegram from 9.30 to the finish showed that the local man was holding his own.

At 10.30, when it was seen that Hartley had the race well in hand, and would win without trouble, the Examiner sent the following telegram to the grand little walker, "Congratulations on your win from the Examiner." And while the message did not say so, yet the citizens of Peterborough united in echoing the sentiment.

The Bulletins Received

The Examiner' bulletins kept the crowd well informed of the movements of the walkers. The first received was from Mr. George Stevens, who, with his son, were looking after Hartley. It stated that in the first hour Hartley had gone 6 miles and one lap, and Reynolds 5 miles and 14 laps.

The other bulletins were received as follows:

12.30 o'clock, Hartley 9 miles, 8 laps; Reynolds, 9 miles 5 laps.

2 o'clock, Hartley 15 miles 13 laps; Reynolds. 15 miles, 8 laps.

3.15 o'clock, Hartley 23 miles; Reynolds, 22 miles 10 laps.

5 o'clock, Hartley. 31 miles; Reynolds, 30 miles 5 laps.

6.15 o'clock, Hartley 36 miles; Reynolds, 35 miles 4 laps.

8.25 o'clock, Hartley 41 miles; Reynolds 40 miles 8 laps.

9.35 o'clock, Hartley 50 miles; Reynolds, 49 miles.

9.50, Hartley 51 miles, Reynolds 50 miles 14 laps.

10.15, Hartley 53 miles 3 laps; Reynolds 52 miles 4 laps.

10.45, Hartley 55 miles, 13 laps; Reynolds, 54 miles 14 laps.

The finish—Hartley 57 miles 6 laps, Reynolds, 56 miles 6 laps.

Some idea of the strenuous nature of the grind may be given when it is stated that Hartley travelled around the rink 861 times, and that in doing so he took at least 100,320 steps, probably a little more, as his stride which in a steady walk is 36 inches might be shortened somewhat at the fast pace which he set.

A Toronto despatch says:

Jimmy Reynolds of Port Hope, and David Hartley of Peterborough commenced their twelve hour walking race at the Mutual street rink on Saturday at 2 1-2 minutes past 11 a. m. Thos. Fitzgerald, starter and referee sent the men away, and Tom Eck, the judge of the contest, assisted.

Hartley wore a blue jersey, black knickers, a handerchief around his neck, and a black cap; while Reynolds walked bare-headed, with a black and orange sweater and black knickers. Both wore specially prepared shoes with soft soles and high uppers and short socks. Hartley was bare-legged while Reynolds wore underwear.

Hartley Showed Style

Hartley started off at a rattling clip and showed a fine clean style of walking. He walked in an erect upright position, with chest extended, and arms swinging like the pendulum of a clock.

Reynolds had an entirely different style of travelling, more of a lope than anything else with shoulders bent forward and evidently saving himself for the crucial test in the later stages.

Hartley's style seemed the more wearing though he undoubtedly had the superior early speed.

Hartley walked the first mile in 9 minutes 25 seconds, with Reynolds 15 yards in the rear. The second mile was covered by Hartley in ten, and after going two more laps, he lapped Reynolds, and then dropped behind Port Hope's walking barber. This did not last long, as Hartley, after a hard sprint again took the lead and set the pace.

Hartley Increases Lead

Between the 4th and 5th miles, Hartley walked at a tremendous clip, lapped Reynolds again, and then seemed content with his two laps lead, and tagged on behind, letting Reynolds do the pace-making. The Port Hope man's supporters were not at all dismayed and said it was a question of endurance as well as of speed, and that their man would make up the lost ground in the closing stages of the contest. Reynolds seemed to improve as he went along and his apparent nervousness wore off.

Hartley's time for the first five miles was 48 minutes and 30 seconds, a splendid average for a track with 15 laps to the mile. Reynolds time for the same distance was 57 minutes. The men were then settled down to real hard work, and were walking with better judgment, and in a steadier fashion.

The score at 12 o'clock, after the first hour, was as follows:—

	Miles.	Laps.
Hartley.....	6	1
Reynolds.....	5	14

At 4.03 Hartley was 5 laps ahead of Reynolds, when 25 miles had been covered in exactly 5 hours.

At 5 o'clock Hartley was walking strong with Reynolds at his heels. The Port Hope representative was going good but appeared to be perspiring a lot more than his competitor.

There was no speculation on the event, but the crowd, which augmented during the afternoon favoured Reynolds to win the race.

At 5.30 Hartley was ahead of Reynolds by 8 laps, having gained two laps from 4.30. The walkers had then travelled 31 miles.

At 6.30 the walkers at the rink had covered 36 miles. Reynolds seemed to be completely fagged out. Hartley was then ten laps, or two thirds of a mile ahead of the barber. The last lap was made while Jimmy Reynolds was taking a rest in his booth. Hartley looked an easy winner. Reynolds complained that his shins were very sore. His whole body shook at every step, while Hartley walked along with a smart stride which did not appear to affect his body motion, and at the same time had the appearance of being quite fresh. The Port Hope man had shown great pluck, but apparently had lost heart in trying to beat Hartley in the time specified.

(Although "Jimmy" is a plucky old sport, and has a grand constitution, he at no stage of the long tramp had the heel and toe walking stunt down as fine as Hartley, who walked in a smart fashion for the whole time. Reynolds swung his body too much, and before half the time was over was complaining of a sore shin. The crowd which augmented during the evening cheered the pedestrian barber all the way, for the last hour or so, but Hartley had his nerve and kept plugging away. Both men were in fair shape at the close. Reynolds was the first to congratulate Hartley. Both were presented bouquets, and as a sentiment "Jimmy" exchanged flowers with "Dave."

Shortly after 11 o'clock they started and not until 6.30 did either rest from the ceaseless labour of making the circuit of the rink. What refreshments they took was given while they were on the move, the walkers merely stopping long enough to swallow a few mouthfuls of beef tea or other stimulants.

It was during these pauses the Peterborough man gained the advantage. When Reynolds was being refreshed Hartley would spurt and gain a lap on the barber, and when his turn came to stop he would make up the distance lost by sprinting. Once near the close of the afternoon Hartley, who had been hanging on Reynolds' heels for half an hour, passed the older man and added an extra lap to his string in less than 15 circuits of the track.

His tactics worried the barber, who was either discouraged by the better showing of the Peterborough pedestrian, or was holding back with the object of gradually wearing his opponent down. Being the heavier man, his walking seemed the greater effort. Hartly stepped lightly and at no stage of the game looked tired, while as the evening wore on, Reynolds exhibited signs of distress.

During the afternoon about 4 o'clock, Mrs. H. L. Elmore presented the walkers with a bunch of roses. This brought forth applause, and a "thank you very much" from the walkers.

Those Horrid Bilious Spells

HAVE BECOME A HABIT—BUT YOU CAN BREAK UP THE HABIT BY USING

DR. CHASE'S KIDNEY-LIVER PILLS

"It is nothing when you get used to it," is a common expression which many seem to apply to attacks of biliousness.

Year after year they suffer from frequent spells of bilious headache, indigestion, constipation followed by looseness of the bowels, dizziness, despondency and ill-temper, and the habit seems to have become so firmly established that they do not think of breaking the chains of bondage.

Why not make a break for liberty, health and happiness. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills stand ready to help you. They have helped thousands under just such circumstances to know again the joys of healthful living.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills cure biliousness by reason of their direct and specific action on the liver, causing the bile to be properly filtered from the blood, where it acts as a poison, and passed into the intestines, where it is necessary to aid digestion and regulate the action of the bowels.

By this treatment you not only obtain relief from the attack, but bring about lasting cure, and prevent kidney disease, which is the usual outcome of neglected biliousness.

"I was suffering for years with stomach trouble and terrible headaches, and spent a good many dollars in medicine without receiving any benefit. Hearing Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills highly recommended, I determined to give them a trial and did so with most satisfactory results as I was very greatly benefitted, and do not hesitate to recommend this treatment as the best obtainable for such ailments." — Mrs. Thomas Covert, Highland Grove, Peterborough Co., Ont.

SHOT WHILE ASLEEP.

Young Bride Kills Her Husband, Fires House, and Suicides.

New York, Nov. 25.—A strange double tragedy which for a time baffled solution, happened in this vicinity early Saturday, when Nicholas Smith, a wealthy New York manufacturer, was shot and killed by his bride of six months, Mrs. Grace Van Schaick Smith, who then killed herself.

After firing a bullet into her husband's brain as he lay asleep, she set fire to their house in New Rochelle, and then fired a bullet into her own heart.

Firemen extinguished the flames and saved the lives of two women servants, who, frightened by the shooting, had locked themselves in their room. After an examination of witnesses Coroner Squire found a verdict that Mrs. Smith killed her husband and then took her own life.

It is believed that the woman became suddenly insane, a theory borne out by the fact that a number of years ago she was confined in an asylum because of melancholia brought on by brooding over the loss of a $2,000,000 fortune.

FRENCH VESSEL SMASHED.

Submarines Collide Under Water While Attacking Battleships.

Toulon, Nov. 25.—While engaged in making a joint attack on the battleship Jauregulberry, during the naval manoeuvres off this port, the submarines Bonite and Souffleur collided at a depth of thirty metres.

The Souffleur's connng tower window was smashed and the water began to rush in, but with rare presence of mind, the commander operated the rising mechanism and the vessel reached the surface before it had time to fill completely.

Another Rockefeller Gift.

New York, Nov. 25.—The board of directors of the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research of this city have announced an additional gift from John D. Rockefeller of $2,600,000.

The money is to form an endowment fund, the proceeds of which may be used in any way the directors see fit. It is understood that the success of the institute is discovering a remedy for cebrero spinal meningitais, which followed a lengthy investigation under the guidance of Dr. Simon Flodner, director of the institute, was largely responsible for Mr. Rockfeller's gift.

Blew Open Two Safes.

Beecher Falls, Vt., Nov. 25.—Burglars, apparently well equipped with explosives and other safe-breaking implements, entered the Main Central station here some time during the night, blew open two safes and escaped with more than $1,000 in cash. It is believed that they crossed the Canadian boundary.

Fatal Head-On Collision.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Engineer Thomas Edward Vernell, aged 38 years, of this city, was instantly killed in a head-on collision between two freight trains on the Central New England and Western Railroad at St. Elmo, 40 miles west of this city early yesterday. No other person was hurt.

Magistrate Bartlett Injured.

Windsor, Nov. 25.—Magistrate Alexander Bartlett fell down part of a flight of stairs in the City Hall Saturday, and received injuries which will likely confine him to his home two or three weeks. He is 85 years of age, and the oldest acting magistrate in Canada, as far as is known.

La Tuque Branch Open.

Quebec, Nov. 25.—The La Tuque branch of the Quebec and Lake St. John Railway is now open for traffic. The directors of the company will celebrate the event next Saturday, the 30th inst., by a special excursion.

"SHOT UP" THE OFFICE.

Editorial Writer Seriously Wounded President of Company.

Kansas City, Mo., Nov. 25.—Gen. Richard C. Horne, editorial writer on The Kansas City Post, shot twice and seriously wounded O. D. Woodward, president of The Post Co., on Saturday, and then shot H. J. Groves, managing editor, in the right hip. Woodward was hit in the right arm and in the right side. The shooting occurred in the editorial rooms of The Post.

Horne, who is a stockholder in the paper, and one of its founders, was discharged because of business depression. Saturday he bought a revolver and went to The Post office. When Woodward appeared Horne displayed the pistol, exclaiming, "No man can rob me," and began to shoot. Woodward fell wounded. Groves, who was in the room, tried to escape, but was shot while running. Horne surrendered to a policeman. Woodward is a theatrical manager, and controls two theatres in Kansas City, one in Omaha, and one in Sioux City. Horne was a brigadier-general on Governor Stones' staff. He has been prominent in Missouri politics for many years. He formerly published a newspaper at Marshall, Mo. At the police station Horne said his whole fortune was invested in the paper, and that the other owners were robbing him. Horne is held at the city jail, but no charge has been filed against him, awaiting the results of the wounds.

DOUBLED UP LIKE PAPER.

Attempt to Protect Niagara Bridge Ends in Failure.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Nov. 25.—Plans of eminent engineers, made with all due care for the protection of the north abutment of the upper steel arch bridge on the American side, went awry last evening, when submitted to the critical test. The waters from the outlet of the tunnel of the Niagara Falls Power Co. have been threatening the abutments for some time, and it was decided to protect it from erosion by facing the abutment with a shield or armorplate.

Accordingly 12 plates, each weighing a ton, were securely riveted together, and at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon lowered over the side of the bridge by means of five cables. When the shield struck the water the tremendous force of the current doubled it up like a bit of paper and snapped four of the five cables. The engineers, seeing the uselessness of the device, ordered the fifth cable cut and the 13-ton plate now reposes on the bottom of the river.

How to protect the abutment is a serious problem. An effort to build a concrete retaining wall was given up as a failure, and now the second plan has proved futile.

SMOTHERED BY GAS.

Three Men Killed While Sinking a Well Near Aylesbury.

Craik, Sask., Nov. 25.—Word has just reached town of a shocking accident on the farm of James Allen, near Aylesbury, where three men were smothered by gas in a well that was being completed.

The dead are: Wm. J. Forfar, a well digger of Ellsmere; Richard H. Craig of Picton, his helper, and Lewis Riswold of Aylesbury, who tried to rescue the other two men. Only one body, that of Riswold, has been recovered, and it may be necessary to pump air into the well before the other bodies can be brought to the surface. The well is a hundred and fifty feet deep, but the bodies are lying on cribbing about thirty feet down.

Adams' Jury Disagreed.

Rathdrum, Idaho, Nov. 25.—The jury in the Steve Adams case was discharged at 5.45 o'clock yesterday afternoon being unable to agree to a verdict, after being out since 8.30 o'clock Saturday. The jury stood 8 for acquittal and 4 for conviction.

HORSE AND DRIVER CAME TO GRIEF

Otonabee Man Had To Be Taken Home Saturday Night

An Otonabee farmer who lives about a mile east of Downer's Corners had an experience on Saturday night which caused him considerable inconvenience. When he had just passed Downer's Corners his horse and buggy parted company and he remained behind with the buggy. He could not very well explain the circumstances of the affair as he had a "jag" on that lifted his mind above horse and material things. A man who happened to come along the road found him by the buggy and oblivious to the fact that he had a horseless carriage.

Just then another man came from the opposite direction, and he had tied the horse which he had found walking along the road to a fence. Between the two they restored the horse to its proper position, and the first man drove the inebriate to his home.

AN ANTIDOTE FOR HIS BAD TEMPER

A Practical Joke on a Farmer—Used His Own Horse

A certain farmer living near Bobcaygeon, having got himself disliked on account of his quarrelsome habits the other farmers decided one night to cool him off a bit. At midnight the farmer was disturbed by a voice shouting, "Your horse is stolen!" The irate farmer hurried on his clothes and, hastening to the door, asked, "Which way has he gone?" "Toward H——," replied one of the farmers. Another offered the loan of a horse he bestrode, which offer the sleepy farmer accepted. After riding all night he found himself at daylight next morning riding his own horse.

THE DIAMOND CHALK HORSE SHOE COMPANY

The Patent For The United States Has Been Granted—Bright Prospects For The Company

It will be of interest to those of our readers who are more or less familiar with the new Diamond-Calk Horse-Shoe, for which our enterprising townsman, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, secured the patent right, to learn that it is being very enthusiastically endorsed in the United States. Mr. Kennedy has been devoting some time during the past few weeks to demonstrating the merits of this new shoe in different parts of the States, and returned home yesterday very hopeful regarding the results of his visit. The patent for the United States has just been granted, although strong efforts were made to defeat it by interested parties connected with other horse-shoes, who feared that the popularity of the Diamond-Calk would affect their business. Large blocks of the company's stock is known to have been subscribed recently in Canada for the promotion of the company's local business, and Mr. Kennedy is sanguine that the success of his company is beyond any peradventure.

OIL IGNITED BOY'S CLOTHING

Badly Burned While Putting on a Fire in The Furnace

A serious and almost fatal accident occurred last Sunday when Harold, the 11-year-old son of Edwin Mothersill of Oshawa, was badly burned about the head, face and hands. He was sent down cellar to start the fire in the furnace. When he threw the oil in, his clothing ignited some way, and the flames and smoke nearly suffocated him. Dr. Belt was called and soon relieved the little fellow's sufferings, who is now out of danger and doing nicely, but will not be about for some time.

WARNE

FARMER ALLOWS COWS TO RUN AT LARGE

Disorderly Conduct in Bar—Pool Billiard Player Refuses to Pay For Game

At the police court this morning two of Peterborough's most popular young men were charged with being drunk and disorderly in a public place. Neither of these two men appeared this morning, but one pleaded guilty and was fined $2. The other man has been summoned to appear tomorrow morning.

Cows Loose

The next charge was against Jas. Skippon for permitting his cows to run at large. It appears that a new road has been built through Skippon's property and has not been fenced in. The cows, according to the Lined man's story, have been found walking on the road. P. C. Adams said that he had received complaints from a south end resident to the effect that the cows has been in his garden three or four times.

His Worship fined Skippon $2 and costs, amounting to $5.05. On leaving court Skippon said he would raise the price of milk.

Disorderly in Poolroom

"George Smith, you are charged with being disorderly in a public place. Are you guilty or not guilty?"

"Not guilty, your Honour," was his reply.

The disturbance started over a game of pool. Some person refused to pay for the game, and the proprietor ordered the participants out.

Smith told His Worship that he went into Mr. Pappas' poolroom with with four other fellows. The game had been in progress for some time, when a member of the party named King served his eight balls. After this King began to place the balls on the table so that another player who was behind Smith would win out the game. Smith objected to this and placed his cue in the rack. The other players put on their coats and made for the door, telling Smith he would have to pay. Clancy, the man who has charge of the poolroom, asked Smith for five cents. He was asked to get out but would not go. Clancy then telephoned for the police and P. C.'s McGinty and Newhall soon appeared on the scene and told Smith to get out. The defendant stopped when he reached the door and Newhall told him to move on. Smith asked Newhall if he could light his pipe. Upon saying this he was arrested and brought to the police station.

His Worship then listened to the evidence of Mr. Clancy and several other witnesses, and as there seemed to be no evidence of disorderly conduct he dismissed the case.

OBITUARY.

MR. FRANK ELMHIRST

In the person of Mr. Frank Elmhirst, a former well-known resident of this county, another member of the Elmhirst family has been suddenly summoned. Recently Mr. Frank Elmhirst passed away suddenly at Carberry, Manitoba, from an attack of heart failure. The late Mr. Elmhirst was a native of Otonabee, but spent many years of his active life in the north country. He was for several years reeve of Burleigh, Anstruther, and Chandos, and at one time warden of the county. About ten or twelve years ago he removed to the Northwest. His many friends in this county will remember him as a genial-natured, off-hand gentleman who was popular as well as highly esteemed. His brothers, James, John and Richard, reside in Norwood.

MR. W.A. EASTLAND

The many former friends and acquaintances of William A. Eastland, will regret to learn of his death, which took place in New York. The deceased gentleman, who was a son of the late Thomas Eastland, who died at a ripe age about four years ago, and a brother of Mr. T. G. Eastland, Apsley, was well-known in this county. He formerly carried on business, including the running of the Apsley stage line, and conducted a store at Lakefield. He had been a resident of New York for about a quarter of a century. He leaves behind him a wife, and brother, Mr. T. G. Eastland, Apsley, and a sister, Mrs. R. J. McCallum, of Nebraska.

During his residence in this vicinity he was deservedly popular and deservedly held in high esteem. His remains will be brought to Peterborough for interment, arriving on the 5.45 G.T.R. train on Monday evening.

IS CONSUMPTION INHERITED

Opinion of a Prominent Bacteriologist At a Recent Lecture at Harvard College

Prof. H C Ernest in a recent lecture before Harvard Medical School discussed this theory at length. He claims that consumption is not an inherited disease, and that the children of parents who have had tuberculosis are as likely to grow up strong and healthy as children of parents who have not. Dr. Ernest further claims that the cardinal means for curing this dread disease are plenty of fresh air, sufficient nutritious food, rest and exercise.

For centuries physicians everywhere have recognized the value of cod liver oil in the treatment of consumption and all wasting diseases, but unfortunately few could take it with benefit on account of the indigestible oil.

Vinol has solved this problem. It is the modern cod liver preparation without oil, made by a scientific, extractive and concentrating process from fresh cods' livers, combining with peptonate of iron, all the medicinal, healing and body-building elements of cod liver oil, but no oil or grease. As a specific for all throat and lung troubles, and as a strength creator and body builder Vinol is unexcelled. Try it on our offer to return your money if it fails to give satisfaction. MANY PEOPLE MISS THE LOCAL TRAIN

The C. P. R. Train Runs Fifteen Minutes Earlier

Some twenty people missed the local C. P. R. train this morning owing to the change in time. In future the leave will leave at 7.47, instead of 8 o'clock. Among those who missed the train was Mr. J. McDonnell, the roadmaster, who had intended going to Toronto. Mr. McDonnell said he had forgotten all about the change in time.

WEDDING BELLS.

SMITH-STAPLETON

The marriage of Miss Mary Emily Stapleton only daughter of Mr. Charles Stapleton, sr., of Peterborough, to Mr. Frank Smith, of London, England, took place very quietly at six o'clock on Thursday evening at St. Augustine's church, the rector, Rev. Frank Plummer, officiating. The bride, who was unattended, wore her travelling dress of dark blue cloth over a dainty blouse of silk, and lace, with a dark blue hat, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

After the ceremony a reception was held by the bride's cousin, Mrs. Hunt, at her home, Jarvis street. Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Smith left for Montreal, and will sail on December 6th for their future home in England.—Toronto Star.

BE NOT ASHAMED OF YOUR RELIGION

Strong Sermon Preached by Rev. J. P. Wilson of Belleville Last Night

A LARGE CONGREGATION

"For I am not ashamed of the Gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." Romans 1; 16.

The above was the text chosen by Rev. J P Wilson, former pastor of George street Methodist church for his sermon at Charlotte street church last night. Words like bullets, he said, have projectile force. But to possess that characteristic they must come from a man of mighty character, and such was St. Paul. One has but to read his writings to be convinced that the Bible is inspired by God. Mr. Wilson remarked that the people of to-day are more indebted to the Jews than to any other race.

St. Paul, he said, possessed the true Jewish insight. As the Greek was a genius for art and the Roman for law, so was the Jew a genius for religion. St. Paul was not ashamed of his religion because it is the power of God.

The Mohammedan is not ashamed of Mohamet nor the Buddhist of Buddha but there are, said Mr. Wilson, many people of to-day who are ashamed of their religion. Our religion he stated, is not entirely intended to save man from hell, but also to make him in his daily life as God desires him to be.

There is great power in the grace of God. It is that which takes hold of a man and lifts him from a life of sin and strengthens him for the old temptations which were formerly his downfall. It is that power which God has given by which our sins are foregiven. When transmitted to man, the characteristics of God are carried with it. It has been frequently noticed that timid and undecided men have been transformed and made firm and unmovable. It makes men what God desires them to be be and they should therefore never be ashamed of Christ's Gospel.

IN PARTNERSHIP WITH THE SUN

But Lindsay Doctor Makes Mistake About Local Advertiser

"He was always original and cute as regards advertising," said Dr. Burrows, the other day in discussing Senator Geo. A. Cox, president of the Canada Life Insurance Company, and who is also largely interested in a number of other financial and industrial enterprises.

Dr. Burrows then went on to describe Mr. Cox's sign that used to announce his name to the public of Peterborough some forty years ago. At that time whatever his ambitions might have been, he wasn't Senator Cox. Photographer Cox would have caught nearer the mark. His studio was upstairs over his father-in-law's harness shop, and the sign read, "Cox and Son."

People used to stop Mr. Cox and call attention to the error, as they thought, in spelling, and then enquire who the "Son" might be. Mr. Cox's answer was always about the same. He claimed that he was in partnership with the "Sun," and that the spelling was correct. "If I hadn't the sun for a partner, I could not do business," said the dealer in sun prints.

The curious sign was the subject of much comment and always awaked curiosity and caused Mr. Cox to be advertised more or less.

"And he's been advertised ever since," concluded the doctor, "though, no doubt, he finds the cash of the Canada Life a better partner than even the "Sun."—Lindsay Watchman-Warder.

The Warder's story is largely "moonshine" or, rather, "sunshine." The sign referred to was "Thompson & Son."

HAD VERY PLEASANT RECOLLECTIONS

Rev. J. P. Wilson Refers To His Associations With Peterborough

Rev. J.P. Wilson has not forgotten his associations with Peterborough. In his address at Charlotte street church yesterday morning he referred to his stay here as one of the happiest recollections of his life. A pleasing feature of his pastorate was that the various churches were so greatly united and so harmonious, and the preachers one great brotherhood. He also paid a compliment to the press of Peterborough, stating that in no town or city was there so much assistance given to religious meetings as in Peterborough.

DAVIE HARTLEY'S "STUNT"

Davie Hartley, by his splendid achievement in Toronto on Saturday has dissipated all doubts that were, by some persons, cast upon the genuineness of his great long distance walk of 132 miles in 24 hours and 6 minutes on Thanksgiving Day. He has done more than that; he has given Peterborough a great advertisement, and has richly earned the enthusiastic reception which will be given him to-night at 7.47 at the C.P.R. station. And more than that; he has earned more substantial recognition. He has placed Peterborough in the same class as Sherring, the Marathon winner, placed Hamilton in, and Longboat, the Caledonia Reserve; and is deserving of the substantial sympathy and gratitude of this city. No specific suggestion is made, but the spirit in which he should be received is indicated. What he has done, in establishing a Canadian walking record, has been done "on the square"—square heel and toe—and in the face of the popular opposition in Toronto—every foot of his magnificent fifty-seven miles was won to the accompaniments of hoots, jeers, abuse, and every device of discouragement.

Why is it that Toronto has its knife so deep in Peterborough's flank? Why is it that that city takes every opportunity to "knock" Peterborough. For a large city Toronto has a village spirit. In the matter of Hartley an instance on two can be cited. A few days after Hartley's long distance triumph over minutes and miles, when everybody was talking of his record-breaking walk, the Toronto Globe and Toronto Star printed articles upon pedestrianism and cited, as an example of pluck and endurance at an advanced age, Jimmy Reynolds with whom, so to speak, Davie Hartley wiped the lake shore highways, as he has since wiped the track in the Mutual street rink. But in the newspaper articles referred to it would not do to mention Hartley. Hartley belongs to Peterborough. If he were brought into prominence Peterborough would get a little reflected glory, and that would be a grave contravention of Toronto's policy of keeping Peterborough down—in the background. This may be a small matter to refer to, but the subject, the spirit shown, is a small one. However, it wont fade a single leaf of Davie Hartley's laurels, have no more effect upon his reputation as the walking wonder of the continent, than the hoodlum hoots of the crowd in the Mutual street rink, Toronto, had upon Davie's walk-away from Jimmy Reynolds, who by the way is too good a sport to sympathize with such tactics, or not to frankly recognize, as he did, his opponent as "a wonder."

FENCES ARE GONE FROM PARK

More Care Necessary For Preservation Of Victoria Park

To the Editor of the Examiner:

Dear Sir,—I have noticed that during the past week or more, Victoria Park has been abandoned by the Horticultural Society and it now looks more like a pasture field for cattle than a park. A fence was erected some time ago but this has been torn away by some mischievous persons. Boys now spend their spare hours playing tag, rugby and other games on the grounds which during the summer season are so beautiful. The parties who are supposed to look after the Park should keep a more vigilant eye on its condition and save trouble, when the spring arrives.

Yours truly,

"V. P."

The Isolation Hospital Question Discussed Again

Board of Health Talked Over The Problem This Morning—Resolution Asking City Council To Take Action

ABOUT THE WATER SUPPLY

At the meeting of the Board of Health this morning two old friends, the Isolation Hospital question, and the problem of the pollution of the water supply, formed the principal items on the bill of fare. The feature of the meeting was that a quorum was on hand promptly on time, much to the surprise of the chairman and the press.

The Board discussed the question of the pollution of the water supply which it had been arranged to take up with the Water Commissioners. Owing to the fact that there were not sufficient members of the Board present at that meeting held last Monday no business could be transacted by the joint bodies, although the Water Commissioners promised to pass a resolution to ask the Provincial Board of Health to define the area within which it shall be illegal to deposit any offensive matter into the source of water supply so as to include Clear and Stony Lakes. The Commissioners have since last Monday passed the resolution, and this morning the Board of Health, after a short discussion, decided to do likewise, and the motion was carried unanimously.

The Isolation Hospital problem was again brought into the limelight. The chairman produced a lengthy resolution urging upon the council, the necessity of building such an hospital at once. This of course, provoked a discussion on the subject as usual in which the council came in for some criticism for not having taken the matter up.

Mr. Neill remarked that the board had been given to understand by the council that the question would be considered but nothing had been done. He thought that the matter should be settled and that the council should be able to sit down and talk the matter over intelligently. The speaker was of the opinion that the matter should be talked over at a meeting of the council, and the members of the board, and some action decided upon at once.

Dr. Burnham stated that there had been enough talking over the question. He advised sending the council a resolution and letting them deal with it.

The Mayor said that the council was not altogether to blame. If it was important, it was for the Board of Health to keep impressing it on the council. On the contrary when a night had been set apart by the council to discuss the matter with the Board of Health, only one member of the Board was present, the chairman.

Mr. Neill remarked that he did not get a notice to attend the meeting and Dr. McNulty also failed to remember receiving a notice. The latter said that he was not in favour of an isolation hospital, and he did not believe that the people of the city were a unit in supporting the scheme. He was rather in favour of making temporary provisions for dealing with cases of infectious diseases as they might arise, suggesting that one or two hospital tents might be secured, and used, when needed.

The chairman's resolution was then carried as follows:

That this Board believes that our city is running a great risk in not having an Isolation Hospital which is not warranted by our situation as a rising city, and an important railway centre, and whereas this Board has submitted plans of an hospital, to our City Council and such plans as far as we know have not been acted upon; this Board therefore respectfully urges the City Council to attend to this matter without further delay and make such provision for patients suffering from any contageous disease as will cut short the above risk which we consider entirely unnecessary and meet the requirements of the law in the above regard.

After some further discussion the Mayor stated that he would arrange at the meeting of the council Monday night to have a meeting between the members of the Board of Health and the council in respect to the matter at as early a date as possible and the matter was left in that way.

F. Birdsall wrote the Council in respect to a water closet in his property occupied by the Fitzgerald Carriage Company which the Sanitary Inspector had ordered to be connected with the sewer. He pointed out that the building was to be enlarged in the spring and if the plumbing was to be put in now it would be of no use then, and he asked to be relieved.

The request was granted by the Board.

There were present Messrs. Wm. Eyres, chairman; the Mayor, Dr. McNulty, Dr. Burnham, A Parker, R Neill, Geo. Ball, Sanitary Inspector and Dr. Bingham, Medical Health Officer.

How can you Test the Blood

Paleness of the lips, gums and the insides of the eye-lids tell of weak, watery blood, while other indications are languid, worn out and despondent feelings, headaches, nervous troubles and weakness of the bodily organs. To say that the blood is thin and weak is to say that it lacks iron and the other elements of which Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is composed. There is no greater blood builder.

SUNDAY EVENINGS AT Y.M.C.A.

Song Service Commended by Gentleman Who Was Present

A gentleman who attended the evening song service at the Y.M.C.A. on Sunday from 8.30 to 9.30 o'clock, mentioned to the Examiner to-day the benefits that these meetings afford those who attend them. After the regular church services, this gentleman said, there are many young men who have no place to go to but their lodgings.

An effort should be made to let the young men know just what is being done at these meetings. They are most informal, and with a musician to play the piano, hymns are selected and sung and a profitable hour is spent quietly as if it were home.

FREE INFORMATION

This is what one of the most prominent physicians of to-day says: That one ounce of sweet spirits of nitre, one ounce of compound vimosa, and four ounces of syrup of rhubarb mixed together and taken in dessert-spoonful doses after meals and at bedtime in water will effect a permanent cure for the most severe cases of kidney, liver, bladder and urinary troubles. He claims that a few doses will positively cure the worst cases of backache and rheumatism arising from disordered kidneys and impure blood. These drugs are of purely vegetable nature and inexpensive, and can be obtained at any drug store and mixed together at home.

HARD ON HOTEL MEN.

Appeal Court of New Brunswick Confirms Jail Sentences.

St. John, N. B., Nov. 25.—After many years of fighting the Canadian Temperance Association were supported by the High Court, who dismissed an appeal from sentence given by Magistrate McKay, at Moncton.

For years saloonkeepers in that city have been violating the Scott Act, and regularly paying fines. McKay sentenced some to imprisonment with hard labor.

In Moncton several hotel proprietors intend retiring from business if the sentence is carried out.

It has been announced the cases will be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada. A determined effort has been made all through the province, especially at McAdam Junction, and to the north. One man was fined nine hundred dollars in one village.

YOUTH ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

New Arrival at North Bay Sends a Bullet into Heart.

North Bay, Nov. 25.—Parnell O'Connor, the young man who attempted suicide Saturday night by shooting himself in the North Bay hotel, is still alive, and unless blood poisoning sets in he has a chance of recovery, although the operation performed proved unsuccessful in locating the bullet.

He had written a letter to his sweetheart, a prominent young lady of North Bay, who, it appears, had not been receiving him with open arms, owing to his habitual dissipation. The letter is now in the hands of the coroner, and its contents have not been made known. He told the doctor that the young lady had "threw him down" and that was his reason for shooting himself.

BELLEVILLE SCHOOL BURNED

Catholics Suffer Heavy Loss by Fire at Belleville.

ORIGIN OF BLAZE A MYSTERY

Building Completely Gutted In Spite of Firemen's Efforts—Loss Will Be $25,000, Partly Covered by Insurance—Will Disorganize School System—Blaze at Port Arthur—Several Others Fires.

Belleville, Nov. 25.—A heavy blow fell on the Roman Catholics of this city last night, when their principal school building, known as the Convent School, was burned. The school stood on John street, between the Loretto Convent and John street Presbyterian School. It was used on Sundays as a Sunday school, and yesterday afternoon the classes met there in the usual way.

The janitor made his rounds at 4 o'clock and found things all right. About 4.30 the building was seen to be on fire, and though the firemen worked hard the flames had gotten too big a start and could not be checked, the result being that the building was completely gutted.

While under control of the separate school trustees, the school was taught by the sisters of Loretto Convent. The loss will be heavy, as the building and furnishings could not be replaced for less than $25,000. There is an insurance of $7,500. This is the second time the school has been on fire recently. How the present fire originated is not known, but the authorities say the furnace was modern and first-class. They would not like to hint at incendiarism, but are at a loss to see how the fire could start.

The destruction of the school puts the Roman Catholics of this city up against a serious problem. Not quite three years ago their handsome church, St. Michael's, was burned at a loss of $75,000, and it has kept them busy paying the bills. Now their chief school has gone, and considerable expense again faces them, besides the disorganization of the classes. It will be hard to get a proper building for their purpose in this city at present.

Fire at Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Nov. 25.—Fire yesterday morning destroyed the Masonic Hall, with a loss of $25,000. It was the oldest building in the city.

Cheese Factory Burned.

Cayuga, Nov. 25.—At Kohler about two o'clock Saturday morning the cheese and butter factory and contents were burned. Nothing was saved. The factory is owned by A. E. Brennan of Brandon, Man. Cause of fire unknown. The factory at present was making butter. Loss about $1,500, partly insured.

Two Houses Burned.

Toronto Junction, Nov. 25.—Fire broke out yesterday morning about 3 o'clock in Mr. McComb's house, Nairn avenue, north of St. Clair, and occupied by two families, which resulted in the building being burned to the ground. The houses, which are two-storey frame structures, are situated outside the town limits in the district known as "Little England." Mrs. McComb rose early and having lighted the kitchen fire went upstairs to call the children for breakfast. When she came down a few minutes later it was to find the kitchen filled with flame and smoke. Her husband, who was still in bed till aroused by her screams, hastily snatched up their six months old baby and rushed down the burning stairway in his night robes. The baby was scorched slightly about the face, but otherwise suffered no serious effects. The whole family managed to leave the house, but clothes, furniture and all effects, including seven tons of coal in the cellar, were reduced to ashes. Mr. McComb had $50 in one of his pockets, which also went up in smoke. Soon the flames spread to the next house, a few yards away, in which a family named Lennis resided. They were a little more fortunate, and managed to save the furniture, but the house was completely destroyed.

Fought Prairie Fire.

Medicine Hat, Alta., Nov. 25.—Driven by a high wind, a big prairie fire swept Friday night to within five miles of this city, and was only stopped then by battalion of citizens marshaled by the mounted police, who armed with sacks, fought the encroaching flames until 2 o'clock Saturday morning before they were finally subdued.

Reports to hand indicate that luckily there were no losses to horses or stock, but a large grassing area has been destroyed, and will be useless for feed purposes during the coming winter.

Thaws Are Ready.

New York, Nov. 25.—According to The World Harry Thaw is ready for his trial, and he fears there may be further postponement. When asked if an application would be made by his counsel for a change of venue, Thaw said:

"Never thought of such a thing. There is nothing intended in that line. I am ready for trial on Dec. 2, which is the date set. Jerome is not ready, but that is not Mr. Thaw's fault."

Turning to his wife, he said: "Are you ready?"

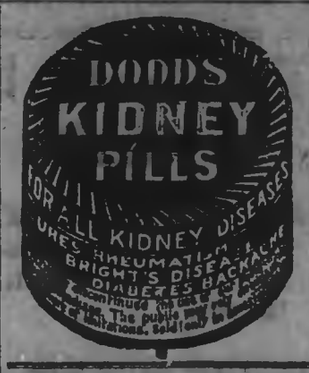
"Oh, she replied "I have nothing to do with it. I am ready any time."

Court-Martial of Mutineers.

Vladivostok, Nov. 25.—The court-martial of 198 sappers and marines, and the commanders of two torpedo-boat destroyers, who were implicated in the mutiny of Oct. 29 and 30, will begin to-day.

The hearing will be secret.

The mutiny at Vladivostok on Oct. 29 was quickly suppressed by the use of machine guns. A battalion of sappers attempted to capture one of the barracks, but was routed by two companies of a loyal regiment. On the following day a naval action took place.



MARTIAL LAW ROLES IN PORTUGAL

Situation in Portugal Is Assuming Most Serious Aspect.

TROOPS PATROLLING LISBON

Three Generals Relieved of Their Command — Disaffection Spreading In Army and Navy — Political Prisoners Sent Away In Cruiser—Rebellion Said to Be Rampant — Strict Censorship.

Lisbon, Nov. 25.—The city of Lisbon is now practically under martial law. Detachments of police and municipal guards are constantly patrolling the streets, but no violent incidents have occurred. The censorship over telegraphic despatches is most strict and the post officials refuse to accept letters which do not contain the address of the senders on the envelopes.

Much dissatisfaction is reported among the officers of the Portuguese army. Three generals are known to have been relieved of their commands and, according to report, some 300 political prisoners have been placed on board a cruiser which left this port immediately afterwards. Another version of the rumor is that the officers of the cruiser are disaffected. Rebellion is said to be rampant in the navy. A decree is published in the official Government organ proclaiming an extension of the period of restraint governing the liberty of the press.

An official statement by the Government organ declares that the situation in Portugal has been grossly misrepresented. It says the fantastic rumors concerning members of the royal family, the attitude of the political leaders, as well as the stories of an outbreak against order are without foundation.

ONE KILLED, TWO INJURED.

Civic Power House at Moose Jaw Suddenly Collapses.

Moosejaw, Nov. 24.—An addition to the civic power house in course of erection collapsed suddenly Saturday, killing George Nethercott, and injuring W. J. Lawrence, the contractor in charge, and another carpenter named Fenwick. Lawrence's injuries are likely to prove fatal.

To Reclaim Zuyder Zee.

London, Nov. 25.—According to information received from The Hague, the vast plan for reclaiming the Zuyder Zee is again in contemplation. The Dutch Government has laid before the States General a bill to appropriate nearly $12,000,000 to the work extending over seven years.

Forty thousand acres would be reclaimed, which, of course, is only a small portion of Zuyder Zee, but the successful completion of this section would pave the way to the more ambitious project which was suggested a few years ago, and by which it is hoped that almost the whole of her engulfed territory will be restored to Holland.

Gratton Found Alive.

Ottawa, Nov. 25.—Relatives of Emile Gratton, in this city, who have been mourning him as dead for two days, on Saturday received the glad news that he was all right. The first intimation came in a press despatch that he had been injured in Sawtell's hotel fire in Buffalo. Later a wire from the chief of police conveyed the news that his injuries had proved fatal. A brother left immediately to take charge of the remains. When he arrived in Buffalo he found his brother all right.

THREE MEN DROWN OFF TUG

Barge Runs Into Tug Escort and Sinks Her Immediately.

COOK SERIOUSLY INJURED

Two Tugs Raced Down Lake Ontario to Meet Barge—Were Anxious to Get Tow—Escort Made Straight Run For Schooner's Bows—Was Struck In Bluff and Turned Over and Sank.

St. Catharines, Nov. 25.—The sinking of the steamer Oriental, in 120 feet of water, some ten miles down Lake Ontario from Port Dalhousie, and three miles off the land, the same distance from Niagara Point, will be recalled by the sad fatality which occurred in the same place Saturday night, three men being drowned as the result of a collision of the tug Escort with the barge Ben Harrison.

The Ben Harrison is a pulpwood barge, and she was expected to be the last tow of the season to go up the Welland Canal and tug-owners were keenly on the lookout for her. Word was received by Capt. Harry Dunlop, that the barge had left Kingston in the afternoon in tow of the steamer Westmount (Capt. Milligan). Steam was put on, and Capt. McCoppen of the tug Golden City did likewise, and also prepared to meet the barge. Shortly before 8 o'clock, though no sign of the barge had been seen, both tugs left the harbor, and it was soon apparent that a race was in progress.

That was the last the people of the village knew of the affair till the Golden City returned with the barge and brought tidings that the Escort had collided with the Harrison and had gone down with scarcely a minute's warning, and that Capt Dunlop, Albert Dunlop, engineer, and Charles Christmas, canal helper, who had also been aboard, had been drowned.

It seems from stories told by rescued members of the Escort's crew, and by Capt. McCoppen and Capt. Hovey of the barge, that when tugs neared the steamer the Golden City had a slight advantage in distance over the Escort, and, as is customary when meeting a tow, she made a circle and came up alongside.

The Escort made a straight run for the bow of the schooner, endeavored to cross in front of her, but was struck in the centre by the bluff of the Ben Harrison's bow, turned over and sank.

Captain Hovey's Storey.

Capt. Hovey is a clever Norwegian. He said he was standing in the bow of the barge when the two tugs hove into sight. The barge was being towed at the rate of ten miles an hour. The Escort came up, and Capt. Dunlop called out to him to throw a line, but as the Golden City had first reached the barge he did not do so. The first thing he knew the Escort was under the tow line and Captain Dunlop gave one short whistle to cut the line. This could not be done, as the cable was of heavy steel. Captain Dunlop then sounded the jinglers and blew eight or ten whistles for help. The Ben Harrison struck the tug, which turned over and went down. Life boats off the barge were instantly lowered and lines were thrown out over the bow.

Belvin Barnes, fireman, whose father was drowned on the Resolute in Toronto Bay, a year ago, was rescued from the water soon after the collision. He says he was standing close to the engine house door and was watching the course of the tug. Seeing the accident was about to happen, he called to the engineer to back up, but just as he did so the captain gave the forward signal and the tug plunged on and was struck abreast of the fire hold door and he was thrown into the water.

Cook Seriously Injured.

Mrs. Bartlett, cook, was in the front of the pilot house watching the race, when the collision occurred, and was thrown into the lake. When picked up by the Golden City's crew she was clinging to a fender which had fallen from the Escort. She is suffering with two broken ribs and several bruises.

Herman Geek had been on the top of the cabin endeavoring to release the life raft and was thrown with the raft into the water, but was easily picked up.

Accidents very much like that of Saturday night have happened once or twice before, but no damage resulted and no warning was taken from them. The night was moonlight and the lake was unusually calm. The fatality is the sad result of a little over-zealousness.

Peterborough.

Dear Sir:—I have received notification of the option available in respect to my ten-year Endowment Policy of $6000 which matured to-day and it affords me pleasure to say that I view with much satisfaction the results of my investment with your Company.

The substantial surplus which the Policy has earned in the comparatively short period of ten years makes the returns which would be made to me, under any of the options now open to my selection, most liberal and attractive.

It is greatly to the credit of the Company that after having granted me an Insurance of $5000 from the issue of the Policy in 1897 to the present time, it can now offer me under the cash-value option a sum so greatly in excess of the total premium that I have paid into it, or under the paid up Insurance option, a paid up life Policy considerable more than double the amount of my original Policy.

Permit me to wish the Company a long continuance of its prosperity

Yours very truly,

CHATHAM MAN WANTS A RACE

Conditions Under Which He Will Walk Against Hartley

The following letter from Chatham has reached the Examiner from a walker in that town wanting to walk anybody in the local rink here:—

Dear Sir,—Seeing by the Toronto Mail and Empire you are about to have long distance walking matches at your rink. I write to ask if you can arrange a match for me to walk with the winner of your coming competition, or both, for from 24 hours to 6 days, or say, 6 days, 12 hours each day, for a percentage of gate receipts, I am not able to make any wager, and the advertising of the contest I would leave to you. I was some years ago, in England, considered as one of the best (I have turned 51, the 7th of last month, and I thought perhaps a match with myself and Reynolds of Port Hope, who I think is styled as the walking barber, or David Hartley, would create a little interest. I realize they are good men, but should I meet them and be successful, I might arrange another match with them, at their own distances, or in the way of a handicap on account of their being a few years older than myself. Just at present they have the pull over me, for they are in good form. Kindly let me hear from your men at their earliest convenience. My reason for saying 6 days, 12 hours a day, is on account of getting the crowd interested. I would like to have at least two weeks in which to get ready. Trusting you will be able to make a match, if so when you write please let me know the kind of path and size of the track.

Yours truly,
GEORGE MOSS,

THISTLES ORGANIZE A TEAM

Will Play in Junior City Hockey League This Winter

At an enthusiastic meeting held in the T.A.S. rooms on Saturday night the Thistle hockey team was organized for the season. The club is a new one, but has a number of good players connected with the organization and should make a creditable showing this winter. It is the intention of the club to enter a junior City League if one can be formed, and there seems no reason why a strong league could not be got going. The officers elected were as follows:

President—A. T. Johnston.
Sec.-Treas.—H. Staunton.
Manager—W. Weatherston.
Capt.—W. Clancy.

The colours of the club will be blue and white.

SPORTING NEWS AND VIEWS.....

The junior players of the city are discussing the advisability of organizing a junior city hockey league this season, and some of them seem to be looking to the senior league for assistance in the matter. It is not likely to be forthcoming as the senior management has enough on its hands without undertaking the care of a junior league. However, there is nothing to prevent the youngsters from organizing a league on their own account. It could be carried out without the least difficulty.

A number of people in the city, some of whom are interested in sport, and others who have no interest except inasmuch as it gives them a chance to "knock," are criticising the Peterborough rugby team because it is contemplating playing Montreal on Saturday. Although the professionalising of the team which will necessarily follow, is a regrettable thing, yet the club has been forced through lack of support at home, to take the step in the hope that they will get enough from the gate in Montreal to wipe out the deficit of nearly $200 which exists at the present time. If those who are protesting against this trip would raise this amount the team would not think of playing Montreal, but no assistance at home seems to be in sight, and the only alternative seems to be the Montreal trip, which will mean that the players will sacrifice themselves because the Peterborough people will not help them out of their difficulty.

English League.

Sheffield United 0, Notts County 0.
Notts Forest 2, Sheffield Wednesday 2.
Newcastle United 2, Birmingham 0.
Middlesboro 2, Manchester City 0.
Manchester United 4, Woolwich Arsenal 2
Liverpool 1, Preston N. E. 2.
Chelsea 4, Bristol City 1.
Bolton Wanderers 3, Everton 0.
Blackburn Rovers 4, Sunderland 2.
Aston Villa 2, Bury 2.

Southern League.

Brentford 2, Swindon 0.
Bristol Rovers 0, Tottenham Hotspur 0.
Leyton 2, Queen's Park Rangers 5.
Reading 0, West Ham United 1.
Watford 3, Plymouth Argyles 0.
Norwich City 0, Southampton 1.
New Brompton 0, Southampton 1.
Milwall 1, Crystal Palace 0.

Portsmouth 3, Brighton and Hove 0.

Eddie Howell, whose good work on the Peterborough Intermediate O.H.A. seven a few years ago won him renown, will play cover-point for the Brantford pro. team this season.

• • • •

Ever since Dave Hartley made his great walk ending on Thanksgiving Day a few people in Peterborough have been "knocking" his performance, intimating that it was not on the square, and that he had received assistance in some way or another, etc. The feat which he accomplished on Saturday, however, should silence all these critics. In spite of disadvantageous conditions with the crowd practically against him and rooting for Reynolds, Hartley marched around the rink, increasing his lead rather than dropping it under the opposition of the crowd. There was no chance for any underground work in connection with the win, and as the local man won without difficulty the Peterborough men who have been doubting Hartley's ability should take it all back and acknowledge that they have made the biggest mistake in their lives.

• • • •

The men started out at a terrific clip with Hartley showing the way. The pace set was out of the question for such a long journey, and the men must slow down before the race goes very far. About 30 people were on hand for the start, and spectators kept coming and going all morning.

The men are not at all alike in build or style of gait. Hartley is hard, thin and wiry, without an ounce of fat on him. His muscles are like iron, bunched on his thin legs like knots. He walks with a distinct strike of his heels, and swings every muscle in his body with every step. He wore blue knickers and Jersey and cap, and a wide-soled shoe of fair weight.

Reynolds is a much older man, and jogs along at an easier gait, stooping over, but going smoothly at a lope that is dangerously close to a trot, but he hits his heels first. He has a black sweater, with orange trimmings.—Toronto Telegram.

The Curling Club will hold a meeting on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock at the Charlotte street rink to consider the advisability of raising the annual fee. The election of skips will also take place the same night.

• • • •

What is Peterborough's object in playing Montrealers? It can't be the gate, for the gate will be small. But it may be that Peterborough, carried away with an extravagant idea of their own football greatness, are looking for a place in the Inter-Provincial. If they could down Montreal, or even hold them to a close score, they might persuade the "Big Four" to become the "Big Five." And if they did there would be a warm time in the old town. Anyway the decision of the club to defy the C.A.A.U. is a hard crack for the O.R.F.U. That organization's senior series was weak enough with four teams scattered along the length of two provinces. With only three teams it will practically cease to exist. And of course, Peterborough must get out of the O.R.F.U., since that body is affiliated with the C.A.A.U., which has branded the Montrealers as outlaws.—Toronto Telegram.

• • • •

A full turnout of the local first and second basketball teams is called for to-night at 7 o'clock sharp. It is important that all players be on hand as the team to play Port Hope here on Thursday night next will be chosen after practice. This will be the first game here this season and should draw a large crowd. There will be a preliminary game between the Tigers and the Harrises, and also a gymnastic exhibition by Mr. Ed. Daly, an old Peterborough boy, who has gained a great reputation for himself along that line in the West.

• • • •

The Knockers will meet at the Y. M.C.A. to-night after the Hartley demonstration. All the players and friends are requested to be present.

• • • •

A full practice of the rugby team is called for to-night at 8 o'clock at Riverside Park in view of the big game in Montreal next Saturday for the Dominion rugby championship.

ORIGIN OF CANADIAN CLUB

The Toronto Saturday Night Has Something To Say About It

Tempus Fugit! Up to this time we have looked upon the Canadian Club as a youthful institution. When Canadian Clubs were first formed in Toronto and other cities they were considered organizations of young men. But since then much hair has grown grey and many heads have become bare and polished. The members themselves have not noticed this, but the fact is pressed upon us, and can no longer go unobserved. There has been considerable discussion of late as to the birthplace of the first Canadian Club. Hamilton claims the honour, but this is denied by Mr. E. J. O'Brien of Simcoe, who states, in the Stratford Beacon, that the first Canadian Club was started in Guelph some sixteen years ago. He says that Hamilton secured the idea in Guelph and borrowed that club's constitution. Be that as it may, in Hamilton originated the idea of founding such clubs everywhere. From that point young men in Toronto were stirred up and the movement went on. Discussion as to its origin seems to invest the Canadian Club idea with some degree of antiquity. But what will Canadian Club members think when they hear that the Bishop of London refers to this institution as an organization of old men? Here is what he says in the course of an article in the Diocesan Magazine, concerning his visit to this country: "It was at Ottawa that I had the first experience of one of the Canadian Club luncheons, which are such features of Canadian life, and at which the old manhood of the place takes possession of anyone they want to hear, entertain him at luncheon for twenty minutes, and then sit expectant for another twenty minutes while he says just anything he likes."—Toronto Saturday Night.

Eczema, Salt Rheum.

Eczema or Salt Rheum, as it is often called, is one of the most agonizing of skin diseases. It manifests itself in little round blisters, which contain an extremely irritating fluid. These break and subsequently a crust or scale is formed.

The intense burning, itching and smarting, especially at night or when the part is exposed to any strong heat, are almost unbearable.

The pre-eminent success which Burdock Blood Bitters has met with in permanently curing a disease of such severity is due to its wonderful blood cleansing and purifying properties.

No other remedy has done, or can do, so much for those who are almost driven to distraction with the terrible torture, as our thousands of signed testimonials can testify to.

Mrs. Jno. B. Keedy, Linton, N.B., writes: "I was so troubled with Salt Rheum for eight years, that I could not work my hands were so sore. By using Burdock Blood Bitters my hands were eventually cured."

Mrs. Ira C. Buckner, Eden, Ont., writes: "I was troubled with Eczema for a long time. It came out on my face and between my shoulders. A friend told me about Burdock Blood Bitters. I took two bottles and it helped me so much I cannot recommend it too highly."

Music and Drama

THE WAY OF THE TRANSGRESSOR.

Although this realistic melo-drama had been presented at the Grand before, the management made no mistake when they secured them again for Saturday night last. Two good houses witnessed the production which if anything was better than on previous occasions. The well trained dogs greatly pleased the audience by their almost human intelligence and the acting throughout was very good. The specialties relieved the heavy parts of the play and were of a special entertaining nature.

KNOCKED DOWN BY A VEHICLE

Accident At Corner of Hunter And Water Streets

Miss Dunford had a narrow escape from serious injury on Saturday, standing near the corner of Water and Hunter streets while bidding good-bye to some of her friends. A vehicle, travelling at a rapid rate knocked her down and it was at first thought she was badly injured. On being taken to a near-by store she soon recovered and suffered only a few slight bruises.

HIS MARLBOROUGH COAT

The Dictum of Fashion is That "The Style is in the Man Himself"

Not quite so extreme as the surtout, the new Marlborough overcoat is a smartly draped overcoat, conforming slightly to the lines of the figure. It is not the tight body-fitting coat which some prefer.

Individuality in men's dress is recognized in the fashion world to-day, and that which suits a man, both as to shape and colour, is correct. The best styles of the past few years commingle to harmonious effect. The style is in the man himself. The quality of the cloth and the good tailoring is the chief consideration.

"We have some Marlborough overcoats in grey cheviots at $20 and $25 that are the highest type of winter dress for gentlemen," said the manager of the Semi-ready Wardrobe. The Semi-ready styles are the mode par excellence in Canada. Agent for Peterborough and district, A. W. Greenman.

REV. A. D. MENZIES AT ST. ANDREW'S

The Rev. A. D. Menzies addressed the congregation of St. Andrew's on Sunday morning in the interests of the building fund of the Pointe-aux-Trembles School near Montreal. Mr. Menzies gave convincing proof of the excellent work being done in the education of the French children, and quoted leading Quebec statesmen as speaking highly of the educational system of the Scottish people in its relation to their superiority as a people. It was the aim of Pointe-aux-Trembles to assist in the education of our fellow countrymen and to instruct all who so desired it in the knowledge of the Word of God.

Mr. Menzies has already met with much encouragement, and will doubtless find many warm friends in Peterborough who will most gladly respond.

A PLEA FOR PUBLIC BAND

Meeting Arranged to Organize One On Wednesday Night

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Seeing that there has been several attempts to organize a public band, and which I unfortunately know to have been failures, I would like to invite all those who are interested in band music to attend a meeting for the purpose of furthering a scheme by which a good brass and reed band could be formed, and players from that band could augment an orchestra which is already formed and known as the "Peterborough Permanent Orchestra." The object of the above proposed band is to study and practice music so as to be able to play a good programme, by which we could entertain the people, also to take private engagements. Will all interested come along, to 696 Bolivar Street, Wednesday evening at 8.15?

LINDSAY BANK MONEY DISAPPEARED

Was Sent to a Dunsford Man Who Didn't Get It

Nearly three weeks ago the Bank of Commerce of Lindsay for one of its depositors sent the sum of $300 through the postoffice to Mr. F. E. Gordon at Dunsford. A few days later Mr. Gordon began to inquire for his money, and it was learned that it never reached him. It has disappeared completely, and so far as is known no trace of its whereabouts has even yet been learned. The Postoffice Department is at work on the case and hopes to locate the leak. Mr. Gordon, of course, will not be the loser if the money is never found.

THE WRONG BOYS WERE ACCUSED

Police Sent After Two Who Were In Sunday School at Time of Offence

There seems to be too many complaints made in some quarters of the city to the local police which are altogether without foundation. On Sunday last, to refer to a case in point, a number of boys on Charlotte street threw pieces of ice against some doors. The police were informed of the affair, and one of the officers, who was given to understand who two of the boys were, was soon at their parents' homes to investigate. The two boys happened to be at Sunday school when the ice-throwing was reported and were innocent of the mischief. But their mother had a difficult proposition to convince the officer of this fact, and also had to suffer the disgrace of having a policeman call at their homes to make an arrest where no offence was committed.

The officers, of course, are not to blame as they are only seeking to do their duty. The fault lies with those persons who make false accusations before they take the least trouble to investigate. One should be almost certain who the guilty party should be before the officers of the law are called upon to take a hand in the matter.

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine promptly on hand for use in case of emergency.

Who Was The Originator Of The Canadian Club?

Another Contribution To The Discussion as to it's Origin—Mr. O'Brien, Formerly of Guelph Writes Again

AN INTERESTING ARGUMENT

The "Canadian Club" idea has taken deep root in this country and its fame and work are known and discussed even in the Old Country. Bishop Ingram of London, having specifically referred in his Diocesan Magazine to the Canadian Club as was seen by an extract in yesterday's issue. The Canadian Club is so interwoven with, so to speak, the intellectual economy and patriotic cult of Canada, that any contribution to the discussion as to its origin will only serve to deepen interest in it, without impugning its merits and usefulness. Therefore the following letter written by a gentleman, Mr. M. McCullough, Guelph, who claims to be one of its founders, to another gentleman, Mr. E. J. O'Brien, Guelph, another founder needs to be prefaced with no apology for using it:—

Mr. E. J. O'Brien, Dunnville, Ont.:

My Dear Sir,—In reply to your interesting letter of the 17th inst., in regard to the primal source and origin of the Canadian Club, permit me to refer you to the enclosed copy of a letter addressed by me to Mr. C. R. McCullough, of Hamilton, at his own request for such information as it contains. It was a pleasing and yet somewhat solemn duty for me to put Mr. McCullough right, in regard to the secondary position his Hamilton organization holds, in the onward march of the Canadian Club movement, I say a somewhat solemn duty because some of the noble and gifted men who stood with us in the early days of the "First Canadian Club," at Guelph, have passed beyond the "great divide," and now vouch and influence us only from the spirit realm. But the four stalwart Canadians, who assisted me, so loyally and effectively, in founding the First Canadian Club in the year 1889, are still with us. They are your honoured self (whom we chose for our first President,) Mr. A. J. Little, now of Toronto, Mr. Robert Mitchell, postmaster, at Guelph, and Mr. J. B. Fischer, solicitor, of Guelph.

As to the good work we did disseminating far and wide through the columns of the Guelph Mercury, and Guelph Herald, the Canadian Club idea, the files of these journals and a host of their readers can bear abundant witness; and those who seem to write for Mr. McCullough do not compliment his intelligence when they represent him as ignorant of the Canadian Club movement in Guelph, four or five years before it dawned on him that it would be a good thing to have a similar club in Hamilton. Now, as to the matter of "bylaws," the anonymous article in the Hamilton Herald claims, that the constitutions of all the clubs organized since 1893 are one and the same. If that be indeed a fact, then give me your hand on it Mr. O'Brien, for when I examined critically the original constitution, which I personally formulated in 1893, side by side with that which was adopted by the Hamilton men four years later, the marked resemblance between the two documents, in every essential feature, was, to say the least, extraordinary. What fortuitous concourse of events can adequately account for this singular similarity?

Now, as to Rev. Dr. Talling's letter, in which, with breezy nonchalance, he denies to Guelph the honour of being the birth-place of the Canadian Club movement, let me say that if the reverend gentleman had discreetly acted on your sensible suggestion, and made some honest inquiry at headquarters in Guelph, before rushing into print, it would have saved him from stumbling, along with his Hamilton protege, into the slough of error, and vainly grasping at the proverbial "straws" in order to keep from sinking. Moreover the moral quality and spirit of Dr. Talling's letter, in its relation to some thirteen or fourteen thousand citizens of Guelph, and in its relation to truth and justice, are open to very serious and very damaging criticism. But, Sir, at present, I pass over this unfortunate phase of it in silence; for, although the learned doctor may speak wildly and inaccurately on week days, in the name of Mr. McCullough, he is expected, don't you know, to speak calmly and correctly, in the name of the Lord, on Sunday. I remain, dear Sir,

Very cordially yours,
MALCOLM MACCORMICK.

Guelph, Nov. 21st, 1907.

With the foregoing letter was forwarded the following extract from the "Constitution and Rules of Order of the Canadian Club, Guelph, Canada":—

"At a meeting held in the music hall of the Guelph Business College, on Thursday evening, the 6th December, 1888, at which were present Messrs. E. J. O'Brien, Robert Mitchell, A. J. Little and M. MacCormick, an organization was formed to be known as "THE CANADIAN CLUB."

President—E. J. O'BRIEN.
Secretary—M. MACCORMICK.

On the evening of Thursday, the 6th June, 1889, at the regular meeting of the "Canadian Club," which had now become a vigorous and successful organization, the half-yearly election of officers took place and the annexed Constitution was duly adopted.

OFFICERS.

M. MACCORMICK—President.
A. J. LITTLE—Vice-President.
J. B. FISCHER—Rec.-Secretary.
ROBERT MITCHELL—Treasurer.

While the origin of the "Canadian Club"—idea and execution— are of an importance secondary to its intrinsic national value, still its very pronounced success, the large part it plays in promoting culture and the development of the patriotic spirit and national aspiration makes the credit of its genesis a matter of justifiable pride. The Examiner is not in a position to express any opinion but desires to simply present with judicial absence of bias, the evidence in support of the contending claims, leaving the verdict or judgment to the public and those interested.

HOME AGAIN FROM THE WEST

Mr. Jack Fraser Tells of His Trip To Spokane—Scarcity of Money—Run On The Banks

RUGBY GAME IN CHICAGO

The many friends of Mr. Jack Fraser, Bethune street, will be pleased to learn of his return from the West. Mr. Fraser is very much impressed with the West and has enjoyed his trip.

He was interviewed by the Examiner and was very willing to talk about his trip. He left here about two months ago for Spokane, going by way of Winnipeg, and arriving at his destination just at the time money was getting scarce. The banks issued clearing house cheques. These were passed like dollar bills. He told the reporter of the awful runs on the banks in Spokane. The bank of Montreal has a branch there and it closed its doors when the other banks did. The cowboys and woodsmen who had money in these western financial institutions were seen lined along the streets for blocks. The broad western Stetson hat the same as worn by the South African volunteers are very much in evidence in the West, as everybody wears them. Mr. Fraser said that no one would dare to wear a Christie out there, the only one he saw being on a dagro.

According to Jack's story, the policemen have a much easier time there than they do here. On getting off the train he saw a negro policeman who would weigh 250 pounds, standing on the corner with his coat and vest open, and swinging his club in his hand. The policemen are very nice fellows and are always obliging.

In answer to a question about the Japs in the West, Mr. Fraser said they were all over Spokane. They conducted laundries, drove wagons, worked in stores and on the railways, where they receive $1.35 a day, while Italians were obtaining $2.50 a day for the same labour.

As to the weather, Mr. Fraser thought that it was ideal. When we were having cold weather here they had it 50 and 60 in the shade. The days were extremely warm, but at night a person has to wear an overcoat.

On his return trip, the train he was on was stopped by a landslide and delayed eleven hours while in Montana.

He was very much struck with the sporting element displayed in Chicago. He stated that last Saturday Harvard and Yale played a rugby game there, and people from all around drove to the grounds in automobiles, and the street railway ran special cars every three minutes. A crowd numbering more than 50,000 people witnessed the game.

DIAMONDS SMUGGLED INTO NEW YORK

Leo, One of The Dogs in "The Way of The Transgressor" Carries Diamonds Into United States

Mr. Sam Fraser, the advance agent for "The Way of the Transgressor" dramatic company, has a store of good stories about his travels. One of these he related to the Examiner when he was here last week.

"We have a dog named Leo," he began. "This dog takes the most prominent part on the stage. While we were playing in England a certain duke presented Leo with a gold collar set with diamonds, and this collar is only taken off during a bath.

"Now, some people think there is nothing smuggled through Uncle Sam's Customs House. Well, we have one thing that is.

"After completing our engagement in Europe we came back to the United States. We landed in New York on a lovely day. I was in charge of the dog, Leo. The U. S. Customs officer came up to me and said that he would have to examine the collar on the dog. I let an awful growl out of him and began to wag his tail. Of course, I commenced to think that Leo would fix him like he does the tramp on the stage. The officer, however, tried hard to get his hand on the collar, but at last gave up the attempt.

"'Well,' the officer said, 'this is the first time I have ever seen anything smuggled into the country under my very eyes.'"

BETTER THAN MEDICINE

Breathe Hyomei's Tonic Healing And Be Cured of Catarrh

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, a treatment which is far better than dosing the stomach with medicines.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicates the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the mucous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the only natural remedy, for it gives a curative air bath to the air passages that has just as powerful healing and antiseptic effect as that found in the mountains where the pine forests give off their healing and fragrant balsams.

Breathe the invigorating and healing Hyomei and see how quickly you will get relief from catarrhal troubles. Mr. Madill has seen so many cures even of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing, that they feel warranted in selling Hyomei under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. He takes all the risk.

REV. A. D. MENZIES AT ST. ANDREW'S

The Rev. A. D. Menzies addressed the congregation of St. Andrew's on Sunday morning in the interests of the building fund of the Pointe-aux-Trembles School near Montreal. Mr. Menzies gave convincing proof of the excellent work being done in the education of the French children, and quoted leading Quebec statesmen as speaking highly of the educational system of the Scottish people in its relation to their superiority as a people. It was the aim of Pointe-aux-Trembles to assist in the education of our fellow countrymen and to instruct all who so desired it in the knowledge of the Word of God.

Mr. Menzies has already met with much encouragement, and will doubtless find many warm friends in Peterborough who will most gladly respond.

A PLEA FOR PUBLIC BAND

Meeting Arranged to Organize One On Wednesday Night

Editor Examiner.

Dear Sir,—Seeing that there has been several attempts to organize a public band, and which I unfortunately know to have been failures, I would like to invite all those who are interested in band music to attend a meeting for the purpose of furthering a scheme by which a good brass and reed band could be formed, and players from that band could augment an orchestra which is already formed and known as the "Peterborough Permanent Orchestra." The object of the above proposed band is to study and practice music so as to be able to play a good programme, by which we could entertain the people, also to take private engagements. Will all interested come along, to 496 Bolivar Street, Wednesday evening at 8.15?

LINDSAY BANK MONEY DISAPPEARED

Was Sent to a Dunsford Man Who Didn't Get It

Nearly three weeks ago the Bank of Commerce of Lindsay for one of its depositors sent the sum of $300 through the postoffice to Mr. F. E. Gordon at Dunsford. A few days later Mr. Gordon began to inquire for his money, and it was learned that it never reached him. It has disappeared completely, and so far as is known no trace of its whereabouts has even yet been learned. The Postoffice Department is at work on the case and hopes to locate the leak. Mr. Gordon, of course, will not be the loser if the money is never found.

THE WRONG BOYS WERE ACCUSED

Police Sent After Two Who Were in Sunday School at Time of Offence

There seems to be too many complaints made in some quarters of the city to the local police which are altogether without foundation. On Sunday last, to refer to a case in point, a number of boys on Charlotte street threw pieces of ice against some doors. The police were informed of the affair, and one of the officers, who was given to understand who two of the boys were, was soon at their parents' homes to investigate. The two boys happened to be all Sunday school when the ice-throwing was reported and were innocent of the mischief. But their mother had a difficult proposition to convince the officer of this fact, and also had to suffer the disgrace of having a policeman call at their houses to make an arrest where no offence was committed.

The officers, of course, are not to blame as they are only seeking to do their duty. The fault lies with those persons who make false accusations before they take the least trouble to investigate. One should be almost certain who the guilty party should be before the officers of the law are called upon to take a hand in the matter.

Popular Cure for Croup

Anyone who has tested Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, as a cure for croup, will not hesitate to pronounce it an unqualified success. It is wonderfully prompt in relieving the cough, clearing the air passages and soothing the excited nerves. Many mothers who realize the suddenness with which croup comes on keep this great medicine promptly on hand for use in case of emergency.

Who Was The Originator Of The Canadian Club?

Another Contribution To The Discussion as to it's Origin—Mr. O'Brien, Formerly of Guelph Writes Again

AN INTERESTING ARGUMENT

The "Canadian Club" idea has taken deep root in this country and its fame and work are known and discussed even in the Old Country, Bishop Ingram of London having specifically referred in his Diocesan Magazine to the Canadian Club as was seen by an extract in yesterday's issue. The Canadian Club is so interwoven with, so to speak, the intellectual economy and patriotic cult of Canada, that any contribution to the discussion as to its origin will only serve to deepen interest in it, without impugning its merits and usefulness. Therefore the following letter written by a gentleman, Mr. M. McCullough, Guelph, who claims to be one of its founders, to another gentleman, Mr. E. J. O'Brien, Guelph, another founder needs to be prefaced with no apology for using it:—

Mr. E. J. O'Brien, Dunnville, Ont.:

My Dear Sir,—In reply to your interesting letter of the 17th inst., in regard to the primal source and origin of the Canadian Club, permit me to refer you to the enclosed copy of a letter addressed by me to Mr. C. H. McCullough, of Hamilton, at his own request for such information as it contains. It was a pleasing and yet somewhat solemn duty for me to put Mr. McCullough right, in regard to the secondary position his Hamilton organization holds, in the onward march of the Canadian Club movement, I say a somewhat solemn duty because some of the noble and gifted men who stood with us in the early days of the "First Canadian Club," at Guelph, have passed beyond the "great divide," and now touch and influence us only from the spirit realm. But the four stalwart Canadians, who assisted me, so loyally and effectively, in founding the First Canadian Club in the year 1889, are still with us. They are your honoured self (whom we chose for our first President,) Mr. A. J. Little, now of Toronto, Mr. Robert Mitchell, postmaster, at Guelph, and Mr. J. B. Fischer, solicitor, of Guelph.

As to the good work we did disseminating far and wide through the columns of the Guelph Mercury, and Guelph Herald, the Canadian Club idea, the files of these journals and a host of their readers can bear abundant witness; and those who seem to write for Mr. McCullough do not compliment his intelligence when they represent him as ignorant of the Canadian Club movement in Guelph, four or five years before it dawned on him that it would be a good thing to have a similar club in Hamilton. Now, as to the matter of 'bylaws,' the anonymous article in the Hamilton Herald claims, that the constitutions of all the clubs organized since 1893 are one and the same. If that be indeed a fact, then give me your hand on it Mr. O'Brien, for when I examined critically the original constitution, which I personally formulated in 1888, side by side with that which was adopted by the Hamilton men four years later, the marked resemblance between the two documents, in every essential feature, was, to say the least, extraordinary. What fortuitous concourse of events can adequately account for this singular similarity!

Now, as to Rev. Dr. Talling's letter, in which, with breezy nonchalance, he denies to Guelph the honour of being the birth-place of the Canadian Club movement, let me say that if the reverend gentleman had discreetly acted on your sensible suggestion, and made some honest inquiry at headquarters in Guelph, before rushing into print, it would have saved him from stumbling, along with his Hamilton protege, into the slough of error, and vainly grasping at the proverbial "straws" in order to keep from sinking. Moreover the moral quality and spirit of Dr. Talling's letter, in its relation to some thirteen or fourteen thousand citizens of Guelph, and in its relation to truth and justice, are open to very serious and very damaging criticism. But, Sir, at present, I pass over this unfortunate phase of it in silence; for, although the learned doctor may speak wildly and inaccurately on week days, in the name of Mr. McCullough, he is expected, don't you know, to speak calmly and correctly, in the name of the Lord, on Sunday. I remain, dear Sir,

Very cordially yours,
MALCOLM MACCORMICK.

Guelph, Nov. 21st, 1907.

With the foregoing letter was forwarded the following extract from the "Constitution and Rules of Order of the Canadian Club, Guelph, Canada":—

"At a meeting held in the music hall of the Guelph Business College, on Thursday evening, the 6th December, 1888, at which were present Messrs. E. J. O'Brien, Robert Mitchell, A. J. Little and M. MacCormick, an organization was formed to be known as "THE CANADIAN CLUB."

President—E. J. O'BRIEN.
Secretary—M. MACCORMICK.

On the evening of Thursday, the 6th June, 1889, at the regular meeting of the "Canadian Club," which had now become a vigorous and successful organization, the half-yearly election of officers took place and the annexed Constitution was duly adopted.

OFFICERS.

M. MACCORMICK—President.
A. J. LITTLE—Vice-President.
J. B. FISCHER—Rec.-Secretary.
ROBERT MITCHELL—Treasurer.

While the origin of the "Canadian Club"—idea and execution— are of an importance secondary to its intrinsic national value, still its very pronounced success, the large part it plays in promoting culture and the development of the patriotic spirit and national aspiration makes the credit of its genesis a matter of justifiable pride. The Examiner is not in a position to express any opinion but desires to simply present with judicial absence of bias, the evidence in support of the contending claims, leaving the verdict or judgment to the public and those interested.

HOME AGAIN FROM THE WEST

RUGBY GAME IN CHICAGO

The many friends of Mr. Jack Fraser, Bethune street, will be pleased to learn of his return from the West. Mr. Fraser is very much impressed with the West and has enjoyed his trip.

He was interviewed by the Examiner and was very willing to talk about his trip. He left here about two months ago for Spokane, going by way of Winnipeg, and arriving at his destination just at the time money was getting scarce. The banks issued clearing house cheques. These were passed like dollar bills. He told the reporter of the awful runs on the banks in Spokane. The bank of Montreal has a branch there and it closed its doors when the other banks did. The cowboys and woodsmen who had money in these western financial institutions were seen lined along the streets for blocks. The broad western Stetson hat the same as worn by the South African volunteers are very much in evidence in the West, as everybody wears them. Mr. Fraser said that no one would dare to wear a Christie out there, the only one he saw being on a negro.

According to Jack's story, the policemen have a much easier time there than they do here. On getting off the train he saw a negro policeman who would weigh 250 pounds, standing on the corner with his coat and vest open, and swinging his club in his hand. The policemen are very nice fellows and are always obliging.

In answer to a question about the Japs in the West, Mr. Fraser said they were all over Spokane. They conducted laundries, drove wagons, worked in stores and on the railways, where they receive $1.35 a day, while Italians were obtaining $2.50 a day for the same labour.

As to the weather, Mr. Fraser thought that it was ideal. When we were having cold weather here they had it 50 and 60 in the shade. The days were extremely warm, but at night a person has to wear an overcoat.

On his return trip, the train he was on was stopped by a landslide and delayed eleven hours while in Montana.

He was very much struck with the sporting element displayed in Chicago. He stated that last Saturday Harvard and Yale played a rugby game there, and people from all around drove to the grounds in automobiles, and the street railway ran special cars every three minutes. A crowd numbering more than 50,000 people witnessed the game.

DIAMONDS SMUGGLED INTO NEW YORK

Mr. Sam Fraser, the advance agent for "The Way of the Transgressor" dramatic company, has a store of good stories about his travels. One of these he related to the Examiner when he was here last week.

"We have a dog named Leo," he began. "This dog takes the most prominent part on the stage. While we were playing in England a certain duke presented Leo with a gold collar set with diamonds, and this collar is only taken off during a bath.

"Now, some people think there is nothing smuggled through Uncle Sam's Customs House. Well, we have one thing that is.

"After completing our engagement in Europe we came back to the United States. We landed in New York on a lovely day. I was in charge of the dog, Leo. The U. S. Customs officer came up to me and said that he would have to examine the collar on the dog. Leo let an awful growl out of him and began to wag his tail. Of course, I commenced to think that Leo would fix him like he does the tramp on the stage. The officer, however, tried hard to get his hand on the collar, but at last gave up the attempt.

"'Well,' the officer said, 'this is the first time I ever seen anything smuggled into the country under my very eyes.'"

BETTER THAN MEDICINE

Breathe Hyomei's Tonic Healing And Be Cured of Catarrh

Nature has a remedy for catarrh, a treatment which is far better than dosing the stomach with medicines.

It is the healing oils and balsams of Hyomei which medicates the air you breathe, reaching the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, killing all catarrhal germs, and restoring health to the mucous membrane.

In using Hyomei you are treating your catarrhal troubles with the only natural remedy for it gives a curative air bath to the air passages that has just as powerful healing and antiseptic effect as that found in the mountains where the pine forests give off their healing and fragrant balsams.

Breathe the invigorating and healing Hyomei and see how quickly you will get relief from catarrhal troubles. Mr. Madill has seen so many cures even of the worst cases of catarrh, with offensive breath, raising of mucus, frequent sneezing, droppings in the throat and spasmodic coughing, that they feel warranted in selling Hyomei under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it. He takes all the risk.

Canadian Pacific Railway Change in time commencing on Nov. 25th., the local train which formerly left Peterboro' at 8.00 will leave the C.P.R. depot at 7.05 a.m. until further notice. tf

Crippled With Rheumatism

CURED BY GIN PILLS

Mr. Derraugh certainly did have a hard time of it, winter before last. Caught cold, and it settled in his kidneys. First thing he knew, he was in bed with Rheumatism. He nearly went mad, the pain was so intense. The doctors gave him the usual treatment—and pretty nearly burnt his legs off with liniments and blisters—but the Rheumatism went right on aching.

Then a friend stepped in and said, "Why don't you try GIN PILLS?" After a great deal of persuasion, Mr. Derraugh did try GIN PILLS. You never such a happy man in your life, after he had taken two boxes. Pain all gone—stiffness and lameness completely left—that ache in back and hips disappeared—and he was well in no time. That was two years ago and he has been in perfect health ever since.

Contracted a severe cold. Rheumatism followed and the sharp pains took me so often and were so severe that I had to take to bed. For several months I could get no relief, until I started to take "Gin Pills." In five days I was up and around the house. My pains are gone and I have not had a return of the old trouble since. I wish also to say that "Gin Pills" gave me the first painless passage of urine I have had in two years.

Zutoo

Regarding your Zutoo Tablets I beg to say: I have been a sufferer from headache since childhood and have used all, or nearly all, of the so-called "cures" on the market, till warned by my physician to discontinue their use on account of their bad effects on the heart. Some months since my attention was called to your Zutoo Tablets and I have been using them ever since with the most gratifying results. I find they cure a "sick" or "nervous" headache in a few minutes and leave no bad effect. My family use them whenever needed with equally good results. I have frequently given them to friends who were suffering from headache and they never fail to give quick relief. I find them a good remedy for "sour" stomach as well as headache. I always carry them in my grip on the road and would not be without them at any cost.

One ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion;
One ounce Compound Salestone;
Four ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla;
Mix, and take a teaspoonful after meals and at bedtime, drinking plenty of water.

The above prescription has been found invaluable in the treatment of kidney, bladder and urinary troubles, and diseases arising therefrom, such as rheumatism, catarrh, lame back and lumbago, and we feel that the public are entitled to particulars concerning it.

A prominent physician states that the excellent results that have been obtained from the use of the mixture are due to its direct action upon the kidneys, assisting them in their work of filtering all poisonous waste matter and acids from the blood and expelling same in the urine, and at the same time restoring the kidneys to a healthy condition.

He further states that anyone suffering from afflictions of this nature will find it to be very beneficial, and suggests that it be given a trial.

"But enough of this. I dare say he is in no real danger after all. Nevertheless I shall induce him to pack tomorrow, and we will make for London together, so my next letter will bear a British stamp, and I assure you the air of England will taste good to one benighted Britisher whose name is Alan Drummond."

CHAPTER X.

THE habit of industry practiced from childhood to maturity is not obliterated by an unexpected shower of gold. Dorothy was an early riser, and one morning, entering the parlor from her room, she saw lying upon the table a letter with a Russian stamp, but addressed in an unknown hand to her friend, Katherine Kempt. She surmised that here was the first communication from the prince and expected to learn all about it during the luncheon hour at the latest, but the morning and afternoon passed, and Katherine made no sign, which Dorothy thought was most unusual. All that day and the next Katherine went about silent, sedate and serious, never once quoting the humorous Mr. Gilbert. On the third morning Dorothy was surprised, on emerging from her room, to see Katherine standing by the table, a black book in her hand. On the table lay a large package from New York, recently opened, displaying a number of volumes in what might be termed serious binding, leather or cloth, but none showing that high coloring which distinguishes the output of American fiction.

"Good morning, Dorothy. The early bird is after the worm of science." She held forth the volume in her hand. Steele's "Fourteen Weeks' Course In Chemistry," an old book, but fascinatingly written. "Dorothy," she continued, with a sigh, "I want to talk seriously with you."

"About chemistry?" asked Dorothy.

"About men," said Katherine firmly, "and incidentally about women."

"An interesting subject, Kate, but you've got the wrong text books. You should have had a parcel of novels instead."

Dorothy seated herself, and Katherine followed her example, Steele's "Fourteen Weeks' Course" resting in her lap.

"Every man," began Katherine, "should have a guardian to protect him."

"From women?"

"From all things that are deceptive and not what they seem."

"That sounds very sententious, Kate. What does it mean?"

"It means that man is a simpleton, easily taken in. He is too honest for crafty women, who delude him shamelessly."

"Whom have you been deluding, Kate?"

"Dorothy, I am a sneak."

Dorothy laughed.

"Indeed, Katherine, you are anything but that. You couldn't do a mean or ungenerous action if you tried your best."

"You think, Dorothy, I could reform?" she asked breathlessly, leaning forward.

"Reform? You don't need to reform. You are perfectly delightful as you are, and I know no man who is worthy of you. That's a woman's opinion, one who knows you well, and there is nothing dishonest about the opinion, either, in spite of your tirade against our sex."

"Dorothy, three days ago, be the same more or less, I received a letter from John Lamont."

"Yes, I saw it on the table and surmised it was from him."

"Did you? You were quite right. The reading of that letter has revolutionised my character. I am a changed woman, Dorothy, and thoroughly ashamed of myself. When I remember how I have deluded that poor, credulous young man in making him believe I understood even the fringe of what he spoke about, it fills me with grief at my perfidy, but I am determined to amend my ways if hard study will do it, and when I next see him I shall talk to him worthily like a female Thomas A. Edison."

Again Dorothy laughed.

"Now, that's heartless of you, Dorothy. Don't you see I'm in deadly earnest? Must my former frivolity dog my steps through life? When I call to mind that I made fun to you of his serious purpose in life, the thought makes me cringe and despise myself."

"Nonsense, Kate. Don't go to the other extreme. I remember nothing you have said that needs withdrawal. You have never made a malicious remark in your life, Kate. Don't make me defend you against yourself. You have determined, I take it, to plunge into the subjects which interest the man you are going to merry. That is a perfectly laudable ambition, and I am quite sure you will succeed."

"I know I don't deserve all that, Dorothy, but I like it just the same. I like people to believe in me even if I sometimes lose faith in myself. May I read you an extract from his letter?"

"Don't if you'd rather not."

"I'd rather, Dorothy, if it doesn't weary you, but you will understand when you have heard it in what a new light I regard myself."

The letter proved to be within the leaves of the late Mr. Steele's book on chemistry, and from this volume she extracted it and pressed it for a moment against her breast with her open hand, gazing across at her friend.

"Dorothy, my first love letter!"

She turned the crisp, thin pages and began:

"'You may recollect that footnote which you marked with red ink in the book you so kindly gave me on the subject of catalysis, which did not pertain to the subject of the volume in question and yet was so illuminative to any student of chemistry. They have done a great deal with catalysis in Germany, with amazing commercial results, but the subject is one so recent that I had not previously gone thoroughly into it.'"

Katherine paused in the reading and looked across at her auditor, an expression of despair in her eloquent eyes.

"Dorothy, what under heaven is catalysis?"

"Don't ask me," replied Dorothy, suppressing a laugh, struck by the ludicrousness of any young and beautiful woman pressing any such sentiments as these to her bosom.

"Have you ever heard of a catalytic process, Dorothy?" beseeched Katherine. "It is one of the phrases he uses."

"Never. Go on with the letter, Kate."

"'I saw at once that if I could use a catalytic process, which would be instantaneous in its solidifying effect on my liquid limestone, instead of waiting upon slow evaporation, I could turn out building stone faster than one can make brick. You, I am sure, with your more alert mind, saw this when you marked that passage in red.' Oh, Dorothy," almost whimpered Katherine, leaning back, "how can I go on? Don't you see what a sneak I am? It was bad enough to comen with my heedless, random markings of the book, but to think that line of red ink might have been marked in his blood, for I nearly sent the poor boy to his death."

"Go on, Katherine; go on, go on!"

"'In my search for a catalytic whose substance would remain unchanged after the reaction I quite overlooked the chemical ingredients of one of the materials I was dealing with, and the result was an explosion which nearly blew the roof off the shop and quite startled poor Drummond out of a year's growth. However, no real harm has been done, while I have been taught a valuable lesson—to take into account all the elements I am using. I must not become so intent on the subject I am pursuing as to ignore everything else.' And now, Dorothy, I want to ask you a most intimate question, which I beg of you to answer as frankly as I have confided in you."

"I know what your question is, Kate. A girl who is engaged wishes to see her friend in the same position. You would ask me if I am in love with Alan Drummond, and I answer perfectly frankly that I am not."

"You are quite sure of that, Dorothy?"

"Quite. He is the only man friend I have had, except my own father, and I willingly confess to a sisterly interest in him."

"Well, if that is all"—

"It is all, Kate. Why?"

"Because there is something about him in this letter, which I would read to you if I thought you didn't care."

"Oh, he is in love with Jack's sister, very likely. I should think that would be a most appropriate arrangement. Jack is his best friend, and perhaps a lover would weaken the influence which Tolstoi exerts over an emotional person's mind. Lieutenant Drummond, with his sanity, would probably rescue a remnant of her estates."

"Oh, well, if you can talk as indifferently as that, you are all right, Dorothy. No, there is no other woman in the case. Here's what Jack says:

"'It is amazing how little an Englishman understands people of other nations. Here is my tall friend Drummond marching nonchalantly among dangers of which he has not the least conception. The authorities whom he thinks so courteous are fooling him to the top of his bent. There is, of course, no danger of his arrest, but nevertheless the eyes of the police are upon him, and he will not believe it, any more than he will believe he is being hoodwinked by the foreign minister. What I fear is that he will be bludgeoned on the street some dark night or involved in a one sided duel. Twice I have rescued him from an imminent danger which he has not even seen. Once in a restaurant a group of officers, apparently drunk, picked a quarrel and drew swords upon him. I had the less difficulty in getting him away because he fears a broil or anything that will call down upon him the attention of his wooden headed cousin in the embassy. On another occasion, as we were coming home toward midnight, a perfectly Lognes brawl broke out suddenly all around us. Drummond was unarmed, but his huge fists sent sprawling two or three of his assailants. I had a revolver and held the rest off, and so we escaped. I wish he was safely back in London again.' What do you think of that, Dorothy?"

"I think exactly what Mr. Lamont thinks. Lieutenant Drummond's mission to Russia seems to me a journey of folly."

"After all, I am glad you don't care, Dorothy. He should pay attention to what Jack says, for Jack knows Russia, and he doesn't. Still, let us hope he will come safely out of St. Petersburg. And now, Dot, for breakfast, because I must get to work."

Next morning Dorothy saw a letter for herself on the table in the now familiar handwriting and was more relieved than perhaps she would have confessed even to her closest friend, when she saw the twopence-halfpenny English stamp on the envelope. Yet its contents were startling enough, and this letter she did not read to Katherine Kempt, but bore its anxiety alone.

Dear Miss Amhurst—I write you in great trouble of mind, not trusting this letter to the Russian postoffice, but sending it by an English captain to be posted in London. Two days ago Jack Lamont disappeared, a disappearance as complete as if he had never existed. The night before last, about 10 o'clock, I thought I heard him come into his shop below my room. Sometimes he works there till daylight, and, as when absorbed in his experiments he does not relish interruptions, even from me, I go on with my reading until he comes upstairs. Toward 11 o'clock I thought I heard slight sounds of a scuffle and a smothered cry. I called out to him, but received no answer. Taking a candle, I went downstairs, but everything was exactly as usual, the doors locked and not even a bench overturned. I called aloud, but only the echo of this oasrn of a room replied. I lit the gas and made a more intelligent search, but with no result. I unlocked the door and stood out in the street, which was quite silent and deserted. I began to doubt that I had heard anything at all, for, as I have told you, my nerves lately have been rather prone to the jumps. I sat up all night waiting for him, but he did not come. Next day I went, as had been previously arranged, to the foreign office, but was kept waiting in an anteroom for two hours and then told that the minister could not see me. I met a similar repulse at the admiralty. I dined alone at the restaurant Jack and I frequent, but saw nothing of him. This morning he has not returned, and I am at my wits' end, not in the least knowing what to do. It is useless for me to appeal to the embassy of my country, for, Jack being a Russian, it has no jurisdiction. The last letter I received from you was tampered with. The newspaper extract you spoke of was not there, and one of the sheets of the letter was missing. Pilfing business, I call it, this interfering with private correspondence.

Such was the last letter that Alan Drummond was ever to send to Dorothy Amhurst.

CHAPTER XI.

SUMMER waned. The evenings became chill, although the sun pretended at noon that its power was undiminished. Back to town from mountain and seashore filtered the warm weather idlers, but no more letters came from St. Petersburg to the hill by the Hudson. So far as our girls were concerned, a curtain of silence had fallen between Europe and America.

The flat was now furnished, and the beginning of autumn saw it occupied by the two friends. Realization in this instance lacked the delight of anticipation. At last Katherine was the bachelor girl she had longed to be, but the pleasures of freedom were as Dead sea fruit to the lips. At last Dorothy was effectually cut off from all thoughts of slavery, with unlimited money to do what she pleased with, yet, after all, of what advantage was it in solving the problem that haunted her by day and filled her dreams by night? She faced the world with seeming unconcern, for she had not the right to mourn even if she knew he were dead. He had made no claim, had asked for no affection, had written no word to her but what all the world might read. Once a week she made a little journey up the Hudson to see how her church was coming on, and at first Katherine accompanied her, but now she went alone. Katherine was too honest a girl to pretend an interest where she felt none. She could not talk of architecture when she was thinking of a man and his fate. At first she had been querulously impatient when no second communication came. Her own letters, she said, must have reached him; otherwise they would have been returned. Later dumb fear took possession of her, and she grew silent, plunged with renewed energy into her books, joined a technical school, took lessons and grew paler and paler until her teachers warned her she was overdoing it.

Inwardly she resented the serene impassiveness of her friend, who consulted calmly with the architect upon occasion about the decolation of the church, when men's liberty was gone and perhaps their lives. She built up within her mind a romance of devotion, by which her lover, warning in vain the stolid Englishman, had at last been involved in the ruin that Drummond's stubbornness had brought upon them both and unjustly implicated the quiet woman by her side in the responsibility of this sacrifice. Once or twice she spoke with angry impatience of Drummond and his stupidity, but Dorothy neither defended nor excused, and so no open rupture occurred between the two friends, for a quarrel cannot be one sided.

But with a woman of Katherine's temperament the final outburst had to come, and it came on the day that the first flurry of snow fell through the still air, capering in large flakes past the windows of the flat down to the muddy street far below. Katherine was standing by the window, with her forehead leaning against the plate glass, in exactly the attitude that had been her habit in the sewing room at Bar Harbor, but now the staccato of her fingers on the sill seemed to drum a dead march of despair. The falling snow had darkened the room, and one electric light was aglow over the dainty Chippendale desk at which Dorothy sat writing a letter. The smooth, regular flow of the pen over the paper roused Katherine to a frenzy of exasperation. Suddenly she brought her clinched fist down on the sill where her fingers had been drumming.

"My God!" she cried. "How can you sit there like an automaton with the snow falling?"

Dorothy put down her pen.

"The snow falling?" she echoed. "I don't understand."

"Of course you don't. You don't think of the drifts in Siberia and the two men you have known, whose hands you have clasped, manacled, driven through it with the lash of a Cossack's whip."

Dorothy rose quietly and put her hands on the shoulders of the girl, feeling her frame tremble underneath her touch.

"Katherine," she said quietly, but Katherine, with a nervous twitch of her shoulders, flung off the friendly grasp.

"Don't touch me!" she cried. "Go back to your letter writing. You and the Englishman are exactly alike—unfeeling, heartless. He with his selfish stubbornness has involved an innocent man in the calamity his own stupidity has brought about."

"Katherine, sit down. I want to talk calmly with you."

"Calmly! Calmly! Yes, that is the word. It is easy for you to be calm when you don't care. But I care, and I cannot be calm."

"What do you wish to do, Katherine?"

"What can I do? I am a pauper and a dependent, but one thing I am determined to do, and that is to go and live in my father's house."

"If you were in my place, what would you do, Katherine?"

"I would go to Russia."

"What would you do when you arrived there?"

"If I had wealth I would use it in such a campaign of bribery and corruption in that country of tyrants that I should release two innocent men. I'd first find where they were; then I'd use all the influence I possessed with the American ambassador to get them set free."

"The American ambassador, Kate, cannot move to release either an Englishman or a Russian."

"I'd do it somehow. I wouldn't sit here like a stick or a stone, writing letters to my architect."

"Would you go to Russia alone?"

"No; I should take my father with me."

"That is an excellent idea, Kate. I advise you to go north by tonight's train, if you like, and see or telegraph to him to come and see us."

Kate sat down, and Dorothy drew the curtains across the window pane and snapped on the central cluster of electric lamps.

"Will you come with me if I go north?" asked Kate in a milder tone than she had hitherto used.

"I cannot. I am making an appointment with a man in this room tomorrow."

"The architect, I suppose?" cried Kate, with scorn.

"No, with a man who may or may not give me information of Lamont or Drummond."

Katherine stared at her open eyed.

"Then you have been doing something?"

"I have been trying, but it is difficult to know what to do. I have received

"Katherine," she said quietly.

information that the house in which Mr. Lamont and Mr. Drummond lived is now deserted and no one knows anything of its former occupants. That information comes to me semiofficially, but it does not lead far. I have started inquiry through more questionable channels. In other words, I have invoked the aid of a nihilist society and, although I am quite determined to go to Russia with you, do not be surprised if I am arrested the moment I set foot in St. Petersburg."

"Dorothy, why did you not let me know?"

"I was anxious to get some good news to give you, but it has not come yet."

"Oh, Dorothy," moaned Katherine, struggling to keep back the tears that

NOT JUST AS GOOD

Did you ever inquire at a store for certain articles and get for a reply "We have something just as good"? Did it ever occur to you that "Something just as good" is something the dealer has been able to buy much cheaper than the articles you inquire for? This is true in drugs, fabrics, groceries, hardware, and in fact every line, including silver-plated ware. If you inquire for 1847 Rogers Bros.' Knives, Forks or Spoons, don't accept any bogus Rogers' stamp because your dealer tells you it's just as good.

1847 TRADE MARK ROGERS BROS

The above trade mark has been stamped on every article of the original and genuine Rogers Bros.' goods for over 50 years. Get this and you get the best that is made.

would flow in spite of her. Dorothy patted her on the shoulder.

"You have been a little unjust," she said, "and I am going to prove that to you, so that in trying to make amends you may perhaps stop brooding over this crisis that faces two poor lone women. You wrong the Englishman, as you call him. Jack was arrested at least two days before he was. Nihilist spies say that both of them were arrested, the prince first, and the Englishman several days later. I had a letter from Mr. Drummond a short time after you received yours from Mr. Lamont. I never showed it to you, but now things are so bad that they cannot be worse and you are at liberty to read the letter if you wish to do so. It tells of Jack's disappearance and of Drummond's agony of mind and helplessness in St. Petersburg. Since he has never written again, I am sure he was arrested later. I don't know which of the two was most at fault for what you call stubbornness, but I believe the explosion had more to do with the arrests than any action of theirs."

"And I was the cause of that," wailed Katherine.

"No, no, my dear girl. No one is to blame but the tyrant of Russia. Now the nihilists insist that neither of these men has been sent to Siberia. They think they are in the prison of St. Peter and St. Paul. That information came to me today in the letter I was just now answering. So, Katherine, I think you have been unjust to the Englishman. If he had been arrested first, there might be some grounds for what you charge, but they evidently gave him a chance to escape. He had his warning in the disappearance of his friend, and he had several days in which to get out of St. Petersburg, but he stood his ground."

"I'm sorry, Dorothy. I'm a silly fool, and today when I saw the snow—well, I got all wrought up."

"I think neither of the men is in the snow. And now I am going to say something else and then never speak of the subject again. You say I didn't care, and of course you are quite right, for I confessed to you that I didn't. But just imagine—imagine—that I cared. The Russian government can let the prince go at any moment, and there's nothing more to be said. He has no redress and must take the consequences of his nationality. But if the Russian government have arrested the Englishman, if they have put him in the prison of St. Peter and St. Paul, they dare not release him unless they are willing to face war. The Russian government can do nothing in his case but deny, demand proof and obliterate all chance of the truth ever being known. Alan Drummond is doomed. They dare not release him. Now, think for a moment how much worse my case would be than yours if—if"—her voice quivered and broke for the moment; then, with tightly clinched fists, she recovered control of herself and finished—"if I cared."

"Oh, Dorothy, Dorothy, Dorothy!" gasped Katherine, springing to her feet.

"No, no, don't jump at any false conclusion. We are both nervous wrecks this afternoon. Don't misunderstand me. I don't care—I don't care, except that I hate tyranny and am sorry for the victims of it."

"Dorothy, Dorothy!"

"We need a sane man in the house, Kate. Telegraph for your father to come down and talk to us both. I must finish my letter to the nihilist."

"Dorothy!" said Katherine, kissing her.

CHAPTER XII.

THE nihilist was shown into the dainty drawing room of the flat and found Dorothy Amhurst alone, as he had stipulated, waiting for him. He was dressed in a sort of naval uniform and held a peaked cap in his hand, standing awkwardly there as one unused to luxurious surroundings. His face was bronzed with exposure to sun and storm, and, although he appeared to be little more than thirty years of age, his closely cropped hair was white. His eyes were light blue, and if ever the expression of a man's countenance betokened stalwart honesty it was the face of this sailor. He was not in the least Dorothy's idea of a dangerous plotter.

"Sit down," she said, and he did so like a man ill at ease.

"I suppose Johnson is not your real name," she began.

"It is the name I bear in America, madam."

"Do you mind my asking you some questions?"

"No, madam, but if you ask me anything I am not allowed to answer I shall not reply."

"How long have you been in the United States?"

"Only a few months, madam."

"How come you to speak English so well?"

"In my young days I shipped aboard a bark plying between Helsingfors and New York."

"You are a Russian?"

"I am a Finlander, madam."

"Have you been a sailor all your life?"

"Yes, madam. For a time I was an unimportant officer on board a battleship in the Russian navy until I was discovered to be a nihilist, when I was cast into prison. I escaped last May and came to New York."

"What have you been doing since you arrived here?"

"I was so fortunate as to become mate on the turbine yacht the Walrus, owned by Mr. Stockwell."

"Oh, that's the multimillionaire whose bank failed a month ago."

"Yes, madam."

"But does he still keep a yacht?"

"No, madam. I think he has never been aboard this one, although it is probably the most expensive boat in these waters. I am told it cost anywhere from half a million to a million. She was built by Thornycroft like a cruiser, with Parson's turbine engines in her. After the failure captain and crew were discharged, and I am on board as a sort of watchman until she is sold, but there is not a large market for a boat like the Walrus, and I am told they will take the fittings out of her and sell her as a cruiser to one of the South American republics."

"Well, Mr. Johnson, you ought to be a reliable man if the court has put you in charge of so valuable a property."

"I believe I am considered honest, madam."

"Then why do you come to me asking $10,000 for a letter which you say was written to me and which naturally belongs to me?"

The man's face deepened into a mahogany brown, and he shifted his cap uneasily in his hands.

"Madam, I am not acting for myself. I am secretary of the Russian Liberation society. They, through their branch at St. Petersburg, have conducted some investigations on your behalf."

"Yes, for which I paid them very well."

Johnson bowed.

"Our object, madam, is the repression of tyranny. For that we are in continual need of money. It is the poor and not the millionaires who subscribe to our fund. It has been discovered that you are a rich woman, who will never miss the money asked, and so the demand was made. Believe me, madam, I am acting by the command of my comrades. I tried to persuade them to leave compensation to your own generosity, but they refused. If you consider their demand unreasonable, you have but to say so, and I will return and tell them your decision."

"Have you brought the letter with you?"

"Yes, madam."

"Have you read it?"

"Yes, madam."

"Do you think it worth $10,000?"

The sailor looked up at the decorated ceiling for several moments before he replied.

"That is a question I cannot answer," he said at last. "It all depends on what you think of the writer."

"Answer one more question. By whom is the letter signed?"

"There is no signature, madam. It was found in the house where the two young men lived. Our people searched the house from top to bottom surreptitiously, and they think the writer was arrested before he had finished the letter. There is no address and nothing to show for whom it is intended except the phrase beginning 'My dearest Dorothy.'"

The girl leaned back in her chair and drew a long breath. "It is not for me," she said hastily. Then, bending forward, she cried suddenly:
